DEFENCE

RAF Machrihanish

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Defence (Mr. Kevan Jones): The former RAF Machrihanish, near Campbeltown in the west of Scotland, is surplus to defence requirements and will be disposed of.

In considering the way forward in regard to this large but relatively remote site, the Ministry of Defence (MOD) has been very aware of the sensitivities that attach to it, not least the impact of change on the local community and the presence of transport links provided by Highlands and Islands Airport Ltd (HIAL), which currently leases areas of the site for use as Campeltown airport. To that end, before making the announcement, we have engaged closely with the Scottish Executive (SE), Highlands and Islands Enterprise (HIE), Argyll and Bute council as well as with other stakeholders.

Having publicly announced our intention to dispose of the site, we will now take the disposal forward in partnership with other Government stakeholders via a joint steering/focus group. We will engage and consult with the local community, businesses and other stakeholders to help determine the best way to dispose of the site balancing departmental, Scottish and local interests (including both the requirement to achieve best value for the public purse and maximising the long-term development potential of this site).

It is also our intention, with the full understanding of the SE, to discuss the way forward with HIAL to ensure that its future is both secure and sustainable under new ownership and to ensure that the transport link will continue.

The relatively remote location of Machrihanish means that the impact of a change of use could be greater than elsewhere.

Twenty people currently work for MOD at Machrihanish including facilities management staff and security guards. It is our intention that the termination of employment and maintenance contracts will be handled sensitively. The other MOD establishment in the travel to work area, the oil fuel depot (OFD) at Campbeltown, will remain open.

MOD will also do all it can to ensure that the interests of tenants other than HIAL, are also protected in the sale process.

On water and waste water services supplied by MOD to its tenants, former MOD housing and local farmers, the Department will do everything possible to ensure that a responsible purchaser will discharge those responsibilities for the future.

This announcement brings to an end a long period of speculation about the future of the former RAF Machrihanish. It is hoped that the disposal will end uncertainty and allow a new era of development and long term prosperity to begin that will benefit both the site and the local community.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Georgia

The Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (David Miliband): My right hon. Friend the Prime Minister made a statement on 10 September on the conflict in Georgia.

Since then, the Government have been actively engaged in multilateral efforts to resolve the conflict, both in supporting the Georgian Government and people as they try to recover, and in making it clear to Russia that we expect it to abide by its agreement with President Sarkozy. We have supported efforts by the Organisation for Security and Co-operation in Europe (OSCE), the UN and EU to establish mechanisms that will provide independent monitoring of the situation on the ground in Georgia. I have made clear in discussions with Russian Foreign Minister Lavrov that we reject unilateral Russian recognition of the breakaway territories and continued Russian military presence in Georgia. I have also visited both Georgia and Ukraine and assured them that the UK stands by their rights as sovereign countries to determine their own futures. My right hon. Friends the Prime Minister and the Chancellor of the Exchequer and I met the Georgian Prime Minister during his visit on 19 September and discussed specific measures to help the Georgian economy. On 27 September, I met with President Saakashvili in New York and discussed the international peace talks to be held in Geneva on 15 October, reconstruction efforts and the importance of Georgia continuing its domestic reform programme.

We have engaged in intensive discussions with international partners, including through the UN, EU, NATO, G7 and OSCE, in order to help bring peace and stability to the region, to achieve a settlement based on recognition of and respect for Georgian sovereignty and territorial integrity, as well as to address critical humanitarian needs, which includes the voluntary return of over 100,000 people displaced by the conflict. Whatever the wisdom of Georgian actions on 7 August, Russia's response was entirely disproportionate. It has been widely condemned by EU, NATO and G7 Foreign Ministers. The encroachment of Russian military forces deep into Georgian territory beyond South Ossetia and Abkhazia during the fighting violated Georgian sovereignty and territorial integrity. Russian actions, including recognition of South Ossetia and Abkhazia, breach a number of UN resolutions that Russia has itself signed. The most recent was UN Security Council Resolution 1808, adopted with Russian support in April 2008, which explicitly "Reaffirms the commitment by all member states to the sovereignty, independence and territorial integrity of Georgia within its internationally recognised borders".

In the EU, the comprehensive review of EU-Russia relations has begun and will continue up to the next EU-Russia summit in Nice on 14 November. Negotiations on a new EU Partnership and Co-operation Agreement (PCA) with Russia also remain suspended.

The agreement reached on 8 September between Presidents Sarkozy and Medvedev secured Russia's commitment to withdraw its troops from Georgian territory outside the regions of Abkhazia and South Ossetia, in line with the six-point ceasefire plan brokered with the parties to the conflict on 12 August. Russia committed also to international discussions on future security modalities. On 15 September EU Foreign Ministers agreed to deploy an EU monitoring mission to the region adjacent to South Ossetia and Abkhazia. That mission is now on the ground. The UK has contributed 19 monitors, two headquarters personnel and four armoured vehicles. The mission has a one year mandate to operate throughout Georgia. Its purpose is to monitor compliance with the ceasefire plan, with the aim of supporting efforts to ensure lasting peace and security in the region. More specifically, the mission will help to ensure the free movement of people and goods, as well as monitoring the human rights situation in Georgia and progress on the return of those displaced by the conflict. As such, it is vital that international monitors are afforded the access they need in order to enable them to carry out their mandate.

This mission meets the EU's commitment to provide at least 200 unarmed civilian EU monitors to deploy to zones adjacent to South Ossetia and Abkhazia by 1 October. We expect Russia to meet its commitment to withdraw its forces to their pre-conflict positions by 11 October. The UK is committed to the EU-led conference process due to start in Geneva on 15 October and which will examine ways to ensure security and stability in the region, to ensure protection of civilians, and to settle the issue of refugees and internally displaced persons on the basis of internationally recognised principles and established post-conflict resolution practice.

The UK will continue to work with international partners to ensure that effective support is given to Georgia and towards a lasting, peaceful solution.

I will continue to keep the House informed of developments.

Zimbabwe

The Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (David Miliband): The House will have seen news of the political agreement reached between the parties in Harare on 15 September to form an interim coalition Administration. Three weeks have passed since that moment and still no cabinet has been appointed. The positive momentum generated by the signature is fast evaporating, Zimbabwe's economic and political situation is deteriorating, inflation continues to mount and the people of Zimbabwe are still suffering.

That is why there must be no further delay in the appointment of a Zimbabwean Government. The people of Zimbabwe have made their choice. They had the courage to vote on 29 March in spite of the threats and political violence they faced then. They wanted a Government that represented change and reform. Robert Mugabe and ZANU(PF) spent five weeks suppressing the results of that vote. Time was used as a weapon to drag out the election and avoid the transfer of power. The same tactic is being employed now and it is unacceptable.

We and other donors are continuing to provide vital humanitarian relief to the people of Zimbabwe. The UK remains the second largest bilateral donor. We are providing seeds, fertiliser and other agricultural inputs. Via the Department for International Development, we have already given an additional £9 million to the World Food Programme over the summer. The cruel and inhuman ban on the operation of NGOs has been lifted and so our aid is now finally reaching the most vulnerable in Zimbabwe. But some local restrictions remain in place and the situation for ordinary Zimbabweans remains precarious.

Humanitarian relief is vital but it is not the long-term solution in Zimbabwe. We and others want to help the people of Zimbabwe and a new inclusive Administration deal with the root causes of those problems. For that to happen a new and genuinely representative Government must be put in place and they must commit themselves to reform and change. Evidence of that commitment will be simple to see, in the first instance: full and equal humanitarian access without any political or other restrictions; an end to all political violence and the threat of violence; independent media being allowed back in to Zimbabwe and permitted to report freely; freedom of association for all; and a new Government that shows itself committed to macroeconomic stability and reviving the economy.

Morgan Tsvangirai and the MDC have already said they are committed to taking these kinds of steps. They are no more than the Zimbabwean people deserve and need. In New York at the UN General Assembly, Robert Mugabe said that his party will abide by the spirit and letter of the agreement he had signed. We and others are prepared to help and to judge a new Government by their actions, not by their history. The process of development and reform must be Zimbabwean-led and owned and must come out of Harare. A Government who demonstrates by their actions that they are committed to the rights and welfare of its people will attract substantial assistance from the UK and the international community.

Former President Mbeki worked hard to bring the political parties together. Follow-through on the agreement reached in Harare depends on the parties themselves but South Africa, the region and the African Union can all play a positive role in resolving the current impasse and in overseeing the implementation of the agreement. We continue to encourage them to do so. Zimbabwe's problems are far from over. The agreement may mark a step forward but without fair and even-handed implementation it will not be the decisive step needed by the people of Zimbabwe.

Until a new Zimbabwean Government are appointed and that Government show by their action their commitment to reform, EU targeted measures will remain in place. I will discuss the situation in Zimbabwe again with EU Foreign Ministers when we meet on 13 October. We will continue to work within the EU and UN and with African partners to help resolve Zimbabwe's crisis and to support a positive transition to reform on the ground.

Our commitment to the people of Zimbabwe has never been in question and remains constant. What matters now is whether Robert Mugabe and ZANU(PF) can support an agreement that will bring those people relief.

ATTORNEY-GENERAL

Fraud Review

The Solicitor-General (Vera Baird): My right hon. Friend the Attorney-General has made the following written ministerial statement:

"On 1 October the Government established the National Fraud Strategic Authority (NFSA), an agency of the Attorney-General's Office. Created out of the Government's response to the 2006 Fraud Review, the NFSA will work with private, public and third sector organisations to initiate, co-ordinate and communicate counter-fraud activity across the economy.

Fraud is a crime that is second only to the illegal drug trade in terms of its impacts on the UK. In 2005, the Association of Chief Police Officers estimated the annual cost of fraud is around £14 billion or nearly £265 for every person in England and Wales. Apart from the financial impacts, fraud also carries a high social cost as often the proceeds of organised fraud are used to fund larger, more serious crimes, such as people and drug trafficking or terrorism.

The business plan that was published on 1 October outlines the NFSA's priorities, functions and its financial plan; copies of which are have been placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

The Government, through the comprehensive spending review, have committed nearly £29 million (between 2008-11) to implement the Fraud Review's key recommendations to develop a strategic authority, a lead police force, a reporting centre and undertake consultation on a range of criminal justice reforms.

The authority's key priorities will include the delivery of:

a criminal justice system that focuses on the needs of victims by bringing fraudsters to swifter justice, efficiently and effectively; stronger deterrence to fraudsters through a tough, multi-agency law enforcement and regulatory response; and greater public confidence in the response to fraud, and greater capability of individuals and organisations to protect themselves.

There is much work underway in the establishment of not only the NFSA, but also the National Lead Police Force and National Fraud Reporting Centre.

This National Lead Police Force, operated by the City of London police will reinforce the policing response to fraud through the provision of essential counter-fraud specialist training, best practice and support to police forces in England and Wales thorough the recruitment of around 40 additional officers and specialists.

To inform the authority's assessment of the fraud threat will be a new National Fraud Reporting Centre (NFRC), which is planned to start operating in late 2009.This centre, also being developed and managed by the City Of London police, will aim to address the under-reporting of fraud through the provision of a telephone and web-based reporting service, which will enable individuals and companies to share information on reports of fraud and receive advice and information to protect themselves from future attacks by fraudsters".

WORK AND PENSIONS

Lone Parent Obligations

The Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (James Purnell): The Government are committed to eradicating child poverty by 2020 and helping individuals reach their full potential by helping those who can to move from welfare to paid work. We set out our intentions in the command paper "Ready for Work: Full Employment in our Generation" published in December 2007.

Helping more lone parents into work is vital if the Government are to eradicate child poverty by 2020. Paid work for those who can, is the most sustainable route out of poverty. The Government are committed to the principle that once children are older, lone parents who are able to do so and are claiming income support should be expected to look for paid work. In return, the Government have increased the level of assistance and support that they provide to help lone parents move into, and progress in, paid work.

Since 1997 considerable progress has been made in increasing the lone parent employment rate to 56.3 per cent. but we still face major challenges to eradicate child poverty. Over half—58 per cent.—of children in non-working lone parent families live in poverty, compared with 19 per cent. of children of lone parents working part-time and 7 per cent. of those working full-time.

The draft Social Security (Lone Parents and Miscellaneous Amendments) Regulations 2008 are intended to help lone parents move into paid employment. From 2010, lone parents with a youngest child aged seven or over will no longer be entitled to income support solely on the grounds of being a lone parent. Instead, those able to take up paid employment may claim jobseeker's allowance (JSA) and those with a disability or health condition may claim employment and support allowance (ESA). The draft regulations recognise that some lone parents face circumstances that need special consideration and provide additional flexibilities to accommodate their individual needs.

The draft Social Security (Lone Parents and Miscellaneous Amendments) Regulations 2008 were referred to the Social Security Advisory Committee (SSAC) on 7 May 2008 for consultation in accordance with section 172(1) of the Social Security Administration Act 1992. I have noted the Committee's concerns and carefully considered their views. I consider there are strong safeguards in the proposed regulations and Jobcentre Plus operations to protect the most vulnerable lone parents. I have also reconsidered the timetable for ending income support for existing lone parent customers. The draft regulations have been amended to accommodate changes so that roll out for lone parents with older children can better inform delivery for subsequent customer groups.

I am now announcing my intention to lay these regulations in draft before Parliament. These regulations are subject to the affirmative procedure.

CHILDREN, SCHOOLS AND FAMILIES

The Rights of the Child

The Minister for Children, Young People and Families (Beverley Hughes): On 3 October 2008 the United Nations Committee on the Rights of the Child published their Concluding Observations on the United Kingdom's report on the implementation of the United Nations convention on the Rights of the Child (UNCRC). Publication of the Concluding Observations follows the submission of the UK Government's written report to the Committee in July 2007 and an Oral Hearing with the Committee on 23 and 24 September 2008.

The United Kingdom's delegation entered into a frank and open discussion with the Committee. This was recognised both in the Committee's closing remarks at the Oral Hearing and the Concluding Observations. I am pleased that the Committee has also recognised the significant progress we have made in the implementation of the convention and the emphasis we have placed on improving the well-being of children and young people.

I broadly welcome the Concluding Observations and, while areas of difference with the Committee remain, we will give the Committee's recommendations the careful consideration they deserve. This process will include a dialogue with non-governmental organisations and the four United Kingdom Children's Commissioners. Our "Children's Plan", published in December 2007, sets out our ambitions and strategies to tackle many of the issues the UN Committee has highlighted. Later this year we will report on progress against the commitments made in the children's plan.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Local Government

The Minister for Local Government (John Healey): As I told the House on 20 May 2008, we have published a consultation document, inviting views on whether or not we should, subject to parliamentary approval, move the date of the English local elections from Thursday 7 May 2009 to Thursday 4 June 2009, the same day as the European parliamentary election. That consultation closed on 11 August and we have received 278 representations, including from the Electoral Commission, the Association of Electoral Administrators, the Local Government Association, many of the councils that would be affected and a number of the political parties.

There was a large measure of support among consultees, including the Electoral Commission, for moving the date of the English local elections in 2009. A number of consultees also made representations about various practical measures they believe we should take if the date of the local elections is to be moved.

I am today placing in the Library of the House a document summarising the representations we have received and setting out the Government's response. This document is also available on the departmental website.

Having carefully considered all the representations received I am also today laying a draft Local Elections (Ordinary Day of Elections in 2009) Order 2008 which, if approved by Parliament and made no later than 7 November 2008, would move the local election day in England, in 2009, to the date of the European parliamentary election, planned for Thursday 4 June. The order also makes incidental, supplementary and consequential provisions as a consequence of that change of date, including provision for the European elections in England in 2009 to be administered on local government boundaries.

The local elections that would be affected by this change of date are the elections to all county councils in two-tier areas, the unitary Isle of Wight county council, Bristol city council and the new unitary councils of Bedford, Central Bedfordshire, Cornwall, Shropshire and Wiltshire; a limited number of parish councils and the mayoral elections in Doncaster, Hartlepool, North Tyneside and Stoke.

We believe that avoiding elections on two separate occasions within a month will be more convenient for voters, less costly for the taxpayer and more efficient for electoral administrators. As in 2004, holding the local elections alongside the European elections in 2009 could help boost voter turnout and improve the democratic process.

DEFENCE

Defence Estate Stewardship Report

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Defence (Mr. Kevan Jones): The "Stewardship Report on the Defence Estate 2007-08" will be published today. The publication of the report implements the commitment in "The Defence Estate Strategy 2006—In Trust & On Trust" to report annually performance across a range of estate-related strategic aims, and to demonstrate that the Department is discharging its obligations properly and acting responsibly in meeting the needs of the armed forces. The report attempts to balance:

a. describing the substantial investment made in the estate, the successes over the year, the steps being taken to improve the effectiveness of management and the achievement of value for money, with

b. the commitment to provide an account of our stewardship to external stakeholders.

The report continues to set out the progress against the aims and objectives in the Defence Estate Strategy 2006 and demonstrates how the estate is changing as a result. Copies will be placed in the Library of the House and on the internet.

Armed Forces Act 2006

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Defence (Mr. Kevan Jones): I am today announcing that the timescale for implementation of the Armed Forces Act 2006 is being extended.

When it is implemented, the Armed Forces Act 2006 will allow us to replace the three current Service Discipline Acts and other armed forces legislation with a single system of service law. The Service Discipline Acts, which have provided the legal basis for discipline in the armed forces since the 1950s, will be repealed in due course.

The transitional provisions that will provide the essential bridge between the three Service Discipline Acts and the Armed Forces Act 2006 have proved more difficult and complex than was envisaged in our original planning. The main reason for this is because the provisions contained in the older legislation have all been amended, often piecemeal, over a period of several decades. The result is a complex web of legislation that applies, sometimes in different ways, to each of the armed forces.

The legislation will be brought into effect in October 2009. We do, however, plan to maintain momentum by making the necessary legislative changes to enable the director of service prosecutions, created under the Armed Forces Act 2006, to prosecute all cases under the existing Service Discipline Acts from 1 January 2009. We will bring before Parliament in the autumn the necessary secondary legislation to achieve this.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Marine Bill

The Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (Hilary Benn): A Command Paper was laid before Parliament on 25 September 2008, providing the Government's response to the pre-legislative scrutiny and public consultation on the draft Marine Bill.

The document responds to reports by two parliamentary Committees: the Ad Hoc Joint Committee on the draft Marine Bill, and the Environment, Food and Rural Affairs Committee on the draft Marine Bill: Coastal Access Provisions. The Command Paper also responds to the feedback we received from the public consultation on the draft Bill, which ran from 3 April to 26 June 2008. I am grateful to the Committees which scrutinised the draft Bill and to members of the public for their comments and recommendations.

Responses to the draft Bill have largely been positive, reflecting the wide support for action to protect our marine resources now and for future generations. The reports by the two parliamentary Committees, and the views expressed during the public consultation, are helping us to improve our proposals in this area. Subject to the availability of parliamentary time, the Government now intend to introduce a Bill to:

establish and properly resource the Marine Management Organisation (MMO) to deliver marine functions in the waters around England and in the UK offshore area (for matters that are not devolved); and ensure it has a clear purpose;

take forward the proposed new marine planning system, amending the draft Bill to introduce a requirement on policy authorities to periodically review the marine policy statement (MPS); make the MPS subject to a similar parliamentary process as national policy statements; and ensure marine plan authorities are under an obligation to do what they can to ensure compatibility with plans on land; improve the provisions on licensing by requiring each appropriate licensing authority to establish an appeals mechanism and by setting out detailed transitional arrangements;

amend the draft Bill provisions relating to nature conservation in various ways to provide greater clarity and certainty, including through conferring a statutory duty on Ministers to designate marine conservation zones and setting out other functions and responsibilities on the face of the draft Bill; continue with our plans to strengthen the management of marine fisheries, including by replacing Sea Fisheries Committees with newly created inshore fisheries and conservation authorities, and to strengthen powers for the licensing and management of migratory and freshwater fisheries; streamline and modernise enforcement powers ensuring enforcement officers are appropriately trained; provide a power to establish an appeals process for statutory notices under the licensing provisions; and provide guidance that the maximum level of fixed monetary penalty will be capped at £5,000; and place a duty on the Secretary of State and Natural England to secure a long distance route and land available for open-air recreation, including through amending the draft Bill to require Natural England to conduct a review of early implementation and to report to Parliament after 10 years.

Copies of the Command Paper have been placed in the Library of the House. The document can also be found on the website of the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs along with a summary of consultation responses.

North-East Flooding

The Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (Hilary Benn): Between Friday 5 and Sunday 7 September, severe flooding affected parts of England, with the most affected areas being Morpeth, Rothbury and Ponteland in Northumberland.

Following forecasts of exceptional rainfall in the area, the Environment Agency started to alert local authorities and the emergency services on the 4 September. Calls were made to prepare vulnerable people and areas, including an old people's home in Ponteland, which was evacuated well before any flooding took place.

In the event 150mm of rain (6 inches) fell onto saturated ground and full river catchments in the North-East region over 48 hours. The average for this time of year is 50mm (2 inches) in a month.

Morpeth was the most severely affected area. The first flood watch alert was issued at 3.30am on Saturday morning, and warnings escalated throughout the day. A multi-agency Gold Command was established, led by Northumbria police, and a full evacuation was underway by 4pm, led by the local authority and supported by the emergency services.

Approximately 1,000 homes and businesses were affected by the flooding and around 250 families took advantage of rescue centres and temporary accommodation. By Sunday morning, the flood waters had almost completely receded. Roads were re-opened and the centre of Morpeth opened for business before Sunday lunchtime and the recovery operation began.

The local recovery and support operation will continue for some months yet. Specifically, Recovery and Restoration Groups in Castle Morpeth and Alnwick are offering guidance and support to local residents. Representatives of the councils, fire and rescue service and police have visited local residents to discuss the support available and the National Flood Forum is advising the Recovery and Restoration Groups on the likely issues they will face as the recovery effort continues.

One NorthEast, the Regional Development Agency, has made £500,000 available to help with immediate costs for affected businesses, and my hon. Friend the Minister for Local Government has confirmed that the Bellwin scheme has been activated to cover the immediate local authority costs of responding to the floods. Applications for Bellwin assistance are being prepared by Northumberland county council, and Castle Morpeth borough council.

In addition, many donations have been made, including of furniture and household items. Voluntary agencies and supermarkets have provided food, goods and cleaning materials, and community groups continue to provide drop in centres to give affected families a break from the clean-up operation.

Following the flooding, the Environment Agency are immediately undertaking three emergency works in the area; a structural assessment of a damaged in-river weir upstream of Morpeth; structural assessments of various flood defences in the town; and designing a replacement floodwall demolished by the force of water pushing against it after the town had been inundated.

The Environment Agency are also developing a new scheme to protect Morpeth to the highest possible standard. The scheme is at the end of year one of its current four year programme and efforts will be made to explore a faster timescale for construction.

On behalf of the House, I would like to thank the emergency services who did a very good job dealing with the flooding and to congratulate the local councils, Environment Agency, voluntary organisations and all others who have come together to help communities get back to normal.

HEALTH

Unsustainable NHS Providers

The Minister of State, Department of Health (Mr. Ben Bradshaw): On 10 September 2008 the Government launched a consultation exercise on the regime for unsustainable national health service providers.

The consultation sets out details for tackling poor performance in NHS hospitals and trusts while protecting services for patients. It follows the publication of "Developing the NHS Performance Regime" in June this year—which outlined the steps that would be taken if an organisation under-performed—and picks up at the point where an organisation has failed to turn its performance around.

The regime aims to:

underpin the NHS performance regime;

ensure the public receive high-quality services by supporting quality regulation; reinforce the NHS foundation trust regime; and protect patients and staff from failing services.

The regime is the last step for providers who are subject to previous recovery actions by Monitor or under the NHS performance regime. The consultation proposes that a 'trust special administrator' would be appointed to take control of the trust to ensure that it continues to provide safe and effective services for patients. The trust special administrator would also be required to produce a report and consult swiftly on proposals for the future of the trust.

The consultation will run until 3 December 2008.

A copy of the consultation document has been placed in the Library and copies are available to hon. Members from the Vote Office.

Dental Services

The Secretary of State for Health (Alan Johnson): The House of Commons Health Select Committee published its report on dental services on 2 July 2008. We are today laying before Parliament the Command Paper setting out the interim Government response to the conclusions and recommendations in the report.

We have carefully considered the Committee's recommendations. The new contractual arrangements introduced in 2006 placed a legal duty on primary care trusts (PCTs) to commission dental services to meet local needs. We are confident that the new arrangements provide a better basis for the NHS to commission dental services. New services are opening all over the country and, according to latest figures, there were 655 more dentists working in the NHS in 2007-08 than in the previous year.

We acknowledge there remains work to be done. As well as an existing programme of work with PCTs to drive maximum benefits from the new arrangements in terms of access and quality of services, the Department has begun work with strategic health authorities to agree the changes that will most rapidly improve access to NHS dentistry.

This work will be complete later this autumn and we will then be in a position to make a fuller response setting out further actions.

JUSTICE

Public Guardian Board

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Justice (Bridget Prentice): The Public Guardian Board have provided the Lord Chancellor with a copy of their first annual report on the Public Guardian. A copy of the report is available in the Libraries of both Houses. Copies are also available in the Vote Office and the Printed Paper Office.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Independent Monitoring Commission

The Secretary of State for Northern Ireland (Mr. Shaun Woodward): I have today published and laid before Parliament my fourth annual report on the operation of the agreement between the British and Irish Governments which established the Independent Monitoring Commission (IMC). This report covers the period 18 September 2006 to 17 September 2007.

In line with a commitment made by my predecessor, this report also contains the audited accounts of the IMC for the twelve-month period ending 31 March 2007.

The report covers the final report on normalisation published on 17 September 2007, which concluded that the normalisation programme as a whole has been complied with.

I remain grateful to the Commissioners of the IMC for their valuable contributions over this period, and for their contribution to promoting the transition to a peaceful society and a stable and inclusive devolved Government in Northern Ireland.

WALES

Legislative Competence Order (Agriculture and Rural Development)

The Secretary of State for Wales (Mr. Paul Murphy): I am pleased to inform the House that the proposed National Assembly for Wales (Legislative Competence) (Agriculture and Rural Development) Order dealing with the Welsh red meat industry has been laid today, as Command Paper (Cm 7474). Copies of this Paper can be found in the Vote Office and will be placed in the Library from 11a.m. I have written to the Welsh Affairs Committee and to the House of Lords Constitutional Committee to request they undertake pre-legislative scrutiny.

CHILDREN, SCHOOLS AND FAMILIES

Watling House

The Minister for Children, Young People and Families (Beverley Hughes): It is the normal practice when a Government Department proposes to make a gift of a value exceeding £250,000, for the Department concerned to present to the House of Commons a Minute giving particulars of the gift and explaining the circumstances; and to refrain from making the gift until 14 parliamentary sitting days after the issue of the Minute, except in cases of special urgency.

Watling House opened in early 1999 and was a fully operational secure children's home until it closed in June 2007. Capital grants totalling £3.6 million were paid by the Department of Health to Staffordshire county council for the building and development of the home. In 2003, as part of a machinery of Government change, the policy responsibility for children's homes (secure and non-secure) transferred to the present Department for Children Schools and Families. The Exchequer interest in Watling House is estimated to be £1.224 million.

Section 82(3) of the Children Act 1989 gives the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (with the consent of HM Treasury) the power to recover, in whole or in part, any capital grant (made under section 82(2)) with respect to secure accommodation, where the grant is not used for the purpose for which it was made or the accommodation is not used as, or ceases to be used as, secure accommodation. Government accounting rules require that the sum to be recovered is based on the exchequer interest in the grant(s) awarded.

Staffordshire county council, which owns the home, are proposing to transfer the home to Staffordshire police authority. The home will then be converted into custody provision. The Secretary of State is content to agree the request from Staffordshire county council to waive the exchequer interest in Watling House as the change of use proposed for the site would mean that it would continue to be used for the benefit of the wider national interest.

Treasury consent has been given, in principle, on the conditions that: the site is retained and used for custody provision for a minimum of nine years; and, should the site cease to be used for these purposes the Department retains the right to cancel the waiver and reclaim the remaining Exchequer interest adjusted for elapsed time.

The Treasury has approved the proposal in principle. If, during the period of fourteen parliamentary sitting days beginning on the date on which this Minute was laid before the House of Commons, a Member signifies an objection by giving notice of a parliamentary question or of a motion relating to the Minute, or by otherwise raising the matter in the House, final approval of the gift will be withheld pending an examination of the objection.

DEFENCE

Kosovo

The Secretary of State for Defence (Mr. John Hutton): The House will recall the successful deployment of the 2nd Battalion, The Rifles (2 Rifles) to Kosovo during June as part of our existing commitment to the NATO/EU shared pan-Balkans Operational Reserve Force (ORF). This commitment will last until the end of 2008.

Following a review of the security situation in Kosovo and our wider military commitments, the Foreign Secretary and I have agreed that the UK contribution to the ORF will cease on 31 December 2008. The major milestones in Kosovo's independence have passed without incident and the security situation in Kosovo is stable, if fragile. Against this backdrop, and with over 15,000 personnel currently in theatre, NATO remains well placed to deal with any potential security incidents.

The deployment of the UK ORF battalion demonstrated again the professionalism of our Armed Forces. It also confirmed our commitment to the security of Kosovo during a politically sensitive period. The UK will continue to make a significant contribution to Kosovo's security through the provision of key intelligence capabilities, support to the stand down of the Kosovo Protection Corps and wider security sector reform and capacity building. Moreover, the UK will continue to assist with mobilising international support for Kosovo on key political, governance and economic issues.

HEALTH

EU Cross-Border Healthcare

The Minister of State, Department of Health (Dawn Primarolo): The Government have today published a consultation paper and partial impact assessment on the Commission of the European Union's proposal for a Directive on the application of patients' rights in cross-border healthcare. The consultation will run until 3 December. The consultation paper has been placed in the Library and copies are available for hon. Members from the Vote Office.

Paroxysmal Nocturnal Haemoglobinuria

The Minister of State, Department of Health (Dawn Primarolo): Over the summer, Ministers received advice reflecting the deliberations of the National Commissioning Group (NCG), the National Specialised Commissioning Group (NSCG) and strategic health authority chief executives about taking a national commissioning approach to the paroxysmal nocturnal haemoglobinuria (PNH) service, including the issue of Eculizumab's availability on the NHS. We have given these complex issues very careful consideration.

The Government can now confirm that Ministers have decided that the NHS should nationally commission the PNH service for clinically eligible patients from 1 April 2009, through the National Commissioning Group. In taking this view, Ministers have taken account of the following key points:

research has provided good evidence that Eculizumab is a highly effective treatment for this condition for a number of patients; treatment is long-term and life-long for most patients;

the service to treat this condition meets the criteria for national commissioning; and the 'national' risk pool approach offers significant benefits to PCT commissioners who are not then vulnerable to multiple high cost patients.

The National Specialised Commissioning Team will now make arrangements with NHS stakeholders to ensure that arrangements for the national commissioning of PNH services are in place for 1 April 2009. They will also be considering with the drug's manufacturer and with the local NHS any transitional issues that need to be managed over the next six months.

Prescription Charges

The Minister of State, Department of Health (Dawn Primarolo): The Government had previously announced its intention to hold a consultation on prescription charges (Official Report, 23 July 2007, col. 44ws), subject to any changes to the system being cost neutral for the NHS.

Many representations have been received from patients and their representative groups about the current system of prescription charging—some calling for extension of the list of medical exemptions, others for the abolition of charges. Having listened to these representations, we have decided to move away from the constraint of cost neutrality. The Government have, therefore, decided to exempt cancer patients from prescription charges with effect from 1 April 2009, and will move towards exempting patients with long-term conditions over the next few years.

These changes are an additional cost to the NHS, which the Government believe are necessary to ensure that we remove concerns about affordability of medicines for patients who rely on their medicines to allow them to continue their day-to-day activities.

The Government will also establish a review of prescription charges, led by Professor Ian Gilmore, President of the Royal College of Physicians. We have asked Professor Gilmore to report to Ministers in summer 2009, taking into account the views of patients, the public, patient representative bodies, clinicians and healthcare organisations on effective implementation to exempt those with long-term conditions.

TRANSPORT

EU Transport Council

The Secretary of State for Transport (Mr. Geoffrey Hoon): I will attend the first Transport Council of the French presidency, which takes place in Luxembourg on 9 October.

The Council will be asked to agree conclusions following the Commission's recent communications on the greening of transport, the strategy for the internalisation of external costs in transport and the reduction of rail noise on existing rolling stock. I expect to be able to agree to the conclusions.

In land transport, there will be a policy debate on the proposal for a directive on cross-border enforcement in the field of road safety. The UK supports the principle of cross-border enforcement, to address the issue of non-resident drivers escaping financial penalties for infringements committed in other member states. But there are practical and legal difficulties that will need to be overcome. Legislation must be practical, workable and effective in the way that it addresses these issues and robustly based in law.

The UK was pleased to see that the directive on the inclusion of aviation in the EU emissions trading scheme was agreed by the European Parliament in July. The October Council will be asked to agree conclusions on the participation of third countries. I expect to be able to agree to the conclusions.

The Council will be asked to adopt a decision authorising the Commission to open negotiations towards a Euro-Mediterranean aviation agreement with the Republic of Lebanon. The UK supports the mandate which is line with others given to the Commission recently to negotiate comprehensive aviation agreements with a number of Mediterranean countries.

The final part of the aviation agenda relates to the SESAR programme for the technical implementation of the single european sky (air traffic management). The Council will aim to achieve a general approach on a regulation amending Regulation 219/2007, establishing a joint undertaking. The Council will also be asked to adopt a resolution launching the development phase of the SESAR programme. The UK supports the priority given by the French presidency to making progress on the single european sky, including the Council Resolution. Our priority on SESAR is to establish suitable governance structures, clarity on funding and robust reporting processes.

The French presidency is keen to achieve political agreement on proposals for directives on the responsibility of EU flag states and the insurance requirements of shipowners. Following extensive negotiations, the presidency is seeking agreement at the Council on a member state's statement, and political agreement on substantially amended versions of the flag state and civil liability directives. However, it is our view that agreement on these proposals may be premature while there are ongoing negotiations with the European Parliament on the six proposals that have already achieved political agreement.

Leasehold Advisory Service

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (Mr. Iain Wright): I have today placed in the Library of the House a copy of the annual report and accounts of the Leasehold Advisory Service (LEASE) for the financial year 2007-08.

LEASE is an executive non-departmental public body sponsored by the Department for Communities and Local Government to provide advice, information and other services to the public and others in relation to residential leasehold and commonhold law.

The report sets out its main activities and performance during the year, a summary of its forward plans, details of the financial status of the service, along with statistics on the number of enquiries it has dealt with over the last twelve months.

It shows the significant amount of enquiries that the service has dealt with over the last twelve months—over 30,000—as part of its work, the growing use of its mediation scheme, and gives an indication of the valued role it plays in the leasehold sector in providing advice to those who require information about their rights.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Child Sexual Abuse Victims (Pitcairn)

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (Gillian Merron): I would like to inform Parliament that we have established today a mechanism to compensate the victims of past child sex abuse on Pitcairn identified during Operation Unique who co-operated with the authorities in bringing the assailants to justice.

Details of the scheme have been published on the island and the Government of Pitcairn's website (www.pitcairn.pn). Applications will be accepted from people who believe they may be eligible until 31 March 2009.

The Deputy Governor of Pitcairn is working closely with the UK Criminal Injuries Compensation Authority who will advise her on the levels of compensation to award linked to the amounts awarded in the UK.

LEADER OF THE HOUSE

Named Day Parliamentary Questions (September 2008)

The Leader of the House of Commons (Ms Harriet Harman): A total of 807 named day parliamentary questions were asked of departments on the three specified tabling days during September 2008. Of these, 57 per cent. were answered on the due date, a 2 per cent. fall in performance compared with the previous September. Ministers endeavour to answer questions promptly wherever possible. A total of 82 per cent. of questions had been answered substantively by the end of September 2008.

MPs' Allowances (Audit and Assurance)

The Leader of the House of Commons (Ms Harriet Harman): Following debates in July, I published a consultation document, "Audit and Assurance of MPs' Allowances" (Cm 7460) on 5 August 2008. It outlines proposals for further action to improve the financial control and audit of the system of allowances claimed by MPs. I had requested that MPs submit their responses by Monday 29 September 2008, but to give more opportunity for MPs to respond I would like to extend the period until Friday 31 October 2008. Copies of the document are available at www.commonsleader.gov.uk.

Parliamentary Questions Rota

The Leader of the House of Commons (Ms Harriet Harman): I am pleased to announce the new "Rota for Oral Parliamentary Questions" has been published today.

Copies are available to Members from the Vote Office.

TRANSPORT

Stansted Airport (Planning Appeal)

The Secretary of State for Transport (Mr. Geoffrey Hoon): My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government and I have decided to grant planning permission to change two planning conditions attached to the Stansted airport 2003 permission.

This relates to an appeal by BAA plc and Stansted Airport Ltd following the refusal of planning permission by Uttlesford district council in November 2006.

The decision allows for an increase in the number of flights to and from the airport in a year from 241,000 to 264,000 air traffic movements and an increase in the maximum number of passengers using the airport from 25 million to 35 million per annum.

The reasons are set out in the Secretaries of State's decision letter, copies of which have been placed in the Libraries of both Houses, together with the planning inspector's report.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Employment, Social Policy, Health and Consumer Affairs Council

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (Kitty Ussher): The Employment, Social Policy, Health and Consumer Affairs Council was held on 2 October 2008 in Luxembourg. The UK was represented by the then Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, the hon. Member for Warwick and Leamington (Mr. Plaskitt), and the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform, my hon. Friend the Member for Wolverhampton, South-East (Mr. McFadden), who has responsibility for employment relations and postal affairs.

There was a policy debate on the Commission's proposal for a directive banning discrimination in the access to goods and services on grounds of religion, belief, disability, age or sexual orientation. James Plaskitt said that the UK strongly supports the aims of this directive, believing that a new directive could contribute to a fairer and therefore stronger Europe, and highlighting that the UK already had comprehensive anti-discrimination legislation in place. All member states said that a number of issues required further discussion and the presidency concluded that there was a general consensus to commence discussions of the detail.

The Council received a report from the presidency on the progress that had been made on the European Works Councils directive since July, when the Commission had first proposed to amend it. Agreement by the EU social partners on a version of the Commission's proposal provided a basis for agreement in the Council and prospects for an early agreement look favourable.

An interim report from the Flexicurity Mission on best practice in balancing increased labour market participation with worker protection was outlined by the Commission. The presidency concluded that there were useful common principles but tailored solutions were needed. The Czechs said this would be a priority for their presidency, with the focus on lifelong learning and social protection. The final Flexicurity Mission report will be presented to Council in December.

A partial general approach was agreed by the Council on two chapters of the implementing regulation for social security co-ordination 883/04 covering benefits for work injuries and illnesses and death, and administrative provisions.

The Council also adopted an agreement establishing a European Year for Combating Poverty in 2010.

Under Any Other Business, the Commission reported on progress with an electronic data exchange system to help administer the social security co-ordination Regulation and on a recent summit on the Roma. The presidency also reported on the Equal Opportunities Summit held in Paris in September and on the good progress that has been made with the migration directives on entry for skilled workers and sanctions against illegal employment.

The presidency outlined its plans for a Tripartite Social Summit before the next European Council, the theme of which would be the impact of climate change on employment and social cohesion.

BUSINESS, ENTERPRISE AND REGULATORY REFORM

Low Pay Commission (Government Evidence)

The Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (Mr. Pat McFadden): I am pleased to announce that the Government have written to the Low Pay Commission setting out the non-economic evidence on the national minimum wage. The evidence addresses enforcement, publicity and awareness and workers including vulnerable workers, migrant workers and staff receiving tips.

The Government will be submitting its economic evidence to the commission later this year.

A copy of the non-economic evidence will be placed in the Libraries of the House and will be available from the BERR website at www.berr.gov.uk.

TREASURY

Contingencies Fund

The Chancellor of the Exchequer (Mr. Alistair Darling): On 8 October 2008, I announced that by order (The Transfer of Rights and Liabilities to ING Order 2008 No 2666) under the Banking (Special Provisions) Act 2008, the retail deposit business of two Icelandic banks, Kaupthing and Landsbanki, with UK subsidiaries, respectively, Kaupthing Singer & Friedlander (KSF) and Heritable, have been transferred to ING Direct.

Acting on the advice of the Bank of England and Financial Services Authority (FSA), and in order to ensure the stability of the UK financial system, the Treasury took action to protect the retail depositors in KSF, a UK-based banking subsidiary of Kaupthing, and in Heritable, a UK-incorporated banking subsidiary of the Icelandic bank Landsbanki. Landsbanki has entered an insolvency process in Iceland.

Heritable and KSF are regulated by the FSA. The FSA concluded on 7 October 2008 that Heritable no longer met its threshold conditions, and was likely to be unable to continue to meet its obligations to depositors. The FSA concluded on 8 October 2008 that KSF no longer met its threshold conditions, and was likely to be unable to continue to meet its obligations to depositors.

The FSA determined that for each bank there had been an event of default under the Financial Services Compensation Scheme (FSCS). It was then urgently necessary for the Treasury to intervene in the public interest. The Treasury has used the Banking (Special Provisions) Act 2008 to ensure a resolution that fully protects UK retail depositors and preserves financial stability. Savers' money is safe and secure, and customers will be able to access their accounts as usual.

This action by the Tripartite Authorities, protects savers' money and provides continuity of business for retail depositors by transferring their deposits to ING Direct. The rest of the business has been put into administration. In time the Treasury will be able to make a claim in the administration of Heritable and KSF as the businesses are wound up and their assets are sold.

Under the Transfer Order, the FSCS has paid out approximately £3 billion to enable retail deposits held in Heritable and KSF and covered by the FSCS to be transferred to ING Direct. The FSCS has financed its payout through a short-term loan from the Bank of England, which will be replaced with a loan from the Government after a short period of time.

HM Treasury made a payment to ING Direct for retail deposit amounts not covered by the FSCS, amounting to approximately £600 million. In return, the FSCS and HM Treasury have acquired rights in respects of the proceeds of the wind-down and realisation of the assets of the remaining business of Heritable and KSF in public ownership

Parliamentary approval for additional provision of £600 million for this new expenditure will be sought in a Supplementary Estimate for HM Treasury. Pending that approval, urgent expenditure estimated at £600 million was met by repayable cash advances from the Contingencies Fund.

On 29 September 2008 the Government announced that by order (The Bradford & Bingley plc Transfer of Securities and Property etc. Order 2008 No. 254) under the Banking (Special Provisions) Act 2008, Bradford & Bingley's UK and Isle of Man retail deposit business along with its branch network has been transferred to Abbey National plc. This transfer follows a competitive sale process for this part of the business. The remainder of Bradford & Bingley's business has been taken into public ownership. This action by the Tripartite Authorities, protects savers' money by transferring their deposits to Abbey.

Following the turbulence in global financial markets, Bradford & Bingley found itself under increasing pressure as investors and lenders lost confidence in its ability to carry on as an independent institution. The FSA determined in the morning of Saturday 27 September that the firm no longer met its threshold conditions for operating as a deposit taker under the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 and FSA rules.

The Government, on the advice of the FSA and the Bank of England, acted immediately to maintain financial stability and protect depositors, while minimising the exposure to taxpayers. It worked over the weekend to bring about the part public, part private solution that best meets those objectives.

The transfer of the retail deposit book has been backed by cash from HM Treasury and the FSCS. The FSCS was triggered following the determination by the FSA that Bradford & Bingley was unable or likely to be unable to satisfy claims against it, prior to the making of the Transfer Order.

Under the Transfer Order, the FSCS has paid out approximately £14 billion to enable retail deposits held in Bradford & Bingley and covered by the FSCS to be transferred to Abbey. The FSCS has financed its payout through a short-term loan from the Bank of England, which will be replaced with a loan from the Government after a short period of time.

HM Treasury made a payment to Abbey for retail deposit amounts not covered by the FSCS, amounting to approximately £4 billion, this sum being net of £612 million receipt from Abbey. In return, the FSCS and HM Treasury have acquired rights in respects of the proceeds of the wind-down and realisation of the assets of the remaining business of Bradford & Bingley in public ownership

Parliamentary approval for additional provision of £4.6 billion for this new expenditure will be sought in a Supplementary Estimate for HM Treasury. Pending that approval, urgent expenditure estimated at £4.6 billion was met by repayable cash advances from the Contingencies Fund.

An Out of Turn Supplementary Estimate will restore the Contingencies Fund to normal levels, as well as providing for the funding of the recapitalisation scheme measures announced today. The action we have taken demonstrates the Government's commitment to do whatever is necessary to ensure the stability of the financial system, while also protecting consumers and safeguarding the interests of the taxpayer.

CHILDREN, SCHOOLS AND FAMILIES

14-19 Framework

The Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (Ed Balls): Today I would like to update the House on progress with our 14-19 education reforms, and the next steps in realising our ambition that all young people should participate and achieve in learning until at least their 18th birthday.

Last month saw first teaching of the new diploma qualification. My Department has received much positive feedback from young people taking the new diploma qualification, describing how exciting and enjoyable they have found their studies, and from teachers who have been impressed by how successfully the distinctive new curriculum, combining theoretical studies with practical work based experiences, has engaged their students.

Our reform programme has also received positive and constructive external scrutiny. In September, Ofsted published a progress report on the implementation of 14-19 reforms so far. The report confirmed the positive impact that local 14-19 strategies were already having in raising achievement, increasing participation and retaining learners in education and training, and setting out the areas where further work was needed in order to ensure the reforms secured the best possible outcomes for our young people.

Earlier this month the Public Accounts Committee produced a report commending the diploma for the opportunity it provided young people to study for qualifications integrating academic and vocational learning, but also rightly pointing out the importance of ensuring that all schools, colleges and work based learning providers are supported to teach diplomas, not just those teaching from this September. We now have support programmes in place for those teaching diplomas in 2009 and 2010, as well as those who have not yet applied successfully to deliver the diploma.

The latest information we have from local consortia indicates that around 12,000 young people are currently working towards a diploma qualification. Our focus continues to be on the standard of teaching of the diploma, and on supporting the system to build the capacity to deliver these reforms to the quality our young people deserve and at all times putting quality before quantity as we take forward the diploma programme.

Legislation currently before the House would have the effect of raising the age to which young people must participate in learning from 16 to 17 in 2013, and 18 in 2015. If this legislation is passed, then the around 600,000 young people starting secondary school last month will be the first young people who will have to stay on in learning beyond 16. That is why I am today publishing "Delivering 14-19 Reform: next steps", an implementation plan setting out in detail the journey we and our partners will take between now and 2015 to ensure every young person in the country is able to reach their full potential, enjoying first rate educational provision which both stretches and engages them, and prepares them to progress on to Higher Education or skilled employment. It also sets out the support which will be made available to ensure that young people continue to be able to access this provision, whatever financial or challenging personal circumstances they might face.

In addition, it confirms our commitment to ensuring that the ideas and energy of the young people themselves should directly impact upon the planning and delivery of reforms at a local level. We will establish a pilot scheme involving some of those areas delivering from September 2010 to see how the student voice can be taken into account most effectively, which will inform a firmer requirement on consortia to demonstrate how they take the views of young people into account in the fourth diploma gateway. We will also establish a national 14-19 learner panel by spring 2009.

Higher Education and business support for the diploma has also continued to grow. Wellington college has confirmed its intention to offer the diploma in engineering as early as September 2009. All of the Russell and 1994 groups of universities have publicly stated that they will consider applications from diploma students. Our network of diploma employer champions has now expanded to over eighty, including such household names as Land Rover, Vodafone and Toshiba.

I am also announcing today the criteria against which bids for the £55 million worth of funding available for the development of exemplary diploma facilities, announced in July, will be assessed. This will allow work to begin on the development of a series of projects that will create world class diploma facilities to benefit learners and act as showpieces to inspire the whole sector.

Just one example of the exciting new projects already under way are the plans for a new academy, sponsored by JCB, that would be at the forefront of diploma delivery at levels 1, 2 and 3 in engineering and manufacturing and product design. The academy would be located next to JCB's world headquarters in East Staffordshire and would admit pupils from across Staffordshire, Stoke, Derby City and Derbyshire.

There is much more work to be done to guarantee the successful implementation of our reforms, but I am highly encouraged by our progress to date.

DEFENCE

PFI Contract

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Defence (Mr. Kevan Jones): I am very pleased to announce that the Ministry of Defence has awarded a contract to the Inteq Consortium for the redevelopment of, and provision of services to, the Basil Hill site in Corsham, Wiltshire. The contract was awarded on 1 August.

The purpose of this Private Finance Initiative, part of the Corsham09 programme, is to maximise defence operational effectiveness and business by providing a coherent information infrastructure and assuring the delivery of integrated information solutions throughout the MOD and to our Armed Forces, both at home and abroad.

The modernisation and redevelopment of the Basil Hill site will enable defence equipment and support military and civilian personnel and other MOD staff, who are currently located on various sites in the Corsham area, to be brought together on the one site. This will provide a greater unity of purpose against the developing backdrop of high tempo global operations and coalition partnering, and will improve the effectiveness and efficiency of the organisation, thus enabling us to continue to provide world-class communications systems and services to our Armed Forces.

The Corsham09 PFI contract, worth some £690 million over the next 25 years, will deliver modern living and working accommodation for up to 2,200 personnel, including the provision of some 180 en-suite bed spaces for servicemen and women. The contract also includes provision for the delivery of a wide range of services, including catering, cleaning, vehicle management and utilities. Some 80 MOD civilian posts will transfer to the new service provider, Inteq. No redundancies are anticipated as a result of the transfer, which will be handled in accordance with existing legislation and the Ministry of Defence's Transfer of Undertakings (Protection of Employment) Regulations (TUPE) code of practice. The trade unions have been involved throughout the process, and a formal consultation period is currently underway.

Some of the services that, in future, will be delivered by Inteq are already provided under contract to the MOD. As a result, approximately 100 people currently employed by contractors will also transfer, in accordance with TUPE legislation, to the Inteq Consortium.

The agreement we have reached with Inteq will not only benefit our Armed Forces, but also the local community and economy, as well as the wider UK economy. The PFI contract will help to secure existing jobs in the local area with the potential for new jobs to be created. Furthermore, the redevelopment of the Basil Hill site will enable up to 55 hectares of land in Corsham to be released for disposal.

90th Anniversary of Great War Armistice

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Defence (Mr. Kevan Jones): Further to the announcement that my predecessor made on 22 May 2008, I am pleased to be able to provide further details of the Ministry of Defence's plans to mark this year's 90th anniversary of the Great War Armistice on Tuesday 11 November.

We very much hope that the principal participants on 11 November will be remaining veterans of World War One who will lay wreaths as they remember fallen comrades of the Great War. A short service will be led by the Bishop of the Armed Forces, the Right Reverend David Conner, and military musicians and a choir will provide music.The service will start at 10.45 and will last for around 25 minutes.

This unique service will take place two days after our annual national act of remembrance for the fallen of the two world wars and conflicts since on Remembrance Sunday when Her Majesty the Queen, other members of the Royal Family, senior politicians, military Chiefs and Heads of Missions in London will lay wreaths and pay their respects. No additional wreaths will therefore be laid by dignitaries on 11 November, but many will be in attendance to watch this historic event.

The MOD is currently in discussions about broadcasting the event live so it can be seen by a wider audience. Whilst members of the public will be welcome to watch, this will not be a ticketed event. The Royal British Legion are organising 'Silence in the Square' on Trafalgar Square. This event is aimed at promoting public participation in a collective act of commemoration at 11.00. It is hoped that a large screen on Trafalgar Square will show the events taking place at the Cenotaph to ensure that those there can share in the commemoration and any members of the public who cannot be accommodated in Whitehall will be directed there.

Data Security

The Minister for the Armed Forces (Mr. Bob Ainsworth): The House will be aware that the Ministry of Defence is investigating the disappearance of a computer hard drive from the premises of a contractor, EDS, at Hook. This incident has happened in part as a result of the work that the MOD has been doing in partnership with EDS to implement the requirements of the Cabinet Office's data handling review (DHR) and our own action plan following Sir Edmund Burton's review into data handling in MOD. This process of departmental improvement will continue to root out and expose areas where shortcomings need to be tackled.

In this most recent case, whilst conducting an audit of storage media, EDS found that it could not find a removable hard disk drive. Under the terms of its contract EDS is required to protect all personal information in its care. The hard drive had been used with the TAFMIS recruitment system and may, in the worst case, contain details relating to 1.7 million individuals who have enquired about joining the Armed Forces.

For casual enquiries this will include no more than a name and contact details, but for those who applied to join the forces more extensive personal data may be held. In some cases this will include personal information such as next of kin details, passport and national insurance numbers, drivers' licence and bank details and national health service numbers. EDS assesses that it is unlikely that the device was encrypted because it was stored within a secure site that exceeded the standards necessary for restricted information. An investigation is being conducted by the MOD police. The MOD has set up a help line for those who may be affected by this incident, and for those individuals whose financial details may be involved, action has been taken through APACS (the Association for Payment Clearing Services) to inform banks so that the relevant accounts can be flagged for scrutiny against unauthorised access.

As a result of the review conducted earlier this year by Sir Edmund Burton, the MOD is clear about the crucial need to implement wholesale improvements in how we store, protect and manage the use of personal data. We are also clear that we need to effect a significant behavioural change among our people at all levels. We are currently engaged in a comprehensive programme to do all of this. The MOD is a large Department operating many complex data systems world wide, often at very short notice and under extreme conditions. This presents additional challenges and risks in the implementation of rapid change—however we are determined to ensure that we effect that change.

We have pursued the task with urgency and commitment and in the process we have identified further opportunities for improvement. The progress that the Department has made to date is consistent with that required by the DHR timetable and the commitments we have made to the Information Commissioner. Some of the greatest challenges that we have had to overcome relate to incorporating stricter data handling standards into existing contracts and their related systems retrospectively.

We have undertaken a series of comprehensive reviews into our personal data holdings, looking wider than our personnel systems, and assess that we hold in excess of 200 million records. By the end of October, as agreed, all personal data held by MOD will be under the new governance regime required by DHR. This work relies heavily on reciprocal commitment from our key suppliers. Central to it is our continuing detailed census of storage as part of our commitment to good data management. In line with this, it is intended to reveal whether any storage devices cannot be accounted for. Such cases are treated very seriously with immediate action to investigate the loss, engage individuals who might be at risk of compromise and alert the Information Commissioner. This process led to the discovery of the missing hard drive at the EDS site in Hook.

The fact that this event, and another involving a suspected theft at Innsworth, has occurred on a high security site manned by cleared personnel illustrates the need continually to review and enhance our arrangements for personal data. This work relies heavily on reciprocal commitment from our partners.

The Information Commissioner's Office recognises that we may uncover further issues as we implement our assurance regime. This is a direct result of emplacing an effective approach to data security. The implementation of our action plan remains on track to be compliant with the requirements of the Burton review by the end of March 2009 and likewise the requirements of DHR by October 2009. We will update the House as required.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Government Decontamination Service

The Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (Hilary Benn): I have set the Government Decontamination Service (GDS) the following remit. This updates and replaces the remit originally set for the GDS when the agency was established in 2005. It provides a clearer and more focused statement of purpose for the service. It does not change the functions of the service but seeks to explain them better through setting the functions in the context of the service's dual role of:

preparing for a crisis

responding to a crisis and supporting Departments and responsible authorities during the clean-up or recovery phase.

Remit for the Government Decontamination Service

1. Role in preparing for a crisis—core functions:

1.1 Establish and maintain a framework of contractors (specialist suppliers) which, in the event of a CBRN[1] or major HAZMAT[2] incident, and using a call-off contract mechanism, can offer appropriate remediation or decontamination-related services (including sampling and monitoring, and waste management services to facilitate decontamination) for the built and open environment and transport assets, including critical national infrastructure.

1.2 To establish and maintain a programme of work to test, exercise and evaluate GDS and GDS framework capability against likely service requirement based on the appropriate Government policies and materials, using national and international technical information as appropriate.

1.3 To capture information on known framework capability and capacity; identify gaps in known capability and capacity, and explore mitigations and possible solutions as appropriate.

1.4 Provision of advice and briefing on framework capability and capacity[3], and written guidance on associated remediation/decontamination issues to Departments, devolved Administrations, and responsible authorities.

1.5 To participate in the work of the Home Office CBRN strategic programme in identifying, prioritising, and, as necessary, managing decontamination-related research projects.

1.6 To build up a library of the relevant knowledge (including reference material) and experience available to GDS, drawing on national and international information, which can be used by its officers, and others, to support the development of the framework and wider remediation work.

1.7 Maintaining a duty officer role.

2. Role supporting the crisis recovery phase:

In the event of a CBRN or major HAZMAT incident:

2.1 Act as expert advisors on the capability and capacity of the GDS framework contractors, their services and, where relevant, the different remediation or decontamination methodologies and technologies available through the framework;

2.2 To provide expert/scientific advice as necessary to relevant groups, including the STAC and recovery co-ordination group, on the consequences of the decontamination techniques used by the framework contractors, and on their capability/capacity and operating procedures to inform the consequence management strategy.

2.3 Help the lead responsible authority (or "Agent") access the most appropriate framework services in order to ensure the efficient, effective and timely decontamination/remediation work is carried out. And to assist them in being an intelligent customer when setting up the appropriate contract or contracts;

2.4 Facilitate the liaison between the responsible authority and the contractor(s) throughout the duration of the contract.

2.5 Signposting alternative options where framework services have reached capacity, or where the decontamination service necessary does not require the level of capability available through the framework.

2.6 Providing, where required, appropriate briefing and assistance to central Government (including direct to the relevant Minister through the lead Government Department) on decontamination-related matters including capability and capacity of framework contractors and other known remediation or decontamination capability.

Performance Targets, 2008-09

I have also set the GDS the following performance targets for 2008-09:

To provide an evaluated framework of specialist suppliers to meet the requirements arising from the UK national risk assessment process, utilising exercises to assess the capacity and capability of specialist Framework suppliers.

GDS will contribute to the central Government knowledge on national capability and capacity for the decontamination of buildings, infrastructure, mobile transport assets and the open environment.

Provide operational and tactical advice and guidance to central Government and other stakeholders, including local authorities.

GDS will develop its staff with both the capacity and capability to support the requirements arising from its remit.

Provide robust Corporate Governance in line with the Treasury Audit Committee handbook and the National Audit Office and Internal Audit recommendations.

Further details are given in the GDS business plan for 2008-09, copies of which have been placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

[1]CBRN—a deliberate act involving chemical, biological, radioactive or nuclear materials.

[2]Major HAZMAT—an accident, regardless of scale, involving chemical, biological, radioactive or nuclear materials where the incident is in excess of local capability and/or knowledge and authorities request GDS services.

[3]Where appropriate and subject to appropriate security restrictions.

PRIME MINISTER

Ministerial Resposibilities

The Prime Minister (Mr. Gordon Brown): I recently announced a series of changes to ministerial responsibilities. I have today placed in the Library of the House the Cabinet Office paper "Machinery of Government: economy, business, climate change, energy and environment", which sets out these changes in more detail.

TREASURY

2008-09 Debt Management Remit to Facilitate Bank Recapitalisation (Revision)

The Economic Secretary to the Treasury (Ian Pearson): I am today revising the Debt Management Office's (DMO) 2008-09 financing remit to raise £37 billion to facilitate bank recapitalisation. The £37 billion will be raised through:

£30 billion in additional gilt sales (taking total gilt sales to £110 billion in 2008-09); and

£7 billion in additional Treasury bill sales, (taking the contribution to financing of Treasury bills in 2008-09 to + £6.1 billion and the planned Treasury bill stock at end-March 2009 to £23.7 billion).

The planned increase in gilt sales will be split by maturity/type as follows:

£21 billion of additional short-dated conventional gilts (taking total issuance to £46 billion) including the launch on 13 November 2008 of a new, current coupon, gilt maturing on 7 December 2011 (with a long first dividend period);

£7 billion of additional medium-dated conventional gilts (taking total issuance to £19.8 billion);

£1 billion of additional long-dated conventional gilts (taking total issuance to £25.2 billion); and

£1 billion of additional index-linked gilts (taking total issuance to £19 billion).

Seven additional gilt auctions will be scheduled, five of short-dated and two of medium-dated conventional gilts. The DMO has committed not to add any further gilt auctions in the third quarter of this financial year in the event of a further remit revision in the 2008-09 pre-Budget report.

The maximum size of conventional gilt auctions will be increased from £4 billion to £5 billion (cash). The revised gilt auction calendar to the end of 2008 is shown below.

The DMO also plans to supplement sales at auctions with a number of sales of gilts by mini-tenders, which are operations conducted directly with Gilt-Edged Market Makers by the DMO's dealing desk.

The first such operation in this programme is being announced today to take place on Monday 20 October 2008, for £1 billion (nominal) of 4 per cent. Treasury Stock 2009, for settlement on Tuesday 21 October 2008.

Other mini-tender operations are planned for 4¼ per cent. Treasury Gilt 2055 in the week commencing 17 November, and for 1¼ Index-Linked Treasury Gilt 2055 in the weeks commencing 3 November and 1 December 2008.

This revision to the DMO's remit does not take account of any other changes to the Government's forecasts of the public finances. These forecasts will be updated in the pre-Budget report. An updated remit, incorporating the changes announced today, will be published, as usual, after the Chancellor's statement.

This revision to the DMO's financing remit is being made in accordance with paragraph 5.18 of the published remit which provides that:

"Any aspect of this remit may be revised during the year, in light of exceptional circumstances and/or substantial changes in the following:

the Government's forecast for the gilt sales requirement;

the level and shape of the yield curve;

market expectations of future interest and inflation rates; and market volatility".

Under the terms of its Operational Notice, the DMO is not obliged to give more than one hour's notice of such an operation, but in this case, it is pre-committing to the week(s) in which the intended operations will take place, and also commits to give a minimum of 24 hours, notice of the actual size and timing of the planned tenders at the relevant time. Such decisions will be taken in the light of market feedback and conditions at the time.

Local Authority Finances (Icelandic Bank Failures)

The Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (Hazel Blears): A number of Icelandic banks went into administration in the middle of last week. It quickly became clear that many local authorities were among those who had deposits in those banks. The Government's first priority has been to do everything we can to help local authorities, along with other creditors, get back the money which they had deposited in the banks. In parallel, my Department has been working closely with the Local Government Association to ensure that individual authorities who are experiencing severe short-term difficulty get assistance to help them through this period. We are doing this to protect individuals, communities and the local services on whom the most vulnerable people in our society depend.

We have put in place a five point plan:

my right hon. Friend the Chancellor of the Exchequer froze the UK assets of Landsbanki last Wednesday, to ensure that local authorities and other creditors are treated fairly; and an

HM Treasury delegation was sent to Iceland on Friday to discuss ways in which deposits could be protected;

in relation to the banks in administration in the UK—Kaupthing Singer and Friedlander and Heritable—we are working to ensure that deposits are recovered as quickly as possible; and the Local Government Association has opened discussions with the administrators, Ernst and Young;

the Local Government Association agreed with the Government last week that it would undertake an urgent analysis of the effects of the situation on individual local authorities, to provide a full picture of the impact on local government. As part of that exercise, which is nearing completion, the LGA have asked any local authority which is facing severe short-term difficulties to let them know as a matter of urgency. My right hon. Friend, the Minister for Local Government and my hon. Friend the Economic Secretary to the Treasury met the Local Government Association last Thursday; and we will be meeting again this week. My hon. Friend the Minister for policing met the Association of Police Authorities on the same day;

we have established a joint rapid response unit with the LGA and Improvement and Development Agency - which is already operational—to provide sector-led support to authorities facing severe short-term difficulties. The Government and the LGA will agree an appropriate set of ways to assist authorities in that position; and have agreed that we will look at the issues facing each authority on a case-by-case basis; and the rapid response unit now has a team of experts in local authority financial management and treasury management in place, ready to go immediately into any authorities who need that assistance. Her Majesty's Inspectorate of Constabulary is similarly ready to provide support for police authorities.

Our guidance to local government on investments makes clear that "the general policy objective is that local authorities should invest prudently the surplus funds held on behalf of their communities". It emphasises that "priority should be given to security and liquidity" and goes on to say that "it will be appropriate to seek the highest rate of return consistent with the proper levels of security and liquidity". This guidance appears to have been adhered to.

Many authorities have already publicly stated that any risk is not a threat to frontline services—but a small number of authorities may have specific problems, which is why we have put in place support and expertise which is immediately available. No local authority has told the LGA that it is in such short-term difficulty that it cannot pay the wages of its staff.

The Government and international partners have already acted to support stability of the banking system. The LGA and the Government encourage all councils to continue managing their finances prudently and sensibly in difficult times. My hon. Friend the Minister for policing met the Association of Police Authorities last week and my right hon. Friend the Home Secretary is keeping in close touch with the situation to ensure that the steps we are taking are applied as necessary to police authorities.

We will continue to monitor the situation closely and to take appropriate action.

This set of actions should be seen in the context of the wider action taken last week by my right hon. Friend, the Chancellor of the Exchequer. Acting on the advice of the Bank and the Financial Services Authority, my right hon. Friend the Chancellor of the Exchequer last week took action to protect the retail depositors banking subsidiary of Landsbanki and Kaupthing Singer and Friedlander, a UK-based banking subsidiary of Kaupthing Bank. Using powers under the Banking (Special Provisions) Act 2008, retail deposits in Heritable and Kaupthing, Singer and Friedlander have been transferred to ING Direct. Savers' money is safe and secure. The Chancellor has also guaranteed retail deposits in Icesave in full. The Treasury and the Financial Services Compensation Scheme are working with the Icelandic authorities and their Deposit Insurance Scheme to ensure that depositors in Icesave are paid back as quickly as possible. The Bank of England has also provided a short-term secured loan of up to £100 million to the London branch of Landsbanki, to help ensure an orderly wind-down and maximize the returns to UK creditors. The Government have also frozen the funds and financial assets held by Landsbanki. This is a precautionary measure to protect UK economic interests and we are continuing to work closely with the Icelandic authorities to ensure a fair process for UK creditors.

Sustainable Communities Act 2007

The Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (Hazel Blears): I would like to inform Parliament that we have issued today an invitation to local authorities to make proposals which they consider would encourage the improvement of the economic, social or environmental well-being of local areas. The invitation falls under section 2(1) of the Sustainable Communities Act 2007. A copy of the invitation has been deposited in the Library of the House.

Regulations relating to the Act were made on 9 October 2008 and laid before Parliament on 13 October 2008. They come into force on 3 November 2008. The regulations include further details about the procedure to be followed in relation to the submission of proposals under the Act. In particular, they require a local authority, before making any proposal, to establish or recognise a panel of representatives, consult it about the proposal, and to have regard to any guidance issued. The SI number is 2008/2694.

Statutory guidance relating to the Act was published on 9 July 2008, as an annex to statutory guidance on the Local Government and Public Involvement in Health Act 2007 (Creating Strong, Safe and Prosperous Communities: Statutory Guidance).

The text of the formal invitation letter is as follows:

SUSTAINABLE COMMUNITIES ACT 2007: FIRST INVITATION TO LOCAL AUTHORITIES TO SUBMIT PROPOSALS

Dear Colleague

The Sustainable Communities Act 2007 creates a useful opportunity for local authorities to propose new ways to improve local neighbourhoods for their residents, visitors and businesses. I am formally inviting local authorities under section 2(1) of the Sustainable Communities Act to submit their proposals.

This initiative is part of the drive to empower citizens and communities; others are highlighted in the White Paper "Communities in Control: real people, real power", which was published in July this year.

The principal aim of the Act is to promote the sustainability of local communities by encouraging the improvement of the economic, social or environmental well-being of the authority's area, including participation in civic and political activity.

It begins from the principle that local people know best what needs to be done to promote the success of their area, but that sometimes they need central Government to act to enable them to do so. It provides a channel for local people to ask central Government, via their local authority, to take such action and for central Government to work in co-operation with the Local Government Association (LGA)—which represents the interests of local authorities—in making it happen.

I hope this invitation leads to a productive dialogue between central and local government and local communities, and that this will lead to innovative suggestions on how to improve the sustainability of local communities and what central Government can do to help.

Local authorities have until 31 July 2009 to put forward proposals. All proposals should be sent to the LGA which has been appointed as the 'selector' under the terms of the Act. I enclose a letter from the Director for Empowerment at CLG, Stuart Hoggan, which gives further details about the process for submitting and progressing proposals.

I look forward to working closely with the LGA to identify those proposals on which Government can best assist local authorities and local communities in promoting the sustainability of local areas, in ways which benefit local people in tangible ways.

Yours sincerely,

Hazel Blears

A copy of the letter from the Director for Empowerment at CLG has been deposited in the Library of the House.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Digital Switchover

The Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (Andy Burnham): Digital switchover is the process by which the UK's analogue television signals are switched off and replaced by digital television signals. Switchover will take place ITV region by ITV region. The next region to switch will be Border in November 2008.

In order to help those who may otherwise have difficulty in switching to digital, the Government, with the BBC, have established the Digital Switchover Help Scheme which provides digital equipment, installation and after-care support to those who:

are aged 75 or over;

have a significant disability; or are blind or partially sighted.

The help scheme is funded by the BBC—£603 million of licence fee income has been ring-fenced for this purpose.

The scheme costs a subsidised £40 fee for those who are eligible, but is free to those who are eligible and also on some form of income-related support.

After further consideration, I have concluded that it would reasonable to take the view that anyone resident in a care home is likely to have difficulty in making the switch to digital TV, and therefore should be eligible for help under the scheme. I therefore propose to extend the scheme eligibility criteria so as to include everyone normally resident in a care home. For the purposes of the help scheme, someone will be considered normally resident if they have been in a care home for six months or more, or if a care home manager expects them to have been resident for more than six months by the end of the eligibility period.

It is not possible to estimate accurately the number of additional people who will now be eligible for the help scheme as there are no centrally held figures on care home residents across the UK. However, a large number of those in care homes will already qualify under the existing eligibility criteria and our estimate is that the proposed change will bring about 100,000 new people within the help scheme.

HEALTH

NHS Funds (Icelandic Banks)

The Minister of State, Department of Health (Mr. Ben Bradshaw): Acting on the advice of the Bank and FSA, my right hon. Friend the Chancellor of the Exchequer last week took action to protect the retail depositors in three Icelandic banking operations in the UK: Icesave, a UK-based branch of Landsbanki; Heritable, a UK-based banking subsidiary of Landsbanki; and Kaupthing Singer and Friedlander, a UK-based banking subsidiary of Kaupthing Bank.

Using powers under the Banking (Special Provisions) Act 2008, retail deposits in Heritable and Kaupthing, Singer and Friedlander have been transferred to ING Direct. Savers' money is safe and secure. The Chancellor has also guaranteed retail deposits in Icesave in full. The Treasury and the Financial Services Compensation Scheme are working with the Icelandic authorities and their Deposit Insurance Scheme to ensure that depositors in Icesave are paid back as quickly as possible. The Bank of England has also provided a short-term secured loan of up to £100 million to the London branch of Landsbanki, to help ensure an orderly wind down and maximize the returns to UK creditors. The Government have also frozen the funds and financial assets held by Landsbanki. This is a precautionary measure to protect UK economic interests and we are continuing to work closely with the Icelandic authorities to ensure a fair process for UK creditors.

There are no strategic health authorities, primary care trusts or NHS trusts with any Exchequer funds—that is, taxpayers' money—residing in Icelandic banks.

There is one organisation, Hammersmith hospitals NHS Charities, which has £1.65 million of charitable funds deposited in the Icelandic bank—Kaupthing Singer and Friedlander. Hammersmith Hospitals NHS Trust has now merged with Imperial College NHS Trust, but the charity arm is still going through the merger process. The trust are working with their legal team and the Financial Services Compensation Scheme to ensure they protect these deposits.

In addition, there are two NHS foundation trusts with money deposited in Icelandic bank accounts.

The Christie Hospital NHS Foundation Trust released a statement on Friday 10 October confirming that they have a deposit of £7.5 million with the Icelandic bank, Kaupthing Singer and Friedlander—£1 million pounds of this is NHS money and £6.5 million is charity money. The Christie hospital have taken legal advice and are working closely with the Financial Services Authority to ensure that they protect their deposits.

Central and North West London NHS Foundation Trust also have a deposit of £1 million with the Icelandic bank, Kaupthing Singer and Friedlander. All of this deposit is NHS money and the trust are working with their legal team to ensure that they protect their deposits.

The Christie Hospital NHS Foundation Trust and Central and North West London NHS Foundation Trust have confirmed that that in neither case will any potential loss give rise to concerns as to their ability to continue to provide services.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Animal Procedures Committee (Annual Report)

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for the Home Department (Meg Hillier): In accordance with Section 20(5) of the Animals (Scientific Procedures) Act 1986, I have today laid before the House the Committee's annual report for 2007. Copies are available in the Vote Office. Among other things the report includes:

the work carried out by the Committee's sub-committees;

Better Regulation Advice on Personal Licensing and Mandatory Training;

Better Regulation Advice on the release criteria for GA animals; and Better Regulation: summary report of the APC working group on the ethical review process.

The report concludes with the Committee's work plan for 2008.

INNOVATION, UNIVERSITIES AND SKILLS

Universities (Icelandic Banks)

The Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills (Mr. John Denham): Acting on the advice of the Bank and FSA, my right hon. Friend the Chancellor of the Exchequer last week took action to protect the retail depositors in three Icelandic banking operations in the UK: Icesave, a UK-based branch of Landsbanki; Heritable, a UK-based banking subsidiary of Landsbanki; and Kaupthing Singer and Friedlander, a UK-based banking subsidiary of Kaupthing Bank. Using powers under the Banking (Special Provisions) Act 2008, retail deposits in Heritable and Kaupthing, Singer and Friedlander have been transferred to ING Direct. Savers' money is safe and secure. The Chancellor has also guaranteed retail deposits in Icesave in full.

The Treasury and the Financial Services Compensation Scheme are working with the Icelandic authorities and their Deposit Insurance Scheme to ensure that depositors in Icesave are paid back as quickly as possible. The Bank of England has also provided a short-term secured loan of up to £100 million to the London branch of Landsbanki, to help ensure an orderly wind-down and maximize the returns to UK creditors. The Government have also frozen the funds and financial assets held by Landsbanki. This is a precautionary measure to protect UK economic interests and we are continuing to work closely with the Icelandic authorities to ensure a fair process for UK creditors.

Over the past few days, the Higher Education Funding Council for England (HEFCE) has been seeking information from higher education institutions about whether they have deposited money in these Icelandic banks.

Universities are independent charitable bodies, and take their own banking and investment decisions. But HEFCE has a responsibility to keep under review the financial health of higher education institutions that receive public funding.

HEFCE has informed the Government that there are 12 universities which held deposits with Icelandic banks that have recently entered into administration. The total amount deposited was around £77 million.

Clearly this is a serious matter for each of these universities, and officials from HM Treasury are engaging with them and HEFCE about their concerns. However, it should be noted that HEFCE has concluded that no university is at risk as a result of its exposure to Icelandic banks. Certainly no university faces a level of exposure that would raise questions about its continuing solvency. Students, businesses, charities and others may deal with universities with exactly the same level of confidence as before. HEFCE will be on standby to provide advice and expertise to any institution affected by these problems.

It is important that the Funding Council is able to hold full and candid discussions with universities about their financial affairs. For this reason its policy, which the Government support, is not to disclose information about individual universities.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Regional Development Strategy (Caribbean)

The Secretary of State for International Development (Mr. Douglas Alexander): I have placed in the Libraries of both Houses a communications booklet outlining the UK's regional development strategy for the Caribbean 2008-13.

Achieving a higher rate of growth is vital for the Caribbean's development. Whilst the Caribbean has the natural resources and talent to be a global player, economic growth has been slow in recent decades. The region must diversify and become more competitive in order to prosper and achieve its significant potential.

Preferential trade agreements are coming to an end under international law, but new trade agreements, such as the European Partnership Agreement with the EU, provide significant opportunities for the region to grow and diversify.

The UK's new regional development strategy for the Caribbean focuses on:

growth, including seizing opportunities arising from the new trade agreements such as the EPA; and mitigating the risks to growth posed by climate change, which exacerbates natural disasters and affects communities dependent on tourism and fishing, and violent crime which costs lives and discourages investment.

CABINET OFFICE

The Third Sector (Icelandic Banking)

The Minister for the Cabinet Office (Mr. Liam Byrne): Over the last few days, the Cabinet Office has been working actively to determine the economic situation some charities may find themselves facing.

Only a small fraction of a total of £56 billion[1] worth of investment assets held by general charities[2] is invested in Icelandic banks.

As agreed at a meeting between Ministers and charity representatives on Friday 10 October, the Cabinet Office is working with ACEVO, NCVO, CFDG and CAF—The Association of Chief Executives of Voluntary Organisations, the National Council for Voluntary Organisations, The Charity Finance Directors Group and The Charities Aid Foundation—to ascertain the full extent of investment assets affected by the position of Icelandic banks.

We are working closely with the Charity Commission, the sector's regulator, to support charities who have deposits in Icelandic banks. We are also discussing directly with affected charities their concerns.

Acting on the advice of the Bank and the FSA, my right hon. Friend the Chancellor of the Exchequer last week took action to protect the retail depositors in three Icelandic banking operations in the UK: Icesave, a UK-based branch of Landsbanki; Heritable, a UK-based banking subsidiary of Landsbanki; and Kaupthing Singer and Friedlander, a UK-based banking subsidiary of Kaupthing Bank. Using powers under the Banking (Special Provisions) Act 2008, retail deposits in Heritable and Kaupthing, Singer and Friedlander have been transferred to ING Direct. Savers money is safe and secure. The Chancellor has also guaranteed retail deposits in Icesave in full. The Treasury and the Financial Services Compensation Scheme are working with the Icelandic authorities and their deposit insurance scheme to ensure that depositors in Icesave are paid back as quickly as possible.

The Bank of England has also provided a short-term secured loan of up to £100 million to the London branch of Landsbanki, to help ensure an orderly wind-down and maximize the returns to UK creditors. The Government have also frozen the funds and financial assets held by Landsbanki. This is a precautionary measure to protect UK economic interests and we are continuing to work closely with the Icelandic authorities to ensure a fair process for UK creditors.

We are working with HM Treasury to do what we can to support those organisations with investments in Icelandic banks, and ensure they are in the strongest possible position to protect their investments.

In the light of recent global economic events, the Government are more determined than ever to support the third sector through the upcoming months and years. We are committed to ensuring that charities are supported in resolving any short term issues they may face as well as supporting them in the long term.

We are working closely with sector leaders, representing small and large organisations, and Ministers will co-chair, alongside Stuart Etherington, an upcoming NCVO sector-wide summit to tackle upcoming issues.

A survey released by the Commission this morning has revealed that one in four charities has already put in place measures to deal with the economic downturn. The Commission is keen to provide further advice and guidance for charities and trustees via its helpline and website.

We are confident that the sector is in better shape than ever before to meet the challenges ahead. Its income from Government has doubled over the last 11 years to a total of £11 billion a year.

I will continue to represent the interests of the sector at the newly founded National Economic Council, which will consider the impact of the current financial crisis on the economy as a whole.

TREASURY

ECOFIN

The Economic Secretary to the Treasury (Ian Pearson): The ECOFIN Council met informally in Nice on 12 September, and again formally in Luxembourg on 7 October 2008. The Chancellor of the Exchequer attended both meetings for the UK. The following items were discussed:

PREPARATION OF THE EUROPEAN COUNCIL ON 15-16 OCTOBER

(i) Economic situation, including EMU@10

Following an informal discussion at the ECOFIN meeting in Nice, Ministers agreed a set of Council conclusions on the current economic situation in the EU. The text covers the shocks caused to the European economy by financial instability and the rise in commodity prices, and appropriate responses. The UK welcomes these conclusions, which stress the need to continue with economic reform in Europe, and call on the European Investment Bank to provide greater funding to SMEs.

(ii) Situation of the financial markets and European supervision

In addition to the discussion outlined above, Ministers held a follow-up discussion to the informal ECOFIN on the causes and possible policy responses to ongoing financial turbulence. ECOFIN agreed a set of conclusions which complement the short-term actions agreed, and which will form the basis of discussions by Heads of State and Government.

(iii) Volatility of oil and raw material prices: political response

As requested by Heads of State and Government at the European Council in June, Ministers discussed developments in oil prices and possible measures to be taken in response on the basis of work prepared by the European Commission and the presidency. The UK welcomes measures to facilitate transparency in oil markets, including greater producer-consumer dialogue, and to promote energy efficiency as longer-term measures to improve market functioning.

OTHER ITEMS DISCUSSED AT THE 7 OCTOBER MEETING

(i) Immediate responses to the financial turmoil

Due to developments in financial markets, ECOFIN Ministers devoted a significant amount of their time to developing a co-ordinated set of principles to guide actions. The principles, which the UK fully supports, stress that member states should:

Ensure that any interventions are to be timely, with the support being, in principle, temporary;

Be watchful regarding taxpayers' interests;

Protect the legitimate interests of competitors by having regard to state aid and competition rules;

Avoid possible negative spill-over effects.

(ii) Financial services: draft directive on the solvency of insurance undertakings (Solvency II)

Finance Ministers discussed the draft Solvency II directive, which will set prudential requirements for insurance and reinsurance companies. Discussion focused particularly on prudential capital requirements and supervision of cross-border insurance groups. The UK supports work that will ensure more effective supervision of pan-European insurance groups, and which will ensure a sufficient prudential framework. The issue will be returned to at the next meeting of the ECOFIN Council in November.

(iii) Taxation: combating VAT fraud

Ministers agreed the outline of an improved system of targeted information exchange to combat VAT fraud.

(iv) Reduced VAT rates

Following a discussion over breakfast at the informal ECOFIN, Ministers will held an exchange of views on the principles underlying the application of reduced rates of VAT across the EU, with the European Commission presenting analysis designed to facilitate the discussion. The UK believes that member states should be allowed flexibility in applying reduced rates of VAT as long as they do not have detrimental effects on the single market. ECOFIN will return to this issue at its meeting in November.

HOME DEPARTMENT

G6 and United States Counter-Terrorism Symposium

The Secretary of State for the Home Department (Jacqui Smith): The informal G6 group of Interior Ministers from France, Germany, Spain, Italy, Poland and the United Kingdom met in Bonn, Germany on 26 and 27 September 2008, along with the United States State Secretary of the Department of Homeland Security. This was the third G6 plus US counter-terrorism symposium meeting (previous meetings took place in Venice in May 2007 and Schwielowsee in November to December 2007). I attended on behalf of the United Kingdom.

The symposium was divided into four substantive discussion sessions:

general aspects of counter-terrorism (prevention, countering radicalisation, criminal law and law on threat prevention); remote searches of computer hard drives;

diplomatic assurances; and right to self-defence.

The discussions underlined the importance of transatlantic co-operation on counter-terrorism. We reflected on developments in the field of international terrorism, continued our exchanges on the development of effective countermeasures and recognised that it was important to be able to respond effectively to new challenges.

The symposium emphasised that all state responses to the threat of terrorism must fully respect the international legal framework on the protection of human rights and the rule of law.

Conclusions on the topics above were agreed and then presented at a press conference at the end of the symposium.

It was agreed that the G6 plus US CT symposium was a useful forum which should continue to meet (dates for future meetings have not been confirmed).

JUSTICE

Anti-Corruption Champion

The Secretary of State for Justice and Lord Chancellor (Mr. Jack Straw): Having been appointed as the Government's Anti-Corruption Champion this week, I am writing to inform the House of progress made in our anti-corruption efforts.

For two years, the Government have undertaken a concerted programme of action to co-ordinate and to improve our anti-corruption systems through annual anti-corruption action plans driven forward by my predecessors, my right hon. Friends the Members for Barrow and Furness (John Hutton) and for Leeds, Central (Hilary Benn). The role of Anti-Corruption Champion is a personal appointment by the Prime Minister and the secretariat and support functions remain within BERR.

Government investment in dedicated police resources has led to a dramatic increase in the number of investigations into allegations of foreign bribery by UK nationals and companies, up from four investigations in 2006 to over twenty live cases this year. Investigations are feeding through into prosecutions and convictions of wrongdoers.

We will make further significant progress in the next few months on the reform of the law on bribery. The Law Commission is expected to report in November on the full range of structural options. As announced in the draft legislative programme, we propose to publish a draft bill in the next session of Parliament, which will be informed by the Law Commission's review.

This week the working group on bribery at the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD) will publish a report on the UK's progress against its recommendations. We have written to the OECD about our plans to develop a comprehensive UK strategy for tackling foreign bribery. This strategy will build on the solid foundation we have established for combating foreign bribery and strengthen our work with international partners, establishing a clear legal, regulatory and policy framework.

A copy of our note to the OECD will be placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

TRANSPORT

Post-Gallagher Update

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Transport (Jim Fitzpatrick): My noble Friend the Minister of State for the Department for Transport, Lord Adonis, has made the following ministerial statement:

I have today published a consultation on slowing down the rate of increase of the Renewable Transport Fuel Obligation (RTFO) to 0.5 per cent. per annum, taking the level to 5 per cent. in 2013-14 rather than in 2010-11 as currently provided for in legislation.

This consultation fulfils a commitment made by Government in an oral statement by the then Secretary of State for Transport, my right hon. Friend the Member for Bolton, West (Ruth Kelly) on 7 July, where she emphasised that UK policy on biofuels will aim to ensure development of a sustainable biofuels industry.

Amid growing concerns about the potential indirect impacts of biofuels on food supplies and prices, on deforestation and on greenhouse gas emissions, the Government commissioned Professor Ed Gallagher, chair of the Renewable Fuels Agency, to lead a review of the latest evidence on biofuels. The review concluded that the Government should "amend but not abandon" its biofuel policy. The review also stated that "by 2020 biofuels have the potential to deliver greenhouse gas savings of 338 to 371 million tonnes of carbon dioxide" and that there is a "strong need for further evidence and monitoring to determine the sustainability and wider impacts of biofuels". In short, the review concluded that there was a future for biofuels, but that Government should adopt a cautious approach until the wider environmental and social impacts of biofuels could be understood.

The Government agree with the recommendations of the Gallagher review.

As well as consulting on slowing down the rate of increase of the RTFO, we will also be consulting on the addition of two new eligible fuels under the scheme. We have asked for responses by 17 December.

In addition we continue to support the EU target of 10 per cent. renewable transport fuels by 2020, but will continue to argue that this target be subject to clear conditions, that the EU-level sustainability criteria address indirect, as well as direct, effects of biofuels and that the target is subject to rigorous review in light of the emerging evidence on the wider, indirect impacts of biofuels.

We are also continuing to engage with international partners and the scientific community to better understand how to define a good sustainable biofuel, and are committed to ensuring that this gathering of evidence on the indirect impacts of biofuels is fed into the ongoing debate across Europe and globally on how to encourage production of sustainable biofuels.

I can also announce that the Department anticipates contributing up to £3 million per year over the next two financial years to the Carbon Trust's Advanced Bioenergy Directed Research Accelerator. This funding is subject to the initiative attracting high-quality bids that can be progressed to contract, as well as the approval of the Carbon Trust's investment committee to proceed at each stage of the initiative. It will allow the Carbon Trust to further increase the materiality and impact of its advanced bioenergy research and development activities.

Copies of the consultation have been placed in the Library of the House and are available in the Vote Office and the Printed Paper Office.

ENERGY AND CLIMATE CHANGE

British Energy and New Nuclear Power

The Minister of State, Department of Energy and Climate Change (Mr. Mike O'Brien): My right hon. Friend the then Secretary of State for the Department of Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform wrote to the Business and Enterprise Select Committee in September to inform members of EDF's takeover offer for British Energy. I am placing copies of his letter in the Libraries of the House.

EU Energy Council

The Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change (Edward Miliband): I represented the UK at the Energy Council in Luxembourg on 10 October.

The Council reached political agreement on the Commission's third energy package on the functioning of the internal energy market. There were discussions of the climate and energy legislative package and energy security. The Council agreed conclusions on energy efficiency.

Discussions on the internal energy market were based on compromise presidency texts and focused on a "level playing field" clause, put forward by a number of member states as a way of allowing Governments, which have secured ownership unbundling in their domestic markets, to control takeovers by vertically integrated companies. The final presidency compromise text met their concerns and political agreement was reached on this basis. This will allow the Council to prepare a common position, which will form the basis of negotiation with the European Parliament.

There was a wide-ranging debate on the 2020 climate and energy package. The presidency argued that in the current financial crisis it was even more important for the EU to maintain political leadership on climate issues and urged member states not to lose momentum on progress. The Commission and presidency both considered that it was possible to reach agreement on the package by the end of the year.

In the debate, member states addressed a number of issues (interim targets, the inclusion of aviation, the transport target and sustainability, a review clause and renewable projects of European interest) set out in questions issued by the presidency to steer the debate. The presidency concluded that, despite concerns about the financial crisis, there was a common desire to move forward and discussion with the European Parliament should continue.

The Council agreed conclusions on energy efficiency, relating to the implementation the energy labelling and eco-design for energy-using products directive.

There were a number of information items, including a presidency report on the solar plan for the Mediterranean.

Discussion of energy security was taken over lunch in closed session.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Fly-tipping

The Minister of State, Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (Jane Kennedy): I am today depositing copies of the annual report on the number of incidents of fly-tipping recorded by local authorities on the Government's Fly-capture database in 2007-08. This report gives detailed information on the number and type of incidents, the type of land where the incident occurred and the estimated cost to authorities of dealing with it.

I am pleased to announce that there was a reduction of 7.5 per cent. in the number of recorded fly-tipping incidents from 2006-07. I am also pleased to highlight the good work carried out by local authorities in increasing the number of enforcement actions against fly-tipping by 26 per cent. from the previous year.

DEFRA will continue to work with the Environment Agency and local authorities to prevent illegal waste activity through a combination of prevention, education and enforcement.

This report is also available from the DEFRA website at: http://www.defra.gov.uk/ENVIRONMENT/localenv/flytipping/flycapture.htm

HOME DEPARTMENT

Police Pay

The Secretary of State for the Home Department (Jacqui Smith): On 8 January 2008 I wrote to the Police Negotiating Board (PNB) asking them to consider a multi-year deal for police officers starting in September 2008. In my letter I made clear that, if the PNB agreed to this proposal, then the settlements that form part of such a deal could be implemented in full.

On 15 October 2008 the PNB recommended to me a multi-year pay deal for police officers starting in 2008. This deal is for an award of 2.65 per cent. from 1 September 2008, 2.6 per cent. from 1 September 2009, and 2.55 per cent. from 1 September 2010. This means by 2010 a police constable will be able to earn up to £36,500, 50 per cent. more than in 1997. It includes a reopener clause that would be triggered by changes in the two criteria of economic and labour market conditions and recruitment and retention.

I am pleased that we have agreed a multi-year pay deal for the police that is one of the fairest pay deals in the public sector. All involved in the negotiations have worked hard, and in a spirit of co-operation. I have the highest regard for the police and the tireless work they do to protect and serve the public. This deal gives police officers and their families valuable financial certainty for the future and I hope that it will reach their pay packets in full in time for Christmas. This deal will also provide the benefits of stability to the police service, and demonstrates discipline in the face of temporarily high inflation and current economic conditions.

I have also agreed, for the period of this settlement, that the Home Secretary will be bound by a decision of the Police Arbitration Tribunal (PAT) as to whether the re- opening criteria have been met. I would of course carefully consider any recommendation made to me by the PNB or PAT about a subsequent substantive adjustment to the settlement arising from this process.

I confirm that as a result of this agreement I will end the current consultation process for a police pay review body and that the Government will not take any legislative steps to introduce a police pay review body during the lifetime of this Parliament.

I believe that this agreement signals a new stage in the relationship between the two sides of the Police Negotiating Board. I hope that we can now work together to improve policing for both the police service and the public.

Immigration Rules (Visitors)

The Minister of State, Home Department (Mr. Phil Woolas): This year sees the biggest changes to Britain's immigration and border security system for 45 years. Our policy will deliver strong borders, a selective migration system and an expectation that newcomers earn the right to stay. Our ambition is that migration policy maximises benefits for Britain and manages local impacts.

This strategy underpins our Australian style points system, reforms to spouse visas and requires us to modernise visit visas. Earlier this year, my predecessor published our strategy for comprehensively overhauling our visit visa system. Today we are publishing a further statement on the first of these changes with the creation of a separate category for business, sport, entertainer and special visitors. Copies are being placed in the Library of the House.

In modernising this system, our ambition is twofold: to let legitimate visitors connect with the UK quickly, and to strengthen still further our border security.

The statement sets out the key features of the arrangements for business, sport, entertainer and special visitors respectively.

In respect of business visitors we are bringing currently separate immigration rules and concessions together in one coherent visa; and making clear what business visitors can do here and what they cannot. We believe, after consulting stakeholders, that having a list of permissible activities is a good way of defining them.

We are introducing a new visa to provide for visiting sports-people based on the current concessionary arrangement. Our purpose here is to ensure that the contribution of overseas visiting sports people to the UK's sporting tradition continues as now, while making clear the circumstances in which sports people can come to the UK outside of the points-based system for participation in sport.

Similarly, we are introducing a new visa to provide for visiting entertainers and the circumstances in which they may come to the UK in that capacity, outside of the points-based system. In effect, we are retaining the current concessionary arrangement while removing two criteria relating to festivals that add little value to the current arrangements.

Lastly, there are a number of groups of visitors for whom specific immigration rules have been introduced as a need was identified or for which concessions existed outside the rules. The new special visitor visa brings these together although the specific criteria that currently apply to each of these categories would be retained.

JUSTICE

Pensions Appeal Tribunal

The Secretary of State for Justice and Lord Chancellor (Mr. Jack Straw): The senior president of tribunals and I are today issuing the following joint statement:

We are making this joint statement in recognition of the concerns expressed by members of the armed forces community about the possible impact on the service which the Pensions Appeal Tribunal (PAT) (England and Wales) provides for them as a result of implementing the Act.

To reflect the special nature of a jurisdiction serving those who alone in this country contract with the state to lay down their lives in its service and in recognition of the special relationship between service personnel and the Government as characterised by Command Paper (CM 7424—"The Nation's Commitment: Cross-Government support to our armed forces, their families and veterans"), it has been decided to establish a 'War Pensions and Armed Forces Compensation Chamber' within the first-tier tribunal to ensure that service personnel can benefit from the advantages of being within the new tribunal structure, whilst ensuring that the unique nature of the jurisdiction is not compromised or diluted.

The implementation of the Act will bring benefits to this jurisdiction, including extended rights of appeal, a guarantee of continued judicial independence, the ability readily to draw upon suitably qualified judges and medical experts within the wider tribunal system if required, greater judicial support and influence; a more efficient administrative support; and access to the entire Tribunals Services' hearing venue network. None of this will be at the expense of the level of service now provided by the Pensions Appeal Tribunal (England and Wales). Our aim in making this statement is to ensure that the armed forces community are reassured that the valued features of the PAT are preserved and protected in the new system.

This joint statement explains the basis on which the work of the PAT (England and Wales) will transfer into the first-tier tribunal under section 30 of the Tribunals, Courts and Enforcement Act 2007, if Parliament approves the draft Transfer of Tribunal Functions Order 2008.

That order transfers the functions of the PAT (England and Wales) into the first-tier tribunal. That tribunal enjoys a statutory guarantee of continued judicial independence under section 3 of the Constitutional Reform Act 2005, as amended by section 1 of the Tribunals, Courts and Enforcement Act 2007. The present PATs do not have such a guarantee although in practice they are independent of Government. The transfer also makes it possible for there to be a further appeal on a question of law against assessment decisions by claimants in all parts of the United Kingdom, something which is not possible under the existing statutory framework.

The first-tier tribunal will be divided into a number of chambers by an order made under section 7 of the 2007 Act. The First-Tier Tribunal and Upper Tribunal (Chambers) Order 2008 provides for the first-tier tribunal to be organised into chambers, including a separate war pensions and armed forces compensation chamber. The order assigns all of the functions of the current PAT (England and Wales) to that chamber. The order has the concurrence of the Lord Chancellor and the Senior President and has been laid before Parliament.

Procedural rules specific to the war pensions and armed forces compensation chamber have been drafted and signed by the Tribunal Procedure Committee, following consultation with ex-service organisations, their advisers and the President of PAT (England and Wales) The rules have been submitted to the Lord Chancellor and have been laid before Parliament. In establishing rules that are specific to this chamber those who currently use PAT (England and Wales) will have the same level of procedural protection as users of the PATs in Scotland and Northern Ireland, as rules will be made with the specific needs of this jurisdiction only in mind. Members of the armed forces community were concerned that this protection would not be provided if the chamber shared rules with other chambers in the first-tier tribunal.

In further recognition of the special relationship, other measures have been taken to ensure that appeal panels must include those who understand the particular nature of service in the armed forces, and for the jurisprudence in Scotland, Northern Ireland and England and Wales to remain consistent.

The Senior President of Tribunals has produced a draft practice statement on composition of tribunals. The President and Deputy President of the PAT have been consulted on the draft and are in agreement with it. The draft practice statement requires the continued use of service members on hearing panels within the war pensions and armed forces compensation chamber and maintains their present role without diminution or alteration. The Qualifications for Appointment of Members to the First-Tier Tribunal and Upper Tribunal Order, as laid before Parliament, requires that service members have considerable experience of service in Her Majesty's naval, military or air forces.

A decision made at a hearing of an appeal in this chamber will normally be dealt with by a three member panel of one judge, one service member and one medical member. Alternatively, but only where the chamber President considers it appropriate, a decision at a hearing may be dealt with by a four member panel of one judge, one service member and two medical members. Panels are expected to strive to reach a unanimous decision.

Appeals from the war pensions and armed forces compensation chamber and from the PATs in Scotland will lie to the upper tribunal created by the 2007 Act, which will take over the jurisdiction of the Pension Appeal Commissioners. Assessment appeals from the PATs in Northern Ireland will also lie to the upper tribunal and entitlement appeals will continue to go to the Pension Appeal Commissioners in Northern Ireland who are themselves judges of the upper tribunal. We therefore expect that the jurisprudence will develop in a common and coherent way across the United Kingdom.

The Lord Chancellor will in addition establish within three months an advisory steering group for armed services work with an independent chair. Representatives of charities who represent appellants at appeal hearings and proposed by COBSEO will be invited to join this group, as will representatives of the judiciary and administration for the PATs in Scotland and Northern Ireland. The remit of the group will include consideration of the implementation of existing procedures, changes the Government or tribunal proposes to make to the procedures, and the applicability of any such changes across the jurisdictions.

The Lord Chancellor will ensure that staff deployed on armed services' work will be staff who understand armed services' requirements and who will work in effective liaison with the organisations who represent users.

Branding will continue to be distinct so that users understand they are dealing with a specialist armed forces jurisdiction.

The aim of making this statement is to set out how the valued features of the PAT are preserved and protected in the new system in recognition of the unique role of the armed forces community, and in acknowledgement of the concerns that were raised in response to the consultation on implementation of Part 1 of the Tribunals, Courts and Enforcement Act.

TRANSPORT

EU Transport Council

The Secretary of State for Transport (Mr. Geoffrey Hoon): I attended the first Transport Council of the French presidency in Luxembourg on 9 October.

Following a debate on the draft conclusions presented by the presidency on the greening of transport, the Council failed to achieve unanimity. It is likely that the Council will return to this issue in December.

There was a policy debate on the proposal for a directive on cross-border enforcement in the field of road safety. A key issue in the debate was whether the proposal could be adopted under the first pillar, as currently intended by the presidency and supported by some member states, or whether it should be a third pillar (Justice and Home Affairs) issue. The UK expressed its view that the third pillar would be the correct legal base. Pointing out the UK's strong record in this area, we recognised the concerns and underlying objectives of the proposal, but stressed that it was necessary to go forward with practical measures. The majority of member states supported a third pillar approach. Following this debate, work will continue in the working group and Coreper, and it is expected that the issue will return to the Council in December.

The Council agreed conclusions on third countries' participation in the inclusion of aviation in the EU emissions trading scheme, following agreement on the EC directive earlier in the year. The conclusions were acceptable to the UK.

The Council adopted a decision authorising the Commission to open negotiations towards a Euro-Mediterranean aviation agreement with the Republic of Lebanon. The UK supports this negotiating mandate.

The Council reached a general approach on an amendment to the regulation establishing a joint undertaking for the SESAR programme (technical implementation of the Single European Sky). The Council also adopted a resolution launching the development phase of the programme. Both the amending regulation and the resolution are acceptable to the UK.

Under other business, the Commission gave a progress report on negotiations on the proposed EU/Canada air transport agreement. The UK supported the presidency's proposal that the Commission be asked to finalise negotiations on the emerging agreement and report back to the Council on the outcome.

The Council reached political agreement on proposals for directives on the responsibility of EU member states which are flag states and the insurance requirements of shipowners. These were substantially amended versions. Negotiations before and during the Council led to further welcome amendments. The presidency and Commission also made clear that the European Parliament would only negotiate on the complete third maritime safety package with these two amended proposals included. Taking all of this into account, the UK supported the agreements on both of the significantly amended proposals.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Digital Britain Report

The Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (Andy Burnham): The Minister for Communications, Technology and Broadcasting, Lord Carter, is today launching a joint programme of work by my Department and the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform which will lead to a digital Britain report (DBR) in the spring of 2009.

Information and Communications Technologies and Broadcasting account for 5.9 per cent. of GDP, £52 billion-plus of turnover and 500,000 jobs. Indirectly they are critical to every business in the economy and to people's quality of life.

The Government have already undertaken much important work in this area, particularly:

The recently published Cairo review on next generation broadband access;

The Digital Radio Working Group currently scheduled to deliver a report in December;

The recent memorandum of understanding to address file sharing between internet service providers and rights holders;

The Byron review on children and new technology leading to the UK Council for Child Internet Safety;

The work of the convergence think tank; and

The digital inclusion action plan.

This sits alongside complementary strategic work by the industry regulator Ofcom, for example on public service broadcasting and regulation of broadband and by the UK Intellectual Property Office on adapting our copyright framework to meet the challenges of the digital age.

A growing body of evidence shows us that convergence—the coming together of different means of delivering content (television, radio, mobile and internet)—has already arrived for many people in many situations, and that policy approaches need to reflect that fact. We now need to prepare to take the next steps to prepare Britain for a future beyond convergence. The DBR will provide the platform to do this.

The overall strategic objective of the DBR will be to ensure the UK maximises the benefits of convergence right across the economy and society. This will be delivered by achieving the public policy objectives of open markets; empowered and informed consumers and citizens; universal access to public service content; and a responsive regulatory framework.

Within these public policy objectives, there will be nine areas of focus, around which the report will consider what future legislative and non-legislative measures are required, resulting in a detailed action plan. The structure of the report will be as follows (some areas of study will inform more than one policy objective; for simplicity they are listed under the category they most strongly match):

A. Open markets providing investment, innovation and choice, at all levels of the value chain including infrastructure, service provision and creation of content:

Broadband development: examining options for maximising participation and levels of service across the UK.

Digital radio: identifying barriers to wider investment and development of digital radio platforms, and drawing lessons from the current digital switchover television programme.

Investment in content: exploring business models for content development in a digital age, and the impact of new media on the content market.

Spectrum: identifying the barriers to the release of spectrum and a fully functioning market in the trading and use of spectrum.

B. Empowered and informed consumers and citizens fully equipped to take advantage of the opportunities convergence brings:

Internet: looking at a range of issues affecting internet users, such as user security and safety and a workable approach to promoting content standards.

Media literacy and IT skills: identifying inhibitors to IT take-up and barriers to maximising the economic and social effects of digital technologies including empowering consumers.

C. Universal access to high quality, public service content through appropriate mechanisms for a converged digital age:

Public service broadcasting and content: evaluating the impact of digitalisation and the new technologies on public service broadcasting assets and public service licences, in the UK as a whole and in the nations and regions.

Independent production: examining how to ensure the health of a vibrant independent production sector, including examining the impact of the current quota system.

D. A responsive regulatory framework that maximises investment and innovation by providing certainty and equipping regulators with the right tools to achieve their objectives:

Intellectual property: the UK Intellectual Property Office will take forward work to deliver adigital copyright framework which supports creativity, investment and job creation in these important sectors."

A copy of this statement will be placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

Letter from Lord Carter:

DIGITAL BRITAIN REPORT

My right hon. Friend, the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport has made the following statement in the House of Commons:

The Minister for Communications, Technology and Broadcasting, Lord Carter, is today launching a joint programme of work by my Department and the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform which will lead to a digital Britain report (DBR) in the spring of 2009.

Information and Communications Technologies and Broadcasting account for 5.9 per cent. of GDP, £52 billion-plus of turnover and 500,000 jobs. Indirectly they are critical to every business in the economy and to people's quality of life.

The Government have already undertaken much important work in this area, particularly:

The work of the convergence think tank; and

The digital inclusion action plan.

This sits alongside complementary strategic work by the industry regulator Ofcom, for example on public service broadcasting and regulation of broadband and by the UK Intellectual Property Office on adapting our copyright framework to meet the challenges of the digital age.

A growing body of evidence shows us that convergence—the coming together of different means of delivering content (television, radio, mobile and internet)—has already arrived for many people in many situations, and that policy approaches need to reflect that fact. DEFENCE

Nimrod Update

The Minister for the Armed Forces (Mr. Bob Ainsworth): The House will recall the circumstances surrounding the loss of Nimrod XV230 in September 2006 which led to the tragic death of 14 service personnel. The subsequent Board of Inquiry recommended that the ageing aircraft audit be reviewed to include aircraft systems. In order to ensure that we found the most robust way possible of meeting this recommendation and tightening up our safety and maintenance procedures we decided to conduct a forensic-level teardown of a Nimrod aircraft. This approach is extremely rigorous, and the first time that we have conducted this sort of exercise.

We wanted to gain the most information possible from this process. Therefore we selected XV236 because it was due to go into its five-yearly major maintenance refit and it is one of most heavily used aircraft on operations in our fleet. The work, which is being conducted by QinetiQ, began in August.

QinetiQ has provided an initial report which sets out the result of an extensive visual inspection, conducted as a precursor to the teardown work itself. This inspection has revealed a number of faults and husbandry issues, which had not been recorded in the aircraft's maintenance documentation. There were examples of corrosion, scratches in the aircraft structure, and some damage and deterioration. Apart from the aircraft structure scratching and a cable anchoring issue, both of which were investigated across the fleet to ensure that other aircraft were not similarly affected, the issues were individually minor in nature.

We immediately commissioned a separate thorough investigation in response to the teardown report to assess whether the individual and cumulative impact of these issues had any serious airworthiness implications. They did not, and it was concluded that the Nimrod remains safe to fly. This investigation was carried out in conjunction with QinetiQ and BAE Systems with each issue identified in the QinetiQ report being analysed, explained and remedial action identified where required. This has formed the basis for a companion report that places the initial QinetiQ report into its proper context.

We have also initiated an inspection of the Nimrod fleet to ensure that maintenance procedures are being rigorously applied. It is well underway and will be completed by the end of October.

Copies of both reports are today being placed in the Library of the House and the MOD website. The material is also being passed to Mr Haddon-Cave QC for inclusion in his review.

The teardown work will generate quarterly reports, setting out the findings and conclusions reached. We propose to adopt a similar approach to each of these reports and to make them available in the same way. In the meantime QinetiQ staff, the MOD's integrated project team, and the design authority, BAE Systems, remain closely engaged to ensure that any issues that might require immediate attention or investigation are known and understood. If at any point QinetiQ identify a serious airworthiness issue during the teardown they have been asked to raise it immediately with the MOD, in order that we can take swift action.

PETITION PRESENTED

Planning and Development (Hampshire)

The Petition of the Bordon for Option 1 Group

Declares that the Whitehill/Bordon Opportunity Town Enlargement and/or Bordon Eco-Town Development expansion proposals are not appropriate to the character of this small country town. Because of the size of the proposed town enlargement it will have an excessive and undesirable impact on the surrounding areas. The Petitioners respectfully ask that the currently proposed over-development plan for Bordon be stopped. This small town and its surroundings contain characteristics and important heathland and other biodiversity rich habitats, which will be lost or substantially damaged, even if they are mitigated for, by these development proposals and options.

The Petitioners therefore request that the House of Commons urges the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government, to limit the expansion of the town at Whitehill/Bordon to no more than 2000 houses and associated infrastructure: and to insist that the proposed town expansion should be situated only on the future brownfield sites that are currently barracks, which are to be vacated by the MOD in the town.

And the Petitioners remain, etc. [P000270]

BUSINESS, ENTERPRISE AND REGULATORY REFORM

Post Office Closures (Essex)

The Humble Petition of the customers of 553 London Road Post Office, Westcliff-on-Sea, SS0 9LJ and others,

Sheweth

That said Post Office is widely used by the residents of Southend West and is a vital resource for our community of inestimable value to its elderly and most vulnerable constituents.

Wherefore your Petitioners pray that your Honourable House do request that the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform instruct the Chief Executive of the Royal Mail Group to keep 553 London Road Post Office open.

And your Petitioners, as in duty bound, will ever pray, &c.—[Presented by Mr. David Amess, Official Report, 21 July 2008; Vol. 479, c. 622 .] [P000255]

Observations from the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform, received 6 August 2008:

The Government fully recognises the important social and economic role of post offices, particularly in rural and deprived urban communities. That is why it is determined to maintain a national post office network allowing people to have reasonable access across the whole country and has put in place a new policy and financial framework to achieve this. The Government has been investing substantial sums in the post office network, totalling £2 billion since 1999. That has, for example, paid for a computer link-up for every post office as well as support for non-commercial branches since 2003.

In its response to the consultation on the Post Office network the Government announced in May 2007 confirmation of its decision to extend funding of up to £1.7 billion to 2011, including provision of £150 million Social Network Payment to support the post office network up to 2011. The Government strategy includes provision for 2,500 compensated closures and 500 new Outreach services.

The 500 new and innovative Outreach locations, operated in partnership with other local services such as in pubs, village halls, churches or in mobile post offices, will mitigate closures, primarily in smaller and more remote communities. Post Office Limited (POL) announced on 9 April that it will extend Outreach trials into urban areas which, if successful, could mean additional Outreach branches over and above the 500 originally planned. Nevertheless, there will need to be up to 2,500 compensated post office closures within the defined access criteria.

POL is responsible for implementing the network change programme at a local level. It is developing a rolling programme of some 50 local consultations on detailed area plans, based on groups of Parliamentary constituencies. The first area plans went out to local consultation on 2 October last year and these plans will continue to be rolled out at regular intervals until August, with the whole programme scheduled to take around 15 months to complete. The consultation period for East Essex and Suffolk has ended and POL has published its Area Plan Decision Booklet. Having considered all representations and the criteria for the network change programme POL have confirmed that the London Road Post Office is to close. Details will be made available on the POL website at: www.postoffice.co.uk/networkchange.

POL develops its proposals with the participation of sub-postmasters, local authorities and the consumer watchdog, Postwatch, and takes into account the numeric access criteria set out by Government as well as local factors affecting ease of access, such as local geography: rivers, mountains etc when drawing up its implementation plans. POL is also required to consider the availability of public transport and alternative access to key post office services, local demographics and the impact on the local economy. Local consultations provide the opportunity to raise any specific concerns over particular proposals.

The Government does not have a role in proposals or decisions for individual post offices. No decisions on individual Post Offices are taken until after local consultations. Those decisions are made by POL in light of the responses to the consultation while subject to a four-stage appeals process involving Postwatch. The Review Process for closure decisions after public consultation process applies where Postwatch shows that, for an individual branch:

> POL has not given due consideration to material evidence received during the public consultation in coming to its decision or; > where evidence emerges from the consultation that the proposal for the branch does not meet the Government's policy requirements.

The aim of the further review process is for POL and Postwatch to reach an agreed way forward by bilateral review with 3 stages available at increasing levels of seniority. An addition to the review process last November provides that for very difficult cases which remain unresolved after stage 3, Allan Leighton, Chairman of Royal Mail Group will review the issues and reach a final decision.

Post Office Closures (Halifax)

The Petition of those opposed to the decision to close Holmfield Post Office,

Declares that they do not believe that the Post Office has given consideration to the range of customers using this branch and the impact of its closure on the community; a large proportion of customers will find it difficult to travel to the suggested alternatives. Further declares that the Holmfield Community is also growing rapidly with a high number of new businesses moving into the areas and current businesses expanding. This they are sure will guarantee the viability of this branch for many years to come.

The Petitioners therefore request that the House of Commons urges the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory reform to instruct Post Office Ltd. to keep Holmfield Post Office open.

And the Petitioners remain, etc.—[Presented by Mrs. Linda Riordan, Official Report, 21 July 2008; Vol. 479, c. 621 .] [P000246]

Post Office Closures (Merseyside)

The Petition of Birkenhead consitituents opposed to Post Office closure, Declares that Holt Hill Post Office should remain open.

The Petitioners therefore request that the House of Commons urges the Secretary of State for Business and Enterprise to keep Holt Hill Post Office open, as losing a local Post Office will be a detrimental loss when no other alternative is presented.

Post Office Closures (Shropshire)

The Petition of users of Post Offices in the Ludlow Constituency,

Declares that plans to close 14 Post Offices in the Ludlow constituency, 9 of which are in the last remaining shop in the village, will affect many users of Post Office services, particularly vulnerable people with limited access to alternative branches and undermine sustainability of the local community. Withdrawal of the Post Office from the local shop will threaten the future of many remaining village shops, and introduction of a mobile van service for a few hours a week in 7 villages does nothing to reduce this threat to our communities.

The Petitioners therefore request that the House of Commons urges the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform to be aware of the Petitioners concerns against closure of Post Offices in the Ludlow constituency and to instruct Post Office Ltd to halt the closure of these Post Offices.

And the Petitioners remain, etc.—[Presented by Mr. Philip Dunne, Official Report, 9 June 2008; Vol. 477, c. 133 .] [P000209]

The Petition of users of Montford Bridge Post Office,

Declares that that the plan to close five Post Offices in the Shrewsbury and Atcham constituency will have a detrimental effect on the lives of local residents. The local Post Office is a vital and integral element of the local community, supporting social interaction between residents. They should not simply be assessed on an economic basis without taking into consideration the social economic value they offer to the local community. The proposed partial replacement of three of the Post Offices earmarked for closure by a mobile vehicle with restricted hours, and in some cases parked on the side of roads or in lay-bys, is a substandard solution not benefiting the world we live in today.

The Petitioners therefore request that the House of Commons urges the Government to instruct Post Office Ltd. to ensure that Montford Bridge Post Office is kept open.

POL develops its proposals with the participation of sub-postmasters, local authorities and the consumer watchdog, Postwatch, and takes into account the numeric access criteria set out by Government as well as local factors affecting ease of access, such as local geography: rivers, mountains etc when drawing up its implementation plans. POL is also required to consider the availability of public transport and alternative access to key post office services, local demographics and the impact on the local economy. Local consultations provide the opportunity to raise any specific concerns over particular proposals.

The Government does not have a role in proposals or decisions for individual post offices. No decisions on individual Post Offices are taken until after local consultations. Those decisions are made by POL in light of the responses to the consultation while subject to a four-stage appeals process involving Postwatch. The Review Process for closure decisions after public consultation process applies where Postwatch shows that, for an individual branch:

> POL has not given due consideration to material evidence received during the public consultation in coming to its decision or;
> where evidence emerges from the consultation that the proposal for the branch does not meet the Government's policy requirements.

The aim of the further review process is for POL and Postwatch to reach an agreed way forward by bilateral review with 3 stages available at increasing levels of seniority. An addition to the review process last November provides that for very difficult cases which remain unresolved after stage 3, Allan Leighton, Chairman of Royal Mail Group will review the issues and reach a final decision.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Car Boot Sale (Catchpenny Farm)

The Petition of concerned members of the public,

Declares that the mid-weekly car boot sale and market at Catchpenny Farm, near Fitzwilliam has, for the moment, ceased. The Petitioners believe that this mid-weekly market has been beneficial to the local economy, contributes to strengthening the community and is highly popular. The Petitioners further expect, since they pay their Council Tax to Wakefield MDC, that this Council exists to promote economic development and community well-being and therefore will wish to restore the weekly car boot sale and market.

The Petitioners therefore request that the House of Commons urges the Government to do all in its power to co-operate with Wakefield MDC in order to reinstate a mid-weekly car boot sale and market such as the one formerly held at Catchpenny Farm near Fitzwilliam.

And the Petitioners remain, etc.—[Presented by Jon Trickett, Official Report, 10 June 2008; Vol. 477, c. 280.]

Observations from the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government, received 31 July 2008:

The Secretary of State acknowledges the concerns of the petitioners in relation to the cessation of the Catchpenny Farm car boot sale and market.

It is understood that the car boot sale and market at Catchpenny Farm, Fitzwilliam, ceased following action taken by Wakefield Metropolitan District Council through the Courts to secure an injunction against the operator.

Primary responsibility for the day to day administration of planning control rightly rests with the local planning authority for an area. Local planning authorities are best placed to carry out what is in their view proper planning for their areas. They have a wide range of discretionary enforcement powers to enable them to deal with unauthorised development and can, if they feel an unauthorised development is unacceptable, take enforcement action against those concerned. They can also take action in the Courts under section 187B of the Town and Country Planning Act where they consider it expedient for any actual, or apprehended breaches of planning control to be restricted.

It is for the local authority concerned to determine whether Civil or enforcement action should be taken in any particular case and, if so, the type of action appropriate, taking account of local circumstances. These are not matters in which the Secretary of State would become involved, unless an appeal is made against an enforcement notice issued by a local planning authority. It would not therefore be appropriate for the Secretary of State to offer any comments or observations on the propositions raised by this petition.

Planning and Development (Essex)

The Petition of J Everett, the residents of Castle Point and others,

Declares that they suspect that there is a hidden agenda in respect of the public open space bounded by the Chase Thundersley on the north side, and by Runneymede Chase on the east side. They have reached this conclusion firstly because a large area adjacent to the annex of the SEEVIC College has been fenced off and they challenge the legal right for this to have been done. Second because Castle Point councillors have decided to no longer regularly cut the grass allowing it to become largely overgrown, and they suspect this is an attempt by councillors to deter people from using the public open space so that the land can be developed. Third, because lately it appears that students of SEEVIC College have been allowed or encouraged to take over the area during breaks, making other users of this public open space feel like interlopers and leaving the space littered with food wrappers, drinks cans and bottles and other rubbish, adding to its dereliction. They further believe that this land, like all public assets, belongs to the people, not to the council or the councillors, and councillors should respect that fact and keep the public fully informed of their and their officers' discussions and intentions regarding land use and the future of all our public assets. They therefore urge councillors to return this land to full and proper public use and to protect it in future, for many valid planning and community interest reasons, and to ensure that this matter is dealt with by councillors rather than officers given its importance to the wider community and the need to protect their valuable public open spaces.

The Petitioners therefore request that the House of Commons urges the Government to press all Castle Point councillors, since they have the direct responsibility for this matter, to ensure this public open space is retained for its ancient and established previous use and to immediately publish its discussions and intentions regarding land in this area and behind the Runnemede swimming pool and to be transparent in future with the public on all planning and land use matters.

[P000227]

Observations from the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government, received 31 July 2008:

The Secretary of State acknowledges the concerns of the petitioners regarding the land bounded by the Chase Thundersley on the north side and by Runneymede Chase on the east side.

It is our understanding that the land which is subject of proposals by SEEVIC is not public open space and has been allocated for Local Government purposes. This area has been fenced and SEEVIC have applied to Castle Point Borough Council for planning permission to build on this land. The land concerned is bounded to the north by an area of public open space which has not been fenced. Further information on planning, including the minutes of meetings of the Planning Committee are publicly available on the Council's website.

Planning and Development (Salisbury)

The Petition of the citizens of South Wiltshire,

Declares that the Government proposals to impose the building of an additional 12,400 houses on our community will change forever the character of this unique part of rural England's landscape and heritage; has been proposed with inadequate time for proper consultation; is not supported by proposals for new physical or social infrastructure and will result in the loss of prime agricultural land.

Further declares that the underlying planning assumptions of economic and population growth in central southern England are speculative and flawed and ignore the special nature of the open landscape and natural environment which enhances biodiversity in a precious, pollution-free, low-carbon area which is as important to the whole of England as the speculative construction of new houses.

The Petitioners therefore request that the House of Commons urges the Government to annul these proposals and bearing in mind the imminent abolition of Salisbury District Council and Wiltshire County council and their replacement by a new Unitary Wiltshire Council as Planning Authority to delay any decision on future housing options for at least one year and to leave development policy in the hands of their locally-elected planning authority, pursuing organic and sustainable growth in our local economy and in the provision of new homes.

[P000212]

Observations from the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government, received 31 July 2008:

The Secretary of State acknowledges the concerns of the petitioners regarding the recommendations of the Panel Report into the draft Regional Spatial Strategy (RSS) for the South West in relation to the future development of Salisbury and south Wiltshire.

As the process of producing the draft South West RSS is bound by regulation and propriety guidance, which seeks to put all interested parties on an even footing, it is not possible to discuss the merits of the Regional Spatial Strategy or the recommendations of the independent Panel Report at this stage.

This guidance is to ensure that the process is fair and transparent and that representations to the Secretary of State are channelled through the proper statutory consultation process.

The position in respect of the draft South West RSS is that Government is currently considering its response to the recommendations in the Panel Report. The next stage in the process is the publication, for public consultation, of the Government's own Proposed Changes to the draft RSS which will occur in late July 2008. This will provide an opportunity for interested parties to make further representations.

Following consideration of comments and views arising from that consultation, the Secretary of State is expecting to publish the final Regional Spatial Strategy before the end of 2008.

With regard to the new Unitary Wiltshire Council, members of this new planning authority, once elected in 2009, will be able to determine how development plan documents address the requirements of the adopted South West RSS, including policies to meet the need for housing requirements in south Wiltshire. The Government also understands that Salisbury District Council is carrying out a further period of public consultation later this year on the options for housing growth in Salisbury and south Wiltshire for its Core Strategy development plan document. This Core Strategy is intended to form a part of the future development plan for Wiltshire for which the new unitary authority will be responsible. CLG is currently discussing transitional measures with Joint Implementation Teams in each area affected by restructuring, and will lay any necessary regulations before the House in due course.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Digital Television Switchover

The Petition of those concerned about the extent of Freeview services in the Borders as a result of digital television switchover.,

Declares that, in November 2008, the Borders will be the first region in the UK to make the switch from analogue to digital television. Many people in this area receive their television picture from a relay transmitter, but after switchover they will not receive all the available channels on Freeview. Instead, they will receive a much reduced service known as 'Freeview Lite'. Many channels enjoyed by viewers elsewhere will not be available to viewers who rely on relay transmitters for their television picture. Further declares that this situation is unfair.

The Petitioners therefore request that the House of Commons urges the Government to urgently review the impact of the digital television switchover on the Borders area and to take steps to intervene to prevent Borderers from missing out and ensuring that viewers in the Borders who currently receive their television signal from a relay are provided with all the Freeview channels after digital switchover.

[P000244]

Observations from the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport, received 29 August 2008:

Digital Terrestrial Television (DTT) coverage is expected to reach 98.5% of households—the same as analogue terrestrial coverage. As part of the digital licensing regime, and to assist with Switchover, Ofcom require the Public Service Broadcasting (PSB) multiplex (mux) operators to maintain audience reach by broadcasting from all 1154 transmitters.

The Government and Ofcom are committed to ensuring that digital coverage for the five PSB channels will substantially match current analogue services—98.5% of UK households—at digital switchover.

There are six digital TV multiplexes in the UK. Three are operated by PSBs and three are commercially-owned multiplexes. Even those who receive only the three PSB multiplexes still receive 20 of the most watched channels which is a much wider choice than is currently available with analogue television.

Coverage by the commercial mux operators is a commercial matter for them, although coverage levels post switchover cannot fall below current levels. That is as a minimum, they must broadcast from the 81 main transmitter sites, which gives 90% household coverage. In deciding whether to go beyond this level, they must make a judgement about the necessary investment needed to generate a marginal increase in coverage from each transmitter converted. It is worth noting that even if the multiplex operators were willing to build out the transmission network, there is only sufficient spectrum to enable coverage to be extended to 95% of households.

Digital UK will be making it clear to people who want more channels that they will still have a number of options for going digital, including non-subscription services such as PSB Freesat or Freesat from Sky. Digital Satellite services are available now to 98% of UK households.

The petition declares that in November 2008, the Borders will be the first region in the UK to make the switch from analogue to digital television. I should like to draw the petitioner's attention to Whitehaven/Copeland, Cumbria, which became the first area in the UK to successfully complete the digital TV switchover in November 2007. There has been extensive assessment of the Whitehaven switchover process and my Department—along with Digital UK, Ofcom and the Help Scheme—will ensure that future regions benefit from the lessons learnt during this first switchover phase.

DEFENCE

Admiral John Byng

The Petition of the friends of All Saints Southill, the parishioners of Southill, Byng family members and the supporters of Admiral John Byng, Declares that the conduct at his trail and the verdict of his trial in December 1756 and January/February 1757, which resulted in his execution on 14th March 1757 was unfair and unjust. Further declares that he was made the scapegoat for the inadequacies of the Government and his Naval Superiors at the time, whom the Petitioners believe to have been responsible for the loss of Menorca to the French.

The Petitioners therefore request that the House of Commons urges the Ministry for Defence and the Ministry for Justice to review the trial and the verdict of that trial, resulting in Admiral John Byng being declared innocent posthumously; his Honour should be restored for him, his family and supporters.

Observations from the Secretary of State for Defence, received 30 July 2008:

The Admiral's case is well documented and I am aware of the considerable sympathy and admiration that many have felt for him. Indeed, one cannot fail to admire his courage and generosity of spirit when faced with execution.

The petition alleges unfairness and lack of justice in the conduct of his trial. However, I should point out that the conduct of the Court Martial, its verdict and the sentence were the subject of comprehensive and extensive review at the time. Whilst fairness is a subjective concept, the matter of unjustness is not. A properly constituted Court Martial was held in accordance with the regulations in force at that time, and resulted in a sentence that was fully in accordance with the, then, Articles of War. Although the thirteen senior naval officers who presided at the Court Martial were unanimous in their verdict, the Admiralty, Courts and Parliament exhausted all avenues available to them in seeking to absolve Admiral Byng of the charges against him. This included the final step in the appeal process, an application to the Monarch for clemency. This was refused.

This petition asks for the trial and verdict to be reviewed and for Admiral Byng to be declared innocent posthumously, thereby restoring his honour. Having considered this request several times previously, my view remains that it would not be appropriate to attempt to re-open this case. I take this view notwithstanding the merits or otherwise of the case but because it is a matter which has passed out of living memory and into history. In these circumstances, it has become a subject for historical scrutiny and not for Government intervention.

Gurkhas (Citizenship and Pensions)

The Petition of the Havant Ex-Servicemen's Club, the Havant Royal British Legion and others of like disposition.

Declares that the treatment of Gurkhas is an ongoing disgrace: Gurkhas who retired from the British Army after 1997 can automatically stay in the UK, but those who retired earlier must apply for citizenship, and many have been refused and face deportation. Pension rights for years served by Gurkhas before 1997 count at only around a quarter of the level of years served after that time.

Further declares their support for the fifty Nepalese soldiers who handed back their Long Service and Good Conduct medals in March 2008, in protest at the difference in treatment of Gurkhas with other British soldiers, such as those from the Commonwealth.

The Petitioners therefore request that the House of Commons urges the Secretary of State for Defence to ensure that all ex-Ghurkha soldiers and their families British citizenship on leaving the service.

Observations from the Secretary of State for Defence, received 19 August 2008:

The Government fully recognises the courage and commitment that the Gurkhas have given to this country over many decades and greatly values the contribution of the Gurkhas both past and present.

Gurkha service in the British Army is enabled through an agreement made between the Governments of the UK, Nepal and India in 1947, the Tripartite Agreement. The Tripartite Agreement permits the recruitment in Nepal of Nepalese citizens into the British Army's Brigade of Gurkhas, something that ultimately depends upon the goodwill of the Government of Nepal.

Gurkhas who served on or after 1 July 1997 are entitled to be granted settlement in the UK and then to apply for citizenship. Extending this entitlement to those who served before 1 July 1997 as a reward for military service would not be in line with Home Office immigration rules. The current arrangements recognise that since July 1997, the close residential or physical ties to the UK required to comply with immigration rules have developed for the Gurkha soldier, and his family, in a way that was not normally possible for previous generations of Gurkhas.

Under Her Majesty's Forces Immigration Rule, introduced in October 2004, Gurkhas have a pathway to settlement in the UK and citizenship, should they choose to follow it. A successful application for settlement in the UK requires a former Gurkha to have completed at least four years' service as a Gurkha with the British Army and to have been discharged after 1 July 1997. Once settled in the UK, Gurkhas can apply for British citizenship using their military service to count towards the qualifying period of five years.

Those who were discharged before the 1 July 1997 immigration qualifying date can still apply for Indefinite Leave to Enter or Remain in the UK under immigration discretionary arrangements, and can subsequently apply for citizenship.

Careful consideration has been given by the UK Border Agency to the circumstances in which it would be appropriate to exercise discretion where cases fall outside the provisions of the new immigration rules. This is done on a case by case basis.

The Tripartite Agreement also established a link between the British Brigade of Gurkhas and Indian Army terms and conditions of service (TACOS). Although until last year Gurkhas served under different TACOS from the rest of the British Army, it has been the policy of successive UK governments to ensure that Gurkha terms and conditions of service are fair and meet the aspirations of successive generations of Gurkha soldiers and their families. The 2007 review of Gurkha TACOS recommended that, with some exceptions to satisfy the Government of Nepal and to maintain the Brigade's operational effectiveness, Gurkhas should be offered British terms and conditions of Service, including pensions. As a result, serving Gurkhas and retired Gurkhas who served in the Army on or after 1 July 1997, had the option to access to benefits under the Armed Forces Pension Scheme. All their service counted, though service before 1 July 1997 was given an actuarial value.

Those Gurkha veterans discharged prior to 1 July 1997 fell outside the scope of the TACOS review. It has been the policy of successive governments not to implement improvements to pensions and similar benefits retrospectively - a policy that has been applied across the public sector in the United Kingdom, not just to Gurkha veterans. To do so now would not only be counter to this policy but would also be at a cost running into many hundreds of millions of pounds to the country because of the potential claims of other groups in public sector schemes. Those veterans who retired before 1 July 1997 will continue to receive benefits under the Gurkha Pension Scheme. Most Gurkha veterans are in receipt of a Service Pension under the provisions of the Gurkha Pension Scheme, a Scheme that was designed for retirement in Nepal and offers different benefits to those serving under British terms and conditions of service. By providing immediate payment of pension after 15 years service from an early age of average 35, it was well suited to the conditions prevailing for earlier generations of Gurkhas.

The decision to apply the date of 1 July 1997 to the pension and immigration rule changes for Gurkhas is a rational one. Between 1971 and 1997 only one battalion of Gurkha infantry was stationed in the UK, at Church Crookham. During that time many Gurkha soldiers who served for 15 years before leaving the Brigade would spend only one full two-year unaccompanied tour in the UK during their career. Between the formation of the Brigade of Gurkhas in 1948 and the withdrawal from Singapore in the late 1960s, Gurkhas were stationed almost exclusively in the Far East and before 1948 Gurkhas served as part of the Indian Army. Because of this, most Gurkhas discharged before July 1997 would not have developed any strong residential ties with the UK. At the time the Tripartite Agreement was made, it was with the understanding that once they had completed their service they would return to Nepal.

The rate of pension under the Gurkha Pension Scheme provides a good income in Nepal, broadly equivalent to a very good salary. The value of the pension has been maintained over the years, for all pensioners; including the doubling of the pension in 2000 to take account of benefits in kind provided by the Government of India to its service pensioners. Last year, in addition to the annual inflationary uplift, pensioners who were of the rank of corporal or below received an increase to their pension of on average a further 19 per cent. They also received a further 5.7 per cent. increase for inflation this year.

Although some retired Gurkhas have challenged the pension arrangements in relation to the 2007 review, an independent Judicial Review in June 2008 ruled that the Ministry of Defence's position was fair and reasonable.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Sea Defences

The Petition of residents of North Norfolk and others.

Declares the Petitioners serious concern at the option contained in a paper from Natural England for an area of approximately 25 square miles to be inundated by the sea. The Petitioners consider that the news of this option being under consideration has caused a great deal of unnecessary distress.

The Petitioners therefore request that the House of Commons urges the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs to confirm he will take every step necessary to protect this area of North East Norfolk from the sea by defending the coastline.

[P000249]

Observations from the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs, received 12 September 2008:

Coastal erosion and flooding has affected stretches of our coastline for generations. The Government remains committed to managing the impact of these natural process, and invests significant public funds in maintaining and constructing a range of physical barriers against the sea. However, there will be those areas where the power of nature is such that we cannot maintain the current shape of our ever evolving coastline. As such, the Government is also looking at ways that people can be helped to adapt to increased risk, as well as work to understand potential impacts.

The Petition refers to a draft report prepared by Natural England which looks at the potential impacts of climate change on the natural environment of the Broads, and considers possible options. Natural England act as advisors on environmental matters and do not make flood or erosion risk management decisions. The draft paper contained a number of possible scenarios, and did not advocate any of these as the preferred approach. The Environment Agency has responsibility for maintaining the sea and tidal river defences which protect the Broads area from saltwater flooding. In 1993, the Environment Agency embarked on a 50 year works programme aimed at maintaining the existing sea defences by constructing a series of offshore reefs, rock groynes and beach recharge.

Government investment in flood and erosion risk management has increased, rising from £307 million in 1996-97 to some £800m by 2010-11. In the Norfolk Broads area, over the past 15 years, more than £40m has been invested in strengthening the coastal frontage from Eccles to Winterton, and the Environment Agency have recently awarded a £7.5m contract for further beach management works which will start later this year. Flood protection for inland low-lying land and properties is provided by 240kms of riverside earth embankments. The Environment Agency are implementing a 20-year programme of improvement works on these embankments through a £120m public/private partnership project, which commenced in 2001.

Managing a stretch of coastline is a very complex matter, with decisions to intervene in one particular area impacting on others downstream of it. Shoreline Management Plans (SMPs) allow the Environment Agency to set out a strategic approach for a whole section of coastline, managing the interdependencies between the coastal processes. They also give a long-term view, considering coastal management over the next 100 years. The management policy for this length of coast is set out in the 2nd generation Kelling to Lowestoft Ness SMP, which was published for public consultation in December 2004. This Plan states that it is currently the Environment Agency's intention to 'Hold the Line' by maintaining the existing sea defences in the short and medium term (i.e. for 50 years).

DEFRA guidance for the preparation of SMPs recognises the inherent uncertainties with longer term predictions, and highlights the importance of reviews and updates at appropriate intervals to take account of up-to-date science and the latest policy guidance. In the case of the Kelling to Lowestoft Ness SMP, it currently predicts that it will become much more difficult to maintain the coastline in its current position between Eccles and Winterton as the impacts of climate change increase, and the 'Hold the Line' policy is unlikely to be sustainable for the 50 to 100 year period. Future reviews of the SMP will be able to incorporate any new information and provide an opportunity to review this position. If it is still considered unsustainable to hold the current line of defence, the reviews will establish where a sustainable line of defence may be established.

This area has a dynamic coastline, most of which has been progressively retreating over past centuries. There are many stretches of the coastline which will be defendable in the future, however there may be a few areas where for good reasons (such as considerable cost in relation to benefits, or that the actual defence structure is not technically feasible) that this is not possible. That is why DEFRA is looking at ways to help communities to adapt to increasing risks of flooding and erosion. For example, we recently launched a consultation on ways to increase the uptake of property-level resilience and resistance measures. This is a key way for individual property owners to receive better protection against flooding. We welcome the participation of the North Norfolk District Council in work looking at ways to adapt to erosion risk, and will continue to engage closely with them.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Immigration (John and Stella Park)

The Petition of residents of Teesside and others,

Declares the Petitioners' serious concerns about the possible deportation of John and Stella Park (Home Office Reference Number K2218457) to the Republic of Korea with their mother.

The Petitioners' further declare that John and Stella (aged 14 and 16 years) are two brilliantly talented young musicians. They are in the process of completing their education at Yarm School.

The Petitioners therefore request that the House of Commons urges the Secretary of State for the Home Department to use her powers to prevent John and Stella's removal from the UK taking place, at least until they have been able to finish their school education.

[P000229]

Observations from the Secretary of State for the Home Department, received 24 September 2008:

To maintain effective immigration control, the United Kingdom Border Agency must remove from the country foreign nationals whose leave to remain here has expired. Should they wish to stay in the United Kingdom to study, such persons ought to apply for entry clearance from abroad to enter the country properly under the Immigration Rules. To grant leave to remain to such people before they have applied for entry clearance provides them with an advantage over those who comply with the law.

Foreign nationals who have been refused leave to remain on the basis of their studies may appeal to an immigration judge. When considering an appeal, a judge has regard to the appellant's rights, and that of their dependents, to private life (including education) in the United Kingdom enshrined in Article 8 of the Human Rights Act 1998. In doing so, a judge will determine whether the interference, caused by the appellant's removal, with the appellant's private life is proportionate to the aim of achieving immigration control.

The child of a student would be expected to leave with the parent on completion of the parent's studies. Discretion can be given for a short period only, and leave granted outside the rules to enable a child to sit exams or complete the school year rather than be required to leave shortly before an important examination.

The United Kingdom Border Agency, and immigration judges, when deciding whether or not a person's rights under Article 8 will be breached by their removal, will have regard to the relevant circumstances to which he or she will be returned. Furthermore, their opportunity to apply for entry clearance to enter this country to resume their private life here is also considered.

To protect the privacy of the individuals, the Government is unable to comment on the details of the case.

Perry Family (Citizenship)

The Humble Petition of Marcus, Cain-Dean and Joshua Perry and others undersigned hereon,

Sheweth

That they are against any law that discriminates against long standing and successful marriages of over 20 years, where a British citizen is forced to be apart from their chosen spouse.

Wherefore your Petitioners pray that your Honourable House urges the Government to reflect over the case of the Perry family and allow Karen Perry to enjoy legal status within the United Kingdom and enjoy family rights as should her sons and husband.

And your Petitioners, as in duty bound, will ever pray, &c.—[Presented by Frank Cook, Official Report, 31 March 2008; Vol. 474, c. 599 .] [P000161]

Observations from the Secretary of State for the Home Department, received 8 September 2008:

The Government does not discriminate against long standing successful marriages. They are subject to the same immigration requirements as all applications for marriage.

As has been made clear to the petitioner, the onus is on individuals to establish what the requirements of entry are before they travel to the United Kingdom.

For those seeking to settle in the UK as spouses, it is important that we have provisions to enable us to differentiate between a genuine marriage and a failed or sham relationship.

This Government has introduced a number of legislative and policy changes to tackle abuse of the Rules relating to marriage. The "no switching" provision is one such measure, introduced in April 2003 for anyone who had leave to enter for six months or less in category other than fiancé(e).

To protect the privacy of the individual, the Government is unable to comment on the individual case.

JUSTICE

Sentencing (Dangerous Driving)

The Petition of those concerned about the length of sentences given to people convicted of dangerous driving.

Declares that Amanda Coulton was killed by Daniel Storey. He was charged with causing death by dangerous driving with excess alcohol and under the influence of cocaine, driving with no licence and no insurance. The car he was driving did not belong to him. Mr Storey was sentenced to 8 years in prison after pleading guilty. The petitioners believe that he should have recieved the maximum sentence of 14 years for these crimes.

The Petitioners therefore request that the House of Commons urges the Home Secretary to reveiw the sentence given in the case of Daniel Storey, and to review sentencing policy in respect of dangerous driving.

And the Petitioners remain, etc.—[Presented by Chris Ruane, Official Report, 21 July 2008; Vol. 479, c. 624 .] [P000254]

Observations from the Secretary of State for Justice, received 6 October 2008:

The Government strongly supports the need for stiff penalties for dangerous drivers and we have the following observations to make.

Review of sentence

The Attorney-General, with the leave of the Court of Appeal, has powers under sections 35 and 36 of the Criminal Justice Act 1988, to refer to the Court sentences which appear to the Attorney-General to be unduly lenient. This must be done within 28 days of the sentence being imposed. The time limit is mandatory and cannot be extended. These powers are limited to sentences for indictable only offences and a limited number of triable 'either way offences' that have been specified by statutory order. Causing death by dangerous driving is indictable only and falls within the scheme. The Attorney-General did not make a reference in this case and the time limit expired on 7 July 2008.

Current sentencing policy for dangerous driving

The Government increased the penalty for causing death by dangerous driving from 10 to 14 years in the Criminal Justice Act 2003 and we have no plans for a further review at this stage.

In July 2008, the Sentencing Guidelines Council issued guidelines on causing death by driving. The guideline followed the usual process of full public consultation. The guideline makes it clear that an offence will be considered more serious where there is evidence of driving impairment attributable to the consumption of alcohol or drugs, where the presence of alcohol or drugs does not form part of the offence.

There was an extensive review and consultation exercise of road traffic offences involving bad driving in 2005 following which two new offences were included in the Road Safety At 2006: causing death by careless driving which has a maximum penalty of five years' imprisonment; and causing death by driving when unlicensed, disqualified or uninsured which has a maximum penalty of two years' imprisonment. Prior to the introduction of these new offences the maximum sentence for careless, uninsured or unlicensed drivers who caused death on the roads was a fine. These offences complement the existing offences of causing death by dangerous driving and causing death by careless driving when under the influence of alcohol or drugs (maximum penalty of 14 years' imprisonment) and provide an effective framework for bad drivers.

Driving Test Centre (Spalding)

The Petition of the people of South Holland and the Deepings and others,

Declares that due to the closure of Spalding Driving test Centre the cost of learning to drive will increase for the residents of South Holland, as they will be forced to travel to Peterborough. This will further increase the CO2 emissions and the carbon footprint as a result of the extra miles travelled.

The Petitioners therefore request that the House of Commons urges the Secretary of State for Transport to reverse the closure of Spalding Driving Test Centre.

[P000259]

Observations from the Secretary of State for Transport, received 9 September 2008:

The Driving Standards Agency (DSA) has a statutory responsibility for setting standards for theory and practical driving tests and assessing the standard of driving at the practical driving test.

DSA is a self-financing organisation, reliant upon test fee income for the provision of its services. This means the Agency needs to ensure it can deliver a cost-effective service to avoid unnecessary costs, which would have to be recovered from its customers via the driving test fee.

Consequently, when the opportunity arises the location, size and number of driving test centres (DTC) are closely scrutinised, taking into account:

the continued operational suitability of the location;
the facilities it offers;
the customer base;
the proximity of these and any other suitable alternative centres; and the creation of the national network of Multi-Purpose Test Centres (MPTCs) linked to the introduction of new EU requirements for the motorcycling test in Autumn 2008.

The acquisition of the Peterborough MPTC presented the Agency with the opportunity to review its service provision in the Spalding area. DSA has a service standard that most practical test customers should not have to travel more than our travel distance criteria of 7, 20 or 30 miles depending on the population density of the area. The criterion appropriate to the Spalding area is 30 miles. Peterborough MPTC is about 20 miles from Spalding.

In addition to Peterborough, alternative local test centres are located at:

Boston DTC (approx 14 miles from Spalding);
Wisbech DTC (approx 19 miles);
Kings Lynn MPTC (approx 27 miles); and Grantham DTC (approx 29 miles).

The closure of the Spalding DTC will maximise the utilisation of these facilities and will ensure there is no wasteful over-provision of facilities in the area. These centres will be suitably resourced so that waiting time targets for car and motorcycle tests will not be compromised.

It should not be necessary for learner drivers to travel from Spalding to test centre locations for every driving lesson unless it is for pre-test familiarisation. This should minimise any additional costs, the environmental impact of those journeys and reduce the time spent in traffic. Experience should be gained on a variety of roads as part of the lesson plan whilst candidates are accompanied by an experienced instructor, rather than as an unaccompanied novice driver.

In a further move to cut carbon emissions from driving, the practical driving test will feature advice on Eco-Safe Driving from September 2008. Eco-safe driving is a recognised and proven style of driving that contributes to road safety whilst reducing fuel consumption and emissions.

Electric and Hybrid Cars

The Petition of Andreas Sowa and Sam Lumley of Year 9 Castle View School, Canvey Island, residents of Castle Point and others,

Declares that the use of gas guzzling petrol and diesel vehicles is helping to damage our environment, and that society should switch to electric and hybrid cars since these are less polluting, cause fewer accidents, with less serious consequences of those accidents because of the generally lower speeds of these cars, might encourage people to walk more, therefore reducing the amount of obesity and are more sustainable since oil is a depleting asset.

The Petitioners therefore request that the House of Commons urges the Government to adopt policies to promote the development, production and use of electric and hybrid cars in order to help to protect our environment and for connected matters, particularly given the importance of this issue to the wider community.

[P000236]

Observations from the Secretary of State for Transport, received 9 September 2008:

The Government recognises the potential environmental benefits of moving to greater electrification of vehicles for both public and private transportation, particularly as our electricity generating system move to increasingly lower carbon power sources.

Currently, there are only very limited options available for those wishing to drive an electric vehicle. No major manufacturer offers electric vehicle options in the UK. For private motorists; there are a limited number of small city cars available on the market—not all of which meet modern crash safety standards. Wider market penetration of electric vehicles has been hindered by the high costs of batteries, the limited range and performance achieved by the vehicles and the need for a more widespread re-charging infrastructure.

Advances in battery technology have the potential to improve the performance of electric vehicles and much research is taking place in the UK and globally. Higher oil prices, if sustained over long periods, would also improve the relative economics of electric vehicles over conventional options—and thus also provide a commercial environment in which a more widespread re-charging infrastructure for electric vehicles could be developed.

The Government has a number of measures to help increase use of electric vehicles. These include advantageous treatment within the UK taxation system - they are exempt from annual vehicle excise duty and use of electricity is taxed at a significantly lower rate than petrol or diesel. In addition the Government is providing grants to support the rollout of recharging infrastructure.

In the light of recent technology advances and high oil prices, we have commissioned further work to examining the potential for electric vehicles to contribute to our long term carbon reduction and renewable energy targets as well as potential interactions with the UK power system.

This work will inform our wider policy development in this area, alongside assessment of the scope for other technological options—including more fuel efficient conventional engines and hydrogen powered fuel cells—to help us move to a more sustainable transport system over the coming decades.

Planning and Development (Heathrow)

The Petition of the Supporters of the Campaign to Save Cherry Lane Cemetery,

Declares that the proposal by the British Airports Authority to construct an access road to the proposed Third Runway and Sixth Terminal at Heathrow Airport through Cherry Lane Cemetery, which is the only functioning cemetery in this part of the London Borough of Hillingdon, is an act of outrageous, sacrilegious destruction, which is causing considerable distress to the families of loved ones buried at the cemetery and concern to the local community.

The Petitioners therefore request that the House of Commons calls upon the Government to reject this proposal and safeguard this site.

Observations from the Secretary of State for Transport, received 9 September 2008:

The Government acknowledges the concerns over the protection of Cherry Lane Cemetery in Hillingdon, but believes they are unfounded. Plans published as part of our Adding Capacity at Heathrow Airport consultation and illustrating access roads to an expanded airport were clearly marked as 'indicative'. They do not purport to show the proposed third runway precinct or road layout in any detail, because at the moment any such plans are at an early stage. If policy approval is given by the Government for development at Heathrow and BAA proceed to submit a planning application, detailed final plans will need to be drawn up and be subject to further consultation in the context of a planning application. This would need to include detailed plans for road access, developed by BAA through a proper process of feasibility study and option selection.

I understand that BAA are very much aware of public concerns about Cherry Lane Cemetery and have made clear their commitment not to disturb graves or inhibit access to the cemetery.

Road Safety (Norfolk)

The Petition of residents of South West Norfolk,

Declares that the safety of children and other pedestrians outside schools is vital; that the numbers of road fatalities per year is far too high, that the roads outside schools are particularly sensitive areas; that reducing the speed limit on roads past schools would be an effective way of addressing this.

The Petitioners therefore request that the House of Commons urges the Government to consider reducing the national speed limit from 30 miles per hour to 20 miles per hour outside schools

Observations from the Secretary of State for Transport, received 9 September 2008:

The Government supports and encourages the introduction of 20mph speed limits and zones on the roads around schools, but it may not always be practical to do so, for instance on roads with a strategic function.

Local traffic authorities are responsible for setting local speed limits and therefore have the power to introduce 20mph speed limits on any of their roads, if they believe it appropriate to do so. The Department's role is to provide local authorities with guidance to ensure those speed limits are appropriately and consistently set.

The Department fully supports local authorities that wish to introduce 20mph speed limits and 20mph zones on their roads, particularly in residential areas where vulnerable road users, such as children, are likely to be present. This is reflected in our guidance to local authorities on setting local speed limits issued in August 2006.

It must also be recognised that simply reducing a speed limit does not automatically achieve a similar reduction in vehicle speeds unless proven traffic calming measures are also introduced. This is backed by research which shows that simply reducing the speed limit from 30mph to 20mph without additional traffic calming only reduces vehicle speeds by around 1mph.

Typically, a 20mph zone will cover a number of roads, often incorporating school premises and must contain proven traffic calming measures within its parameters to physically force drivers to reduce their speeds. Research has shown that accident frequency fell by around 60% and the number of accidents involving children reduced by 67% where 20mph zones were introduced.

For these reasons the Department firmly believes that a local authority's knowledge of the roads within their area means that they are better placed to decide which speed limits are appropriate for their roads as they will invariably understand local needs and conditions. I believe that this process will not only improve road safety but will also lead to increased respect for and compliance with speed limits.

We are collecting data on 20mph zones and will circulate to all Local Authorities in due course.

Traffic Noise (M3)

The Petition of the residents of Basing and others,

Declares that traffic on M3 has increased dramatically between junctions 5 and 7 over the past 10 years; that this has led to significant increases in noise levels for many local residents, excessive peak time motorway tail backs and consequently unacceptable levels of rat running in our villages and suburban areas.

The Petitioners therefore request that the House of Commons urges the Government to implement their plan to install noise reducing road surfaces on all 6 lanes of the motorway and to put in place improvements to junction 6 to ease traffic flow at peak times.

And the Petitioners remain, etc.—[Presented by Mrs. Maria Miller, Official Report, 22 July 2008; Vol. 479, c. 758 .] [P000257]

Roads are resurfaced primarily to address maintenance need, not to reduce noise levels, although noise reduction is an additional benefit of maintenance work. The carriageway between junctions 6 and 7 is in serviceable condition and is not programmed for resurfacing in the near future. Approximately 15% of the carriageway of the M3 between junctions 5 and 6 has already been resurfaced with quieter surfacing. The plan, which is subject to the availability of funds in 2009/10, includes for at least a further 10% between junctions 5 and 6 to be resurfaced with quieter surfacing by April 2010.

The Highways Agency is working closely with the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (DEFRA) on the production of noise maps and action plans in line with the Environmental Noise (England) Regulations 2006. The maps for England's roads were published on 16 May 2008 and the Agency is currently working with DEFRA and local authorities to develop a traffic noise action plan. Using these plans, the Agency will review the priorities and measures to provide noise mitigation solutions within the funds available.

Despite the traffic signals at junction 6 being managed to maximise traffic flows there can be tailbacks on the off slips of the M3 at Junction 6 during the morning peak period. A scheme is currently being developed to address the hazard of queuing on the main carriageway which will involve the off-slips at junction 6 being extended through the use of the hard shoulder. There is also a study programmed for 2009/10 to model the wider road network around junction 6 to assess the impact of the Growth Point status of Basingstoke to identify further options for improvement.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Post Office Closures (Cheshire)

The Petition of Mrs Shelagh Beswick, Manager, Wincham Post Office, Mr Alastair Carmichael, Sub Post Master, Barnton Post Office, and others of like disposition, Declares that they and others care deeply about their local Post Office, where they wish to be able to continue to use their Post Office Card Account, as they are unable to easily visit the bank in their nearest town.

The Petitioners therefore request that the House of Commons urges the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform to ensure that POCA2 remains a Post Office product.

And the Petitioners remain, etc.—[Presented by Mr. George Osborne, Official Report, 17 July 2008; Vol. 479, c. 15P .] [P000248]

Observations from the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, received 6 August 2008:

The current Post Office card account contract ends in March 2010, as always planned, and the Government has decided that there will be a new service after 2010. We received clear legal advice that we were required to tender competitively for this product, in order to ensure that best value for money for the taxpayer is achieved.

That process is now well under way and an announcement on the successful bidder will be made in accordance with appropriate procurement rules once a decision has been reached.

The successor to the Post Office card account will be accessible at personal teller outlets throughout the UK, with widespread coverage to ensure that it will be available in rural areas as well as urban communities.

The Government still believes that being paid into a bank or building society account is the best option for the vast majority of our customers, and around three in four of our customers are paid this way. It gives them more choice about where and when they get their money, enables them to make savings on some bills by paying by direct debit and get interest on balances on their accounts.

However, the Government remains committed to allowing people to access their pension and benefit in cash at the post office if they choose to do so, and there are around 25 accounts which make that possible thereby generating income for Post Office Ltd and sub-postmasters.

Post Offices play an important social and economic role in the communities they serve and we are determined to maintain a national Post Office network allowing people to have reasonable access across the whole country. This is why we invested £2 billion between 1999 and 2006 to support the network and are providing a further £1.7 billion up to 2011 to maintain a national network and put it on a stable footing. Funding includes a continued annual subsidy of up to £150 million until at least 2011 with an expectation of a continued need for subsidy beyond this.

OBSERVATIONS

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Parking (Halifax)

The Petition of supporters of increased parking facilities for shoppers in Halifax town centre,

Declares that more parking facilities are needed for shoppers in Halifax town centre

The Petitioners therefore request that the House of Commons urges the Government to call on Calderdale Council to ensure that provision is made for extra parking in Halifax town centre for shoppers and to guarantee that, should the car park on Broad street be developed on, a parking and shuttle bus service be provided for the Eureka site.

And the Petitioners remain, etc.—[Presented by Mrs. Linda Riordan, Official Report, 21 July 2008; Vol. 479, c. 621.] [P000247]

Observations from the Secretary of State for Communities and LocalGovernment:

The Secretary of State acknowledges the concerns of the petitioners in relation to parking facilities in Halifax.

It is understood that a reserved matters planning application for a mixed use development including retail, residential, leisure and a multi storey car park (478 spaces with 46 being allocated as residential) at Broad Street, Halifax was approved in July 2008.

Planning Policy Guidance Note 13 'Transport' sets out the Government's planning policy for promoting more sustainable transport choices, including parking standards. Planning Policy statements and guidance are expected to be fully reflected in the policies contained in both regional strategies and local development plans and documents and are important material considerations when planning applications are being determined. Local planning authorities are required to have regard to Government guidance in determining applications and the Secretary of State would expect her guidance to carry considerable weight as important statements of Government policy. However, Parliament has made local planning authorities responsible for what is in their view proper planning for their area and they are entitled, in appropriate circumstances, to take the view that other material considerations are of greater weight in particular cases. It is our policy to allow authorities to exercise this responsibility with the minimum of intervention from central Government, and to intervene only when issues of more than local significance are raised.

These are not matters in which the Secretary of State would become involved. However, there is still some potential that the Broad Street planning application could be subject to an appeal by the applicant to the Secretary of State, for instance against the imposition of a particular condition. It would not therefore be appropriate for the Secretary of State to offer any comments or observations on the propositions raised by this petition.

Planning (Hampshire)

The Humble Petition of Botley and Hedge End residents,

Sheweth that they object to the proposed Strategic Development Area to the N/NE of Hedge End and the inadequacy of the consultation and selection process.

They represent the views of 312 residents who signed a similar petition during a public meeting on 12 June 2008 at Botley Church, and reflect the widespread views of local residents.

Wherefore your Petitioners pray that your Honourable House shall urge the Department of Communities and Local Government to withdraw the proposed Strategic Development Area in order to embark on proper consultation and a full consideration of the alternatives.

And your Petitioners, as in duty bound, will ever pray, &c.—[Presented by Chris Huhne, Official Report, 1 July 2008; Vol. 478, c. 836.] [P000221]

Observations from the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government:

The Secretary of State acknowledges the concerns of the petitioners regarding the inclusion of a Strategic Development Area north of Hedge End.

The proposals were included in Proposed Changes to draft Regional Spatial Strategy for the South East (The South East Plan) which was published for consultation on 17 July 2008. The consultation period runs until 24 October 2008.

I would urge all interested parties to raise their objections through the formal process to enable representations to be considered.

Details of how to respond to the consultation can be found on the Government Office for the South East website: www.gos.gov.uk/gose/planning/regionalPlanning

Planning and Development (Essex)

The Petition of Brian Keeler, Mr and Mrs Patel, the residents of Castle Point and others,

Declares that they object to the proposed demolition of the two shops at 1 to 5 High Street Benfleet, to make way for a commercial development with seven 2 bed flats in an unsympathetic and unattractive 2 and 3 storey development above shops, with only seven parking spaces, putting unacceptable pressure on alternative local public parking facilities which are increasingly inadequate, that this development would further spoil the Conservation Area and create unacceptable stress on the existing infrastructure, including roads, schools, rail, doctors, dentists, etc. Further declares that they urge Councillors to reject this development for these and for many other valid planning reasons, and to ensure that this application is decided by Councillors rather than officers, given the importance to the wider community, of protecting their unique Conservation Area.

The Petitioners therefore request that the House of Commons urges the Government to press Castle Point Borough Council, the three Boyce Ward Councillors and all mainland Councillors in particular, to reject this planning application and to substantially protect the unique St Mary's Conservation Area.

[P000218]

Observations from the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government:

Parliament has entrusted local authorities with responsibility for development control in their areas. It is for them to decide, with particular regard to the provisions of the County Structure and Local Plans, any relevant views expressed by neighbouring occupiers, local residents and other third parties (although they are not bound to accept those views) and any other relevant material considerations which fairly and reasonably relate to the application concerned, whether or not a proposal should be given planning permission. The Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government intervenes in this responsibility only in the most exceptional circumstances and then only when issues of national or regional importance are involved. To do so more often would undermine the responsibility given to local planning authorities.

The Petition of Brian Keeler, Mr and Mrs Patel, the residents of Castle Point and others,

Declares that they object to the proposed development of the area between No's 3 to 7 The Close, Benfleet, to construct a building providing two 2 bed flats in a 2 storey development, which being on a pedestrian pathway only, has no parking spaces, no refuse collection facilities, no access for the development, in either removing spoil or, delivering materials for the building, as these would have to be craned into the site, either from the High Street, over existing properties, or by once again utilising the local School Lane Car Park for builders vehicles and mobile crane, once again putting unacceptable pressure on alternative local public parking facilities which are increasingly inadequate, that this development would further spoil the Conservation Area and create unacceptable stress on the existing infrastructure, including roads, schools, rail, doctors, dentists etc.

Further declares that they urge Councillors to reject this development for these and for many other valid planning reasons, and to ensure that this application is decided by Councillors rather than unelected unaccountable officers, given the importance to the wider community of protecting their unique Conservation Area.

The Petitioners therefore request that the House of Commons urges the Government to press Castle Point Borough Council, the three Boyce ward Councillors and all mainland Councillors in particular, to reject this planning application and to substantially protect the unique St Mary's Conservation Area.

[P000237]

Observations from the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government:

The application to Castle Point Borough Council was in respect of the construction of a 2-storey development providing two 2-bed flats on land between 3 to 7 The Close, Benfleet. The application was withdrawn on 4 August 2008.

HEALTH

Hospital Closures (Cornwall)

The Petition of the People of West Cornwall and the Isles of Scilly

Declares that our support for the cross-party (and non-party political) campaign to:

Oppose any plans to reduce or close hospital services at St Michael's or Penzance; Express our dismay that NHS money is being used to build up and support private hospitals while the Trust is contemplating the closure of the excellent St Michael's Hospital; Object to the waste of money on administrative gimmicks rather than frontline public services; Demand an Independent Review of hospital services and for fair funding; Support an increase in emergency as well as acute and diagnostic services in the West of Cornwall.

The Petitioners therefore request that the House of Commons urges the Secretary of State for Health to ensure the maintenance of hospital services at St Michael's or Penzance, two of west Cornwall's most crucial public services.

[P000250]

Observations from the Secretary of State for Health:

It is for the local National Health Service to decide how best to allocate funding and to commission health services for their local communities. Therefore, my Department will bring this to the attention of Cornwall & The Isles of Scilly Primary Care Trust (PCT).

South West Strategic Health Authority has advised that there are currently no plans to close St Michael's Hospital or West Cornwall Hospital. Cornwall and the Isles of Scilly PCT confirmed its commitment to a future for both hospitals in its "A Healthy Future" publication.

Queen Elizabeth Resource Centre (Dartford)

The Petition of the Bridge Court Action Group at the Queen Elizabeth Foundation Resource Centre in Dartford

Declares that the Queen Elizabeth Resource Centre in Dartford gives disabled people a chance to develop their skills for IT, Health and Fitness, Sports, Sign Language plus other skills, to aid disabled people get back to independent living.

The Petitioners therefore request that the House of Commons urge the Secretary of State for Health to support the Bridge Court Action Group in its efforts to keep the resource centre open.

And the Petitioners remain, etc.—[Presented by Dr. Howard Stoate, Official Report, 22 July 2008; Vol. 479, c. 24P.] [P000260]

Observations from the Secretary of State for Health:

The issue raised in the petition is a matter for Kent County Council who, I understand, owns the building which the Resource Centre back from them. I am advised by the South East Coast Strategic Health Authority that West Kent PCT does not commission any services from the Queen Elizabeth Resource Centre.

OLYMPICS

Public Expenditure

4. James Duddridge: To ask the Minister for the Olympics what her most recent estimate is of the public expenditure on the London 2012 Olympics. [224393]

Tessa Jowell: The estimate of public expenditure on the London 2012 Games remains within the £9.325 billion package that I announced in March 2007.

I provided further details of the budget in my statement of December 2007; and my progress updates of January and July 2008.

Environment

5. Linda Gilroy: To ask the Minister for the Olympics what discussions she has had on the environmental effects of the London 2012 Olympics. [224394]

Tessa Jowell: The Olympic Board has set out its ambition to make the London 2012 Games the most sustainable in modern times.

Our Sustainability Plan, 'Towards a One Planet 2012' details how we intend to achieve this—for example, by cutting carbon emissions in the Olympic Park by 50 per cent. by 2013, by ensuring that 20 per cent. of energy on-site comes from local, renewable energy, and by creating a park that will encourage people to live more healthily and sustainably.

The Board discusses and monitors progress against these commitments and the many others which are contained in the plan.

The first annual update of the plan is due to be published later this year. Progress includes: the ODA exceeding its target to reclaim 90 per cent. of demolition waste for reuse or recycling, new wildlife refuges being created from the timber of demolished buildings, and construction of the new facilities in Weymouth minimising disruption to local wildlife.

Olympic Complex

6. David Taylor: To ask the Minister for the Olympics what recent progress has been made in the design and construction of the 2012 Olympic complex in east London. [224395]

Tessa Jowell: Excellent progress continues to be made on both the design and construction of the Olympic Park in East London.

In particular, construction work on the two principle sporting venues—the Olympic Stadium and Aquatics Centre—is well advanced for this stage of the programme, with both remaining ahead of schedule.

Beijing Olympics: Lessons

7. Mr. Bone: To ask the Minister for the Olympics what lessons learned from the Beijing Olympics will be incorporated into preparations for the London Olympics in 2012. [224396]

8. Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Minister for the Olympics what the main lessons learned from the Beijing Olympics are for the London 2012 Olympics. [224397]

Tessa Jowell: Beijing 2008 was a truly fantastic Games which gave the key stakeholders involved in the preparation of London 2012 Olympic Games and Paralympic Games the chance to learn valuable lessons to help us stage the best Games possible in London.

Some of the key lessons learned from Beijing include: placing athletes at the heart of the Games; providing a complete spectator experience; the vital role that volunteers play at the Games; an effective ticketing strategy to ensure that the majority of venues are full; and commencing detailed planning now with all key stakeholders for the Paralympic Games.

All stakeholder organisations are pulling together their lessons learned, and the process has been discussed by the Olympic Board. We will be sharing experiences between partners, and the culmination of this process will be a briefing session in London at the end of November by the Beijing Organising Committee (BOCOG) for the UK, and other host and bidding cities, when we will have a greater understanding of the issues involved.

Departmental Alcoholic Drinks

David Simpson: To ask the Minister for the Olympics what measures are in place in her Office to monitor expenditure on alcohol for hospitality purposes. [219592]

Tessa Jowell: The Minister for the Olympics' Office is part of the Cabinet Office.

I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to him by the Parliamentary Secretary for the Cabinet Office, my hon. Friend the Member for Corby (Phil Hope) on 1 September 2008, Official Report, column 1433W.

Departmental Paper

David Simpson: To ask the Minister for the Olympics what percentage of paper used (a) for photocopying and (b) in printed publications by her Office was from recycled sources in each of the last two years. [220742]

Tessa Jowell: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to him by the Parliamentary Secretary for the Cabinet Office, my hon. Friend the Member for Corby (Phil Hope) on 22 July 2008, Official Report, column 1257W.

Departmental Procurement

David Simpson: To ask the Minister for the Olympics what her Office's policy is on requesting discounts from its suppliers in return for swift payment of invoices. [220427]

Tessa Jowell: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to him by the Parliamentary Secretary for the Cabinet Office, my hon. Friend the Member for Corby (Phil Hope) on 22 July 2008, Official Report, column 1258W.

Departmental Written Questions

David Simpson: To ask the Minister for the Olympics how long on average her Office took to answer (a) ordinary written and (b) named day questions since its inception. [215474]

Tessa Jowell: Information on the average number of days taken to answer parliamentary questions is not readily available in the format requested and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Olympic Games 2012

Sarah Teather: To ask the Minister for the Olympics what discussions she has had with London boroughs on the route of the 2012 Olympic torch relay. [210280]

Tessa Jowell: The London Organising Committee of the Olympic and Paralympic Games (LOCOG) are responsible for planning a torch relay but have recently been focused on the Beijing Games and the last chance to witness a Summer Games before it is London's turn. LOCOG will begin planning for the 2012 Torch Relay in 2010, and as part of this planning will work with a range of partners including central and local government across London and the UK.

Olympic Games 2012: Contracts

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Minister for the Olympics how much CLM has been paid since its appointment as an Olympic contractor; and how much it is expected to be paid over the duration of the contract. [219260]

Tessa Jowell: The Olympic Delivery Authority (ODA) has reported in its accounts for 2007-08 a payment to CLM of £106 million, including VAT, for the period up to 31 March 2008. The final total payment to CLM will depend on the organisation's performance in achieving incentive targets. CLM resources are agreed on a period by period basis and the ODA is currently negotiating the resources for the period 28 July to 31 December 2009. An update on the payments made to CLM will be given each year in the ODA's Annual Report and Accounts.

Olympic Games 2012: Disabled

Mr. Harper: To ask the Minister for the Olympics what standard of accessible facilities the London Olympic village will have for (a) spectators and (b) participants with profound and multiple learning disabilities; and whether those facilities will include (i) hoists, (ii) benches and (iii) sufficient space for a wheelchair and two carers. [219324]

Tessa Jowell: The London 2012 Games will be the first to fully integrate the Olympic Games and Paralympic Games making no distinction between them in the approach to planning, delivery and standard of service to both participants and spectators.

As part of inclusive and accessible design, the Olympic Village will comply with all relevant legislation, including the Disability Discrimination Act 1995 and its supporting code of practice; and exceed the requirements of the UK's Building Regulations (Part M—Access and facilities for disabled people). Design will incorporate wheelchair space requirements and facilities and aids to ensure accommodation is flexible and appropriate to the comfort and varying requirements of Paralympic athletes.

The ODA's Access and Inclusion Forum has representation from a lead disability organisation within each of the five boroughs, as well as the borough Access Officers and key external stakeholders. It meets on a quarterly basis and advises on areas of inclusive design through the sharing of knowledge and experience.

In addition to the forum, ODA Access Panels provide specialist disability and inclusive design experts to review and advise on design—both at Games time and in legacy—and have final sign-off on ODA build commitments. In support of this, the ODA has appointed two Principal Access Officers—one specialising in the built environment and one specialising in transport accessibility—responsible for the development of inclusive design within the ODA's programme.

Olympic Games 2012: St. Albans

Anne Main: To ask the Minister for the Olympics what steps the Government plan to take to encourage children and young people in St. Albans to participate in events that are part of the London 2012 Olympics. [222029]

Tessa Jowell: The Government and the London Organising Committee of the Olympic Games and Paralympic Games (LOCOG) are working hard to ensure that the benefits of 2012 reach across the UK and have established a Nations and Regions Group (NRG) to oversee this work.

The East of England representative is Cllr Stephen Castle, who chairs the Nations and Regions East (NRE) Board. In Hertfordshire, the Ready for Winners Partnership Board (HRFWP), led by Hertfordshire county council has been set up to maximise the benefits from the London 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games. As part of their legacy ambitions, they have particularly committed to encouraging children and young people to participate in 2012 related events.

Schools in Hertfordshire have already started using material from LOCOG's UK-wide London 2012 education programme, 'Get Set', which launches on Thursday 18 September and have registered to be part of LOCOG's Paralympic Handover celebrations on Wednesday 17 September. Additionally, the "Sports in the Park" programme in St. Albans will form part of the region's plans for cultural events taking place over the Handover weekend in August. This will offer up to 2,000 children aged two to 12 the opportunity to be active and have fun over a period of six weeks this summer. Across the St. Albans district, children will design a handover flag that represents their community and what the Games means to them to take to the official 2012 flag raising ceremony on 24 August. Young people from St. Albans and the county will also have the opportunity to be amongst the 70,000 volunteers needed to help run the Games in London.

Local sports facilities for all age groups are also being improved across the county as part of the "Active Hertfordshire strategy", with new facilities being built in Watford and St Albans. HRFWP is also developing a talented young athlete scheme and has so far channelled £12,000 to support 23 young athletes up to 2012 identified by their governing bodies as having sporting talent and high potential. Each athlete will receive nutritional advice, physiotherapy assessments, individual and group training sessions, performance lifestyle advice and free membership to Hertfordshire Sports village and some other facilities in the county.

Mr. Paul Murphy: My Department has offset air miles in the last two financial years through Pure, The Pure Carbon Trust. In 2006-07 we offset 8,888 miles. This was made up of:

In 2007-08 we offset 6,173 miles made up of:

0 miles long-haul

We will be offsetting through the Government Carbon Offsetting Fund in the future.

Mr. Paul Murphy: My Department is located in both London and Cardiff; their floor area in square metres is:

London: 640.96

Cardiff: 531.47.

Neither location is newly occupied; my London office received minor refurbishment in August 2007.

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what permanent residential accommodation is provided for use by civil servants in his Department; how many residential dwellings are provided; where they are located; and for what grade of civil servant they are provided. [222159]

Mr. Paul Murphy: None.

Departmental Procurement

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will place in the Library the names and addresses of each organisation that supplied goods and services to his Department in 2007-08, based on the purchase order data held in the Department's financial database. [222157]

Mr. Paul Murphy: The Wales Office purchasing is done through the Ministry of Justice financial processes and cannot be desegregated from its figures.

Mr. Paul Murphy: The Welsh Assembly Government was given an opportunity in 2004 to join FiReControl, the project to rationalise the 46 control rooms in England to nine regional control centres. The proposal was to reduce Wales' three control rooms to one regional control centre.

Welsh Assembly Government Ministers took a decision not to opt into the FiReControl project as a rationalisation of the eight Fire Authorities and their control rooms in Wales had already taken place in 1996.

Olympic Games 2012

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales whether any full-time equivalent members of his Department's staff are working on policy relating to the London 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games. [221877]

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how much his Department spent on taxis in the last financial year for which figures are available. [223042]

Mr. Paul Murphy: In the last financial year my Department has spent £3,424.16 on taxis.

PUBLIC ACCOUNTS COMMISSION

National Audit Office

James Duddridge: To ask the Chairman of the Public Accounts Commission whether National Audit Office staff who are entitled to business class or first class air travel are permitted to (a) travel in a cheaper class to the destination and (b) benefit in monetary terms or kind from the saving. [221922]

Mr. Alan Williams: The National Audit Office informs me that National Audit Office staff are not entitled to first class air travel, and the normal class of air travel is economy. Business class or premium economy air travel may be permitted in some circumstances, taking into account the duration and timing of travel. All staff must seek prior authorisation for their travel plans from a director or manager.

NAO staff are required to book all air tickets and rail tickets in excess of £20 through contracted travel providers. The companies invoice the National Audit Office for the tickets booked. So staff cannot claim for any fare or travel in a cheaper class than the booked ticket, nor benefit in monetary terms from any difference in cost.

Mr. Bone: To ask the Chairman of the Public Accounts Commission what the budget of the National Audit Office is for 2008-09; and what savings it expects to make within that budget. [222456]

Mr. Alan Williams: The NAO's budget for 2008-09, approved by the Public Accounts Commission on 4 March 2008, is a net amount of £107.7 million: £74.8 million for audit and assurance services, £24.2 million for the repair and refurbishment of the NAO's headquarters building, and the remaining £8.7 million for the provision of temporary office accommodation for London staff for the duration of the refurbishment work.

The NAO also has a capital budget in 2008-09 of £15.7 million: £1.5 million for its ongoing audit and assurance work, and the remaining £14.2 million for the refurbishment project.

Within its budget, the NAO is committed to efficiency savings of 3 per cent. across its corporate services, 2 per cent. in its value for money work and 1 per cent. on financial audit work.

ADMINISTRATION COMMITTEE

Department of Facilities: Fats

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Chairman of the Administration Committee how much hydrogenated fat the Department of Facilities and its predecessor bought for cooking use in the last year for which figures are available. [224489]

Nick Harvey: I have been asked to reply on behalf of the Chairman of the Administration Committee.

The House of Commons catering service does not purchase hydrogenated fat or hydrogenated vegetable oils for cooking use. Furthermore, as part of its commitment to promoting healthy eating in the workplace, the catering service is working towards removing hydrogenated fats wherever possible from its supply chain.

A review of the dry and ambient ingredients purchased by the catering and retail service is approximately 70 per cent. complete and to date has identified only nine products containing hydrogenated fats or oils. The review should be complete by the end of the year, after which a review of other processed foods purchased by the department will be carried out.

Work is in hand to identify suitable alternatives for those products found to contain hydrogenated fats or oils.

CHURCH COMMISSIONERS

Church of England: Land

Jon Trickett: To ask the hon. Member for Middlesbrough, representing the Church Commissioners what mechanisms are in place to ensure that disposal of glebeland (a) complies with legal requirements and (b) respects the terms of covenants. [223723]

Sir Stuart Bell: Under the provisions of the Endowments and Glebe Measure 1976, a Diocesan Board of Finance has to manage its glebe property for the benefit of the Diocesan Stipends Fund of the diocese. The legal requirements before a sale is proposed are set out in the Measure and in advice published by the Commissioners.

The Commissioners' consent to a sale is needed where the proposed transaction does not meet standard charitable criteria or where there are objections to the proposal. The policing of covenants after a sale is a matter for the Diocesan Board of Finance.

Jon Trickett: To ask the hon. Member for Middlesbrough, representing the Church Commissioners what procedures exist for members of the public to object to a sale of glebeland. [223724]

Sir Stuart Bell: Notice of the proposed sale of qualifying glebe needs to be served on the parish priest and the Parochial Church Council. If there are objections, these are considered by the Church Commissioners' Pastoral Committee. Objectors to and proponents of the proposed transaction may attend the Committee's meetings and make oral presentations of their cases. The Commissioners' decision on such cases is final.

Economic and Monetary Union

James Duddridge: To ask the hon. Member for Middlesbrough, representing the Church Commissioners whether the Church Commissioners have produced a euro changeover plan. [222344]

Sir Stuart Bell: The Church Commissioners have not produced a euro changeover plan and currently have no plans to do so.

SCOTLAND

Departmental Air Travel

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland whether those staff of his Department who are entitled to business class or first class air travel are permitted to (a) travel in a cheaper class to the destination and (b) benefit in monetary terms or kind from the saving. [222164]

Ann McKechin: All official travel is carried out in accordance with the requirements of the Civil Service Management Code.

Departmental Carbon Emissions

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland pursuant to the answer to the right hon. Member for Horsham of 14 July 2008, Official Report, column 27W, on carbon emissions: Government departments, how much air mileage incurred through departmental travel was used to calculate the departmental payment to the Government Carbon Offsetting Fund in each year that his Department has participated in the fund, broken down by (a) domestic, (b) short-haul and (c) long-haul flights. [222149]

Departmental Disciplinary Proceedings

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what the five most serious disciplinary breaches in his Department were in the last 12 months; and what steps were taken in response to each breach. [223049]

Ann McKechin: There have been no disciplinary breaches by staff in the Scotland Office in the last 12 months.

Departmental Official Residences

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what the location is of each office occupied by his Department which has been (a) newly occupied and (b) refurbished in the last 24 months; and what the floor area in square metres is of each. [222152]

Ann McKechin: The Scotland Office has not newly occupied any refurbished properties in the last 24 months.

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what permanent residential accommodation is provided for use by civil servants in his Department; how many residential dwellings are provided; where they are located; and for what grade of civil servant they are provided. [222163]

Ann McKechin: The Scotland Office does not provide permanent residential accommodation for its staff.

Departmental Procurement

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will place in the Library the names and addresses of each organisation that supplied goods and services to his Department in 2007-08, based on the purchase order data held in the Department's financial database. [222151]

Ann McKechin: A list of the suppliers to the Scotland Office in 2007-08 has been placed in the House Library.

Departmental Public Relations

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how much his Department spent on each of the external public relations and marketing companies included in the Central Office of Information's Public Relations Framework in each of the last 36 months. [222162]

Ann McKechin: The Scotland Office has incurred no expenditure on external public relations in the last 36 months.

EDF Energy

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what contracts his Department has with EDF; and how much his Department paid to EDF in each of the last 10 years, broken down by the purpose of the payment. [221848]

Ann McKechin: The Scotland Office was established on 1 July 1999; since that date, the Office has had no contracts with EDF.

EU Law

Mr. Francois: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many officials in his Department are wholly or mainly tasked with the negotiation, implementation or administration of EU legislation and consequent policies. [222273]

Ann McKechin: This Government are firmly committed to the importance of the EU in delivering on 21st century challenges. The EU is of central importance to the work of HM Government across all Departments. It is relevant to a wide range of policy areas, and to the work of many Government officials. No Scotland Office officials are either wholly or mainly tasked with the negotiation, implementation or administration of EU legislation and consequent policies.

Olympic Games 2012

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many full-time equivalent members of his Department's staff are working on policy relating to the London 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games. [221875]

Ann McKechin: There are no members of staff in the Scotland Office working on policy related to the London 2012 Olympics and Paralympics Games. However, in line with the office's key role of representing Scotland's interests in Westminster, and as the Games will benefit the whole of the UK, one member of staff has this issue within her portfolio and will advise colleagues, answer correspondence and brief as required.

Stress

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what arrangements his Department has in place to assist officials to overcome the effects of stress experienced in the workplace. [222185]

Ann McKechin: The Scotland Office is committed to the well-being of its staff. It has a number of procedures in place to reduce stress at work. A stress management framework, based on the Health and Safety Executive's management standards, is available to all staff and gives easy to use advice on the successful prevention, recognition and management of stress at work.

Taxis

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how much his Department spent on taxis in the last financial year for which figures are available. [223041]

Ann McKechin: In 2007-08, the Scotland Office spent £10,885 on taxis.

HOUSE OF COMMONS COMMISSION

Palace of Westminster: Furniture

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission if he will take steps to stop the placing of tables and chairs on the staircase between the lower waiting hall and the Committee corridor; and if he will make an assessment of any (a) damage to the pavement by the Barry Statue and (b) health and safety implications of any emergency evacuations required in the area. [222374]

Nick Harvey: It has been the practice for many years to use the landing adjacent to the lower waiting hall to store furniture from the Members' and Strangers' dining rooms when they are both in use at the same time for functions sponsored by Members. These can take place between 4-6 pm each weekday, on Thursday evenings, and at times when the House is not sitting. The furniture has to be kept close to the dining rooms because there are only 30 minutes available to reset them for the evening service to Members.

A study during the recess has concluded that the issue could be overcome either by accepting bookings for functions in only one of the dining rooms at any one time or by taking out of use temporarily one of the adjacent rooms used by Members. The possibilities and their implications will be reported to the Administration Committee this month.

The conservation architect has advised that there has been some minor damage to the stonework on the landing.

The fire safety manager has advised that storing furniture on the landing does present a risk to effective building evacuation; how great that is would depend on the number of people in the Palace at the time, particularly in the Committee Rooms. He advised that it would be good practice to discontinue using the landing for storage. Until the Administration Committee has had an opportunity to consider the matter, arrangements are being made to advise the fire safety manager when both rooms are being used for functions.

WOMEN AND EQUALITY

Departmental Consultants

John McDonnell: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality how many consultants were hired by the offices now comprising the Government's Equalities Office in 2006-07, broken down by (a) age, (b) gender, (c) sexual orientation, (d) race, (e) disability and (f) religion or belief. [219632]

Barbara Follett [holding answer 15 July 2008]: The Government Equalities Office was established on 12 October 2007. Since that date it has taken over responsibility for equality issues from a number of different teams and Departments, including: the Disability Rights Commission Sponsorship team, based in 2006-07 in the Department for Work and Pensions; the Commission for Racial Equality Sponsorship Team, based in the Home Office in the first part of 2006-07, then transferred to Communities and Local Government; the Women and Equality Unit, based in the Department of Trade and Industry until May 2006, then in Communities and Local Government; and lawyers from DTI and HO, who transferred to CLG in May 2006. Because of the wide disposal of records in a number of different Departments and locations, the cost of answering this question would be disproportionate.

Departmental Disciplinary Proceedings

Mr. Baron: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality what the five most serious disciplinary breaches in the Government Equalities Office were in the last 12 months; and what steps were taken in response to each breach. [223044]

Barbara Follett: The Government Equalities Office was established on 12 October 2007. There have been no serious disciplinary breaches since then.

Departmental Home Working

Bob Spink: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality pursuant to the answer of 26 June 2008, Official Report, column 438W, how many Government Equalities Office staff have worked from home since the establishment of the Office. [222471]

Barbara Follett: The Government Equalities Office was established on 12 October 2007 and all of its current 92 staff can work from home subject to line management approval, operational need and the availability of its 16 laptops. GEO acquired 16 laptops in early June 2008. In total 32 staff have security keys which allow them to use these laptops.

Departmental Procurement

David Simpson: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality what the Government Equalities Office's policy is on requesting discounts from its suppliers in return for swift payment of invoices. [220420]

Barbara Follett: Since the Government Equalities Office was established on 12 October 2007 it has been based in Communities and Local Government buildings and used accounting systems and policies provided by that Department. CLG's primary policy in procurement is to achieve value for money and it uses a range of measures to achieve this, including attaining discounts from suppliers in return for prompter payment of invoices.

Departmental Property

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality which organisations have received (a) free and (b) discounted room hire from the Government Equalities Office since its inception; and what the commercial value of the discount was in each case. [221595]

Barbara Follett: Since its establishment on 12 October 2007, the Government Equalities Office has rented accommodation in premises owned by the Department for Communities and Local Government and consequently does not enter into any of the arrangements mentioned in the question.

Departmental Public Relations

James Duddridge: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality how much the Government Equalities Office has spent on each of the external public relations and marketing companies included in the Central Office of Information's Public Relations Framework since its establishment. [222347]

Barbara Follett: The Government Equalities Office was established on 12 October 2007. The following table shows its spending on external public relations and marketing companies included in the Central Office of Information public relations framework since 12 October 2007.

Public relations and marketing companies		£
SHAHRP	Media relations support for launch of Black, Asian and Minority Ethnic (BAME) Women's Taskforce.	3,800
Trimedia	Media relations support for GEO Press Office in the run up to Equality Bill announcements.	20,000
Cohn and Wolfe	Campaign to raise awareness of the rights of parents and carers to request flexible working, and to provide employers with guidance on dealing with such requests.	61,085

Departmental Publications

Philip Davies: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality if she will place in the Library a copy of any materials the Government Equalities Office has distributed to schools since its inception. [222552]

Barbara Follett: The Government Equalities Office was established on 12 October 2007. Since then it has not distributed any materials to schools.

Departmental Sick Leave

David Simpson: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality how many and what percentage of staff in the Government Equalities Office have had more than two periods of sickness absence of less than five days since its inception. [218698]

Barbara Follett: According to the available data, six staff in the Government Equalities Office have had more than two periods of sickness of less than five days since its inception. Staffing levels have varied over this period, but this would represent 7.7 per cent. of GEO's current staff.

Disabled: Candidates

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality what steps the Government has taken to encourage more disabled people to (a) apply for and (b) present themselves as candidates for election for public office. [215843]

Barbara Follett: The Government aim to have fair representation of disabled people at every level of our democracy.

The Disability Discrimination Act (DDA) 1995, as amended and strengthened by this Government, protects disabled people from disability discrimination and ensures that reasonable adjustments will be made to enable them to become public office holders and members of locally-elected bodies.

The Government also recently announced plans to improve the diversity of public appointments, including new targets to increase the proportion of disabled people serving on the boards of public bodies.

EDF Energy

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality what contracts the Government's Equalities Office has with EDF; and how much the Office paid to EDF in each of the last 10 years, broken down by the purpose of the payment. [221852]

Barbara Follett: The Government Equalities Office was established on 12 October 2007. It has not entered into any contracts with EDF.

Equal Opportunities: Legislation

Mr. Harper: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality when she plans to publish an Equality Bill; and if she will make a statement. [223164]

Barbara Follett [holding answer 10 September 2008]: As my right hon. and learned Friend the Minister for Women and Equality announced in Parliament on 25 June 2008, the Government remain committed to introducing an Equality Bill during this Parliament.

The content of the Bill has been subject to collective consideration by Ministers in the normal way and the Government's response to the consultation, which was published on 21 July, made the intended content of the Bill clear.

Human Trafficking

Mr. Bone: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality what assessment she has made of the standards of treatment of victims of human trafficking for sexual exploitation after they have been rescued. [222457]

Barbara Follett: The Poppy Project, which provides refuge and comprehensive support for women trafficked for the purposes of sexual exploitation, was initially piloted and then formally evaluated in 2005. The grant for Eaves Housing for Women was extended following a successful procurement exercise to commission a service that offered a high standard and ensured value for money.

The Government's progress on tackling human trafficking, including victim care is subject to regular review by the Inter-departmental Ministerial Group. On 2 July we published the Update to the UK Action Plan that highlights progress against the actions in the original plan (published in March 2007) and identifies new measures.

Rape: Victim Support Schemes

Mrs. May: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality what proportion of the £1 million emergency fund for rape crisis centres, announced in March, has been distributed; which organisations have received such funding; how much each organisation has received; and what plans the Government has to maintain the funding for the year starting April 2009. [224210]

Barbara Follett: I will let the right hon. Member have such information as is available as soon as possible.

Substantive answer from Barbara Follett to Theresa May:

Eight rape crisis centres identified at imminent risk of closure have received payments totalling £175,364 (17.5 per cent.) from the £1 million emergency fund announced in March. Beneficiaries of the fund to date, and the payments they have received, are shown in the following table:

Rape crisis centre	Amount awarded (£)
Eva	42,500
Merseyside Rape and Sexual Abuse	23,244.07
Peterborough	11,867.99
West Cumbria	37,204
Wycombe	46,048
Cambridge	5,000
Chester	5,000
Watford	5,000
Total	175,864.06

Further awards will be made in October. This one-off fund was established as an emergency measure to enable rape crisis centres to address the sustainability issues they face. It is in addition to £1.4 million of support for victims of sexual crimes, the majority of which comes from the Ministry of Justice's Victims Fund. Spending plans for 2009-10 are being finalised.

Taxis

Philip Davies: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality how much the Government Equalities Office spent on taxis since its creation. [223039]

Barbara Follett: The Government Equalities Office was established on 12 of October 2007. Since then and up to the end of July 2008 it has spent £1,792.69 on taxis.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Sport: Children

9. Ms Keeble To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what proposals he has to increase the participation of children in sport in the run up to the London 2012 Olympics. [224380]

Mr. Sutcliffe: We will capitalise on the London 2012 Olympics to inspire young people to play sport throughout their lives.

Over the next three years, we will spend at least £780 million on developing sporting opportunities for young people through our PE and Sport Strategy for Young People. This will mean more coaches, competition, and young people playing sport in a wide range of community as well as school settings.

Grassroots Sport

10. Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what recent steps his Department has taken to support grassroots sport; and if he will make a statement. [224381]

Andy Burnham: In June this year Sport England published their new strategy for sport. The new strategy for 2008-11 focuses on three key areas of grassroots sport: growing sporting participation, sustaining sporting participation, and ensuring that talented people from all backgrounds have the chance to excel. I am confident that this new framework will enable us to deliver a world leading community sports system for the country.

15. Mr. Mackay: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much funding his Department has allocated to support grassroots sport in 2008-09. [224386]

Andy Burnham: My Department has allocated £133.163 million of Exchequer funding to Sport England in 2008-09. In addition, they will receive a projected £125 million of lottery money.

Sport England's new strategy, published in June, focuses on three key areas of grassroots sport: growing sporting participation, sustaining sporting participation and ensuring talented people from all backgrounds have the chance to excel. I am confident that this new strategy will deliver a world leading community sports system.

Digital Switchover: Scotland

11. Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if he will review the number of channels available to people served by relay transmitters in the south of Scotland after digital switchover takes place in November 2008. [224382]

Andy Burnham: After switchover all terrestrial viewers in Scotland will be able to receive around 20 channels via the public service multiplexes. An estimated 88 per cent. of homes in Scotland will also be able to receive a further range of commercial channels. However, coverage of these services is a commercial matter for the operators concerned.

12. Mr. Grogan: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what recent discussions he has had with Ofcom on ITV's compliance with its quota on network programming originating outside the M25. [224383]

Andy Burnham: Ofcom's chief executive officer briefed me on ITV's breach of its out-of London quota at a meeting in June. The matter is the subject of consideration by Ofcom with a view to regulatory action.

Football Clubs

13. David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what his policy is on the regulation of governance and ownership of football clubs. [224384]

Mr. Sutcliffe: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer I gave earlier today to my hon. Friend the Member for Brigg and Goole (Mr. Cawsey).

Digital Media Sector

14. Linda Gilroy: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what recent discussions he has had with Ministerial colleagues on developing skills in the digital media sector; and if he will make a statement. [224385]

Andy Burnham: The Minister with responsibility for Culture, my right hon. Friend the member for Barking (Margaret Hodge), and I have had a number of conversations with colleagues across Government regarding the development of skills in the creative industries including the digital media sector. In particular, we have met the Secretary of State for Universities, Innovation and Skills and the Minister with responsibility for Skills, my hon. friend the Member for Tottenham (Mr. Lammy), to look at how we can meet our aim for employers to create 5,000 new apprenticeship places in the creative industries by 2013.

My Department is also working with employers, sector skills councils, trade associations, the Learning and Skills Council and other Government Departments to establish high quality innovative new places of learning, such as the planned National Skills Academy for the creative sectors in Thurrock.

ABL Consulting

Mr. Carswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport whether his Department has a contract with ABL Consulting. [221905]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Department does not have a contract with ABL consulting.

Alcoholic Drinks: Licensing

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what options are available to licensing authorities regarding applications for Temporary Event Notices where the premises concerned has previously been found to have breached licensing conditions. [222997]

Mr. Sutcliffe: In cases where the police object to a temporary event notice, licensing authorities are responsible for holding a hearing to decide whether to issue a counter notice to prevent the event from going ahead.

Police may object to a temporary event notice if they believe the use of premises for an event risks undermining crime prevention objectives. While this decision is a matter for the police, they may take into account previous offences committed, including breaches of licensing conditions.

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (1) what assessment he has made of the level of enforcement of the provisions of the Licensing Act 2003 in respect of (a) the display of premises licences in licensed premises and (b) the display of the correct name of the designated premises supervisor in premises licences; [224061]

(2) how many (a) companies and (b) individuals have been prosecuted for breaches of the Licensing Act 2003 in respect of failure to display in licensed premises (i) premises licences and (ii) up to date details of the designated premises supervisor for those premises; and if he will make a statement. [224062]

Andy Burnham [holding answer 17 September 2008]: Information relating to prosecutions or other enforcement actions on these subjects is held centrally by the Ministry of Justice. The Licensing Act 2003 did not come fully into force until 24 November 2005. The only full year for which figures are currently available is 2006.

The number of (a) companies and (b) individuals who have been proceeded against at magistrates courts under section 57 of the Licensing Act 2003 in England and Wales for the years 2004 to 2006 can be viewed in the following table. Court proceedings data for 2007 will be available in the autumn of 2008.

Number of defendants who were proceeded against at magistrates courts for offences under the Licensing Act section 57[1] in England and Wales, 2006[2]

2006	Number proceeded against
Companies	0

[1] Includes the following statute(s) and corresponding offence description Licensing Act 2003 s.57. Failure to produce a premises licence or copy when required to do so.

[2] Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

These data relate to persons for whom these offences were the principal offence for which they were dealt with. When a defendant has been found guilty of two or more offences, the offence selected is the one for which the heaviest penalty is imposed. Where the same disposal is imposed for two or more offences, the offence selected is the offence for which the statutory maximum penalty is the most severe.

However, this type of breach may have been dealt with informally through writing or licence review. We are confident that the range of compliance and enforcement options available to the relevant authorities are adequate to allow the enforcement agencies to ensure compliance with the legislation.

Art Works: Theft

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if he will bring forward proposals for de-acquisitioning works of art and artefacts held in UK institutions found to be the fruit of spoliation; what the outcomes were of the consultations held on the restitution of spoliated objects with reference to the answers of (a) 29 November 2006, Official Report, column 102W and (b) 4 December 2006, Official Report, column 103W, on art theft; and if he will make a statement. [221668]

Margaret Hodge [holding answer 22 July 2008]: Having considered the views expressed in response to the 2006 consultation paper, the Government are committed to introducing legislation as soon as possible to allow national museums, that are currently prevented from doing so, to return works of art spoliated during the Nazi era. A summary of the responses received to the consultation and the Government's conclusions are available on my Department's website. The Government are actively seeking a legislative opportunity to bring forward these changes.

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (1) how many items (a) have been identified and (b) await determination as spoliated by the Nazis by the Spoliation Advisory Panel since it was established; how many confirmed spoliated items have (i) been returned to the original owners and (ii) have been the subject of compensation; in how many cases where compensation was recommended the original owner made representations for restitution; what the (A) names, (B) descriptions and (C) holding institutions are of each item (1) returned and (2) compensated for; and if he will make a statement; [221596]

(2) which UK institutions have returned artworks or artefacts found to be the fruit of spoliation during the Second World War to their rightful owners; what items have been so returned; and if he will make a statement. [221669]

Margaret Hodge [holding answer 22 July 2008]: The Spoliation Advisory Panel has advised on eight claims since it was established in 2000 and is currently considering a ninth claim. The information sought on the claims determined is set out in the table.

Institution and date	Item claimed	Outcome
Tate (2001)	"View of Hampton Court Palace" by Jan Griffier the Elder	Claim upheld. The claimant sought and received an 'ex-gratia' payment.
Burrell Collection, Glasgow (2004)	"Still Life", formerly attributed to Chardin	Claim upheld. The claimant sought either the return of the painting or an 'ex-gratia' payment. The Panel recommended the return of the painting. The Burrell Collection decided they could not return the painting and made an 'ex-gratia' payment to the claimant instead.
British Library (2005)	"The Beneventan Missal"	Claim upheld. The claimant sought the return of the "Missal" and the British Library are trying to arrange a long-term loan to Italy.
Ashmolean Museum (2006)	"Portrait of a Young Girl in a Bow Window", attributed to Nikolaus Alexander Mair von Landshut	Claim rejected. The claimant did not specify whether they were seeking the return of the painting or an 'ex-gratia' payment.
British Museum (2006)	"The Holy Family" by Niccolo dell'Abbate; "An Allegory on Poetic Inspiration with Mercury and Apollo", by Nicholas Blakey; "Virgin and Infant Christ, adored by St Elizabeth and the Infant St John", by Martin Johann Schmidt; and "St Dorothy with the Christ Child" by School of Martin Schöngauer	Claim upheld. The claimant sought and received an 'ex-gratia' payment.
Courtauld Institute (2007)	"A lion", attributed to Carl Ruthart; "A dog lying down", attributed to Frans Van Mieris the elder; and "An architectural capriccio", attributed to Giuseppe Bibiena	Claim upheld. The claimant sought the return of and received the drawings.
Courtauld Institute (2007)	"St. Gregory the Great with Ss. Maurus and Papianus and St. Domitilla with Ss. Nereus and Achilleus"; "The Conversion of St. Paul"; and "The Bounty of James / Triumphing Over Avarice" by Sir Peter Paul Rubens	Claim rejected. The claimant sought the return of the paintings.
British Museum and Fitzwilliam Museum (2008)	"Porcelain dish" at the British Museum and "Monteith" (or glass cooler) at the Fitzwilliam Museum.	Claims upheld. The one claimant sought and received an 'ex-gratia' payment for the "Porcelian dish", which the British Museum is unable to deaccession and the restitution of the "Monteith", which the Fitzwilliam Museum was able to deaccession.

The Government are only aware of the outcome of claims that have been referred to the Spoliation Advisory Panel.

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what steps his Department (a) has taken and (b) is taking to publicise the procedure for making claims to the Spoliation Advisory Panel in respect of artworks and artefacts allegedly looted or spoliated during the Nazi regime; what consideration he has given to the recommendations of the Spoliation Advisory Panel for legislation to enable the return of spoliated items for UK collections; and if he will make a statement. [221670]

Margaret Hodge [holding answer 22 July 2008]: The Cultural Property Advice website (www.culturalpropertyadvice.gov.uk), launched by the Museums, Libraries and Archives Council in 2007 with support from my Department, provides advice and information to those searching for objects with an uncertain history lost or stolen during World War II and the Holocaust Era. The website includes a database of objects with uncertain provenance between 1933-45. Both this website and the department's own website provide information on the work of the Spoliation Advisory Panel.

The Government intend to introduce legislation to allow national museums, that are currently prevented from doing so, to return works of art spoliated during the Nazi era, as recommended by the panel in 2005. We continue to look for an early legislative opportunity to do so.

Arts: Finance

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport in respect of what projects (a) the Arts Council, (b) the Museums, Libraries and Archives Council, (c) Sport England and (d) English Heritage received ring-fenced funding in each of the last three years; what the cost of each such project was in each year; which projects he expects to receive such funding in each of the next three years; and what estimate he has made of each such project in each of the next three years. [204160]

Andy Burnham [holding answer 8 May 2008]: The non-departmental public bodies in question have provided the information in the following table. The table indicates those projects that have received ring-fenced funding in each of the last three years, and those scheduled to receive it in the next three years.

BBC: Internet

Mr. Fallon: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what steps he is taking to ensure that the BBC's proposals to launch ultra-local web services do not distort local media markets. [223589]

Andy Burnham [holding answer 15 September 2008]: This is a matter for the BBC Trust. As part of the Public Value Test considering the proposal, Ofcom will conduct a market impact assessment.

British Grand Prix

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if he will publish the minutes of his meeting with Bernie Ecclestone on 18 March 2008 on the British Grand Prix. [222690]

Mr. Sutcliffe: My meeting with Bernie Ecclestone of 18 March on the British Grand Prix was informal and as such no minutes were taken.

Creative Partnerships: Manpower

Mr. Vaizey: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many people are employed by Arts Council England (a) nationally and (b) regionally on Creative Partnerships. [224166]

Margaret Hodge: The information requested has been provided by Arts Council England and is set out in the table.

Organisation	2007-08
Arts Council—National Office	29
East	8
East Midlands	15
London	13
North East	11
North West	14

Cultural Leadership Programme

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many staff are employed by the Cultural Leadership Programme; and how much the programme spent on staffing in each of the last three years. [221047]

Margaret Hodge [holding answer 22 July 2008]: Five members of staff are currently employed by the Cultural Leadership Programme: a director; acting assistant director; project manager; project co-ordinator; and administrator.

The Cultural Leadership Programme has provided the following figures for the amount spent on staffing in each of the last three years:

2005-06	83,329
2007-08	278,000

The increase in staffing costs reflects the development of the programme from a call for ideas and early scoping phase, through development of provision through partners, to offering a full programme of learning to leaders in the cultural and creative industries at all levels. Core staffing and administration costs represent only 4 per cent. of the total budget.

Departmental Air Travel

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport whether those staff of (a) his Department and (b) its agencies who are entitled to business class or first class air travel are permitted to (i) travel in a cheaper class to the destination and (ii) benefit in monetary terms or kind from the saving. [221959]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Those staff in the Department for Culture, Media and Sport and our agency, the Royal Parks who are entitled to business or first air travel are (i) encouraged to travel in a cheaper class to the destination but (ii) they would not be able to benefit in monetary terms or kind from the saving.

Departmental Appeals

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport on how many occasions his Department has instructed the Treasury Solicitor to seek leave to appeal to the House of Lords from (a) the Court of Appeal and (b) the House of Lords itself in each of the last 10 years; and on how many occasions the application was rejected. [220819]

Margaret Hodge: The Department for Culture, Media and Sport does not hold the requested information centrally and it could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

The Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport has been heard in two appeals before Appellate Committees of the House of Lords in the last 10 years. In 2001, in Regina v. Independent Television Commission, Ex Parte TV Danmark 1 Limited [2001] UKHL 42, the Secretary of State intervened to support a successful appeal brought by the Independent Television Commission. In 2007, in Regina (on the application of Animal Defenders International) v. Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport [2008] UKHL 15, the Secretary of State successfully defended an appeal brought by Animal Defenders International.

Departmental Buildings

Mr. Betts: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what his Department's policy is on improving the energy efficiency of the buildings which it (a) rents and (b) owns; what changes there have been in the energy efficiency of such buildings in the last (i) five and (ii) 10 years; and whether his Department has adopted targets on energy efficiency improvements in the buildings it occupies over the next (A) five and (B) 10 years. [221094]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Department is committed to improving its energy efficiency and to deliver on the targets set down in the Sustainable Operations on the Government Estate. These are to: increase energy efficiency by 15 per cent. by 2010 relative to 1999-2000 levels; and to increase energy efficiency per square metre by 30 per cent. by 2020, relative to 1999-2000 levels.

To deliver on these targets, the Department has developed a detailed energy action plan which has identified areas where energy efficiency improvements can be made. To date, significant improvements have been gained in the installation of energy efficient light fittings, new main capital plant and the replacement of gas boilers. Automatic meter readers have been installed in DCMS buildings to enable us to monitor consumption half hourly.

The Department is accredited to the Carbon Trust's Energy Efficiency Accreditation Scheme.

Mr. Betts: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what account his Department takes of the level of energy efficiency of buildings before entering into agreements to (a) rent and (b) purchase those buildings. [221110]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Department has not entered into any new agreements to rent or purchase buildings since 1999.

If the Department does enter into new agreements to rent or purchase buildings in future it will ensure this is undertaken with full reference to the Office of Government Commerce's Common Minimum Standards for the Built Environment.

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what the location is of each office occupied by (a) his Department and (b) each of its agencies which has been (i) newly occupied and (ii) refurbished in the last 24 months; and what the floor area in square metres is of each. [222027]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The information requested is as follows:

(a) In the last 24 months the Department has refurbished its office at 2-4 Cockspur Street, London. Floor area: 6,157 square metres.

(b) In the last 24 months The Royal Parks has refurbished The Magazine in Kensington Gardens. Floor area: 300 square metres.

No offices have been newly occupied in the last 24 months.

Departmental Databases

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what use (a) his Department and (b) its agencies make of (i) MOSAIC data and (ii) ACORN data. [221957]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Since its launch in 2005, the Department's Taking Part survey has included ACORN codes. These data have been used to examine variations in sporting and cultural participation.

This month the Department purchased the additional Financial ACORN and Health ACORN codes as well as MOSAIC codes. These have been merged with the Taking Part survey data and results will be published later this year.

In 2006 the Royal Parks agency used ACORN codes to examine variations in the profile of park users against the profile of residents living in close proximity to the park.

Departmental Disciplinary Proceedings

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what the five most serious disciplinary breaches in his Department were in the last 12 months; and what steps were taken in response to each breach. [223055]

Mr. Sutcliffe: There were no formal disciplinary breaches in the Department for Culture, Media and Sport in the last 12 months.

Departmental Homeworking

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Upper Bann of 28 February 2008, Official Report, column 1830W, on departmental home working, if he will make it his policy to collate and maintain central records of home working by his Department's staff. [222538]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Department is currently reviewing its flexible working policies and as part of that HR has set up a central database to record staff working patterns, including home working.

Departmental Information

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what types of data have been sold by (a) his Department and (b) its agencies under the Re-use of Public Sector Information Regulations in the last 12 months. [221960]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Neither the Department for Culture Media and Sport nor its agency (the Royal Parks) has sold any data under the Re-Use of Public Sector Information Regulations in the last 12 months.

Departmental Official Residences

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what permanent residential accommodation is provided for use by civil servants in his Department; how many residential dwellings are provided; where they are located; and for what grade of civil servant they are provided. [221958]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Department does not provide any permanent residential accommodation for use by civil servants.

Departmental Overtime

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what the cost of overtime payments paid to staff in his Department was in each of the last 12 months, broken down by pay grade. [221297]

Margaret Hodge: The cost of overtime paid to staff in each month between July 2007 and June 2008 by grade is shown in the table.

Mr. Sutcliffe: All expenses are reimbursed in accordance with guidance set out in the Department's staff guide and the civil service code.

I am arranging for this information to be deposited in the House Library.

Margaret Hodge: The information is as follows:

(b) Our agency, the Royal Parks has one current contract for the supply of electricity with EDF.

(i) Payments over the past 10 years have been for electricity supply only. English Sports Council: Grants

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how the maintenance regime of a sports facility which has received a capital award from Sport England is monitored; what guidance and advice other than on the terms and conditions included in grant offer letters is given to successful grant applicants at the (a) pre- and (b) post-application stages; and what information on sports turf maintenance is issued by his Department and Sport England to applicants. [223468]

Andy Burnham [holding answer 15 September 2008]: Monitoring arrangements vary from project to project, dependent on the size and type of grant. Sport England requires applicants to ensure that adequate funds are made available over the life time of the grant award, to ensure that the facility is maintained properly.

Sport England has advised that pre-application advice is supplied to applicants through both online support and one-to-one meetings. A sample of capital projects are monitored post completion. In addition, Sport England's regional offices are in contact with projects in their region on an ad hoc basis.

Technical Guidance on Natural Turf can be found on Sport England's website as a free download of the Natural Turf technical publication; www.sportengland.org/se_facilities_naturalturf.pdf.

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport whether a revenue tail to fund maintenance staff is a requirement for applicants for capital awards from Sport England; what discussions he has had with Sport England on such a requirement; and if he will make a statement. [223469]

Andy Burnham [holding answer 15 September 2008]: Arrangements for the award and management of grants are primarily matters for Sport England. Sport England has advised that it does not require, as condition of grant, a revenue tail to fund maintenance staff. It does, however, require the applicant to ensure that adequate funds are made available over the life time of the grant award, to ensure that the facility is maintained properly. Sport England has advised that where it is known that replacement of elements of the capital facility will be required within the lifetime of the award, such as a synthetic turf surface, they will seek assurance that a replacement budget is established by the awardee to ensure the replacement is made.

Equality: Finance

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what funding the Big Lottery Fund has provided to each regional equality and diversity partnership in the last 12 months; and on what date each such payment was made. [222999]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Big Lottery Fund has advised that they have not received any applications for funding from regional equality and diversity partnerships.

EU Law

Mr. Francois: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many officials in his Department are wholly or mainly tasked with the negotiation, implementation or administration of EU legislation and consequent policies. [222266]

Mr. Sutcliffe: This Government are firmly committed to the importance of the EU in delivering on 21st-century challenges. The EU is of central importance to the work of HM Government across all Departments. It is relevant to a wide range of policy areas, and to the work of many Government officials; currently my Department employs five officials on such work.

Gambling: USA

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what discussions he has had with (a) his EU counterparts and (b) European Commissioners on the conclusion of negotiations between the EC and the US on the US withdrawal of its gambling commitments from the World Trade Organisation (WTO) and the consequent compensatory adjustments offered by the US in the WTO General Agreement on Trade in Services. [220665]

Mr. Sutcliffe [holding answer 21 July 2008]: I have had no such discussions. I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to him on 15 September 2008, Official Report, column 2124W, by the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform, my hon. Friend the Member for Harrow West (Mr. Thomas), who has responsibility for trade and consumer affairs.

Historic Buildings: Protection

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what recent steps the Government has taken to protect historic buildings. [222312]

Margaret Hodge: Buildings that are of special historic or architectural interest are listed under the Planning (Listed Buildings and Conservation Areas) Act 1990. Listing protects a building against unauthorized demolition, alteration or extension and ensures that its special interest is taken into account when proposals are put forward that affect its character or appearance.

English Heritage, the Government's statutory adviser for the historic environment, gave £24 million in grants in 2007-08 to protect and encourage enjoyment of historic buildings and monuments. English Heritage recommended 564 buildings for listing, and during the year, 57 buildings were removed from the English Heritage Buildings at Risk Register as their futures had been secured. English Heritage is a statutory consultee in the statutory planning process and gave advice on 17,090 consent applications in 2007-08.

In April 2008, the Government published a draft Heritage Protection Bill. The draft Bill contains provisions setting out a framework to unify heritage protection regimes, allow greater public involvement in decision-making and place heritage at the heart of the planning system, thereby making the system more transparent and making heritage protection easier to understand and manage.

Institute of Groundsmanship

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if he will discuss with Sport England making the Institute of Groundsmanship a national partner; and if he will make a statement. [223467]

Andy Burnham [holding answer 15 September 2008]: Sport England has advised that the Institute of Groundsmanship (IOG) is one of several membership organisations who play a role in providing a range of services to the sporting landscape. The IOG has relationships with a number of national governing bodies but not with Sport England. Sport England has advised that it has no plans at present to increase the number of national partners that it supports.

Internet: Advertising

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if he will bring forward proposals to increase the powers of the Advertising Standards Authority to supervise advertising on the internet, with particular reference to its effect on children. [221541]

Margaret Hodge: No. The Advertising Standards Authority already have powers to deal with paid for space online and the rules in place to protect children in non broadcast advertising already apply.

Dr. Byron's report "Safer Children in a Digital World" recommended that 'the advertising industry should continue to drive forward activity already underway to 'futureproof' the current regulatory system, especially in relation to digital advertising'.

In particular the report said

'I recommend that consideration is given to how promotional marketing in non-paid for online space can be brought within the regulatory framework for advertising, in line with principles on the prevention of harmful and offensive advertising to children outlined in the CAP code'.

On 24 June we published our action plan from implementing the recommendations from the Byron Review which stated that we would take stock of the evidence in spring 2009 and encourage any further action as necessary.

Listed Buildings

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many listed buildings graded at (a) grade I, (b) grade II* and (c) grade II are in private ownership. [219352]

Margaret Hodge: The information requested is not available. English Heritage's listed building system does not record types of ownership of listed buildings. English Heritage does however hold information on ownership of properties on the English Heritage at risk register.

London Olympic Games 2012

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many full-time equivalent members of staff in (a) his Department and (b) its associated public bodies are working on projects relating to the London 2012 Olympics and Paralympics Games; how many of them are working on (i) project management, (ii) legacy planning, (iii) project oversight and (iv) financial oversight; and what plans he has for future staffing levels in each case. [221871]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The London 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games are a key priority across Government. The Government Olympic Executive (GOE) was set up within the Department for Culture, Media and Sport to oversee the delivery of Government objectives for the Games.

As of 1 September 2008 the GOE consisted of 71.7 full-time equivalent (FTE) staff. Of this total, no members of staff are working in roles defined as project management roles, 17 are working in roles mainly relating to legacy planning, 20 on roles mainly relating to project oversight and six on roles mainly relating to financial control/oversight. The remainder of staff work mainly on staging, strategic communications and parliamentary matters.

In terms of further specific posts relating to Olympic projects within DCMS, 7.8 FTE staff are employed on Olympic Programme Management, the Cultural Olympiad and in the Press Office. Of these, approximately 3.7 FTE are in roles relating to project management and approximately 1.1 FTE in roles relating to project oversight. The purpose of these posts is to manage the wider DCMS interests in relation to staging the Games such as elite sport, sport participation, tourism and culture. The remaining three FTE staff are full-time press officers.

I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to him by my right hon. Friend the Minister for the Olympics on 22 July 2008, Official Report, column 977W in regard to the number of FTE members of staff in the Olympic Delivery Authority.

Information relating to DCMS's other non-departmental public bodies who are working on projects relating to the London 2012 Olympics could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Future staffing levels in the GOE will remain under review, within the overall budgetary settlement agreed with HM Treasury.

Staffing levels for DCMS's NDPBs are primarily a matter for NDPBs.

Mass Media

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport which organisations provided media monitoring services to (a) his Department, (b) Sport England, (c) English Heritage, (d) the Heritage Lottery Fund, (e) the Big Lottery Fund, (f) Arts Council England and (g) the Museum, Libraries and Archives Council in each of the last three years; what specific services were received; and what the value of each contract held has been. [203007]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The following figures have been provided by the bodies requested. They include subscriptions to bespoke media monitoring services and the cost of press cuttings. They do not include the costs of any transcripts or recordings, fees to the Newspaper Licensing Authority, or analysis of press coverage.

Museums and Galleries: Finance

Lembit Öpik: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what plans he has for the funds within the Renaissance budget for 2008-09 which remain unallocated; and if he will make a statement. [221673]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Renaissance programme is managed by the Museums, Libraries and Archives Council (MLA) and is covered by the Funding Agreement with the Department for 2008-09 to 2010-11. As at 31 July, £1,325,000 was unallocated in MLA's Renaissance programme contingency fund.

The MLA expects to commit the majority of this contingency during the second half of this financial year, subject to end-year flexibility arrangements agreed with the Department.

National Lottery Promotions Unit: Finance

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much the National Lottery Distribution Fund has paid to the National Lottery Promotions Unit in each year since it came into being. [221044]

Andy Burnham [holding answer 22 July 2008]: The national lottery distribution fund has not made any direct payments to the national lottery promotions unit (NLPU). Under the terms of the licence to operate the national lottery, the NLPU receives the contribution to its funding on behalf of distributors by means of deductions from the operator's payments into the lottery distribution funds. The amounts received by the NLPU in respect of the distribution funds in each year were as follows:

2004-05	2,044,203
2005-06	1,530,933
2006-07	1,448,594
2007-08	1,812,900

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much funding the National Lottery Promotions Unit has received from (a) Arts Council England, (b) the Arts Council of Wales, (c) the Scottish Arts Council, (d) the Arts Council of Northern Ireland, (e) Sport England, (f) the Sports Council for Northern Ireland, (g) Sport Scotland, (h) the Sports Council for Wales, (i) the Heritage Lottery Fund, (j) the UK Film Council, (k) Scottish Screen, (l) the Big Lottery Fund, (m) UK Sport and (n) the Olympic Lottery Distribution Fund in each year since it came into being. [221045]

Andy Burnham [holding answer 22 July 2008]: Contributions to the funding of the national lottery promotions unit (NLPU) in respect of the lottery distributing bodies are made by means of deductions from the operator's payments into the lottery distribution funds. It is not possible, therefore, to disaggregate in respect of individual distributors. From the establishment of NLPU in 2003-04 to the end of 2005-06, contributions in respect of the lottery distributing bodies met 50 per cent. of NLPU's funding costs. With effect from 2006-07, the contributions in respect of the lottery distributing bodies have met 66.66 per cent. of NLPU's operating costs.

Quality of Life

Jo Swinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what his Department's definition of quality of life is. [220696]

Margaret Hodge: In 2007 Defra along with other Government Departments, devolved administrations and other stakeholders developed a common understanding of what wellbeing means in a policy context. This is now used across Government.

The common understanding across Government is that wellbeing is a positive physical, social and mental state, it is not just the absence of pain, discomfort and incapacity. It requires that basic needs are met, that individuals have a sense of purpose, that they feel able to achieve important personal goals and participate in society. It is enhanced by conditions that include supportive personal relationships, strong and inclusive communities, good health, financial and personal security, rewarding employment, and a healthy and attractive environment.

Along with the common understanding Defra released a provisional wellbeing indicator as part of their sustainable development indicators in your pocket 2007 (SDIYP). Last year DCMS contributed data on cultural and sporting participation by adults to the wellbeing indicator.

Royal Parks

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what discussions his Department has had with the Department for Transport on the implications for the Royal Parks of the proposals in the Adding Capacity at Heathrow Airport consultation document; and if he will make a statement. [221758]

Margaret Hodge: DCMS has had no discussions with the Department for Transport on the proposals. The Royal Parks have responded to the consultation document.

Sports

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what estimate he has made of the number of people who participated in 30 minutes of moderate intensity sport (a) once a week, (b) twice a week, (c) three times a week, (d) four times a week and (e) five times a week, broken down by (i) Government region and (ii) local authority area in each of the last three years. [223658]

Andy Burnham [holding answer 15 September 2008]: Information on participation since 2005-06, broken down by frequency and by region is available via the Active People Survey, commissioned by Sport England. Data relating to 2005-06, collected as part of Active People Survey 1 can be found on the Sport England website at the following link

<http://www.sportengland.org/index/get_resources/research/active_people/active_people_1/active_people_survey_headline_results.htm>

Full detailed results are available via Active People Diagnostic, Sport England's online reporting and analysis tool, which is freely available to all. Due to the success of the Active People Survey 2005-06, Sport England is repeating the survey, and it will now run as a continuous annual survey. The second year of the survey commenced on 15 October 2007 and is due to report in November 2008.

Sports: Equal Opportunities

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what progress has been made towards increasing participation in sport among people (a) from black and ethnic minority groups, (b) with a limiting disability, (c) from low socio-economic groups and (d) who are female; and what steps he plans to take to make further progress in these areas. [223476]

Andy Burnham [holding answer 15 September 2008]: The DCMS 'Taking Part' survey provides national data on sports participation.

The most recent results were published in June 2008 and provide provisional estimates from year 3 of the survey. The following tables provide a comparison between final baseline figures from year 1, final estimates from year 2 and provisional estimates from the first six months of year 3. There have been no statistically significant differences between the baseline and latest estimates for either of the two measures.

The first table indicates the percentage of people from the named groups that take part in active sport. The active sport indicator is defined as at least one occasion of participation in an active sport during the past four weeks.

	Year 1 (annual)	Year 2 (annual)	Percentage Year 3 (six months)
Black and minority ethnic	53.3	51.9	52.4
Limiting disability	32.3	31.2	30.0
Lower socio-economic	43.4	42.2	43.5
Females	47.7	46.2	46.0
All adults	53.7	53.4	53.3

The second table indicates the percentage of people from the named groups that take part in moderate level intensity sport. The moderate level intensity sport indicator is defined as participation in moderate intensity level sport for at least 30 minutes on three separate days during the past week.

	Year 1 (annual)	Year 2 (annual)	Percentage Year 3 (six months)
Black and minority ethnic	19.2	19.6	19.0
Limiting disability	9.5	9.4	9.8
Lower socio-economic	15.2	15.3	15.4
Females	18.5	18.3	17.6
All adults	20.9	21.5	21.6

A key element of Sport England's new three-year strategy (2008-11) is to get one million people doing more sport by 2012-13 and they will work with and through National Governing Bodies of Sport (NGBs) to deliver this target. NGBs will be challenged through the Whole Sport plan process to consider how they can encourage the participation of under-represented groups.

Sports: Finance

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much the Big Lottery Fund has given to sport related activities in each of the last three years. [220511]

Andy Burnham [holding answer 21 July 2008]: The Big Lottery Fund has advised that the following awards have been made for physical education and sport related projects through the Big Lottery Fund's sport and physical activity programmes in each of the last three financial years:

Financial year	£ Awards
2005-06	£357,753,130
2006-07	£266,503,102
2007-08	£143,604,930

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much of the £100 million funding for young people's sport announced by the Prime Minister in 2007 has been (a) allocated and (b) spent to date; and on what such funds have been spent. [223568]

Andy Burnham [holding answer 15 September 2008]: All the funding announced by the Prime Minister has been allocated through the PE and Sport Strategy for Young People for the 2008-11 period.

Since April 2008, £11.7 million of the £12.9 million allocated to the DCSF and £3.9 million of the £14.5 million allocated to the DCMS for the 2008-09 financial year has been spent.

This funding is to support a range of programmes within the PE and Sport Strategy for Young People, including Sport Unlimited; Professional Coaches; FE Sport Coordinators; Competition Managers; Multi-Sport Disability Clubs; Intra-School Competition; and School Sport Partnerships.

Stress

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what arrangements his Department has in place to assist officials to overcome the effects of stress experienced in the workplace. [222175]

Mr. Sutcliffe: DCMS is committed to the well-being of its employees. It has a number of procedures in place to reduce stress at work. A stress management framework, based on the Health and Safety Executive's management standards is available to all employees and gives easy to use advice on the successful prevention, recognition and management of stress at work.

Strip Clubs

Lynda Waltho: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport whether the Licensing Act 2003 has been subject to a gender impact assessment, with particular reference to the licensing of lap dancing clubs. [212218]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Licensing Act 2003, which received Royal Assent in July 2003, and subsequent related legislation have all been subject to required impact assessments. This would have included elements of equality impact, although there has been no gender impact assessment specifically related to entertainment of an adult nature such as lap dancing and similar performances.

Supporting Excellence in the Arts

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if he will place in the Library a copy of the minutes of the meetings of the Programme Board and Steering Group convened to discuss the details of implementing the recommendations of Sir Brian McMaster's review, Supporting Excellence in the Arts. [223475]

Andy Burnham [holding answer 15 September 2008]: I will place a copy of the minutes in the Libraries of both Houses.

Swimming: Finance

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what central funding will be given to local authorities to meet the Government's pledge of offering free swimming to the over 60s and under 16s; and what mechanism and methodology will be used to calculate the funding to each local authority. [222836]

Mr. Sutcliffe: £15 million per annum will be provided according to a formula based on the size of the local 60 or over population to those local authorities who choose to provide free swimming for this group. £25 million per annum will be available to provide free swimming for those aged 16 or under. Allocations will be determined subject to expressions of interest.

In addition, we are providing a total of £60 million for capital projects designed to modernise pool provision, which are integrated with free swimming.

Taxis

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much (a) his Department and (b) its agency spent on taxis in the last financial year for which figures are available. [223029]

Margaret Hodge: All official travel is undertaken in accordance with rules set out in the Department's Staff Guide under Travel and Subsistence and consistent with Civil Service Management Code.

The expenditure on taxis by the Department in financial year 2007-08 was £36,359.08. The figure represents expenditure on taxis provided by the Department's contracted agent, black cabs and other taxis in London and elsewhere. In addition, some expenditure on black cabs and taxis is included in general travel and subsistence and cannot be separately identified except at disproportionate cost.

The Department's agency, the Royal Parks, does not itemise expenditure on taxi separately on its accounting system and the cost of disaggregating this expenditure manually from the relevant travel claims would be disproportionate to the amount involved.

Television

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much his Department spent on (a) commissioning and (b) funding the production of television programmes (i) in each of the last three years and (ii) in 2008-09 to date; what programmes these were; and which companies made them. [213498]

Mr. Sutcliffe [holding answer 24 June 2008]: The Department for Culture, Media and Sport has not commissioned or funded the production of any television programmes in the last three years, or in 2008-09 to date.

Tourism: Ethnic Groups

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if he will make it his policy to encourage people from ethnic minorities to visit the countryside. [218166]

Mr. Sutcliffe: DCMS provides grant in aid to VisitBritain to promote England to the British and Britain to the rest of the world, their Rural Escapes campaign has run for two years and is aimed at attracting all sections of society to rural locations in England and has involved print, website and broadcast advertising.

VisitBritain's international inbound tourism strategy involved a campaign around Bollywood film locations aimed specifically at the Indian market. The imagery used by Britain on View, VisitBritain and enjoyEngland, is designed to reflect the fact that visitors from all ethnic backgrounds are to be encouraged to visit rural and urban destinations within the UK.

World Heritage Sites

WORK AND PENSIONS

Armed Forces

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what specific provisions are provided by his Department for (a) the families of service personnel and (b) the families of service personnel on operations. [222071]

Mr. Plaskitt: The Service Personnel Command Paper The Nation's Commitment: Cross-Government Support to our Armed Forces, their Families and Veterans (Cm 7424), published on 17 July, sets out the first ever cross-Government strategy for support to our service personnel, their families and veterans. The strategy will ensure that service personnel and their families are not disadvantaged when seeking access to state benefits and gives improved access to employment programmes, such as new deal.

The families of service personnel already have access to the full range of benefits and services in the same way as those of non-service personnel. There are also provisions targeted specifically at family members who are accompanying service personnel overseas on operations.

For example, family members who are temporarily absent from Great Britain because they live with a serving member of the forces as part of a family are not disqualified from receiving incapacity benefit, disability living allowance, attendance allowance or carer's allowance. This will also apply to the employment and support allowance from October 2008. Partners of current or former armed forces personnel can also have fast-track access to the Gateway stage of the new deal for young people and new deal 25+ and, from April 2009, to Stage 3 of the revised jobseeker's allowance programme.

Some spouses and civil partners who accompany their family overseas occasionally find it hard to get paid employment while there. This may adversely affect their national insurance contribution record for entitlement to a State Pension as well as access to contribution based working age benefits. A Ministerial commitment was included in the Command Paper to consider the award of National Insurance credits in these circumstances.

Child Support

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions in how many cases of child support administration the computer system has been incapable of producing a result and the case transferred to manual management in each of the last three years. [222024]

Mr. Plaskitt: The administration of the Child Support Agency is the matter for the chief executive. He will write to the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Stephen Geraghty:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the Child Support Agency, the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Chief Executive.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, in how many cases of child support administration the computer system has been incapable of producing a result and the case transferred to manual management in each of the last three years. [222024]

The information requested is routinely published in Table 20 of the Child Support Agency's Quarterly Summary Statistics and further information on clerical cases is set out in the accompanying notes to the table. The latest copy is available in the House of Commons Library or via the internet at: www.dwp.gov.uk/asd/csa.asp.

I hope you find this answer helpful.

Bill Etherington: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment has been made of the financial effects on parents without care facing debt recovery action for outstanding child maintenance payments by the Child Support Agency of the sanction of (a) 40 per cent. deductions on net income and (b) use of debt recovery agents. [223863]

Mr. Plaskitt: The administration of the Child Support Agency is the matter for the chief executive. He will write to my hon. Friend with the information requested.

Letter from Stephen Geraghty:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the Child Support Agency, the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Chief Executive.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, what assessment has been made of the financial impact on parents without care facing debt recovery action for outstanding child maintenance payments by the Child Support Agency of the sanction (a) 40 per cent. deductions on net income and (b) use of debt recovery agents. [223863]

The financial impact of recovering child maintenance debt is considered for all parties involved in a child maintenance calculation before determining a suitable repayment level. The circumstances of each individual case are considered including any representations of hardship from the non-resident parent as well as the size of the debt and any other relevant factors. Should the financial circumstances of the non-resident parent prevent immediate full repayment of the child maintenance debt then the Agency will attempt to negotiate the repayment of the child maintenance debt as quickly as possible to obtain the best possible outcome for the qualifying child and the parent with care while taking account of the circumstances of the non-resident parent.

As a guideline the Agency's view is that a complete recovery period of up to two years is broadly acceptable if all the circumstances of the case genuinely warrant such a lengthy period; as an organisation with a statutory duty to consider the welfare of any children affected by our decisions, the Agency can only justify accepting repayment agreements of more than two years in special circumstances. In a proportion of cases, this means that a repayment agreement of up to forty per cent of net earnings, which includes any regular maintenance liability and repayment of arrears, will be appropriate.

Where negotiations fail to produce an acceptable repayment offer the Agency will consider recovery through the enforcement measures available. In many cases a Deduction from Earnings Order will be imposed which requires an employer to deduct child maintenance payments at source. These deductions will not exceed forty per cent of net earnings. In cases where this is not appropriate, the Agency can apply to the courts for a liability order confirming the debt, and allowing it to pursue other legal enforcement action.

The Agency also has the power to contract debt collection agencies to recover outstanding debt on its behalf as this is an area where the expertise of private agencies can be particularly effective in helping to get more money to more children. The provisions authorising another person/organisation to carry out functions relating to child support came into force on 3 July 2006. Certain cases with outstanding debt were reviewed and where the non-resident parent failed to make an acceptable repayment offer referral was made to a debt collection agency. The process for considering the financial impact of recovering debt mirrors that used within the Child Support Agency and outlined above. There are mechanisms in place to ensure that cases are correctly handled.

Mr. Hepburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many Child Support Agency new scheme cases have been uncleared within six months in (a) Jarrow constituency, (b) South Tyneside, (c) the North East and (d) the UK in each year since 1997. [223906]

Mr. Plaskitt: The administration of the Child Support Agency is the matter for the chief executive. He will write to my hon. Friend with the information requested.

Letter from Stephen Geraghty:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the Child Support Agency, the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Chief Executive.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, how many Child Support Agency new scheme cases have been uncleared within six months in (a) Jarrow constituency (b) South Tyneside (c) the North East and (d) the UK in each year since 1997. [223906]

The information you have requested is provided in the attached table which highlights the significant improvements the Agency has made to client service under its three year Operational Improvement Plan.

In addition to the overall reduction in uncleared cases, the Agency now clears 81% of all new applications within 12 weeks, already meeting the March 2009 Secretary of State target to clear 80% of cases in 12 weeks.

I hope you find this answer helpful.

1. Figures include all uncleared applications over six months old.
2. As the current scheme came into existence in 2003, figures only go back to this date.
3. Cases have been allocated to the North East region, Jarrow Parliamentary Constituency and South Tyneside Local Authority by matching the postcode of the parent with care against the Office for National Statistics postcode directory.
4. Many uncleared applications will not have reached the point where the address details of the non-resident parent or parent with care have been recorded on the CS2 or CSCS computer systems and so can not be allocated to a geographical area. Such applications have been included under the Great Britain figure but are excluded from the regional breakdowns. Approximately 5,600 applications (9 per cent. of all uncleared applications) over six months old fall into this category.

Mr. Hepburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many cases relating to residents of (a) Jarrow constituency, (b) South Tyneside, (c) the North East and (d) the UK the Child Support Agency has dealt with in each year since 1997. [223962]

At present, the Agency operates two schemes, the original scheme applying to cases received by the Agency from 1993, and assessed under the Child Support Act 1991, and the current scheme, sometimes known as the new scheme, applying to cases received by the Agency from 2003 and assessed under the Child Support, Pensions and Social Security Act 2000.

The information provided in the attached table relates to current scheme cases from 2003 only.

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what guidance is issued by the Child Support Agency on absent fathers who pay larger than average contributions into their pension scheme thereby reducing the sum payable in child maintenance; and if he will amend this guidance to combat this practice. [224163]

Mr. Plaskitt: The administration of the Child Support Agency is the matter for the chief executive. He will write to the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Stephen Geraghty:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the Child Support Agency, the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Chief Executive.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, what guidance is issued by the Child Support Agency on absent fathers who pay larger than average contributions into their pension scheme thereby reducing the sum payable in child maintenance; and if he will amend this guidance to combat this practice. [224163]

There is currently no limit to the amount of contributions a non-resident parent can make to an occupational pension within the child maintenance system.

A parent with care can however request a "variation" to the amount of the child maintenance liability if he or she believes that there are exceptional circumstances that are not covered by the basic rules. In particular a parent with care can apply for a variation where a non-resident parent has unreasonably reduced the amount of their income by diverting it elsewhere, which can be taken into account when making a maintenance calculation.

Child Support: Proof of Identity

Mr. Meacher: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will require mothers who name the wrong father to the Child Support Agency to pay the full costs of DNA paternity testing involved. [223984]

Mr. Plaskitt: There are no plans to require mothers to pay the full cost of DNA paternity testing where they have named a man later proved not to be the father. The current system is working well with only 1 per cent. of cases needing a DNA test to resolve disputed parentage and in less than 0.2 per cent. of cases a DNA test fails to prove paternity.

Departmental Air Travel

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the answer to the right hon. Member for Horsham of 14 July 2008, Official Report, column 27W, on carbon emissions: Government departments, how much air mileage incurred through departmental travel was used to calculate the departmental payment to the Government carbon offsetting fund in each year that his Department has participated in the fund, broken down by (a) domestic, (b) short-haul and (c) long-haul flights. [222130]

Mrs. McGuire: The Department joined the Government carbon offsetting fund (GCOF) at its outset in 2006-07. The following air mileage was used to calculate the payment for that year:

Short-haul: [1]7,175,100 miles (11,551,911 kilometres)

Long-haul: 976,660 miles (1,606,233 kilometres)

[1] Short-haul data includes domestic air mileage as required by the GCOF guidance for 2006-07.

This equates to a total of £37,845.74 in offsetting costs for 2006-07.

Figures for 2007-08 are subject to confirmation.

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions whether those staff of (a) his Department and (b) its agencies who are entitled to business class or first class air travel are permitted to (i) travel in a cheaper class to the destination and (ii) benefit in monetary terms or kind from the saving. [222137]

Mrs. McGuire: All official travel within the Department is carried out in accordance with the requirements of both the Civil Service Management Code and the Departmental Business Travel Policy.

The Department's Business Travel Policy enables staff only to travel by business class for trips outside of the UK and no overseas business class tickets may be purchased for flights under two and a half hours duration. However, staff are advised always to consider travel in a cheaper class to their destination and they do not benefit in monetary terms or kind from the saving. DWP recommends economy class as the preferred method of air travel regardless of the destination and flight duration and first class travel is never permitted.

The Civil Service Management Code can be accessed at:

http://www.civilservice.gov.uk/documents/doc/CSMC_April08.doc

Departmental Buildings

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the location is of each office occupied by (a) his Department and (b) each of its agencies which has been (i) newly occupied and (ii) refurbished in the last 24 months; and what the floor area in square metres is of each. [222129]

Mrs. McGuire: Details of the locations of newly occupied offices and offices that have been refurbished in the last 24 months by the Department, and the floor area of each in square metres, will be placed in the Library.

Departmental Co-ordination

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the timetable is for the implementation of the Tell Us Once service recommended in the Varney review; and whether persons will be able to (a) opt in and (b) opt out of the scheme. [222691]

Mrs. McGuire: A business case will be submitted to Government in April 2009. If approval is given the service will be rolled out on a national basis from 2009 onwards.

It will be the individual's decision whether or not to use the service.

Departmental Data Protection

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many notifications (a) his Department and (b) its agencies made to the Information Commissioner following the loss or mishandling of personal information or data in each of the last three years; and what was notified in each case. [222905]

Mr. Timms: The Department for Work and Pensions has published details of the personal data related incidents notified to the Information Commissioner's Office in 2007-08 in its resource accounts published on 13 August 2008.

Before November 2007 the Information Commissioner's Office did not specifically keep records of instances of security breaches.

I refer the hon. Member to the statement made by my right hon. Friend the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster on 25 June 2008, providing the final report on measures for data handling procedures in government.

Departmental Disciplinary Proceedings

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the five most serious disciplinary breaches in his Department were in the last 12 months; and what steps were taken in response to each breach. [223043]

Mrs. McGuire: We are unable to provide an answer in the format required. The most serious category of misconduct in the Department for Work and Pensions is gross misconduct, which may include different breaches of the Department's standards of behaviour. Each case is treated on its merits and the Department does not treat any act of gross misconduct as being more or less serious than another.

The Department's standards of behaviour and discipline policies are on the Department's internal intranet and are available to each employee.

Departmental Home Working

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the answer of 3 July 2008, Official Report, column 1028W, on departmental home working, if he will make it his policy to collate and maintain central records of home working by his Department's staff. [222533]

Mrs. McGuire: DWP employees may work from home in two categories:

(a) On an ad hoc basis under our flexible working framework; and

(b) Permanently, on a contractual basis.

Statistical data are not collected about ad hoc home working arrangements, managers may exercise discretion and authorise ad hoc home working for a variety of reasons.

Details of contractual home workers are held on individual clerical records. To extract these data would be at disproportionate cost.

The Department has no plans to collate and maintain central records of employees home working.

Departmental Information

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what types of data have been sold by (a) his Department and (b) its agencies under the Re-use of Public Sector Information Regulations in the last 12 months. [222138]

Mrs. McGuire: We can confirm that no data have been sold by the Department or its Agencies under the Re-use of Public Sector Information Regulations in the last 12 months.

Departmental Official Residences

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what permanent residential accommodation is provided for use by civil servants in his Department; how many residential dwellings are provided; where they are located; and for what grade of civil servant they are provided. [222136]

Mrs. McGuire: No permanent residential accommodation is provided for use by civil servants in the Department for Work and Pensions.

Departmental Procurement

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will place in the Library the names and addresses of each organisation that supplied goods and services to his Department in 2007-08, based on the purchase order data held in the Department's financial database. [222133]

Mrs. McGuire: The Department for Work and Pensions purchases goods and services from a significantly large number and variety of suppliers every year and information in the format requested could be provided only at disproportionate cost. However, a list of the names and addresses of the Department's top 30 suppliers for 2007-08 (by value of commercial expenditure), and which is readily available, has been placed in the Library.

Departmental Public Relations

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many staff in (a) his Department and (b) its agencies have been seconded to public relations or public affairs firms or consultancies in each of the last five years. [222198]

Mrs. McGuire: Information on the number of staff in (a) the Department for Work and Pensions and (b) its agencies that have been seconded to public relations or public affairs firms or consultancies in each of the last five years is not available in the format requested.

The Department introduced a new personnel computer system incrementally from November 2006, being fully implemented by April 2007. Since April 2007 details of secondments out have been recorded under general headings. The name of the organisation is given but no details of the type of organisation.

To extract more detailed information from individual records under this category would be at disproportionate cost.

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many staff from public relations or public affairs firms or consultancies have been seconded to (a) his Department and (b) its agencies in each of the last five years. [222199]

Mrs. McGuire: Information on numbers of staff from public relations or public affairs firms or consultancies that have been have been seconded to (a) the Department for Work and Pensions and (b) agencies of the Department for Work and Pensions is not collected centrally. This is handled locally by individual businesses. This information is therefore not available in the format requested.

To extract more detailed information from individual records under this category would be at disproportionate cost.

Disability Living Allowance

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many persons claimed the care component of disability living allowance in each year since its introduction, broken down by type of disability; and how much was paid to claimants with each disability type in each year at the (a) highest, (b) middle and (c) lowest rate. [222516]

Mrs. McGuire: The available information has been placed in the Library.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many claimants of disability living allowance in each year since its introduction had a learning disability as (a) a main disabling condition and (b) in addition to a main disabling condition which was not a learning disability. [222517]

Mrs. McGuire: The available information is in the following table.

EDF Energy

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what contracts (a) his Department and (b) its agencies have with EDF; and how much (i) his Department and (ii) its agencies paid to EDF in each of the last 10 years, broken down by the purpose of the payment. [221835]

Mrs. McGuire: Contracts with EDF for the supply of electricity are managed on behalf of the Department by its estates partner Land Securities Trillium. These contracts are additional to the main suppliers for energy and are generally legacy arrangements for supply of electricity or meter operating activities, where it has been necessary for the Department to occupy additional premises. The supply for these sites is being transferred from EDF to our main providers as the contracts expire. The following table provides details of the amounts paid to EDF for electricity supplies and charges for meter services since 1998. It is not possible to provide separate figures for electricity supplies and meter service charges nor to separate out the payments made by the Department and its agencies.

Employment and Support Allowance: Radiotherapy

Mark Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions whether the operation of the employment and support allowance will include criteria relating to those experiencing the side effects of chemotherapy and radiotherapy. [221919]

Mr. Timms: Claimants receiving intravenous, intraperitoneal or intrathecal chemotherapy or recovering from that treatment, will be automatically treated as having limited capability for work and so be entitled to employment and support allowance without the need to undertake a work capability assessment. These claimants will also be automatically treated as having limited capability for work-related activity and so will be placed in the support group for employment and support allowance and receive a higher rate of that benefit.

Claimants receiving radiotherapy will also be treated as having limited capability for work in any week when they are having treatment or recovering from treatment.

Claimants undergoing other forms of chemotherapy, or who are between courses of radiotherapy, will have their entitlement to employment and support allowance individually assessed on the basis of the effect their illness or treatment has on their physical or mental function. Depending on the severity of those effects they may be assessed as being entitled to the work-related component or the support component of employment and support allowance.

European Social Fund: Trade Unions

Mr. Francois: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much each UK trade union, and its subsidiary, received from the European Social Fund in the last period for which figures are available. [222317]

Mr. Plaskitt: In 2000-07, the Trades Union Congress received £13.16 million from the European Social Fund in England to deliver 41 employment and skills projects. The Department does not hold information on funding for individual trade unions.

Incapacity Benefit

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what proportion of awards for (a) non-means tested incapacity benefit and (b) income support on grounds of incapacity for work have been made to those who are terminally ill in the last three years. [224030]

Mrs. McGuire [holding answer 17 September 2008]: Information about the proportion of income support claimants that are terminally ill is not available. The available information is in the following table.

Mrs. McGuire [holding answer 17 September 2008]: Details of partners are recorded in cases where an increase is paid for a dependant adult who is caring for a child, or where the spouse is aged 60 or over. Information is not otherwise available on those claimants who have a partner.

The available information is in the following table.

New incapacity benefit claims in the 12 months to November 2007

	Single	With a partner
Under 35	225,200	400
Between 35 and 44	142,000	800
Between 35 and 65	389,100	1,800

Notes:
1. Incapacity benefit is not means-tested.
2. The best statistics on benefits are now derived from 100 per cent. data sources. However, the 5 per cent. sample data still provide some detail not yet available from the 100 per cent. data sources.
3. Figures are subject to a high degree of sampling error and should only be used as a guide.
4. Figures are rounded to the nearest 100. Totals may not sum due to rounding.
5. New claimant figures for the latest available quarter. (February 2008) do not include any late notifications, and have therefore not been used.

Income Support: Disabled

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many new claims of income support on the grounds of incapacity for work for which the claimant qualified for the enhanced disability premium from the start of the claim were awarded to (a) single persons aged under 35, (b) single persons aged 35 to 44, (c) single persons aged 35 to 65, (d) couples with claimant aged under 35, (e) couples with claimant aged 35 to 44 and (f) couples with claimant aged 35 to 65 in the most recent 12 month period for which figures are available. [223941]

James Purnell: The requested information is not available.

Income Support: Mortgages

Ms Keeble: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many home owners in proceedings relating to repossession have applied for income support for mortgage interest in the last two years. [222396]

Mr. Plaskitt: The requested information is not available.

Ms Keeble: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what recent (a) discussions and (b) joint working there has been with (i) the Department for Communities and Local Government and (ii) HM Treasury on income support for mortgage interest in relation to changes in the economic performance of the housing market. [222397]

Mr. Plaskitt: We continue to work jointly with other Government Departments to consider how best we can support the minority of borrowers who may be facing difficulties.

Jobcentres: Kilburn

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions when he expects the impact assessment on the closure of the Kilburn Jobcentre Plus office to be completed; and if he will make a statement. [221764]

Mr. Timms: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the chief executive of Jobcentre Plus, Lesley Strathie. I have asked her to provide the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Lesley Strathie:

The Secretary of State has asked me to respond to your question asking when he expects the impact assessment on the closure of Kilburn Jobcentre Plus to be completed. This is something that falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

As part of our continuing national review of Jobcentres, a proposal was put forward to close six Jobcentre Plus offices in London. Kilburn Jobcentre Plus was one. The review is a consequence of the development of alternative channels for our customers to access our services and the subsequent reduction in the number of customers who need to visit a Jobcentre.

In addition, there has been a shift towards a more individualised service for our most disadvantaged customers delivered in partnership with the private and voluntary sectors. This has increased outreach work, for example in Children's Centres and partnership with providers, particularly private sector led New Deal and Pathways to Work which are provided outside of our office network.

A seven week consultation exercise took place between 3 March and 18 April 2008 with a range of stakeholders. This included the completion of a Diversity Impact Assessment. We are considering the feedback from the consultation before making a recommendation to Ministers on the closure of Kilburn Jobcentre Plus.

Should a decision to close Kilburn Jobcentre be made, the Diversity Impact Assessment will be published on the Jobcentre Plus website.

Jobcentres: North East

Mr. Henderson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much is planned to be spent on local Jobcentre Plus centres in the North East region over the next 12 months for the provision of access to online job-search facilities and one to one advice. [222632]

Mr. Timms: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the chief executive of Jobcentre Plus, Lesley Strathie. I have asked her to provide the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Lesley Strathie:

The Secretary of State has asked me to respond to your question asking how much is planned to be spent on local Jobcentre Plus centres in the North East region over the next 12 months for the provision of access to online job-search facilities and one to one advice. This is something that falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

The requested information is not available.

Online job-search facilities are available in each of our 45 Jobcentre Plus offices in the North East region via "Jobpoints". In the year to June 2007 which is the most recent figure available, the contract with our local IT supplier to maintain the Jobpoints cost the Agency £230,897. Jobsearch facilities are also available via the internet. However, this is a national service and cannot be broken down by region. This year's financial allocation for staffing in the North East Region's Jobcentres is £49.4m to March 2009. This includes £17,227,212 for Personal Advisors and £5,334,184 for staff providing regular face to face support during fortnightly job reviews. I am unable to provide you with a separate figure for one to one advice.

Customers are now using our Jobcentres differently. More of our face-to-face customer contact is on an appointment basis and information on job vacancies is readily available by telephone and the internet. This enables staff in our offices to focus on those customers in greatest need of support to return to work.

Jobseekers Allowance

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what assistance is available to a person claiming jobseekers allowance with (a) a mental health condition and (b) a drug or alcohol addiction; [203270]

(2) what assessment he has made of (a) the availability and (b) the ability actively to seek work of jobseekers allowance claimants who have (i) a mental health condition and (ii) an alcohol or drug addiction; [203271]

(3) what mandatory requirements there are for a person with (a) a drug addiction or (b) an alcohol addiction claiming jobseekers allowance to seek treatment as a condition of receiving benefit; [203273]

(4) what mandatory treatment programmes there were for a person with (a) a drug addiction or (b) an alcohol addiction claiming jobseeker's allowance. [203274]

Mrs. McGuire: A person must be available for and actively seeking work in order to be eligible for jobseeker's allowance. A person can restrict his or her availability for work on grounds of a medical condition. This restriction could, for example, relate to the type of work or the hours they are available, but active search for employment must continue. When, as the result of a health problem, someone cannot meet these conditions, their claim for jobseeker's allowance cannot continue and he or she would normally claim incapacity benefit instead, or other benefits appropriate to their individual circumstances.

Jobcentre Plus Disability Employment Advisers work with customers who need more extensive support because of their health condition. They can offer help in finding work and advise customers about a range of specialised support available such as Workstep, Work preparation and Residential Training colleges and Access to Work.

Jobseeker's allowance customers with a history of drug and alcohol misuse can volunteer for early access to the new deal gateway in order to take advantage of the more intensive support on offer. Under the flexible new deal, which will replace the mandatory new deals from October 2009, service providers can decide to offer condition management programmes as part of the tailored back to work action plans drawn up for longer term jobseeker's allowance customers.

We do not currently require drug or alcohol abusers to seek treatment as a condition of receiving benefit.

In our Welfare Reform Green Paper "No-one written off: reforming welfare to reward responsibility" (column 7363) we announced that we will explore the case for introducing a new regime for problem drug users which provides more tailored and personalised support than is currently provided by the existing incapacity benefit or jobseeker's allowance regimes. In return for benefit payments, claimants will have a responsibility to move successfully through treatment and into employment.

Currently people with a drug addiction have access to support through the "progress2work" initiative which is a national programme for those on any working-age benefit recovering from drugs misuse. Participants are helped with the range of their problems, such as debt, housing or family breakdown. For alcohol misusers we offer "progress2work linkup" in about half of Jobcentre Plus districts.

Jobseekers Allowance: Young People

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions whether any children under the age of 16 years received jobseeker's allowance payments in each year since 1997. [221688]

Mr. Plaskitt: No. Children under the age of 16 are not entitled to receive jobseeker's allowance in their own right.

Motability: Finance

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the budget for the Motability scheme was in each year since 1997. [224090]

Mrs. McGuire [holding answer 17 September 2008]: Motability is an independent charitable company which is responsible for the Motability scheme. The Government do not provide any direct funding to the scheme.

Motability also administers the Specialised Vehicles Fund on behalf of the Government. This provides grants towards the cost of specially adapted vehicles for disabled people. My Department will contribute £19.996 million this year towards the cost of adaptations and administration costs.

Motability: Fraud

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) how many cases of fraud or misuse of the Motability scheme (a) were recorded and (b) led to cancellation of car hire contracts in each year since 1997; [224089]

(2) how many people used the Motability scheme in each year since 1997. [224091]

Mrs. McGuire [holding answer 17 September 2008]: Motability is an independent charitable company and is responsible for the administration of the Motability scheme.

The information in the following table has been provided by Motability.

	Number of customers using the scheme	Allegations of fraud or misuse recorded and investigated	Contracts cancelled as a result of fraud or misuse
1997	341,222	Not available	Not available
1998	359,289	Not available	Not available
1999	378,036	4,032	378
2000	388,761	2,107	253
2001	396,580	3,652	260
2002	398,744	3,728	249
2003	391,356	3,236	266
2004	391,548	2,896	140
2005	414,082	3,716	36
2006	438,290	2,704	197
2007	463,812	3,665	549
2008 (forecast)	490,000	3,750	550

1. Consistent and reliable records of the numbers of cases of possible fraud or misuse being recorded and investigated, and of the resulting numbers of customer contracts cancelled, are only available from 1999 onwards, after Motability established a centralised team to handle such matters in 1998.
2. The fall in the number of contracts cancelled as a result of misuse between 2003 and 2005 resulted from an increase in the standard mileage allowance in 2003 (hence fewer customer contracts being cancelled for unpaid excess mileage bills) and from an improved approach to "fair wear and tear" standards, especially for damage associated with mobility aids (fewer contracts being cancelled for cars falling outside of the condition standards).
3. The increase in customer contracts being cancelled since 2005 has resulted from a stronger focus on appropriate sanctions for customers using cars in any criminal activity or using cars outside of the insurance rules (e.g. allowing uninsured drivers).

Pathways to Work

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the answer of 16 June 2008, Official Report, column 733W, on employment and support allowance, how many benefit recipients have found work following participation in Pathways to Work; what the average expenditure under the programme per job for each such participant has been since inception; and what forecast he has made of the number of people expected to find work as a result of planned spending on Pathways to Work for each of the next three years. [216776]

Mr. Timms: At the end of April 2007, 94,230 individuals were recorded as having participated in Pathways to Work and subsequently entering work. This number relates to job entries from both mandatory and voluntary customers. The historical cost per job in Pathways to Work is around £2,500.

Planned spending is £300 million in 2008-09, £390 million in 2009-10 and £400 million in 2010-11. Figures provided, particularly for 2009-10 and 2010-11, are indicative allocations based on current assumptions and are subject to change.

We do not formally forecast Pathways jobs, which depend on a range of factors including macroeconomic conditions and other policy changes.

Pension Credit

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the number of pensioners eligible for the savings pension credit who have not claimed their entitlement. [222522]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: Latest estimates of the take-up rates, the number of pensioners who were entitled to but not claiming pension credit and the amount of pension credit unclaimed in Great Britain were published in the "Income Related Benefits Estimates of Take-Up in 2006-07" report. A copy of this report is available in the Library.

Shona McIsaac: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people in Cleethorpes constituency received pension credit in each year since 2003. [222786]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The information requested is in the following table.

Number of households recipients and individual beneficiaries of pension credit in Cleethorpes parliamentary constituency

November	Household recipients	Individual beneficiaries
2007	5,100	6,450
2006	5,090	6,490
2005	5,060	6,410
2004	4,900	6,180
2003	3,910	4,850

Notes:

1. The number of households in receipt are rounded to the nearest 10.
2. Household recipients are those people who claim pension credit either for themselves only or on behalf of a household.
3. Individual beneficiaries includes both claimants and their partners.

Pensioners: Council Tax

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Epsom and Ewell of 24 June 2008, Official Report, column 188W, on pensioners: council tax, how many pensioners living in poverty were liable to pay council tax at the full rate in 1997. [222971]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The information is not available in the form requested and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Pensions: Councillors

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions whether, under the terms of personal accounts, local authorities will be required to contribute to councillors' pensions in those areas which do not offer access to the Local Government Pension Scheme and in those cases where the councillor has not opted out of the scheme. [222988]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: As elected officials rather than employees of a local authority, councillors will not fall within the definition of worker that underpins the definition of jobholder. Councillors will therefore be beyond the scope of the forthcoming workplace pension reform.

Post Office Card Account

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions whether a person who has a bank account is permitted to open a Post Office card account; and if he will make a statement. [223743]

Mr. Plaskitt: Yes, they are.

Remploy

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what arrangements have been made for the continued employment of the Remploy workers whose work contracts at the Wirral Unilever plant have been lost; and if he will make a statement. [224474]

James Purnell: 31 employees have lost their contracts at Wirral Unilever. All employees will be offered help and support to find alternative employment through Remploy's Employment Services. Information about the outcomes of the employees is in the table.

Remploy Wirral Unilever workers outcomes

Number of workers	Outcome
25	Applied for Voluntary Redundancy. Will have support from Remploy Employment Services in finding alternative employment if they wish to.
1	On Annual Leave (it is believed the employee wants to take Voluntary Redundancy)
1	Transferred to a position with Remploy Employment Services
1	Returning to Remploy Birkenhead factory
3	Supported by Employment Services to find alternative employment. Will conduct intensive job searching activity over the next three months.

Schools

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will place in the Library a copy of any materials his Department has distributed to schools in the last three years. [222551]

Mrs. McGuire: The Department for Work and Pensions has not distributed any materials to schools during the last three years.

The DWP primarily delivers benefits and services to citizens of working age and of state pension age. While we do have early school leavers of 16 and 17 years who may be eligible for social security benefits, these individuals approach the Department direct.

Sick Pay

Ian Stewart: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment has been made of the efficacy of penalties which HM Revenue and Customs can impose on employers who do not co-operate over the payment of statutory sick pay; and what further measures are planned to secure prompt employer compliance. [224297]

Mrs. McGuire: The penalties which can be imposed on an employer for refusing or repeatedly refusing to pay statutory sick pay are up to a maximum of £3,000. The maximum weekly amount of statutory sick pay payable is £75.40; the maximum period for which this amount is payable is 28 weeks leading to a total maximum payment of just over £2,100. The level of penalties is therefore reasonable and Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs (HMRC) has no plans to revise them.

HMRC staff now refer to penalties in correspondence and phone calls relating to disputes where appropriate. Early indications are this prompts employers to respond to requests for information.

This Department and HMRC are jointly developing plans to co-ordinate better HMRC enforcement activities to encourage employer compliance with statutory sick pay processes.

Ian Stewart: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the average time taken is following the date of the original claim, for statutory sick pay to be paid to claimants; and what steps are being taken to reduce this time. [224298]

Mrs. McGuire: Information on the average time it takes employers to pay statutory sick pay is not available.

Employers are responsible for the payment and administration of statutory sick pay. They are required to pay their employee statutory sick pay at the same time as they would have paid wages for the same period. Employers are advised that delays in paying statutory sick pay may cause their employee financial difficulty.

Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs (HMRC), which has operational responsibility for statutory sick pay, carries out regular compliance checks.

This Department and HMRC work together to improve the service offered to both employees and employers across all aspects of statutory sick pay, including the disputes process.

Ian Stewart: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions whether compensation is paid to claimants who have to wait six months or more for their statutory sick pay. [224299]

Mrs. McGuire: The payment and administration of statutory sick pay are the responsibility of employers. There is no provision in statutory sick pay legislation for compensation to be paid by an employer to an employee for late payments. Any compensation for non-payment within a specific timescale is therefore a matter between the employer and their employee.

Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs (HMRC) handles disputes between employers and employees in relation to entitlement to statutory sick pay and may in some exceptional circumstances take on responsibility for paying Statutory Sick Pay in the case of defaulting employers or where employers are insolvent.

Where there is an unreasonable delay in a payment by HMRC of statutory sick pay, an ex gratia payment may be considered under the provisions of the HMRC complaints policy. There is no automatic right to such payments.

Sight Impaired: Disability Living Allowance

Jon Trickett: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the likely effects on the number of claimants of changing the criteria for partially and severely sight impaired people to claim the highest benefit band of the disability living allowance. [223549]

Mrs. McGuire [holding answer 15 September 2008]: The higher rate mobility component of disability living allowance may be paid to people who are unable or virtually unable to walk. At the end of February 2008 there were 1,723,150 people in receipt of the higher rate mobility component, 4,640 of whose main disabling condition is recorded as blindness.

If the entitlement conditions for the higher rate mobility component were amended to include all partially and severely sight impaired people we could expect the numbers in receipt of that component to increase by just over 60,000 to around 1,783,250. Most of those who would be newly entitled to the higher rate would be people who receive the lower rate mobility component at the moment.

Jon Trickett: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people are claiming disability living allowance for (a) partial and (b) severe sight impairment in (i) Wakefield district, (ii) Hemsworth constituency and (iii) nationally. [223550]

Mrs. McGuire [holding answer 15 September 2008]: The available information is in the following table.

Disability living allowance: main disabling condition of blindness

	Cases in payment: February 2008
Wakefield metropolitan district council	420
Hemsworth parliamentary constituency	110
Great Britain	64,730

Notes:
1. Figures are rounded to the nearest 10.
2. Totals show the number of people in receipt of an allowance, and exclude people with entitlement where the payment has been suspended, for example if they are in hospital.
3. Where the claimant is eligible for both care and mobility components, the disabling condition associated with the mobility component is shown here. Where more than one disability is present only the main disabling condition is recorded.
4. A diagnosed medical condition does not mean that someone is automatically entitled to DLA. Entitlement is dependent on an assessment of how much help someone needs with personal care and/or mobility because of their disability. These statistics are only collected for administrative purposes/
5. Partial and severe sight impairment cannot be separated individually.
6. These figures are published at www.nomisweb.com.

Notes:

1. There are not separate budgets for crisis loans and budgeting loans, but rather a combined loans budget for both. The loans budget is managed centrally and re-allocations are made to Jobcentre Plus budget areas quarterly and towards the end of the year. Funds are taken from some of those budget areas with a projected end of year underspend and given to other budget areas.
2. To provide comparable data, budgets are presented on the basis of the current budget area structure. In recent years, there have been many changes to the boundaries of Jobcentre Plus districts, which have led to adjustment of the budgets for the districts involved. In some cases, a district has been split and the parts merged with other districts. For the districts involved in such a situation it is not possible to give comparable budgets from April 2003. The last split took place in August 2006.
3. Community Care Grants for 2006-07 were set before the boundary change in August 2006 involving a split district, and so are not given here. Community Care Grants budgets are not reallocated during the year. However, some allocations were made from the Contingency Reserve in 2007-08. These have not been included. The budgets for 2008-09 are the same as for 2007-08.

Stress

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what arrangements his Department has in place to assist officials to overcome the effects of stress experienced in the workplace. [222166]

Mrs. McGuire: The Department for Work and Pensions (DWP) is committed to the well-being of its employees. It has a number of procedures in place to reduce stress at work. A stress management framework, based on the Health and Safety Executive's management standards, is available to all employees and gives easy to use advice on the successful prevention, recognition and management of stress at work.

In addition, DWP has an employee assistance programme, which is designed to offer individual staff and managers a confidential advice and support service on a wide range of issues, including work related stress. This service is available to all employees any time of day or night.

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much (a) his Department and (b) its agencies spent on taxis in the last financial year for which figures are available. [223036]

(2) what the cost of overtime payments paid to staff in her Office was in each of the last 12 months, broken down by pay grade. [221290]

ELECTORAL COMMISSION COMMITTEE

5th Avenue Partners

Mr. Hands: To ask the hon. Member for Gosport, representing the Speaker's Committee on the Electoral Commission when the Electoral Commission expects to complete its investigation of 5th Avenue Partners; and if he will make a statement. [221861]

Sir Peter Viggers: The Electoral Commission informs me that the position remains as stated in the answer I gave my hon. Friend the Member for North-East Hertfordshire (Mr. Heald) on 16 May 2007, Official Report, column 748W.

Departmental Buildings

James Duddridge: To ask the hon. Member for Gosport, representing the Speaker's Committee on the Electoral Commission pursuant to the answer to the right hon. Member for Horsham (Mr. Maude) of 2 July 2008, Official Report, column 901W, on departmental buildings, whether the Electoral Commission's landlord is a public sector body. [222219]

Sir Peter Viggers: The Electoral Commission informs me that the landlord of its London offices is a public sector body.

Fines

Norman Baker: To ask the hon. Member for Gosport, representing the Speaker's Committee on the Electoral Commission on how many occasions the Electoral Commission has imposed a fine in each year since its inception. [222969]

Sir Peter Viggers: The Electoral Commission informs me that it imposed no fines from 2001 to 2006, in line with its policy of encouraging political parties to develop the necessary procedures and expertise to comply with their legal obligations under the Political Parties, Elections and Referendums Act 2000.

In January 2007 the Commission put parties on notice that penalties would increasingly be imposed where there was the power to do so. Since then, 154 fines were imposed in 2007 and a further 94 in the period 1 January to 30 September 2008.

Political Parties, Elections and Referendums Act 2000

Norman Baker: To ask the hon. Member for Gosport, representing the Speaker's Committee on the Electoral Commission what recent assessment the Commission has made of (a) the appropriateness of the criminal offences established by the Political Parties, Elections and Referendums Act 2000 and (b) the merits of replacing those offences with a range of civil penalties. [222954]

Sir Peter Viggers: The Electoral Commission informs me that in July 2008 it published a paper titled "Party finance and expenditure in the United Kingdom: the Government's proposals—The Electoral Commission's response", a copy of which has been placed in the Library of the House. In that document the Commission reiterated its view that the introduction of a wider range of civil sanctions should complement rather than replace the existing criminal penalties regime in respect of offences under the Political Parties, Elections and Referendums Act 2000 (PPERA).

The Commission further informs me that it strongly supports the detailed proposals for civil sanctions which have since been set out in the Political Parties and Elections Bill. The Commission believes that the proposed regime will enable the Commission to regulate in a proportionate way in accordance with the Hampton principles of good regulatory practice.

Political Parties: Finance

Martin Linton: To ask the hon. Member for Gosport, representing the Speaker's Committee on the Electoral Commission how many letters of reprimand the Electoral Commission issued to regulated donees in each year from 2001 to 2007; how many such letters it has issued in 2008 to date; and how many of those related to late declarations in each such year. [221888]

Sir Peter Viggers: The Electoral Commission informs me that no letters of reprimand were issued to regulated donees for late reporting between 2001 and 2007. During this period, the Commission focused on providing guidance and advice. The Commission began to issue letters of reprimand to regulated donees in February 2008 and has issued 150 such letters for late reporting of donations up to 30 September 2008.

James Duddridge: To ask the hon. Member for Gosport, representing the Speaker's Committee on the Electoral Commission pursuant to the Ministerial Correction of 3 July 2008, Official Report, column 8MC, on political parties: finance, who took the operational decision to destroy the hard copy records; and for what reasons. [222220]

Sir Peter Viggers: The Electoral Commission informs me that in July 2005 the then Director of Regulatory Services ordered the destruction of hard copy records on the grounds that there was no current or future business need for them and they did not hold any historical value for the National Archives.

Norman Baker: To ask the hon. Member for Gosport, representing the Speaker's Committee on the Electoral Commission for what reasons the Commission has not published a list of regulated donees who have reported political donations (a) late and (b) on time since 2001. [222955]

Sir Peter Viggers: Schedule 7 to the Political Parties, Elections and Referendums Act 2000 (PPERA) requires all regulated donees to report all donations to the Commission within 30 days of accepting them if the value of the donation is above certain thresholds. The Electoral Commission informs me that between 2001 and 2007, the Commission's primary focus was on encouraging registered parties and regulated donees to comply with their statutory requirements. During that period, no record was kept of whether donations to regulated donees were reported late or on time.

The Commission now considers that parties and regulated donees have had sufficient time to acclimatise to the obligations placed upon them by the regulatory framework. Since 1 January 2008 all cases of late reporting have been identified and details have been published on the Commission's website.

Norman Baker: To ask the hon. Member for Gosport, representing the Speaker's Committee on the Electoral Commission pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Hayes and Harlington on 17 June 2008, Official Report, column 825W, on political parties: finances, (a) what and (b) how many documents the Electoral Commission has destroyed; how many of them were original regulated donee completed return forms; whether the information on these completed forms has been retained by the Commission; and what the reasons for the destruction were. [223082]

Sir Peter Viggers: The Electoral Commission informs me that in July 2005 the then Director of Regulatory Services ordered the destruction of certain hard copy records on the grounds that there was no current or future business need for them and they did not hold any historical value for the National Archives.

The paper files destroyed comprised: by-election expenses, party campaign expenditure, policy development grants records, donation returns for all candidates and parties during the years 2001 to 2003, and statements of accounts for all parties and accounting units for the years 2001-02.

The Commission further informs me that it does not hold information as to the exact number of documents destroyed or how many were original regulated donee forms. All information in these documents which the Commission is required to publish on its registers was retained and is available on its website at:

www.electoralcommission.org.uk.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the hon. Member for Gosport, representing the Speaker's Committee on the Electoral Commission with reference to the Electoral Commission's consultation paper on Standardising Statements of Accounts for Parties and Accounting Units, whether the Commission proposes that a compliance grant will be provided to political parties in the same manner as a PPERA compliance grant was provided. [223739]

Sir Peter Viggers: The Electoral Commission informs me that it has not proposed that a compliance grant be provided for political parties. The Commission informs me that whilst parties may have to bear some costs, these are expected to be modest and offset by the benefits as indicated in the consultation paper. The Commission will publish guidance and provide training for all parties in time for the preparation of the 2009 statements of accounts.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the hon. Member for Gosport, representing the Speaker's Committee on the Electoral Commission with reference to the Electoral Commission's consultation paper on Standardising Statements of Accounts for Parties and Accounting Units, what plans the Commission has to undertake audits of local accounting units; and whether the Commission proposes that the audits will be paid for by the Commission or the local party. [223740]

Sir Peter Viggers: The Electoral Commission informs me that under section 43 and schedule 5 of PPERA, registered parties and accounting units are required to have their accounts audited if:

their income or expenditure in any financial year exceeds £250,000, or their income or expenditure is lower than this but the Commission directs that their accounts should be audited.

Where a party or accounting unit does not carry out such an audit within the statutory time limits, the Electoral Commission may appoint an auditor and may recover the auditor's expenses including remuneration.

The Electoral Commission further informs me that it is currently developing an audit strategy which will include audits by the Commission of the accounts of registered parties and local accounting units whose income or expenditure in a financial year is lower than £250,000 where a risk assessment indicates that this is appropriate. The Commission is not proposing to recoup the costs of such audits.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the hon. Member for Gosport, representing the Speaker's Committee on the Electoral Commission with reference to the Electoral Commission's consultation paper on Standardising Statements of Accounts for Parties and Accounting Units, how many pages long the Commission estimates the supporting manual for local accounting units will be. [223741]

Sir Peter Viggers: The Electoral Commission informs me that it is not yet in a position to estimate the length of the guidance manual. The Commission will develop the guidance in discussion with party treasurers to ensure that it is as comprehensive and user-friendly as possible.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the hon. Member for Gosport, representing the Speaker's Committee on the Electoral Commission what role the Ministry of Justice played in the preparation of the Electoral Commission's consultation paper on Standardising Statements of Accounts for Parties and Accounting Units. [223742]

Sir Peter Viggers: The Electoral Commission informs me that the Ministry of Justice played no role in the preparation of the consultation paper 'Standardising Statements of Accounts for Parties and Accounting Units'.

John Bercow: To ask the hon. Member for Gosport, representing the Speaker's Committee on the Electoral Commission what criteria the Commission uses when deciding whether to refer to the police cases of regulated donees notifying it of late donations. [223903]

Sir Peter Viggers: The Electoral Commission informs me that the position remains as stated in the answer I gave the hon. Member for Leeds, North-East (Mr. Hamilton) on 27 March 2008, Official Report, column 349W.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the hon. Member for Gosport, representing the Speaker's Committee on the Electoral Commission with reference to the Electoral Commission's consultation paper on Standardising Statements of Accounts for Parties and Accounting Units, what the timetable is for the publication of the draft guidance and draft regulations; and whether the Commission will consult separately on the draft regulations and guidance. [224320]

Sir Peter Viggers: The Electoral Commission informs me that it will confirm the nature of any proposed new regulations, and the associated timetable for the publication of draft regulations and guidance, in the light of the public consultation which ended on 3 October 2008. If the Commission decides to proceed with the proposals set out in the consultation paper, it proposes to consult on the draft regulations and guidance with registered political parties and other stakeholders in November.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the hon. Member for Gosport, representing the Speaker's Committee on the Electoral Commission with reference to the Electoral Commission's consultation paper on Standardising Statements of Accounts for Parties and Accounting Units, what the (a) estimated compliance costs to political parties and (b) the estimated cost to public funds in terms of (i) set-up costs and (ii) ongoing regulatory costs of the proposals are. [224322]

Sir Peter Viggers: The Electoral Commission informs me that it has not quantified the estimated costs to political parties, but that it has set out its assumptions on the level of the costs and benefits in the draft impact assessment contained within the consultation paper 'Standardising Statements of Accounts for Parties and Accounting Units'. A copy of the Commission's consultation paper has been placed in the House of Commons Library.

The Commission has invited views on the draft impact assessment as part of its consultation, and will review any comments it receives and reflect any changes in the final impact assessment.

The Commission informs me that it estimates the set-up costs to public funds of implementing the proposals at approximately £90,000 and that it has allocated funds from its existing budget to cover these costs. The Commission does not expect implementation of the proposals to result in any significant additional ongoing cost to public funds.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the hon. Member for Gosport, representing the Speaker's Committee on the Electoral Commission with reference to the Electoral Commission's consultation paper on Standardising Statements of Accounts for Parties and Accounting Units, whether local accounting units will be obliged to report in their accounts donations in kind from their national political party. [224323]

Sir Peter Viggers: The Electoral Commission informs me that its consultation paper proposes that accounting units in receipt of transfers from the central party should show these in their statements of accounts as income (paragraph 4.9), and that gifts including gifts of services should be reported as income (paragraph 4.7). The Commission will consider the responses to these and its other proposals when considering the way forward.

A copy of the Commission's consultation paper, 'Standardising Statements of Accounts for Parties and Accounting Units' has been placed in the House of Commons Library.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the hon. Member for Gosport, representing the Speaker's Committee on the Electoral Commission with reference to the Electoral Commission's consultation paper on Standardising Statements of Accounts for Parties and Accounting Units, whether a full impact assessment for the proposals will be undertaken in line with the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform's Impact Assessment Guidance, including a small firm's impact assessment. [224324]

Sir Peter Viggers: The Electoral Commission informs me that it is committed to imposing the minimum necessary administrative burden on regulated bodies, in accordance with the principles of good regulation. The Commission's consultation paper included a draft impact assessment and invited views on its analysis. The Commission informs me that it will publish a final impact assessment after considering the consultation responses. The final assessment will include consideration of the issues covered by the Small Firms Impact Test where appropriate.

A copy of the Commission's consultation paper, 'Standardising Statements of Accounts for Parties and Accounting Units' has been placed in the House of Commons Library.

Powers

John Bercow: To ask the hon. Member for Gosport, representing the Speaker's Committee on the Electoral Commission what systems are in place to regulate the Electoral Commission's use of its powers. [223876]

Sir Peter Viggers: The Electoral Commission informs me that use of its powers is subject to judicial review.

Representation of the People Act 1983

Mrs. Lait: To ask the hon. Member for Gosport, representing the Speaker's Committee on the Electoral Commission what steps the Commission has taken to prepare guidance on matters falling within Schedule 4A of the Representation of the People Act 1983, as amended by the Electoral Administration Act 2006. [223068]

Sir Peter Viggers: The Electoral Commission informs me that it publishes guidance for candidates and agents in advance of each election, including guidance on matters falling within schedule 4A of the Representation of the People Act 1983. These guidance documents are not formal codes of practice of the kind described in paragraph 14 of Schedule 4A.

Copies of the guidance published for candidates and agents in the 2008 English local government and Greater London Authority elections have been placed in the Library of the House.

No agency properties were newly occupied and refurbished in the last 24 months.

Departmental Disciplinary Proceedings

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the five most serious disciplinary breaches in his Department were in the last 12 months; and what steps were taken in response to each breach. [223066]

Paul Goggins: The details of the five most serious breaches cannot be released because to do so might identify the individuals concerned.

The disciplinary offences the Department has dealt with in the past 12 months fall into three broad categories: fraud, email abuse and bad time-keeping.

The Northern Ireland Office takes any breach of discipline seriously and within the last 12 months five civil servants have been dismissed for serious disciplinary offences. When the circumstances of a disciplinary offence have not merited dismissal, individuals have been issued with a written warning. A written warning has a two-year life span during which the individual concerned has restrictions placed on them which include:

not being considered for promotion;

not being considered for temporary promotion opportunities that may arise; considered not to have satisfactory service if a departmental reference is requested.

The Civil Service Code and the Northern Ireland Office staff handbooks set out the standards of behaviour expected of all staff employed in the Department.

Departmental Information

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what types of data have been sold by (a) his Department and (b) its agencies under the Re-use of Public Sector Information Regulations in the last 12 months. [222148]

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what permanent residential accommodation is provided for use by civil servants in his Department; how many residential dwellings are provided; where they are located; and for what grade of civil servant they are provided. [222146]

Mr. Woodward: Where, for business reasons, staff are required by the Department to work away from their appointed office and commuting is not practical they are provided with accommodation. The total is as follows: London 18, Belfast four, Dundonald one, Holywood one and Helens Bay three. The standard provision is a flat but there are three houses in Northern Ireland. The properties are occupied by staff at all grades.

Departmental Procurement

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will place in the Library the names and addresses of each organisation that supplied goods and services to his Department in 2007-08, based on the purchase order data held in the Department's financial database. [222144]

Mr. Woodward: The Northern Ireland Office (NIO) would be able to provide the information requested only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Public Relations

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much (a) his Department and (b) its agencies spent on each of the external public relations and marketing companies included in the Central Office of Information's Public Relations Framework in each of the last 36 months. [222145]

[222139]

Paul Goggins: Figures on public authority use of covert techniques controlled by the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 ('RIPA') are published annually by the Interception of Communications Commissioner, the Chief Surveillance Commissioner and the Intelligence Services Commissioner who each have particular inspection and oversight responsibilities under RIPA. The latest reports were laid before Parliament and copies placed in the House Library on 22 July.

The figures provided in the reports are not broken down by individual public authority use of specific covert technique as, depending on the particular technique and authority using it, this could either reveal sensitivities or be misleading. The question of further disclosure for any particular public authority is a matter for the relevant Commissioner.

EU Law

Mr. Francois: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many officials in his Department are wholly or mainly tasked with the negotiation, implementation or the administration of EU legislation and consequent policies. [222275]

Paul Goggins: This Government are firmly committed to the importance of the EU in delivering on 21st century challenges. The EU is of central importance to the work of HM Government across all Departments. It is relevant to a wide range of policy areas, and to the work of many Government officials. As such, the specific information requested is not held centrally, and to provide it would involve disproportionate costs.

Fish

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much fish was procured by his Department and at what cost in each of the last five years, broken down by species; and what amount and value of such fish met the Marine Stewardship Council standard in each such year, broken down by species. [217889]

Paul Goggins: The Northern Ireland Office does not keep a record of the amount of expenditure on fish, the species purchased or whether it met the Marine Stewardship Council standard. This information could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Royal Ulster Constabulary: Reserve Forces

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what plans his Department has to recognise the service of the Royal Ulster Constabulary part-time Reserve; and if he will make a statement. [222907]

Mr. Woodward: The Royal Ulster Constabulary Part Time Reserve is already recognised by:

(i) the award of a long service medal after 15 years service;

(ii) payment of an Northern Ireland allowance (on a pro rata basis); and

(iii) a stakeholder pension scheme (since 2001).

Royal Ulster Constabulary: Special Branch

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many former RUC Special Branch officers (a) took early retirement and (b) transferred to other police forces in (i) 2007 and (ii) 2008. [223707]

The office also runs regular events to promote health and well-being.

Philip Davies: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many complaints were made by civil servants alleging breaches of the Civil Service code in each of the last 10 years. [222611]

Mr. Watson: Information on complaints received within Departments is not collected centrally.

The Civil Service Commissioners report on the number of appeals they have handled each year in their annual report. Copies of the Commissioners' annual reports for the period 1997-98 to 2007-08 are available in the Library and can also be obtained online at www.civilservicecommissioners.org.

James Duddridge: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what use (a) his Department and (b) its agencies make of (i) MOSAIC data and (ii) ACORN data. [221990]

Departmental Disciplinary Proceedings

Mr. Baron: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster (1) what the five most serious disciplinary breaches have been in his Department in the last 12 months; and what action was taken to correct the breach in each case; [222560]

(2) what the five most serious disciplinary breaches in the Prime Minister's Office were in the last 12 months; and what steps were taken in response to each breach. [223050]

Mr. Watson: There have been four cases where disciplinary charges have been proven in the Cabinet Office, which includes the Prime Minister's Office, within the last 12 months. To protect the privacy of individuals, and in accordance with statistical conventions, details have not been provided.

Where charges of misconduct have been proven, Cabinet Office employees are penalised in line with the Cabinet Office disciplinary policy. Penalties for serious or gross misconduct might include one or more of the following:

Formal written warning;

Downgrading;

Withdrawal or withholding of pay award and/or bonus awards;

Ban on promotion;

Loss of security clearance;

Removal from post attracting additional pay or allowances;

Suspension with no pay;

Dismissal.'

If a breach has occurred because of management failure or a weakness in policies or practice, a review is carried out and appropriate remedial action taken.

Departmental Retirement

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster pursuant to the answer of 9 July 2008, Official Report, column 1625W, on departmental retirement, how many requests to work beyond the standard retirement age were received by his Department in each of the last five years. [222432]

Mr. Watson: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for South-West Bedfordshire (Andrew Selous) on 25 October 2008, Official Report, column 488W.

Employment: Lincolnshire

Shona McIsaac: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many (a) part-time and (b) full-time jobs there were in (i) Cleethorpes constituency, (ii) North East Lincolnshire and (iii) North Lincolnshire in each year since 1997. [222784]

Mr. Watson: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the Authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 6 October 2008:

As National Statistician I have been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question on how many (a) part-time and (b) full-time jobs there were in (i) Cleethorpes constituency, (ii) North East Lincolnshire and (iii) North Lincolnshire in each year since 1997. (222784)

The Office for National Statistics compiles employment statistics for local areas from the Annual Population Survey (APS) and its predecessor the annual Labour Force Survey (LFS). This is the preferred source for estimates at the detailed level requested although the estimates refer to the number of people in employment rather than the number of jobs.

The attached table provides estimates of the number of people aged 16 and over, in full and part-time employment, resident in Cleethorpes, North East Lincolnshire and North Lincolnshire.

As these estimates are for a subset of the population in small geographical areas, they are based on small sample sizes, and are therefore subject to large margins of uncertainty.

Number of people, aged 16 and over, in full and part time[1] employment, resident in Cleethorpes parliamentary constituency[2], North East Lincolnshire[3] and the North Lincolnshire[3], 1998 - 2007.

EU Law

Mr. Francois: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many officials in his Department are wholly or mainly tasked with the negotiation, implementation or administration of EU legislation and consequent policies. [222276]

Mr. Watson: Staff in the European and Global Issues Secretariat work to co-ordinate the collective agreement of the Government's international economic and European policy. This includes negotiation, implementation and administration of EU legislation and consequent policies. At 31 March 2008 the Secretariat had 31 staff working in this context.

Local Government Finance

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Falmouth and Camborne of 12 June 2008, Official Report, column 498W, on local government finance, what assumptions about (a) local authority housebuilding rates and (b) the rate of net migration have been made in individual local authority projections for (i) 2008, (ii) 2009 and (iii) 2010. [222642]

Mr. Watson: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the Authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 6 October 2008:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your question about what assumptions about (a) local authority house-building rates and (b) the rate of net migration have been made in individual local authority projections for (i) 2008, (ii) 2009 and (iii) 2010, pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Falmouth and Camborne of 12 June 2008, Official Report, column 498W, on local government finance. [222642]

The subnational population projections are based on observed demographic trends. They provide the population levels and structure that would result if the recent trends in fertility, mortality and migration levels continue. No specific account is taken of house-building except as it may have already contributed to past population growth which feeds into the population projections.

The projections used in current local government finance settlements are the 2004-based revised sub-national population projections. On this basis, the net-migration estimates for 2008 and 2009 (but not 2010) are available on the ONS website:

http://www.statistics.gov.uk/downloads/theme_population/2004_BasedProj_Revised/18_Migration summaries_LAs.xls.

In June this year ONS published 2006-based projections, and the net-migration estimates for 2010 are available from this set of projections. However, these estimates were not available at the time of the local government finance settlements.

Ministerial Policy Advisers: By-elections

Mr. Baron: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster in what circumstances (a) special advisers and (b) civil servants may be seconded to work on by-election campaigns for a political party; and if he will make a statement. [220067]

Edward Miliband: The rules relating to the involvement of special advisers and other civil servants in political activities are set out in the Civil Service Management Code and the Code of Conduct for Special Advisers. The rules do not provide for special advisers or other civil servants to be seconded to a political party to work on a by-election campaign.

Prime Minister

James Duddridge: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what expenditure is made from the public purse for work related to the Prime Minister's personal appearance. [222214]

Mr. Watson: None.

Prime Minister: Pensions

Philip Davies: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if he will make a statement on the pension arrangements in place for the Prime Minister's Chief of Strategy and Principal Adviser. [222599]

Mr. Watson: The pension arrangements for special advisers are set out in the 'Model Contract for Special Advisers'.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Afghanistan: Overseas Aid

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development pursuant to the answer of 19 June 2008, Official Report, column 1165W, on Afghanistan: overseas aid, how much private sector investment he estimates will be committed to the Afghanistan Investment Climate Facility in the next 12 months. [223680]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: In the next 12 months the Department for International Development (DFID) expects private sector investors to commit approximately US $250,000 to the Afghanistan Investment Climate Facility for its first year of operation.

There are very few multinational companies operating in Afghanistan and the private sector remains small and underdeveloped. This investment will be a significant contribution in a challenging business environment where corporate social responsibility is an unfamiliar concept.

Africa: Education

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development (1) pursuant to the answer of 19 June 2008, Official Report, column 1184W, on UNICEF Go To School campaign, (1) what programmes his Department is funding to encourage increases in school attendances in African nations other than Sudan in 2008-09; [223682]

(2) pursuant to the answer of 19 June 2008, Official Report, columns 1167-8W, on Africa: females, what steps his Department is taking to support access to education of girls and women in Africa in 2008-09. [223685]

Gillian Merron: The Department for International Development's (DFID) work in the education sector in Africa is guided by the Millennium Development Goals (MDGs) which call for the achievement of universal primary education and for the promotion of gender equality and the empowerment of women. We plan to spend some £214 million bilaterally on education in Africa this year (2008-09). In addition, DFID provides core funding to a range of multilateral organisations who work to develop education in Africa. A large proportion of our bilateral support is routed through national budgets, notably in Nigeria, Ghana, Mozambique, Zambia, Kenya and Rwanda. This is in line with the Paris Declaration on Aid Effectiveness which calls for 50 per cent. of bilateral assistance to be channelled through country systems by means of long-term general budget or sector support. There is a particular emphasis throughout our education sector programmes on increasing school attendance, and a key part of this is getting more girls into school.

During the visit of President Sarkozy earlier this year, we agreed to work jointly with France to help get 16 million more children into school in Africa by 2010. We have also committed £150 million to the Education for All Fast Track Initiative for 2006-8 to help countries speed up the implementation of their education plans. The Fast Track Initiative is supporting education work in 18 Africa countries.

There is still a long way to go to achieve these MDGs in Africa, but there has been some worthwhile progress. Free primary education has brought millions of children into school: in Zambia and Tanzania, over 97 per cent. of children are now enrolled, with equal number of girls. In Lesotho, Rwanda, Uganda and Malawi gender parity rates have reached 98 per cent. or more. In Ethiopia, our support helped one million more children to enter school in 2006. In Malawi, providing better toilet facilities in schools and support to teenage mothers has improved school attendance by girls.

Our current work in the education sector across Africa is set out in the following table.

[1] SADC: Southern Africa Development Coordination Committee

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development pursuant to the Answer of 19 June 2008, Official Report, column 1184W, on UNICEF Go To School campaign, by how much school attendance in Southern Sudan has increased since the programme's inception; and what the programme's targets for further increases in school attendances in 2008-09 are. [223683]

Gillian Merron: By the end of 2007, the Government of South Sudan and UNICEF's 'Go To School' campaign produced an increase in school enrolment to 1.3 million children up from 850,000 when the campaign began two and a half years ago. The Government of South Sudan and UNICEF aim to increase this figure to 1.6 million enrolled by the end of 2008, 1.9 million by the end of 2009, and 2.5 million by 2012.

In March 2008, the Department for International Development (DFID) donated £1.2 million to purchase school materials in support of this important initiative.

Africa: EU Water Initiative

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development pursuant to the Answer of 19 June 2008, Official Report, column 1167W, on Africa: EU Water Initiative, what steps the EU Water Initiative Africa Working Group plans to take to improve coordination between donors, developing country governments and civil society organisations. [223686]

Gillian Merron: Improved co-ordination is a key aim of the EU Water Initiative Africa Working Group. The Group is an integral part of the EU Water Initiative's Multi-Stakeholder Forum. The composition of the Group also encourages co-ordination, through its rotating membership.

EU member states, the EC and other donors, such as the World Bank and the African Development Bank, participate in Africa Working Group key activities. Meetings are generally programmed as an integral part of major events, such as the recent World Water Week in Stockholm. The membership of the Africa Working Group management "Troika" rotates on a yearly basis between EU member states. This arrangement promotes a wide range of active involvement in the Group. For example, the UK co-Chairs the Group this year with the African Ministers Council for Water representative from Congo-Brazzaville and next year Austria will co-Chair with a South African representative. Country governments are involved in the Africa Working Group activities. For example, Ethiopia is a leader in the Group's country dialogue process which develops a strategic planning and financing framework for the water sector. Civil society, such as the Women for Water Partnership and the African Water Network, participate in regular events such as Africa Working Group meetings and the Multi-Stakeholder Forum.

Co-ordination will also be improved through the new communications strategy which we have funded through our support to the Africa Working Group "Troika". This strategy takes a comprehensive longer-term look at the Group's requirement.

Africa: Overseas Aid

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what funding his Department has allocated to the African Community Access Programme in each year since its inception; what percentage of that funding was administrative costs in each year; what private sector contractors are delivering the programme; and what the value of each contract is. [220538]

Mr. Malik: The African Community Access Programme (AFCAP) has a total Department for International Development (DFID) budget of £7.5 million over five years. The Programme Management contract was awarded to Crown Agents through competitive tender with a financial limit of £1.222 million over the first three years. The Programme formally began only in June 2008 and no disbursements have yet been made. The Management's initial task of identifying transport research projects in six African countries has recently begun; once these have been designed in collaboration with participating governments, invitations to tender for their implementation will be issued, and specific project costs will become available.

Africa: Regional Trade Facilitation Programme

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development pursuant to the answer of 19 June 2008, Official Report, column 1172W, on Africa: Regional Trade Facilitation Programme, how much export volumes have risen in total between 2005 and 2007 as a result of the programme. [223688]

Gillian Merron: The Regional Trade Facilitation Programme (RTFP) has been working at promoting trade through harmonisation of regional trade policy and trade facilitation. Through the RTFP there has been an increase of at least 1,278.4 metric tonnes between 2005 and 2007 on tea, coffee and nuts.

These can be broken down as follows:

	Metric Tonnes
Tea	600
Coffee	280
Mixed Nuts (including organic)	398.4

Africa: Rice

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much his Department has allocated to the Africa Rice Centre for its New Rice for Africa project in 2008-09; and what percentage of that expenditure is on administrative costs. [220539]

Mr. Thomas: This year the Department for International Development (DFID) will be making a grant of £500,000 for core funding to the African Rice Centre. It will not be earmarked. Depending upon the allocation of this grant by the centre to its different programmes some of this may be used to support the New Rice for Africa project. The percentage of the centre's overall expenditure of US$ 10,518,272 for 2007 spent on administrative costs was 24.7 per cent.

Africa: Trade

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development pursuant to the Answer of 19 June 2008, Official Report, column 1166W, on Africa: borders, what steps are being taken by his Department to facilitate trade across borders in parts of Africa other than southern Africa in 2008-09. [223687]

Gillian Merron: Outside Southern Africa, the Department for International Development's (DFID) work to facilitate cross-border trade is focused in East Africa (the East African Community (EAC)—Kenya, Uganda, Tanzania, Rwanda and Burundi). DFID is preparing a major new regional programme to facilitate trade by EAC member states. It will focus on expanding intra-regional trade through reducing the costs of trading across borders by supporting one stop border posts, customs reforms and the development of revenue sharing arrangements between countries.

DFID has already been helping the Government of Uganda to implement its EAC commitments and has supported the East African Business Council to undertake a study of the EAC Customs Union implementation. This highlights the major reforms necessary to reduce the barriers to trade across East Africa. As a result of this work, a notable success is the 24 hour opening of Mombassa port to allow for more efficient processing of containers.

Climate Change: Natural Disasters

Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps he is taking to integrate disaster risk reduction and climate change adaptation in his Department's work. [222482]

Gillian Merron: The Department for International Development's (DFID) 2006 White Paper stated that disaster risk reduction (DRR) is a crucial part of climate change adaptation. DFID's climate change implementation strategy incorporates DRR and recognises the need to draw on existing mechanisms to reduce risk when designing new programmes to adapt to climate change. The Bali Action Plan, which the UK signed up to last December, emphasises this when it refers to the importance of using "disaster reduction strategies to address loss and damage associated with climate change".

DFID is developing an integrated DRR and adaptation mainstreaming programme to be rolled out across the Department over the next year. We are also developing joint risk and vulnerability assessments, beginning in five countries in South Asia, to provide staff with the tools and skills needed to assess climate and disaster risk when designing development programmes.

DFID has also commissioned a review to assess how DRR and adaptation programming could be better aligned to identify mechanisms for joint funding and programming; and to make recommendations for addressing remaining gaps in the system. This work is in progress, but initial recommendations include: supporting more visible engagement of the DRR community in climate negotiations; promoting stronger convergence of the DRR and adaptation teams within DFID and multilateral agencies; and supporting the generation of integrated knowledge and guidance, including by documenting success stories of where integration has worked.

Climate Change: Non-governmental Organisations

Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps his Department is taking to ensure that scientific information on climate change is available for non-governmental organisations to incorporate into their work with vulnerable communities. [222481]

Gillian Merron: The Department for International Development (DFID) is working to ensure that adequate scientific information on climate change is available to all stakeholders working with vulnerable communities, including non-governmental organisations. Work we are currently supporting in this area includes:

The Climate Change Adaptation for Africa initiative (£24 million);

The Climate Information for Development Programme (ClimDev Africa);

Designing climate change adaptation programmes for the Latin American/Caribbean and Asian regions (up to £50 million);

A Chinese climate change adaptation programme, specifically aimed at improving science and information on climate change (£3 million from DFID and the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs); and DFID is also working to establish an international climate change centre or network to help address developing countries' knowledge and capacity gaps on climate change, as announced by the Secretary of State for International Development, at the Foreign Policy Centre on 6 February 2008.

Democratic Republic of Congo: Humanitarian Aid

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what recommendations for improving humanitarian response resulted from the field mission to Democratic Republic of Congo co-hosted by his Department; and how many such recommendations have been implemented. [224134]

Gillian Merron: Numerous field missions have come to the Democratic Republic of the Congo (DRC) in the past year: Office for the Coordination of Humanitarian Affairs (OCHA) donor Support Group, Pooled Fund Evaluation, Central Emergency Revolving Fund evaluation (CERF), and internal field missions undertaken by the in-country humanitarian team. Recommendations emanating from these missions include:

The need to strengthen the role of the Humanitarian Coordinator;

Better needs and gap identification;

Improved coordination between UN agencies and NGOs;

Donors to provide flexible, timely and unearmarked funding.

The Department for International Development (DFID) is at the forefront of humanitarian reform internationally and within DRC. In DRC, this has translated into the establishment of a common Humanitarian Pooled Fund in 2006 ($120 million from eight donors in 2008) to provide the Humanitarian Coordinator with funds to target critical needs; support for the design of the yearly DRC Humanitarian Action Plan that better defines need and strategic priorities and is more measurable; and support for the Cluster Lead Agency coordination system that brings NGOs and UN agencies together to determine priorities and strategy under a common framework. Although work remains to improve the humanitarian response, all above elements, with DFID support, are improving the timeliness, effectiveness and quality of humanitarian assistance provided in the DRC.

Departmental Air Travel

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development pursuant to the answer to the right hon. Member for Horsham (Mr. Maude) of 14 July 2008, Official Report, column 27W, on carbon emissions: Government Departments, how much air mileage incurred through departmental travel was used to calculate the departmental payment to the Government Carbon Offsetting Fund in each year that his Department has participated in the fund, broken down by (a) domestic, (b) short-haul and (c) long-haul flights. [222114]

Mr. Malik: Since the Government Carbon Offset Fund was established, the Department for International Development's (DFID) air mileage incurred through departmental travel was as follows:

	2006-07	2007-08
Short haul	5,964,021	6,320,553
Long haul	72,475,244	67,851,587
Domestic	[1]—	3,932,618

[1] Domestic was not separately identified in 2006-07.

Departmental Appeals

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development on how many occasions his Department has instructed the Treasury Solicitor to seek leave to appeal to the House of Lords from (a) the Court of Appeal and (b) the House of Lords itself in each of the last 10 years; and on how many occasions the application was rejected. [220825]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: Neither the Department for International Development nor the Treasury Solicitor keep central records and we have not been able to identify any cases to which the Secretary of State applied for leave to appeal to the House of Lords and was refused. We cannot, therefore, say whether there were any such cases and, if so, how many.

Departmental Buildings

Mr. Betts: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what his Department's policy is on improving the energy efficiency of the buildings which it (a) rents and (b) owns; what changes there have been in the energy efficiency of such buildings in the last (i) five and (ii) 10 years; and whether his Department has adopted targets on energy efficiency improvements in the buildings it occupies over the next (A) five and (B) 10 years. [221093]

Mr. Malik: The Department for International Development (DFID) is fully committed to the targets set out for sustainable operations on the Government estate. These include targets for carbon emissions from buildings and energy efficiency. It is not possible to directly compare their energy efficiency with five or 10 years ago, as we have both moved and expanded our offices over this period, and occupancy levels have increased as we have improved the effectiveness of the use of our estate, including closing our third office.

We are continuing to work towards the Government's long-term sustainable operations 2010 and 2020 targets, and will look to build on measures already taken such as changes to operational arrangements, more energy efficient equipment, and behavioural changes.

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development which organisations have received (a) free and (b) discounted room hire from (i) his Department and (ii) its agencies in each of the last five years; and what the commercial value of the discount was in each case. [221591]

Mr. Malik: The Department for International Development (DFID) does not provide free or discounted room hire for other organisations. We have no agencies which have property.

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what the location is of each office occupied by (a) his Department and (b) each of its agencies which has been (i) newly occupied and (ii) refurbished in the last 24 months; and what the floor area in square metres is of each. [222127]

Mr. Malik: The information requested is as follows:

Country office	Place	Classification	Completed	Square metres Total floor area
DFID Pakistan	Islamabad	New build and refurbishment	May 2006	1,192
DFID Ethiopia	Addis Ababa	New build	September 2006	1,354
DFID Sudan	Khartoum	New build and refurbishment	November 2007	679
DFID Afghanistan	Kabul	New build	August 2006	725
DFID Uganda	Kampala	New build	December 2007	1,340
DFID Nigeria	Kano	Refurbishment	October 2006	153
DFID Nigeria	Abuja	Refurbishment	July 2008	1,532
DFID Indonesia	Jakarta	Refurbishment	July 2008	186.19

Departmental Conferences

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development (1) what the (a) scheduled date and (b) title was of each conference proposed to be hosted by his Department which was cancelled before taking place in each of the last 10 years; and what costs were incurred in respect of each; [215183]

(2) if he will list the conferences hosted by his Department in each of the last two years; and what the cost was of each conference. [211686]

Gillian Merron: This information is not held centrally and would incur disproportionate costs to answer.

Departmental Databases

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what use his Department makes of (i) MOSAIC data and (ii) ACORN data. [222111]

Mr. Malik: The Department for International Department (DFID) and its agencies do not make direct use of MOSAIC or ACORN data.

Departmental Disciplinary Proceedings

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what the five most serious disciplinary breaches in his Department were in the last 12 months; and what steps were taken in response to each breach. [223062]

Gillian Merron: The five most serious disciplinary breaches in the Department for International Development (DFID) in the last 12 months, and the response to each, are set out in the following table.

Each case was handled following DFID's Disciplinary Procedures. These procedures can be accessed by all staff through Peoplesight, which provides online guidance for staff on human resources policies and procedures as part of our intranet site.

Disciplinary breach	Outcome
Gross misconduct	Dismissal
Fraud	Dismissal
Fraud	Dismissal
Fraud	Dismissal
Misconduct	Written warning

Departmental Information

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what types of data have been sold by his Department under the Re-use of Public Sector Information Regulations in the last 12 months. [222113]

Mr. Malik: Core information produced by the Department for International Development (DFID) can be reused free of charge under the terms of the Public Sector Information (PSI) Click-Use Licence which is administered by the Office of Public Sector Information in accordance with the Re-Use of Public Sector Information Regulations.

DFID and its agencies have sold no data under the Re-use of Public Sector Information Regulations in the last 12 months.

Departmental Manpower

Mr. Maude: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how many permanent staff in his Department are classed as (a) staff without posts and (b) part of a people action team. [215569]

Gillian Merron: The Department for International Development (DFID) operates a market based internal posting system and sometimes has people between posts for short periods. Currently there are no permanent members of staff classed as surplus or part of a people action team.

Departmental Official Hospitality

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much his Department spent on official entertainment in the UK in 2007-08; and what its expenditure on such entertainment is projected to be in 2008-09. [216318]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The Department for International Development's (DFID) total spend on entertainment within administration cost budgets for 2007-08 was £271,587. Projected expenditure for entertainment for 2008-09 is £253,007.

These figures include costs for working breakfasts and lunches, refreshments at meetings and official entertainment.

It is not possible to breakdown our costs to provide amounts spent in the UK only, without incurring a disproportionate cost.

All expenditure has been made in accordance with published departmental guidance on financial procedures and propriety.

Departmental Official Residences

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what permanent residential accommodation is provided for use by civil servants in his Department; how many residential dwellings are provided; where they are located; and for what grade of civil servant they are provided. [222112]

Mr. Malik: The Department for International Development (DFID) does not provide residential accommodation for any staff in the United Kingdom.

Accommodation is provided for all staff posted overseas, irrespective of grade. Information is not retained centrally about the location of these properties, but as at the end of June the number of UK-based staff working overseas was 391.

Departmental Pay

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much was claimed in reimbursable expenses by press officers in his Department in each of the last three financial years. [221175]

Gillian Merron: We are unable to provide this information on the grounds of disproportionate cost.

All reimbursable expenses are made in accordance with published departmental guidance on financial procedures and propriety, based on the principles of Managing Public Money and the Treasury handbook on Regularity and Propriety.

Departmental Procurement

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if he will place in the Library the names and addresses of each organisation that supplied goods and services to his Department in 2007-08, based on the purchase order data held in the Department's financial database. [222115]

Mr. Malik: It is not possible to disaggregate information on organisations from our creditors' index without incurring a disproportionate cost. The names of companies that have major contracts with us are published on the Department for International Development (DFID) website:

www.dfid.gov.uk

The addresses of these companies are available from Companies House:

http://www.companieshouse.gov.uk/.

Departmental Public Expenditure

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how his Department treats underspend in each individual annual country budget; and if he will make a statement. [224475]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: Expected underspends in individual annual country budgets are re-allocated to other programmes within the same financial year. If this is not possible, the underspends contribute to the Department's End of Year Flexibility entitlement.

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what the (a) underspend and (b) overspend on country budgets in his Department was in each of the last five years, broken down by county. [224511]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The following table shows underspends and overspends against budget for country programmes for the financial years 2003-04 to 2007-08.

Departmental Public Relations

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much his Department spent on each of the external public relations and marketing companies included in the Central Office of Information's Public Relations Framework in each of the last 36 months. [222110]

Gillian Merron: The information is as follows:

(a) The Department for International Development (DFID) has issued two contracts using the Central Office of Information's Public Relations Framework in the last 36 months:

1. In financial year 2005-06, DFID used Weber Shandwick Worldwide to provide support and deliver public relations support (in the UK and Asia, specifically India, Pakistan, Bangladesh and Nepal) to the Asia 2015 conference at a cost of £173,547.71 + VAT. The Asia 2015 conference, held in London on 6-7 March 2006 brought together key decision-makers from Asia and across the world to learn from Asia's success, and to identify future challenges and solutions.

2. In financial year 2007-08, DFID used Munro and Forster Communications Ltd. to develop and deliver public relations support for its caring consumer campaign at a cost of £84,961.59 +VAT.

(b) DFID does not have agencies.

Departmental Responsibilities

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development which projects his Department has commissioned from (a) think tanks and (b) charities in each of the last two years for which figures are available; what the aim of each project was; which think tank or charity was commissioned; and how much was paid. [221614]

Gillian Merron: The Department for International Development (DFID) does not have a working definition of 'think tank'. DFID provides funding to a number of organisations which may be involved in relevant activities, such as policy analysis and research. For example, DFID has a Programme Partnership Agreement with the Overseas Development Institute (ODI) for £3.4 million over 2008-11.

DFID also works with a number of other organisations, in the UK and in partner countries, involved in similar work but collation of a full list of relevant projects would incur disproportionate cost.

DFID provides funding to UK charitable civil society organisations (CSOs) in four ways:

Programme Partnership Agreements provide long-term, predictable funding to UK CSOs working in development;

Humanitarian assistance is provided to CSOs to provide relief in emergency situations;

The Civil Society Challenge Fund is open to CSOs working in development to bid for project specific funding of up to £500,000. Details on individual projects are available online at www.dfid.gov.uk;

Country programmes and central DFID departments may provide funding to, or procure the services of, CSOs working in developing countries to carry out development activities.

Summary figures on DFID funding to UK CSOs are provided in the following table. More detailed data, by organisation, is available in the DFID publications 'Statistics on International Development 2007' and 'Statistics on International Development 2008'. These publications are available online at www.dfid.gov.uk.

Departmental Retirement

Mr. Marsden: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development whether his Department has a mandatory retirement age; and how many employees were asked to retire on reaching 65 years of age in each year since 2000. [218207]

Mr. Malik: The Department for International Development (DFID) does not have a mandatory retirement age. It continues to observe the national default retirement age of 65.

With the implementation of the Employment Equality (Age) Regulations in October 2006, we introduced the Right to Request to Work Beyond Age 65 procedure. No requests have been denied under this procedure.

Since 2000, eight staff have retired at age 65 or above through personal choice.

Developing Countries: Natural Disasters

Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps he is taking to encourage the implementation of early warning systems for natural disasters in developing countries. [222480]

Mr. Thomas: The UK believes that the most effective early warning systems are those which are owned by national governments and involve vulnerable communities, rather than focusing only on developing high-tech equipment. Examples of Department for International Development (DFID) support include:

£1.5 million to the United Nations Secretariat of the International Strategy for Disaster Reduction (UN/ISDR) to support an Indian Ocean Tsunami Early Warning System (IOTWS).

£2.15 million to an International Federation of Red Cross and Red Crescent Societies (IFRC) disaster risk reduction programme which involved a component on early warning systems.

£7.5 million to Bangladesh (since 2004) to improve its early warning systems through a Comprehensive Disaster Management Programme. This programme, among other things, has established a Disaster Management Information Centre which in the coming period is expected to develop one nation-wide community early warning system, and implement training and simulation exercises with key technical and operational partners.

Developing Countries: Water

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what (a) projects and (b) research are being undertaken by his Department in its European co-ordinator role for water and sanitation research for developing countries. [220521]

Mr. Thomas: The Department for International Development (DFID) co-ordinates the four-year EU-funded project European Union Water Initiative European Research Area Network, EUWI ERANET and is working with its 15 European partners to:

1. Collate and synthesise information on European funded research programmes in developing countries. This aims to support collaboration between existing initiatives and projects.

2. Review research management practice, and develop guidance on good research management. This aims to improve the effectiveness of future programmes and activities.

3. Identify thematic priorities as a basis to develop future activities, jointly agreed and funded by the European partners. Planning work for future activities is currently being carried out.

Disabled

John Barrett: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps his Department is taking to ensure that the inclusion of disabled people is a key issue in each of its programme evaluations and reviews. [224468]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The Department for International Development (DFID) is responsible for undertaking a wide variety of reviews and evaluations of the work that we support throughout the developing world. This includes, for example, project reviews, country programme reviews and evaluations of DFID's partnerships, such as with United Nations agencies.

DFID's Evaluation Department is currently managing a stocktake of DFID's Social Exclusion policy, which will look into (among other things) how disability is addressed throughout our programmes, including through reviews and evaluations. We are also currently developing a cross-DFID policy on evaluation which will set principles, norms and standards for evaluations and reviews. There will be a public consultation on the draft policy document at the end of this year. In this context, we would welcome public views on how to tackle complex issues such as addressing the inclusion of disabled people on a more systematic basis in our reviews and evaluations.

Economic and Monetary Union

Mr. Maude: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development on what date the euro changeover plan of his Department was last updated; and if he will place in the Library a copy of the most recent version. [215689]

Mr. Malik: The Department for International Development's (DFID) Euro Programme Initiation Document (PID) is dated May 2005. The most recent review was in May 2007. A copy will be placed in the Library.

EDF Energy

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what contracts his Department has with EDF; and how much his Department paid to EDF in each of the last 10 years, broken down by the purpose of the payment. [221846]

Mr. Malik: The Department for International Development (DFID) has had three contracts with EDF for the supply of electricity. The payments made on those contracts are as follows:

Environment Protection: Overseas Aid

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what bodies will receive funding from the £24 million allocated to eliminate illegal logging; what proportion each will receive; and what steps will be taken to eliminate such logging. [224140]

Mr. Thomas: The bulk of the £24 million—£19 million—is the UK's contribution to implementation of Voluntary Partnership Agreements under the EU's Forest Law Enforcement Governance and Trade (FLEGT) Action Plan. These agreements will support improved forest governance in timber producing countries and implement a licensing scheme to ensure that their timber trade with the EU is legal. £12 million is for West and Central African countries and £7 million for Asian countries. Funds will go to both Government agencies and civil society organisations in these countries with allocation in each varying according to their specific programmes. The remaining £5 million is for international supporting actions, including policy research and support to civil society (approximately £1.326 million allocated to date), involvement of the private sector (£901,000 allocated to date), work with major non-EU timber importing countries (£233,000 allocated to date), and general programme coordination (£558,000 allocated to date). Further information is available on the Department for International Development website at:

www.dfid.gov.uk/mdg/forest-govern-trade2.asp

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what programmes will be funded by the £5 million committed to harmonise and strengthen international efforts for the creation of a favourable business climate in major timber producing countries. [224141]

Mr. Thomas: Grants to date for the private sector work have totalled approximately £901,000. These have included a grant to the UK Timber Trade Federation to work with its own members and with sister associations in the UK and other countries to adopt policies and practices that favour trade in legal and sustainable timber; support to WWF's Global Forest Trade Network to link businesses working to produce legal and sustainable timber in China and Ghana; and support for implementation of the UK's public timber procurement policy.

Grants and contracts for policy research, communications and advocacy work have totalled approximately £1.326 million to date. This has included meetings and research conducted by Chatham House; development of briefing notes to explain the EU Forest Law Enforcement, Governance and Trade Action Plan; support for production of short films and booklets about the problem of illegal logging and solutions to it; support for a civil society network between countries negotiating voluntary partnership agreements with the EU; and contribution to the European Forestry Institute to support the European Commission in negotiating and implementing voluntary partnership agreements.

Grants for work with major timber importing countries have totalled £233,000 to date. This has included support to the GLOBE Dialogue on Illegal logging associated with Japan's G8 Summit and initiation of work with India. It has also included government-to-government dialogue with the United States, Japan, China and other EU member states.

Commitments to date on programme coordination has totalled approximately £558,000. This has included fees for a programme facilitator, and annual independent programme monitoring.

Ethiopia: Overseas Aid

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what the reasons are for the amount of development aid and assistance allocated to (a) Ethiopia and (b) Eritrea in (i) 2006-07, (ii) 2007-08 and (iii) 2008-09. [222664]

Gillian Merron: UK Aid to Ethiopia was: £90.5 million in 2006-07 and £139.5 million in 2007-08 and is budgeted to be £140 million in 2008-09. These allocations have been made in recognition of the needs of the large poor population and the Government of Ethiopia's commitment to poverty reduction, strong financial management capacity and programmes to improve capacity. The UK Government have been able to establish a strong development partnership that is delivering real impact in terms of better service delivery and poverty reduction.

UK Aid to Eritrea was £3.49 million in 2006-07 and £3.37 million in 2007-08 and is budgeted to be £2.1 million in 2008-09. UK Government assistance is limited to a humanitarian programme, which is channelled through international relief agencies. The UK Government do not have a development programme in Eritrea because it has not been possible to establish a development partnership with the Eritrean Government.

EU Law

Mr. Francois: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how many officials in his Department are wholly or mainly tasked with the negotiation, implementation or administration of EU legislation and consequent policies. [222267]

Mr. Thomas: The Department for International Development (DFID) has a core Department of 20 staff working exclusively on European Union (EU) aid policy and implementation. This includes two posts in the United Kingdom Permanent Representative to the EU (in Brussels). In addition, a variety of other departments in DFID deal with specific issues to which EU policy is relevant, including: trade, migration, aid effectiveness, climate change and preparation of the EU-Africa strategy. None of these other departments, however, are exclusively EU focused.

Global Cluster Appeal

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assessment he has made of the extent to which the independent evaluation conducted by the emergency relief co-ordinator concluded that the cluster approach designating a particular organisation to lead the humanitarian response in a given sector of aid improved the efficiency of the humanitarian effort. [224133]

Mr. Thomas: An independent evaluation of the cluster approach was carried out in 2007. The review found that

"Most evident were improvements made in filling gaps and extending capacity. Predictability of leadership was also considerably enhanced by lead agencies accepting responsibility for the totality of their sectors."

The Department for International Development (DFID) continues to work with the Emergency Relief Coordinator, Sir John Holmes, the UN Office for the Coordination of Humanitarian Affairs (OCHA) and lead agencies at both policy and operational levels to ensure cluster leadership responsibilities are a core function of their organisation.

Government Communications

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how many staff in (a) his Department and (b) its agencies (i) are classified as Government communicators and (ii) have access to the Government Communication Network. [215109]

Gillian Merron: Communication is integral to the Department for International Development's (DFID) mission. We do not keep central records of all staff working on communications across the Department and this information could not be gathered without incurring disproportionate costs. DFID does not have any agencies.

All staff who work in a communication role can access the Government Communication Network (GCN) and the resources that it provides.

Horn of Africa: Food Aid

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what estimate his Department has made of the number of people likely to be dependent on emergency food aid in the Horn of Africa in the period from 2008-09. [216295]

Gillian Merron: Analysis made by the United Nations Office for the Co-ordination of Humanitarian Assistance (UNOCHA), drawing on a range of assessments made by UN agencies and NGOs, suggests that at least 17 million people are currently in urgent need of food and other humanitarian assistance. This is a result of conflict, forced displacement, starvation and disease, poor agro-climatic conditions and high food and fuel prices. This analysis is supported by Department for International Development (DFID) humanitarian experts who have visited some of the worst affected areas in the Horn in the past two months.

Prospects for 2009 depend on the harvests and condition of pasture lands, and these in turn depend on the rains. In south east Ethiopia and Somalia the level of insecurity is an important determinant of the level of humanitarian needs.

Humanitarian Aid

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much core funding has been provided by his Department to humanitarian agencies for 2008-09. [224135]

Mr. Thomas: With increasing humanitarian needs and the requirement for a stronger global system, the Department for International Development (DFID) works with multilateral agencies to enhance their effectiveness in providing humanitarian support and response. Core funding arrangements, which are linked to additional performance, are currently in place with the: International Organisation for Migration (IOM), UN Children's Fund (UNICEF), Office for the Co-ordinator for Humanitarian Affairs (OCHA), World Food Programme (WFP), UN High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR), and International Federation of Red Cross (IFRC). Total funding for these agencies for 2008-09 is £39 million.

Indian Ocean Tsunami

John Battle: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what funds his Department has disbursed to Sri Lanka for reconstruction assistance since the tsunami; what recent changes have been made to the disbursement; and if he will make a statement. [220718]

Mr. Malik: During the period 2006-07, as part of our post-tsunami reconstruction, the Department for International Development (DFID) provided £2 million bilateral funds, supporting work on local economic governance and improving the management of recovery and reconstruction.

£1.5 million was allocated for the North East Provincial Council to empower communities and improve service delivery in the North East by strengthening local government capacity.

£0.5 million was allocated to the Asia Foundation to improve the overall business environment, contributing to improved welfare and political stability in multi-ethnic and tsunami-affected areas of the country.

DFID's bilateral development programme in Sri Lanka has now closed and our funding (£1.5 million per year) is now focussed through the Global Conflict Prevention Pool (GCCP) working with the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) and the Ministry of Defence (MOD) to support peace building activities in Sri Lanka.

Iraq: Reconstruction

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development pursuant to the answer of 18 June 2008, Official Report, column 1040W, on Iraq: reconstruction, what the 10 largest infrastructure projects in Southern Iraq supported by his Department are; and to what extent his Department has engaged local residents to assist in the provision of security for such projects. [223859]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The information requested is as follows:

Project description	Amount (£)
Refurbishment of electricity transmission and distribution networks and of water treatment plants and pumping stations.	20.0 million
Provision of emergency infrastructure support and employment generation in Basra, Al Muthanna, Dhi Qar and Maysan.	16.5 million
Construction of three 25m water towers and three 8000 cubic meter water reservoirs.	10.0 million
Refurbishment of a pumping station to boost the oil pressure that feeds three power stations in southern/central Iraq.	9.2 million
Refurbishment of 48 public buildings across Southern Iraq, including hospitals, universities and governorate offices.	7.7 million
Provision of six new blades for two damaged turbines at Khor Az Zubayr power station in southern Iraq.	4.0 million
Repair of one of the 90m chimneys at Al-Hartha power station, north of Basra.	1.6 million
Refurbishment of a reverse osmosis water purification unit and replacement or repair of two water filter membranes.	650,000
Construction of a training centre to train water technicians to repair and maintain southern Iraq's water infrastructure.	334,000
Replacement of 15 water pumps and refurbishment of 7 pumps at Al-Hartha pumping station.	315,000

To ensure the security of infrastructure projects, DFID has engaged the government of Iraq or local communities as appropriate. The majority of projects have been situated within existing government of Iraq facilities and DFID has therefore agreed security arrangements with the relevant government ministry. In other cases, because of the benefit projects will bring to the local community, tribal leaders have agreed to ensure the security of sites.

Lebanon: Land Mines

Tom Levitt: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what work has been undertaken on UK funded operations to clear land mines in south Lebanon; and what plans there are for further such work. [223735]

Mr. Thomas: In immediate response to the conflict in the Lebanon in 2006 the UK Government provided funds of over £3 million to clear mines, cluster munitions and other remnants of conflict in south Lebanon by the United Nations Mine Action Service (UNMAS) and Mines Action Group (MAG). Our commitment continues, with around £1 million committed to fund the work of UNMAS and MAG in south Lebanon over the next two years.

Maldives: Overseas Aid

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what aid his Department provided to the Maldives in (a) 2005-06, (b) 2006-07 and (c) 2007-08; how much it plans to provide in 2008-09; and if he will make a statement. [216345]

Mr. Malik: In 2005-06 Department for International Development (DFID) bilateral overseas development assistance (ODA) to the Maldives was £1 million. In 2005-06 the UK also provided £5.5 million to the United Nations Development Programme's (UNDP) Tsunami Recovery Programme. This included £5 million through the Office for the Coordination of Humanitarian Affairs (OCHA). The funds have supported four of UNDP's five tsunami projects; shelter, livelihoods, disaster risk management and aid co-ordination.

Since 2005-06 DFID has not provided any bilateral overseas development assistance to the Maldives. However, DFID continues to provide support to the Maldives through its contribution to the European Community (EC). The amount of EC Aid provided by DFID to the Maldives in 2005 was £131,529, £915,020 in 2006, and £620,902 in 2007. There are no data available yet for 2008.

Overseas Aid

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what programmes his Department is providing with the UN Development Programme to create stable states; how much has been allocated to these programmes in 2008-09; what the administrative costs associated with these programmes will be in 2008-09; and what mechanisms his Department has to evaluate the effectiveness of its bilateral aid aimed at facilitating stability in fragile states. [220387]

Mr. Malik: The Department for International Development (DFID) supports UNDP with core funding (£190 million in 2004-07), as well as supporting specific initiatives, such as the UNDP's Bureau for Crisis Prevention and Recovery (BCPR), and our country programme work. For example, this year DFID gave £200,000 to a UNDP trust fund that supported Kofi Annan's role in helping resolve the post-election crisis in Kenya. It is not yet possible to provide figures for financial year 2008-09 or an administration cost breakdown. UNDP's administration costs vary according to the programme and context, but the amount in many agreements is between 7 and 11 per cent.

DFID has procedures for routinely assessing aid programmes and has adapted the normal framework for its Country Programme Evaluations to take account of the specific requirements for aid effectiveness in fragile states, following the OECD-DAC Principles for Good International Engagement in fragile states.

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what programmes were funded by the £13.5 million contributed by his Department to the Civil Society Challenge Fund; and what the administrative costs associated with each programme were. [220449]

Mr. Malik: A table listing the 163 programmes supported by £13.5 million from the Civil Society Challenge Fund (CSCF) during 2006-07 will be placed in the Library.

The Department for International Development (DFID) does not track administrative costs for each individual CSCF programme. During 2006-07, DFID's administrative cost for consultancy support to the CSCF as a whole was £227,518.

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much has been allocated by his Department to joint funding schemes with the research councils in 2008-09; and how much his Department will spend on administration of such schemes in 2008-09. [220525]

Mr. Malik: The Department for International Development (DFID) has joint funding schemes with four Research Councils. We estimate that spend on these programmes this financial year will be as shown in the following table.

Programme	£ million
Medical Research Council	5.4
Joint Natural Environment Research Council/Economic and Social Research Council Eco Systems Programme	0.5
Economic and Social Research Council	3
Biology and Biological Sciences Research Council	1.7

The DFID cost of administering these schemes is estimated at 2 to 3 per cent.

Pakistan: Overseas Aid

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development pursuant to the answer of 19 June 2008, Official Report, column 1183W, on Pakistan: overseas aid, how much his Department is planning to spend on national health programmes in Pakistan during 2008-09; and how this funding will be distributed. [223679]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The Department for International Development (DFID) is planning to spend approximately £35.6 million on national health programmes in Pakistan between April 2008 and March 2009. This will be distributed in a variety of ways, including:

(i) £15 million to the Ministry of Health for implementation of the national health facility (NHF). This supports seven priority national health programmes:

HIV/AIDs, TB and Malaria control, Nutrition, Immunization, access to basic health care and family planning from female health workers, and a Population and Welfare programme.

(ii) £10.7 million to the Ministry of Health's Maternal and New Born Health (MNH) programme.

(iii) Approximately £1.6 million for research, advocacy, monitoring and capacity building support in managing the NHF and MNH programmes.

(iv) £3.3 million support to National and Provincial HIV/AIDS prevention and treatment programmes (provided through a World Bank Trust Fund)

(v) £5 million to the World Health Organisation and UNICEF to support the national polio eradication programme.

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development pursuant to the Answer of 18 June 2008, Official Report, columns 1044-45W, on South Asia: tuberculosis, what the seven national health programmes his Department supports in Pakistan are; and on what initiatives his Department's contribution of £15 million to support the national programme between 2005 and 2008 has been spent. [223853]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The Department for International Development (DFID) is supporting priority national health and population welfare programmes in Pakistan through the National Health Facility. These are: Lady Health Workers, Population Welfare, Immunisation, Nutrition, TB, Malaria and HIV/AIDS.

DFID's financial contribution between financial years 2005-06 and 2007-08 totalled £52.5 million. This funding was disbursed to all seven programmes. It has helped achieve the following health outcomes in Pakistan for the period 2002-07:

The TB Programme has reached a target of 87 per cent. of cases successfully treated, three years ahead of schedule; case detection rates have also increased sharply, to 69 per cent. in 2007 and are also likely to reach the 2010 target (70 per cent.) ahead of schedule. (Source: National TB Control Programme Management Information System, 2007)

450,000 more cases of malaria confirmed and treated (Source: Malaria Control Programme Management Information System, 2007).

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development pursuant to the answer of 18 June 2008, Official Report, columns 1041-42W, on Pakistan: overseas aid, which of the 10 largest programmes supported by his Department in Pakistan in 2007 have continued in 2008; how much his Department is contributing to each in 2008; and when (a) the Earthquake Reconstruction and Rehabilitation programme and (b) other short-term programmes are expected to be completed. [223854]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: In 2008-09 DFID is planning to continue providing support to all but one (the Faisalabad Area Upgrade Programme) of the 10 programmes referred to in our answer of 18 June 2008, Official Report, columns 1041-42W.

The current 2008-09 forecast for our 10 largest programmes is as follows (note this is subject to change, and it is difficult for us to provide a full breakdown by calendar year):

	Amount
General Budget Support	20,000,000
Pakistan Earthquake Reconstruction and Rehabilitation	19,500,000
National Health Facility	15,000,000
Strengthening Education in Pakistan	11,800,000
Maternal and Newborn Health	700,000
Financial Inclusion Programme	10,000,000
Polio Programme	5,000,000
HIV/AIDS Programme	3,000,000
Humanitarian Assistance to Flood Victims and Internally Displaced People	3,000,000
Devolved Social Services Programme Financial Support	2,500,000

The Earthquake Rehabilitation programme is currently scheduled to end in April 2010 and is subject to approval. Other projects supporting pro-poor growth, social protection and the elections are also scheduled for completion, though we will follow up with further diagnostic work.

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development pursuant to the answer of 18 June 2008, Official Report, column 1041W, on Pakistan: overseas aid, to what extent his Department may determine the ways in which the State Bank allocates the £50 million provided for Pakistan's Financial Inclusion Programme; what the primary aims of the programme are; and what outcomes from the programme his Department expects. [223856]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The Pakistan Financial Inclusion Programme (FIP), designed by the State Bank of Pakistan and the Department for International Development (DFID), has a joint Steering Committee which makes all key strategic decisions.

The purpose of the FIP is to ensure that more poor people benefit from the provision of financial services in Pakistan. It aims to increase the number of microfinance users from 1.4 million to 3.0 million by 2010 and to 5.0 million by 2012. It will improve the regulatory framework for private financial service provision, strengthen public private partnerships, and ensure the effective use of technology in ways that will help benefit excluded groups. It will also help mobilise up to £50 million from the private financial sector to help improve access to finance, including in rural areas.

Remittances Task Force

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what (a) financial and (b) other support his Department is providing to the Remittances Task Force in 2008-09; and what assessment he has made of the economic effect of remittances from the UK on developing countries. [220541]

Mr. Malik: The UK Remittances Task Force was set up in 2006, with support from the Department for International Development (DFID), to pursue the Key Findings and Recommendations of the UK Remittances Working Group. Originally set at 12 months, our support to the Task Force has been extended already as a response to the need for further work to fully achieve its objectives. DFID's financial support to the Task Force is £23,600 from March to December 2008. DFID also provides advice to the Task Force and regularly dialogues with its Steering Committee. We will continue to review this support on an ongoing, needs assessed basis.

Estimates suggest that remittances from the UK are upwards of £2.7 billion, with the largest flows going to Nigeria, India, Pakistan, Jamaica and Ghana. DFID recognises the positive impact that these money transfers can make on people's lives in developing countries, and has an active agenda to improve the developmental impact of remittances, seeking to help make remittances cheaper, safer and more accessible. When responding to a DFID funded survey in the UK, almost a third of remittance senders said that their money would be used to buy food, a fifth said it would help with medical bills and one in six reported that the funds would help pay for schooling. 80 per cent. of those surveyed said the money would make a real difference to the lives of their relatives back home.

Sierra Leone: Females

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development pursuant to the answer of 19 June 2008, Official Report, column 1183W on Sierra Leone: human rights, what further steps the government of Sierra Leone plans to take to encourage more women to vote and to stand as candidates for election; and what steps his Department plans to take to support this process. [223692]

Gillian Merron: In preparation for the local elections in July 2008 the Government of Sierra Leone (GoSL) carried out a mapping exercise of female candidates to guide the development of focused support programmes. These aimed to motivate and enhance their skills in areas that included; developing their own manifestos and agendas; advocacy/lobbying; overcoming intimidation from males; and public speaking.

The GoSL also worked closely with non-governmental organisation (NGO) partners such as the National Democratic Institute (NDI), 50-50 Women's Group and the National Accountability Group (NAG) to develop and carry out specific training focused on the empowerment of female candidates. Some of these NGOs are being funded by DFID under an umbrella programme Promoting Voice and Transparency around elections (PIVOT).

The results of the council elections show a 100 per cent. increase in the number of successful female councillors, from 9 per cent. to 18.9 per cent.

Sierra Leone: Human Rights

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development pursuant to the answer of 19 June 2008, Official Report, column 1183W on Sierra Leone: human rights, when he expects the government of Sierra Leone to undertake formal assessment of progress of the study as a whole. [223691]

Gillian Merron: The Department for International Development understands that a review of the study prepared by the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD) will be undertaken by the UN co-ordinated gender focus group. This forum was established to monitor the implementation of the Government's Poverty Reduction Strategy Paper. A date is yet to have been agreed.

Sierra Leone: Water

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development to what agencies the £32 million was allocated for providing water and sanitation services in Sierra Leone. [224143]

Gillian Merron: The principal partner for this nationwide programme is the Government of Sierra Leone—primarily the Ministries of Energy and Power, the Ministry of Finance and Economic Development at the national level and the district councils at the local level. We are also working with UNICEF and non-governmental organisations which include PLAN, Oxfam, and Goal.

Stress

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what arrangements his Department has in place to assist officials to overcome the effects of stress experienced in the workplace. [222169]

Gillian Merron: The Department for International Development is committed to the well-being of its employees and has a number of procedures in place to help reduce stress at work. A stress management framework, part of our Better Balance initiative, is available through a dedicated website on the Department's intranet. It gives all employees easy to use advice on the successful prevention, recognition and management of stress at work.

Better Balance brings together the "toolkit" for dealing with all aspects of managing pressure at work, stress and work/life balance. Some examples of assistance include:

UK-based staff can access the Heath and Wellbeing Team who can provide individual counselling and coaching services to staff to support them in managing pressure and stress at work;

All staff working overseas have access to a 24/7 counselling service;

Debriefing and counselling arrangements are available for staff working in hostile environments;

Better Balance workshops on managing work/life balance under pressure and which can be tailored to specific teams;

An interactive health and emotional well-being website, provided by the counselling services and written by medically qualified professionals, that gives advice on all aspects of physical and emotional well-being;

Leadership Impact reports for senior managers, helping them to understand the likely impact of their leadership style on the levels of engagement, well-being and performance in their workgroup;

Access to Occupational Health Services.

Taxis

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much his Department spent on taxis in the last financial year for which figures are available. [223034]

Mr. Malik: It is not possible to disaggregate costs in respect of taxis across all offices of the Department for International Development (DFID) without incurring a disproportionate cost. The figure available for UK based staff costs in relation to taxis, for financial year 2007-08, was £195,483.

Thailand: Refugees

Mr. Andrew Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps he has taken to raise concerns with the Royal Thai Government on the recent deportation of Karen refugees, including women and children, to Burma from camps in Thailand. [222582]

Mr. Malik: The UK Government is aware of recent reports of forced returns of Karen refugees from Thailand to Burma. The British embassy and Department for International Development officials in Bangkok frequently raise refugee welfare issues with the Royal Thai Government, most recently in August 2008.

In 2008-09 DFID is providing £1 million to the Thailand Burma Border Consortium for its work supporting Burmese refugees in Thailand and internally displaced people inside Burma. This is a 30 per cent. increase on our 2007-08 contribution. In addition, DFID will provide £550,000 for assistance to internally displaced people through community-based organisations inside Burma, an increase of £150,000 over 2007-08. This aid will reach over 100,000 displaced people, mostly in Karen communities, living near Burma's border with Thailand.

The UK Government condemns the continuing human rights abuse inflicted by the Burmese regime on its people, including ethnic groups such as the Karen. A political settlement acceptable to the ethnic nationalities is key to a durable solution to Burma's problems. The UK Government frequently brings reports of human rights abuse to the attention of the international community, the United Nations and the Human Rights Council.

UN Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities

John Barrett: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how he plans to ensure that his Department meets its obligation under the Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities to (a) make development assistance inclusive and (b) include disabled people in all programme evaluations and reviews on ratification of the Convention. [218193]

Mr. Malik: The information is as follows.

(a) Inclusive development assistance

The Department for International Development (DFID) is aware of the importance of international cooperation as stated in Article 32 of the UN Convention. We understand the need to find ways to promote the inclusion of disabled people into mainstream development as well as looking for ways to build the capacity of representative organisations of disabled people. Our Civil Society Challenge Fund identifies disability as a cross-cutting issue so all applications need to demonstrate how they are engaging with disabled people. The latest round of applications saw a record number of projects with disability as the main focus (22 out of 145) which indicates that more international organisations are becoming aware of the need to promote the rights of disabled people.

We are supporting several initiatives aimed at increasing the capacity of disabled people's organisations. We have a Programme Partnership Agreement (PPA) with UK-based Action on Disability and Development which is working directly with disabled people's organisations (DPOs) in eight countries across Africa and Asia. Recently we also committed to providing substantial support to a new Disability Rights Fund (DRF) set up to empower DPOs to participate effectively in the implementation and monitoring mechanisms set out in the UN Convention. This is one of the first foundations to support organisations run by disabled people in the developing world.

As suggested by Article 32 DFID is also looking at ways to increase the amount of disability related research. We are currently funding the Southern Africa Federation of Disabled People Research Project (SRP) which is an innovative project designed and run by disabled people in the region. This project is helping local DPOs to research issues linked to disability and poverty and is already starting to produce evidence of the kinds of barriers disabled people face when trying to access basic services.

(b) Inclusion of disabled people in programme reviews and evaluations

All major country and thematic reviews are now quality assured to ensure they will address the exclusion of different groups. This includes disability as well as for example, gender and people affected by HIV and AIDS. Currently we are developing a new strategy for evaluation which will include reference to disability. The strategy will be available for public consultation.

UN Office for the Co-ordination of Humanitarian Affairs

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what the £0.5 million allocated to the UN Office for the Co-ordination of Humanitarian Affairs to improve dialogue between the humanitarian co-ordinators based in a country receiving aid and emergency relief coordinators will be spent on. [224131]

Mr. Thomas: The Department for International Development (DFID) is providing £0.5 million over three years (2006 to 2008) to the UN Office for the Coordination of Humanitarian Affairs (OCHA) to support its efforts to strengthen UN humanitarian leadership at country level. OCHA has established a team at headquarters dedicated to humanitarian coordinator (HC) strengthening through delivering training and guidance to humanitarian coordinators in the field; expanding the number of experienced humanitarian coordinators available for deployment, including through improved leadership development; and enhancing the knowledge and skills of humanitarian coordinators through knowledge sharing and best practice.

Western Sahara: Politics and Government

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what plans he has to better support Saharawi refugees in the occupied territories in Morocco and Algeria. [222401]

Mr. Malik: The Department for International Development (DFID) supports Sahrawi refugees through its share of the European Community Humanitarian Aid Office's (ECHO) budget, and contributions to the UN Refugee Agency (UNHCR). ECHO plans to provide €10 million in 2008 to support Western Saharan refugees of which the UK share is approximately €1.7 million. In 2007, the UK contributed $56 million to UNHCR for its work with refugees across the world, including from Western Sahara. DFID's funding to UNHCR in 2008-09 is shortly to be agreed.

Zimbabwe: Overseas Aid

Mr. Henderson: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what plans his Department has in place in the event of humanitarian needs arising in Zimbabwe. [222618]

Gillian Merron: The humanitarian crisis in Zimbabwe is expected to worsen further this year as inflation, economic decline and hunger increase. The Department for International Development (DFID) has already made a contribution of £9 million in this financial year to the World Food Programme (WFP) for food aid and will consider making a further contribution if required. We also plan to spend £10 million this year through the Protracted Relief Programme. This complements emergency food aid by supporting livelihoods and helping to prevent families from falling into destitution.

Other DFID programmes provide support to Zimbabwean migrants, orphans, essential health care including maternal and infant mortality reduction, and to mitigate the impact of HIV and AIDS. All DFID programmes in Zimbabwe have been designed to react rapidly to deepening humanitarian needs.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Animal Experiments

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department with reference to Table 8 of the Statistics of Scientific Procedures on Living Animals Great Britain 2007, what the techniques that caused psychological stress involved; which ungulates were subjected to such techniques; and for what reasons there was a rise from the previous year in the number of animals subjected to techniques involving psychological stress. [222751]

Meg Hillier: All of the animals in question were pigs. The licensed work seeks to identify how genetic and environmental components, such as standard husbandry practices, impact on animal welfare, and the insights gained are intended to assist farmers and others identify areas of concern and suggest means of improving welfare. In 2006 the work focused on studies not involving psychological stress. The stressors used in 2007 were either routine housing and husbandry practices or involved the mixing of unfamiliar animals which may cause a level of psychological stress.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department with reference to the Statistics of Scientific Procedures on Living Animals Great Britain 2007, how many of the procedures recorded were conducted on (a) foxes, (b) badgers, (c) common seals, (d) bats, (e) pine martins, (f) bottle-nosed dolphins and (g) squirrels; and if she will publish equivalent figures for those species in future sets of statistics. [222753]

Meg Hillier: The information requested is not available and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost. Details of the information that is collected, including the classification of species, is published at Appendix B of the Department's publication Statistics of Scientific Procedures on Living Animals Great Britain 2007, a copy of which can be obtained from the Department's website at:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/pdfs08/spanimals07appb.pdf

We have no plans to review or revise the species breakdown used in the annual statistics publication. The publication of statistics of scientific procedures on living animals for Great Britain is part of the National Statistics framework. The content of the collection and outputs are subject to review by the UK Statistics Authority and takes account of burdens on data suppliers, the needs of users, data quality issues and resources.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department with reference to Table 6a of the Statistics of Scientific Procedures on Living Animals Great Britain 2007, what the purpose was of each of the procedures recorded as being conducted for alcohol research. [222755]

Meg Hillier: The primary purpose of the procedures recorded in 2007 was fundamental biological research. It is Government policy not to allow the use of animals for the development and testing of alcohol products. There are, therefore, no licences authorising such procedures.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department by what means she ensures that project licences are granted only for those animal procedures where no suitable non-animal alternative exists; whether her Department requires a retrospective evaluation to be undertaken on the completion of a project of whether non-animal alternatives could have been used; and if she will make a statement. [222774]

Meg Hillier: Under the Animals (Scientific Procedures) Act 1986, the Home Office can only license the use of animals for scientific purposes where there is no non-animal alternative, and then only when both the number of animals and their suffering is minimised. A significant proportion of the time spent by Home Office inspectors assessing applications for new project licences and amendments is devoted to ensuring that these principles are rigorously applied. In addition, the retrospective review of project licences is a key function of the local ethical review process that every establishment designated under the 1986 Act is required to maintain.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the primary reasons are for the increase in the number of animals used in scientific procedures since 1997. [222792]

Meg Hillier: Historically, the number of scientific procedures declined after 1976, levelled out in the 1990s and since 2000 has risen back to around the level recorded in 1990 (historical tables are available online at the Home Office website). Many factors influence trends in the use of animals under the Animals (Scientific Procedures) Act 1986, including the economic climate, global trends in scientific endeavour and strategic decisions by funding bodies. The increase in the use of genetically altered strains seen over recent years has also had an impact as advances in genetics open up new and promising avenues of medical research.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what her Department's definition is of fundamental biological research as it relates to scientific procedures involving animals. [222793]

Meg Hillier: For the purpose of measuring the primary purpose of procedures, fundamental biological research is defined as "studies of normal, or abnormal, structure or function of living organisms, organs, tissues, cells or other systems (including fundamental studies in toxicology)".

Details of the information that is collected is published at Appendix B of the Department's publication Statistics of Scientific Procedures on Living Animals Great Britain 2007, a copy of which can be obtained from the Department's website:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/pdfs08/spanimals07appb.pdf

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether her Department has set targets for the proportion of scientific procedures to be undertaken without using animals. [222795]

Meg Hillier: No targets have been set for a proportion of scientific procedures to be undertaken without using animals. We consider it is unrealistic, and would raise false hopes, to set a date by which it will be feasible to phase out animal use before scientific progress provides the means to do so.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department under what circumstances animals from non-designated sources within the UK may be granted exemptions for use in scientific procedures. [222796]

Meg Hillier: The Animals (Scientific Procedures) Act 1986 sets limits on the Secretary of State's powers to allow exemptions to obtain animals from non-designated sources within the UK. In the case of cats and dogs, exemptions may be granted only when no animal suitable for the purpose of the programme specified in the licence can be obtained from a designated breeding establishment; in the case of animals taken from the wild, exemptions may be granted only when no animal suitable for the purpose of the programme specified in the licence can be obtained from a designated breeder or supplier, or another captive-bred source and in the case of animals of an endangered species, they may only be used on projects aimed at their preservation or for essential biomedical purposes where the species in question exceptionally proves to be the only one suitable for the purpose.

Additional administrative controls require that, unless otherwise authorised by the Secretary of State, designated breeding and supplying establishments may only obtain animals of the types listed in Schedule 2 to the Act from other designated sources.

Applicants seeking permission to obtain such animals from non-designated sources are generally required to demonstrate that no suitable animal can be obtained from a designated source. Suitability may be determined by particular factors including strain, age, weight and health status.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department with reference to the Statistics of Scientific Procedures on Living Animals Great Britain 2007, for what reasons returns (a) are required on the use of animals listed under Appendix 1 of the Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species of Flora and Fauna (CITES), (b) are not required on the use of animals listed under Appendix 2 of CITES; and if she will make it her policy to prohibit the use of animals listed under either Appendix 1 of Appendix 2 of CITES in scientific procedures. [222798]

Meg Hillier: Statistical returns are required in respect of endangered species as defined by section 10 (3A) of the Animals (Scientific Procedures) Act 1986, which transposes Article 4 of European Directive 86/609/EEC providing protection to species listed in Appendix 1 to CITES and Annex C1 to Council regulation 3626/82. We have no plans to extend protection to species listed in Appendix 2.

Animal Experiments: Dogs

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department with reference to Table 2 of the Statistics of Scientific Procedures on Living Animals Great Britain 2007 (a) from which countries and (b) for what scientific purposes the dogs referred to were imported. [222757]

Meg Hillier: The majority of imported dogs are for use in regulatory toxicology studies. For security reasons, it is not our practice to disclose details of their countries of origin .

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the reasons are for the increase in the use of dogs in scientific procedures between 2006 and 2007; and if she will make a statement. [222799]

Meg Hillier: The increase in procedures using dogs occurred in two areas: applied studies in human medicine and dentistry and the protection of man, animals and the environment. There is, however, no evidence that this represents a significant trend. The use of dogs varies year on year depending on the particular programmes of work being undertaken.

Animal Experiments: Licensing

Dr. Palmer: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many licences were granted by her Department for the conduct of (a) 12-month dog toxicity and (b) carcinogenicity studies using mice for the purpose of evaluating risks of plant protection products and their ingredients in (i) 2006, (ii) 2007 and (iii) 2008; and if she will make a statement. [222660]

Meg Hillier: The information requested is not readily identifiable from Home Office records. However, I can confirm that in practice 13-week dog studies are the current norm for the purpose of evaluating risks of plant protection products or their ingredients unless there is scientific justification for a longer study.

Animal Experiments: Macaques

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department with reference to Table 1a of the Statistics of Scientific Procedures on Living Animals Great Britain 2007, how many macaques of each species were used in the procedures recorded. [222756]

Meg Hillier: The information requested is not available. Data on individual species of macaques is not collected. I can confirm, however, that only rhesus and cynomolgous macaques have been imported for use in scientific procedures under the Animals (Scientific Procedures) Act 1986 in recent years.

Animal Experiments: Primates

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many live primates were imported from China for use in scientific procedures in (a) 2006, (b) 2007 and (c) 2008 to date. [221825]

Meg Hillier: In 2006, 244 live non-human primates were imported to the United Kingdom from China for use in scientific procedures. In 2007, there were 50 and none to date have been imported in 2008. The numbers imported directly from China have declined since 2006 because macaques originating from the Chinese breeding centre are now exported from China to a European supplying centre where animals are held pending sale to European customers.

Animal Experiments: Scotland

Ms Katy Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many regulated procedures conducted in Scotland in 2007 under the Animals (Scientific Procedures) Act 1986 involved (a) cats, (b) dogs, (c) rabbits, (d) horses and other equids, (e) New World primates and (f) Old World primates; and how many of those procedures in each case involved (i) genetically modified animals and (ii) animals with a harmful genetic defect. [223758]

Meg Hillier: During 2007, in Scotland, there were 16 regulated procedures under the Animals (Scientific Procedures) Act 1986 using cats, 1,386 using dogs, 5,988 using rabbits, 2,758 using horses and other equids, 59 using new world primates and 1,154 using old world primates. None of these procedures used genetically modified animals or animals with a harmful genetic defect.

Ms Katy Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many individual animals were used in regulated procedures under the Animals (Scientific Procedures) Act 1986 in Scotland in 2007. [223939]

Meg Hillier: 381,134 animals were used in regulated procedures under the Animals (Scientific Procedures) Act 1986 in Scotland in 2007.

Ms Katy Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) mice, (b) rats, (c) guinea pigs, (d) hamsters, (e) rabbits, (f) horses and other equids, (g) sheep, (h) pigs, (i) birds, (j) amphibians, (k) reptiles, (l) fish, (m) cats, (n) dogs, (o) New World primates and (p) Old World primates were used in regulated procedures conducted in Scotland under the Animals (Scientific Procedures) Act 1986 in 2007. [223940]

Meg Hillier: During 2007, in Scotland, there were 258,391 mice, 50,634 rats, 2,861 guinea pigs, 441 hamsters, 2,902 rabbits, 128 horses and other equids, 5,150 sheep, 761 pigs, 4,477 birds, 86 amphibians, 51,497 fish, 16 cats, 1001 dogs, 50 new world primates and 902 old world primates used in regulated procedures under the 1986 Act. No reptiles were used.

Ms Katy Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) genetically modified animals and (b) animals with a harmful genetic defect were used in regulated procedures conducted in Scotland under the Animals (Scientific Procedures) Act 1986 in 2007. [223943]

Meg Hillier: During 2007, in Scotland, there were a total of 381,134 animals used in regulated procedures under the Animals (Scientific Procedures) Act 1986, of which 150,943 were genetically modified animals and 12,112 were animals with a harmful genetic defect.

Ms Katy Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what proportion of project licences granted under the Animals (Scientific Procedures) Act 1986 that were in force in Scotland at the end of 2007 were in (a) mild, (b) moderate, (c) substantial and (d) unclassified severity bandings. [223945]

Meg Hillier: During 2007, in Scotland, 37 per cent. of the project licences granted under the Animals (Scientific Procedures) Act 1986 were in the mild severity banding, 58 per cent. in moderate, 1.5 per cent. in substantial and 3.5 per cent were unclassified.

Ms Katy Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what proportion of regulated procedures under the Animals (Scientific Procedures) Act 1986 carried out in Scotland in 2007 were conducted without anaesthesia. [223946]

Meg Hillier: Under the Animals (Scientific Procedures) Act 1986, all procedures must be carried out under general or local anaesthesia unless the anaesthesia would be more traumatic to the animal than the procedure itself, or anaesthesia is incompatible with the object of the experiment. Typical protocols not requiring the use of anaesthesia include those involving only minimally invasive dosing or sampling, and dietary studies.

There were a total of 392,671 regulated procedures under the Animals (Scientific Procedures) Act 1986 in Scotland in 2007, of which 251,517 (64 per cent.) were without anaesthesia.

Ms Katy Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many infringements of the Animals (Scientific Procedures) Act 1986 were recorded in Scotland in 2007; and how many resulting prosecutions there were. [223947]

Meg Hillier: During 2007 there was one infringement of the Animals (Scientific Procedures) Act 1986 reported at a designated establishment in Scotland, and this did not result in a prosecution.

Animal Experiments: Statistics

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department with reference to the Statistics of Scientific Procedures on Living Animals Great Britain 2007, what procedures her Department uses to (a) ensure the accuracy of the published statistics and (b) correct any inaccuracies. [222797]

Meg Hillier: I refer the hon. Member to the Introductory Notes of the Department's publication Statistics of Scientific Procedures on Living Animals Great Britain 2007, paragraphs 2-8.

The statistics are compiled from returns, submitted by project licence holders at the end of each year, or on the termination of the licence when this occurs during the year. A simplified copy of the form and its instructions can be found in Appendix B, a copy of which can be obtained from the Department's website at:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/pdfs08/spanimals07appb.pdf

Licence holders are required, as a condition of their licence, to submit a return even if no work has been undertaken (nil returns). A record is kept of all licensees from whom returns have been received. Those who fail to do so are reminded of their obligation under the Animals (Scientific Procedures) Act 1986.

To ensure that the published data are as complete as possible, the Home Office will not publish the statistics unless the number of missing returns represents less than 0.5 per cent. of all the returns expected. In 2007, all forms were returned.

Verification and subsequent publication of these statistics are done by the Science and Research Group (SRG) of the Home Office. Checks include whether sub-totals sum to totals, and whether totals are consistent across different tables.

Project licence holders classify their procedures according to a standard coding list, see Appendix B. The current classification system dates from 1995, and was modified in 1999 in those areas relating to source of animals, production and breeding, toxicology and legislation. During the collection and verification process, forms that have been incorrectly coded are referred back to the licensees for correction.

The Animals (Scientific Procedures) Inspectorate (ASPI) scrutinise the returns and output tables and provide advice to SRG. During this process, inspectors may contact licensees to discuss and confirm coding, and inform SRG of any amendments that may be necessary.

Where errors are identified, these may be corrected within internet versions of publications and in subsequent editions of the annual publication. Decisions on whether to correct data are a matter for Science and Research Group (SRG) of the Home Office and the Home Office's chief statistician, as part of the National Statistics framework.

Community Safety Accreditation Schemes

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many imams have been accredited under the arrangements put in place by her Department and the Department for Communities and Local Government for such accreditation. [224533]

Mr. Khan: I have been asked to reply.

The Department for Communities and Local Government supports a range of community-led training programmes for Muslim faith leaders. There are no arrangements in place for accreditation for imams by Government.

Criminal Records

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how long was taken on average to complete a criminal records check in the most recent period for which figures are available; [224313]

(2) what proportion of criminal records checks took more than four weeks to complete in the most recent period for which figures are available. [224314]

Meg Hillier: Data concerning the average time taken to complete a disclosure are not collated by the Criminal Records Bureau (CRB).

The CRB operates to a set of Published Service Standards (PSS) which is to issue 90 per cent. of enhanced disclosures within 28 days and 90 per cent. of standard disclosures within 10 days.

The performance figures for the financial year 2007-08 to March were 93.5 per cent. of enhanced disclosures issued within 28 days and 99.7 per cent. of standard disclosures issued within 10 days.

The most recent figures for August 2008 show 85.4 per cent. of enhanced disclosures issued within 28 days and 96.1 per cent. of standard disclosures issued within 10 days.

Criminal Records Bureau

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many Criminal Records Bureau checks were subsequently found to be incorrect or to contain errors in relation to the presence or absence of evidence relating to criminality in each year since the Bureau's inception. [222982]

Meg Hillier: All the quality control procedures at the Criminal Records Bureau (CRB) are geared to achieving the highest levels of accuracy. In addition, the CRB carries out a post disclosure accuracy check that analyses all aspects of the disclosure application and its issue. This check was introduced in 2007 and is based on a statistical sample of disclosure applications and from that sample it can be ascertained that the accuracy rate for 2006-07 is 99.94 per cent. and for 2007-08 is 99.98 per cent. No comparative data is available before these dates.

The CRB operates a central database in order to record transactions that occur during the disclosure process, where applicants' personal data provided on an application form are compared against information held by the police, the Department of Health and the Department for Children, Schools and Families. Although the CRB has access to conviction and other information through this process, the police and the other data sources above are the data owners of material held on their respective databases and as such are responsible for the accuracy of information held thereon.

Departmental Internet

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much her Department paid (a) Facebook, (b) Bebo and (c) other social networking sites for advertising the MyLifeMyID.org website; and how many hits the website received as a result of that advertising. [223330]

Meg Hillier [holding answer 10 September 2008]: We cannot provide details of the amount spent on each of those sites as the advertising was provided by a third party consolidator (uk.advertising.com) who ran the advert across a range of sites which indexed highly among the youth audience, and they do not supply clients with a breakdown of spend per site. However, as detailed in the MyLifeMyID Research document published on the Identity and Passport Service website:

http://www.ips.gov.uk/identity/publications-research.asp

the advertising cost—including Virtual Surveys management fee—was £25,750 (excluding VAT).

The number of people who clicked through from the adverts to a sign-up jump page which detailed the survey and encouraged them to sign-up to the forum while the advertising was running was 52,330. This works out as £0.49 per hit.

Entry Clearances: Taiwan

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) whether she has concluded her consideration of whether reciprocal entry arrangements between the UK and Taiwan should be in place without the requirement for a tourist visa; and when she expects to announce her decision; [221421]

(2) if she will consider the merits of allowing Taiwanese citizens to enter the UK without requiring a tourist visa. [222333]

Mr. Byrne: I refer the hon. Member to the Home Secretary's statement to Parliament of 10 July entitled Visa Waiver Test, which outlined the current status of the UK's first global review of its visa regimes. We expect to announce final decisions in early 2009.

EU Legislation

Mr. Francois: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many officials in her Department are wholly or mainly tasked with the negotiation, implementation or administration of EU legislation and consequent policies. [222283]

Meg Hillier: Officials throughout the Home Office are involved in a full range of EU business. Those working specifically on EU business in its international directorate currently total 20. The UK Border Agency has an international policy directorate, which has a total of 20 staff working on European related matters.

Mr. Francois: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what (a) proposed and (b) adopted Justice and Home Affairs EU legislation the UK has (i) opted into and (ii) not opted into. [222319]

Meg Hillier: The list of EU Justice and Home Affairs measures in to which the UK has decided to opt in or not under the arrangements in the Protocol on the position of the UK and Ireland in relation to Title IV of the treaty establishing the European Community are provided in a table which has been placed in the House Library.

Eurojust

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what UK participation there will be in the expanded Eurojust programme. [214160]

Meg Hillier: The UK is participating in negotiations in the Justice and Home Affairs Council on a proposal to amend Eurojust's current legal base. That proposal aims to enhance the effectiveness of Eurojust by ensuring that it is provided with appropriate information to undertake its tasks and by providing clarity on the powers of National Members. There will be no changes as regards the powers, role and responsibilities of the UK National Member or his team. The UK will continue to participate actively in Eurojust's activities, which we believe assist domestic authorities in pursuing cross-border investigations and prosecutions.

Fixed Penalties: Young People

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what guidance she gives to police forces on the issue of fixed penalty notices to offenders under 16 years of age under the provisions of the Criminal Justice and Police Act 2001. [224334]

Mr. Hanson: I have been asked to reply.

Guidance on the issue of Penalty Notices for Disorder to 10-15 year olds can be found on the Home Office website at "Police Operational Guidance: Penalty Notices for Disorder for offences committed by young people aged 10 to 15".

Genetics: Databases

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many and what proportion of DNA samples were removed and destroyed from the National DNA database following a request to do so from the person from whom the DNA was taken in each year since the National DNA database has been operating, broken down by police authority area; and if she will make a statement. [197286]

Meg Hillier: The number of DNA profiles produced from samples taken from individuals by police forces in England and Wales which have been removed, for all reasons, since 2002-03, and the number of profiles held on the National DNA database (NDNAD) (for England and Wales police forces) at the end of each year, are shown in table 1. Removals broken down by police force are shown in table 2.

Information is not available breaking down removals into the number resulting from requests from the person from whom the DNA sample was taken, and the number resulting from other reasons. Details of removals before 2002-03 are not available because the NDNAD does not retain historic information; in 2002, an NDNAD management information database was created, which captures details of all record 'transactions', including the removal of records, and enabled the collection of this information from this point. As some profiles are duplicates, the number of profiles and the number of individuals these represent are not the same.

John Battle: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department in how many violent offence cases in (a) Leeds West constituency, (b) Leeds metropolitan district and (c) Yorkshire and Humberside the national DNA database was used to match suspects in each year since figures are available. [213354]

Meg Hillier: Information on the National DNA database (NDNAD) is recorded and held on the basis of the police force which took the DNA sample. It is not available by parliamentary constituency or by local government authority area.

The table gives details of the number of violent offences in which a crime scene sample profile has matched with one or more subject profiles in each of the years since the 2002-03 financial year, for Humberside police, North Yorkshire police, South Yorkshire police and West Yorkshire police. Figures are not available for the years prior to 2002.

'Violent offences' cover the offences murder/manslaughter, attempted murder, other suspicious death, wounding and less serious assault.

	Humberside	North Yorkshire	South Yorkshire	West Yorkshire	Total
2002-03	5	3	32	58	98
2003-04	13	2	22	37	74

2006-07	19	15	24	61	119
2007-08	22	9	39	53	123
2008-09 to date	10	3	19	28	60

Note:
Some of the offence codes used on the NDNAD cover more than one of the recorded crime classifications e.g. murder/manslaughter.

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what proportion of the prison population in England and Wales has a profile on the national DNA database. [219355]

Meg Hillier: The purpose of the National DNA database (NDNAD) is to match DNA profiles taken from individuals with those taken from crime scenes. It therefore holds only the information necessary for this function, and does not contain criminal records or information on whether those on it are in prison. There are, however, good reasons for believing that the great majority of the prison population has a profile on the NDNAD. Police forces have had the power to retain DNA taken from those convicted of recordable offences since the establishment of the DNA database in 1995. For the first few years this power was exercised in relation to more serious offenders, but from 2000 onwards additional funding was made available under the DNA Expansion Programme to make it standard practice to take samples from all offenders. Since the extension of powers to take DNA samples to all those arrested for recordable offences, taking a DNA sample in the custody suite has become routine procedure. In addition, two prisoner sampling projects have been undertaken, most recently in 2003, to take DNA from any prisoner who had not already been sampled, for example because they had been imprisoned before DNA sampling was widely practiced.

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 8 January 2008, Official Report, column 454W, on genetics: databases, how many people have had their DNA profile removed from the national DNA database since January 2008. [220917]

Meg Hillier: Between 1 January and 31 August 2008, 148 subject profile records were deleted from the NDNAD under the exceptional case procedure (i.e. following a request to the chief officer of the responsible force from the person concerned). This covers records loaded by English and Welsh forces only.

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many (a) children and (b) adults resident in the non-metropolitan county of Hampshire had their DNA recorded on police files in each of the last five years, broken down by local authority area; [222293]

(2) how many (a) children and (b) adults resident in Southampton had their DNA recorded on police files in each of the last five years. [222294]

Meg Hillier: Information held on the National DNA database (NDNAD) is available on the basis of the police force which added the DNA profile, not the address of the person sampled. Information is, therefore, not available on the number of residents of Southampton and the different local authorities in non-metropolitan Hampshire who have had a DNA profile added. Information is, however, available on the number of profiles added by Hampshire constabulary in the last five years, as shown in the following table. These do not necessarily relate to residents of Hampshire.

Hampshire constabulary

	Profiles loaded taken from:
	Aged under 18 at time profile loaded	Aged 18 and over at time profile loaded
2003-04	3,465	10,565
2004-05	4,229	11,250
2005-06	4,751	16,007
2006-07	3,599	11,891
2007-08	4,606	15,664

The number of profiles is not the same as the number of individuals. This is because a number of subject profiles on the NDNAD are replicates, that is, a profile for a person has been loaded to the NDNAD on more than one occasion. This may arise for a number of reasons, such as a person giving a different name on different occasions they are arrested, or because of upgrading of profiles from the SGM to the SGM Plus profiling system. It is estimated that 13.3 per cent. of the subject profiles held on the entire NDNAD are replicates. However, this rate may vary between police forces, so figures for the number of individuals are not given for particular forces.

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many people had DNA samples stored on the National DNA database at the most recent date for which figures are available; [222730]

(2) how many people had a DNA profile on the National DNA database in each of the last 12 months, broken down by (a) sex and (b) ethnic origin. [222731]

Meg Hillier: As at 17 September 2008, there were 4,991,871 subject profiles retained on the National DNA database (NDNAD) which had been added by English and Welsh police forces, which equates to an estimated 4,327,952 individuals. The number of profiles is not the same as the number of individuals. This is because a number of subject profiles on the NDNAD are replicates, that is, a profile for a person has been loaded to the NDNAD on more than one occasion. This may arise for a number of reasons, such as a person giving a different name on different occasions they are arrested, or because of upgrading of profiles.

Table 1 shows the number of subject profiles loaded to the NDNAD by English and Welsh police forces in each of the last 12 months, broken down by gender. 'Unassigned' means that no gender was recorded by the police officer who took the sample.

Table 2 shows the number of subject profiles loaded to the NDNAD by English and Welsh police forces in each of the last 12 months, broken down by ethnic appearance. Ethnic appearance is based on the judgment of the police officer taking the sample as to which of six broad ethnic appearance categories the person is considered to belong. 'Unknown' means that no ethnic appearance was recorded by the officer taking the sample.

[1] 1 to 16 September 2008

Mr. Leech: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people of each (a) ethnicity, (b) age group and (c) sex in each ward of Greater Manchester have a DNA sample stored in the national DNA database. [223773]

Meg Hillier: Information held on the National DNA database (NDNAD) is available on the basis of the police force which added the DNA profile, not the address of the person sampled. Information is, therefore, not available on the number of people in each ward of Greater Manchester who have had a DNA profile added. Information is, however, available on the number of profiles added by Greater Manchester Police (GMP). These do not necessarily relate to residents of Greater Manchester. Tables 1-3 give figures for subject profiles on the NDNAD added by GMP, as at 17 September 2008, broken down by age, ethnic appearance and gender.

The number of profiles is not the same as the number of individuals. This is because a number of subject profiles on the NDNAD are replicates, that is, a profile for a person has been loaded to the NDNAD on more than one occasion. This may arise for a number of reasons, such as a person giving a different name on different occasions they are arrested, or because of upgrading of profiles. It is estimated that 13.3 per cent. of the subject profiles held on the entire NDNAD are replicates. However, this rate may vary between police forces, so figures for the number of individuals are not given for particular forces.

Table 1 shows the number of subject profiles loaded to the NDNAD by GMP, broken down by ethnic appearance. Ethnic appearance is based on the judgment of the police officer taking the sample as to which of six broad ethnic appearance categories the person is considered to belong. 'Unknown' means that no ethnic appearance was recorded by the officer taking the sample.

Table 2 shows the number of such subject profiles broken down by current age, not the age when sampled.

Table 3 shows the number of such subject profiles broken down by gender. 'Unassigned' means that no gender was recorded by the police officer who took the sample.

Identity Cards

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what estimate she has made of the number of identity cards that will be in circulation by the end of 2015; [219770]

(2) what estimate she has made of the percentage of the total eligible population that will have an identity card by 2016-17 under the March 2008 delivery plan; and what estimates were made under previous implementation plans. [219771]

Meg Hillier: The following table summarises the estimated volumes published in the May 2008 National Identity Cards Scheme Cost Report, combining the total volume of Identity Cards and Passports issued by the Identity and Passport Service to British and Irish Citizens resident in the UK.

Estimated passport and identity card products issued to British and Irish citizens resident in the UK

	Product volume (million)
2015-16	12.9
2017-18	12.3

This is the most recently published information on product volumes that is currently available. Previous estimates of product volumes are included in National Identity Scheme Cost Reports that may be found at:

http://www.ips.gov.uk/identity/publications-legislative.asp

The Identity and Passport Service is currently developing the product choice offered to customers, as indicated in the National Identity Scheme Delivery Plan published in March 2008. The figures for the projected product volumes are currently being recalculated and will be published in due course.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when she plans to publish the updated timetable for the roll-out of identity cards to UK citizens. [221390]

Meg Hillier: The most recent timetable for the rollout of the National Identity Scheme was published in the National Identity Scheme Delivery Plan in March 2008, an electronic copy of which may be found on the Identity and Passport Service website at:

http://www.ips.gov.uk/identity/downloads/national-identity-scheme-delivery-2008.pdf

The Identity and Passport Service is continuing to work with its partners and suppliers, along with responses received following the recent public consultation, in order to further define the detail of those plans and will publish the result of this work in due course. In addition an updated report on the estimated cost of the identity cards scheme over the next 10 years will be presented to Parliament and published in November 2008.

Identity Cards: Ireland

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate she has made of the number of Irish citizens who will take up the UK identity card. [209972]

Meg Hillier: The National Identity Scheme will be available to people aged 16 years and above who legally reside or work in the UK. In the second half of 2009, we will start to issue cards to British and foreign nationals including European Economic Area citizens including Irish nationals working in sensitive roles or locations, starting with airport workers. Irish citizens who have dual British/Irish citizenship will be able to choose to apply for a UK citizens ID Card or an identification card which does not include citizenship and is not valid for travel.

From 2010 and 2011 we will offer identity cards on a voluntary basis to young people and those customers where there is the greatest personal benefit to them in their daily lives from having or using an identity card.

Specific data estimates for the number of Irish citizens who will volunteer to take up the UK identity card cannot be finalised at this point but will be kept under review.

National Identity Register

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what form the identity register to be used for the initial roll out of the National Identity Scheme to a district subset of the UK population for trialling of the enrolment and verification process will take. [219761]

Meg Hillier: The National Identity Register established for the issue of the first identity cards under the Identity

Cards Act 2006 starting in the second half of 2009 will need to comply with the same provisions under the Act as when the scheme is subsequently rolled out to allow for enrolment of high volumes of people.

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the written ministerial statement of 18 April 2006, Official Report, column 1WS, on the citizen information project, for what reason the proposal to use the as an adult population register is not listed as part of the 2008 Delivery Plan or Cost Reports; and if she will make a statement on the implications for the population register proposal of initial roll out of the National Identity Scheme to a distinct subset of the UK population for trialling. [220246]

Meg Hillier: The written ministerial statement of 18 April 2006 referred to the recommendation of the Citizen Information Project that evaluated how public money could be saved, and services to citizens improved, by increasing the sharing of basic citizen information (contact details such as name, address and date of birth) across central and local Government.

The section "Enabling Joined up Public Services" of the National Identity Scheme Delivery Plan:

http://www.ips.gov.uk/identity/downloads/national-identity-scheme-delivery-2008.pdf

explains how the National Identity Register could eventually fulfil this function.

The National Identity Scheme will be introduced incrementally but will expand to have the capacity eventually to cover the majority of the UK population.

Passports

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many passport applications were counter-signed by a magistrate or an individual claiming to be a magistrate in the last 12 months for which records are available; in how many cases the validity of the claim was checked; and in how many cases the claim was found to be false. [221781]

Meg Hillier: In the financial year 2007-08 there were 27,126 passport applications where the counter signatory was either a judge or a justice of the peace.

The Identity and Passport Service does not capture the level of data required in order to answer the remainder of this question.

Police: Finance

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much funding her Department provided for each police force in each of the last 10 years. [223631]

Police: Greater London

Lyn Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many incidents requiring police attendance were recorded in (a) the London borough of Newham, (b) the London borough of Hackney, (c) the London borough of Tower Hamlets and (d) London in each of the last five years. [223529]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 11 September 2008]: The information requested is not collected centrally. This is a matter for the commissioner of the Metropolitan police.

Rape

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many rapes were reported to police in England and Wales in each of the last 10 years for which figures are available; and how many of these cases were recorded as involving excessive alcohol consumption by the victim or perpetrator. [223348]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 10 September 2008]: The available information relates to the number of rape offences recorded by the police in England and Wales and are given in the tables.

Recorded crime statistics collected by the Home Office deal solely with the numbers of offences recorded and detected by the police. Details on the circumstances of individual offences are not collected and it is therefore not possible to determine whether excessive alcohol consumption was a contributing factor.

The following findings on 'intimate violence' were taken from the British Crime Survey. The definition of serious sexual assault is defined within the survey as rape or assault by penetration, including attempts:

> Victims of serious sexual assault were asked whether they thought the person who assaulted them (where there was one offender) was under the influence of drink or drugs during the incident. 35 per cent. of victims of serious sexual assault thought the sole offender was under the influence of drink and 10 per cent. thought the offender was under the influence of drugs.
> Those who had experienced serious sexual assault since the age of 16 were also asked if they themselves had been under the influence of drink or drugs on the most recent occasion of serious sexual assault. Around one-quarter said that they were under the influence of alcohol at the time of the last incident (26 per cent.) and 16 per cent. said that they had been unconscious or asleep when the incident took place. 5 per cent. of victims reported having been drugged by the offender during the incident.

Notes:
1. The coverage was extended and counting rules revised from 1998-99. Figures from that date are not directly comparable with those for earlier years.
2. The data in this table is prior to the introduction of the National Crime Recording Standard (NCRS). These figures are not directly comparable with those for later years.

Registration of Births, Deaths, Marriages and Civil Partnerships

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will ensure that the hospital records of all patients who die in NHS hospitals are supplied to registrars before death certificates are issued. [222315]

Meg Hillier: Before a death can be registered the registrar for births and deaths must receive a medical certificate of cause of death (MCCD) completed and signed by the medical practitioner who attended the patient during their final illness. (If there is none, the death is reported to the coroner). The MCCD records the cause of death, the underlying causes and any other diseases, injuries etc. that contributed to the death.

The Government have announced a major reform of arrangements for death certification in England and Wales. The reforms will improve the quality and accuracy of death certification, introduce a single system of effective medical scrutiny applicable to all deaths that are not reportable to the coroner and provide improved information on cause of death to strengthen local clinical governance and public health surveillance.

At the heart of the reformed system will be a new role of medical examiner. As well as the obvious task of scrutinising MCCDs and authorising burial or cremation, the medical examiner will also support the training of junior doctors in completion of MCCDs and provide feedback on accuracy of certification locally.

Tobacco: Young People

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) confectioners and tobacconists and (b) other retailers have been found to be selling tobacco products to those under the age of 16 years in each year since 1997; how many offences of selling tobacco products to those under the age of 16 years have been recorded in each such year; how many (i) fines and (ii) cautions were issued in respect of such offences in each year; and what the average fine imposed was in each year. [223524]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 11 September 2008]: Information on the number of recorded offences of retailers selling tobacco products to those aged under 16 years is not collected centrally. This is a summary offence and is not included in the police recorded crime statistics.

Statistics on the number of police cautions issued, the number of fines imposed and the average fines have been provided by the Ministry of Justice and are given in the table for 1997-2006. No information is collected centrally to distinguish between confectioners, tobacconists and other retailers.

JUSTICE

Approved Premises

Stephen Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) whether he plans to establish new bail hostels in Wimbledon constituency; [221806]

(2) what discussions he had with the local authority before deciding to site a bail hostel in Wimbledon; [221807]

(3) how many bail hostels are managed by ClearSprings; [221808]

(4) how many bail hostels previously operated by ClearSprings have been closed; [221809]

(5) if he will take steps to ensure that local constituency hon. Members are consulted before decisions are taken regarding the siting of bail hostels in their constituencies. [222791]

Mr. Hanson: No bail hostels are being established in the constituency of Wimbledon. The Bail Accommodation and Support Service provides private, rented accommodation in small houses and flats with up to five people sharing, not hostels. The Director of Offender Management for London has identified a need for one three bedroom property in Merton and ClearSprings is seeking an appropriate property. When properties are identified ClearSprings consults the police, probation and local authority before proceeding. In Merton it has have consulted in relation to a property that was considered but not proceeded with and has held meetings with council officials and councillors. It is my practice to write to the relevant Member of Parliament when first a property is being readied for use in his/her constituency. At 29 September ClearSprings was providing 161 properties in England and Wales.

Bail: Warley

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice in how many cases before Warley magistrates bail applications were opposed by the police but granted by the court in each of the last three years. [222519]

Maria Eagle: Data on bail applications collected centrally by my Department do not include information on whether an application for bail was opposed by the police or other parties to the proceedings. This information would have to be retrieved by inspecting individual court records which could only be achieved at disproportionate cost.

Bailiwick of Jersey

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what meetings he has held with representatives of the Bailiwick of Jersey in the last 12 months. [222964]

Mr. Wills: The Secretary of State has held no meetings with representatives of the Bailiwick of Jersey in the last 12 months, but I, as Minister responsible for the Crown Dependencies, met the Chief Minister and chief executive of Jersey on 3 December 2007.

British Constitution

Mr. Tyrie: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what his policy is on the retrospective applicability of legislation of constitutional significance, with particular reference to the application of provisions in a statute retrospectively from the date of the relevant Bill's Second Reading; and if he will make a statement. [221394]

Mr. Wills: In general, legislation (including constitutional legislation) does not have retrospective effect. Provisions in Acts normally come into force following the making of a commencement order bringing them into force, unless earlier commencement is provided for in the Act itself. In a limited number of cases, a specific provision may have retrospective effect, for example, to correct an anomaly in the law which, if uncorrected, may adversely and unfairly affect individuals. Where legislative provisions are to have retrospective effect, they may depending on the circumstances, come into effect from the date on which notice of the measure is first given publicly (for example, certain tax provisions) or, in other cases, on a later date, such as the date on which the relevant Bill receives its Second Reading.

Building Democracy

Mrs. Laing: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what estimate he has made of the annual cost of the Building Democracy grant scheme. [223829]

Mr. Wills: The estimated cost in 2008-09 of the Innovation Fund grant scheme promoted through the Building Democracy website is £150,000 (incl. VAT). Grants up to a value of £15,000 will be awarded through the scheme. The scheme will be subject to evaluation and no decisions have been made about possible funding in future years.

Community Orders

Nick Herbert: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice whether offenders' travelling time to and from community payback is counted within the number of hours set out in their community sentence. [223632]

Mr. Straw: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my right hon. Friend the Minister of State for Justice (Mr. Hanson) to the hon. Member for Enfield, Southgate (Mr. Burrowes) on 21 July 2008, Official Report, column 900W.

In general, offenders are expected to travel to unpaid work appointments in their own time. If, however, they live in a location that requires them to spend more than 30 minutes travelling in each direction, the time over 30 minutes is currently credited against their sentence, but the total amount of time credited in this way must not exceed 10 per cent. of their sentence. Once they have reported for work, any time spent travelling to, or between, work sites, is counted as part of their sentence. I am reviewing these arrangements.

Nick Herbert: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many people have breached community payback or unpaid work equivalent conditions in each of the last three years; and of these how many received a (a) variation of their existing community sentence, (b) fine, (c) further community sentence, (d) custodial sentence of less than a month, (e) custodial sentence of between one to six months, (f) custodial sentence of between six months and one year and (g) custodial sentence of over one year. [223633]

Mr. Straw: Information to provide a complete answer is not gathered or kept centrally. However, information is available for the last three years on how many cases a community order with an unpaid work requirement or equivalent[1] was revoked for failure to comply; and what proportion that was of all such orders that terminated in that period. No information is available about resentencing in those cases.

[1] i.e. Community punishment order or community punishment and rehabilitation order (under pre Criminal Justice Act 2003 legislation.

	Number of unpaid work or equivalent orders revoked for failure to comply	Percentage of all unpaid work or equivalent orders terminated
2005-06	9,261	12.3
2006-07	12,190	14.3
2007-08	16,995	18.5

Constitutions: Cornwall

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice whether he has considered the merits of undertaking a review of academic research relating to the constitutional status of Cornwall. [222754]

Mr. Wills: No consideration has been given to undertaking a review of academic research relating to the constitutional status of Cornwall and the Government have no plans to undertake a review of this kind. Cornwall is an administrative county of England, electing MPs to the UK Parliament, and is subject to UK legislation. It has always been an integral part of the Union. The Government have no plans to alter the constitutional status of Cornwall.

Dangerous Driving

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many and what percentage of those found guilty of causing death by dangerous driving (a) did not have a current driving licence, (b) were banned from driving, (c) did not have insurance and (d) did not have a current MOT certificate in the latest period for which figures are available. [222080]

Maria Eagle: While the Department for Transport monitors details of road traffic fatalities, this information is not linked with details of any subsequent prosecutions.

The court proceedings data held by my Department cannot be used to answer this question directly since the information held on a defendant does not extend beyond the person's age, gender, ethnicity, the offences for which the person was prosecuted and the outcome for each offence. However part of the question can be answered on the basis of offence and outcome information.

In 2006 (latest available), there were 224 defendants found guilty of at least one offence of causing death by dangerous driving. Of these, as part of the same proceedings, five (2 per cent.) were convicted of driving while disqualified, 31 (14 per cent.) of driving while uninsured against third party risks and nine (4 per cent.) for both of these offences. 2007 data will be available towards the end of this year.

The Court Proceedings Database cannot separately identify the specific offence of driving a vehicle without a valid MOT certificate nor defendants who do not have a driving licence.

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many and what percentage of those found guilty of death by dangerous driving had a previous conviction for dangerous driving in the last period for which figures are available. [222074]

Mr. Hanson: 233 offenders are recorded on the Police National Computer as having been found guilty of causing death by dangerous driving in England and Wales in 2007. Of these, 10 offenders (4 per cent.) had a previous conviction for dangerous driving. These figures have been derived from the police's administrative IT system, which, as with any large scale recording system, is subject to possible errors with data entry and processing.

Dangerous Driving: Sentencing

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice if he will review the maximum sentence for causing death by dangerous driving whilst under the influence of (a) alcohol and (b) illegal drugs. [222079]

Maria Eagle: We strongly support the need for stiff penalties for bad drivers. We increased the maximum penalties for causing death by dangerous driving and causing death by careless driving when under the influence of drink and drugs from 10 to 14 years imprisonment in the Criminal Justice Act 2003. We also introduced new offences of causing death by careless driving and causing death by driving when unlicensed, disqualified or uninsured in the Road Safety Act 2006.

A defendant can also be charged with manslaughter if, for example, he was grossly negligent. This carries a maximum sentence of life imprisonment. Sections 32 and 33 of the Road Safety Act 2006 make clear which alternative verdicts are available if a prosecution for manslaughter (in England and Wales) or culpable homicide (Scotland) is unsuccessful. This is to ensure that manslaughter will be charged where appropriate in the knowledge that, if unsuccessful, the lesser charge can be preferred.

We welcome the sentencing guidelines published in July by the Sentencing Guidelines Council on causing death by driving. They make it clear that an offence will be considered more serious if there is evidence of impairment caused by the consumption of alcohol or drugs, where the presence of drugs or alcohol is not a required element of the offence.

We have no plans for a further review at this stage.

Data Protection: Prosecutions

Nick Herbert: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) how many prosecutions for (a) unauthorised computer access, (b) unauthorised modification of data, (c) obstructing the Information Commissioner, (d) unauthorised use of data, (e) other breaches of the Computer Misuse Act 1990 and (f) any other breaches of the Data Protection Act 1998 were brought in each year since 2000; [223634]

(2) how many people convicted of (a) unauthorised computer access, (b) unauthorised modification of data, (c) obstructing the Information Commissioner, (d) unauthorised use of data, (e) any other breaches of the Computer Misuse Act 1990 and (f) any other breaches of the Data Protection Act 1998 received (i) a fine, (ii) a community sentence, (iii) a custodial sentence and (iv) another disposal in each year since 2000. [223636]

Mr. Straw: Data showing the number of defendants proceeded against, found guilty and a sentence breakdown for offences under the Data Protection Act 1998 and the Computer Misuse Act 1990 in England & Wales from 2000 to 2006 is in the following table.

The statistics relate to persons for whom these offences were the principal offences for which they were dealt with. When a defendant has been found guilty of two or more offences the principal offence is the offence for which the heaviest penalty is imposed. Where the same disposal is imposed for two or more offences, the offence selected is the offence for which the statutory maximum penalty is the most severe.

Number of defendants proceeded against at magistrates courts, found guilty at all courts and a sentence breakdown for offences under the Data Protection Act 1998[1] and the Computer Misuse Act 1990, England & Wales, 2000 to 2006[2,3,4,5]

[1] One offence superceded the other—the offence descriptors are identical. These Triable Either Way offences cover all sections of the 1998 Data Protection Act except S54A and Sch. 9 P.12.

[2] These data are on the principal offence basis.

[3] Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts and police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

[4] The number of defendants found guilty in a particular year may exceed those proceeded against as it may be the case that the proceedings in the magistrates court took place in the preceding year and they were found guilty at the Crown court in the following year, or the defendants was found guilty for a different offence to the original offence proceeded against.

[5] The number of defendants sentenced in a particular year may exceed those found guilty, as it may be the case that a defendant found guilty and committed for sentence at the Crown court may be sentenced in the following year.

Departmental Air Travel

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice pursuant to the answer to the right hon. Member for Horsham of 14 July 2008, Official Report, column 27W, on carbon emissions: Government Departments, how much air mileage incurred through departmental travel was used to calculate the departmental payment to the Government Carbon Offsetting Fund in each year that his Department and its predecessor have participated in the fund, broken down by (a) domestic, (b) short-haul and (c) long-haul flights. [221961]

Maria Eagle: In 2006, the then Department for Constitutional Affairs agreed to join the Government Carbon Offsetting Fund (GCOF). In the first year, 2006-07, it was confirmed with the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (DEFRA) that this offsetting would be limited to air travel by Ministers and senior (board level) officials. For the year 2006-07, flights were only broken down into long haul and short haul. The distance travelled was 114639 km short haul which produced 34.39 tonnes of CO_2 emissions and 121459 km long haul which produced 61.22 tonnes of CO_2 emissions at a cost of £606.72.

The Ministry of Justice was created in May 2007. For 2007-08, all official air travel, by Ministers and officials regardless of grade, has been included. For 2007-08, flights were broken down into domestic, short haul and long haul. For Ministry of Justice HQ, HM Courts Service and Tribunals Service, the distance travelled on: domestic flights was 1107594 km which produced 190.75 tonnes of CO_2 emissions; short haul was 68027 km which produced 19.34 tonnes of CO_2 emissions and long haul 99292 km which produced 22.86 tonnes of CO_2 emissions at a total cost of £2,308.49. The new NOMS agency will be putting into place a mechanism before the end of this financial year to enable payments to be made into the GCOF. HM Land Registry distance travelled on: domestic flights was 22286 km which produced 3.84 tonnes of CO_2 emissions; short haul was 41297 km which produced 11.74 tonnes of CO_2 emissions and long haul 159664 km which produced 36.76 tonnes of CO_2 emissions at a total cost of £518.63. The National Archives distance travelled on: domestic flights was 45012 km which produced 7.76 tonnes of CO_2 emissions; short haul was 79165 km which produced 22.5 tonnes of CO_2 emissions and long haul was 358070 km which produced 82.43 tonnes of CO_2 emissions at a total cost of £1,116.73.

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice whether those staff of (a) his Department and (b) its agencies who are entitled to business class or first-class air travel are permitted to (i) travel in a cheaper class to the destination and (ii) benefit in monetary terms or kind from the saving. [221968]

Maria Eagle: Those Ministry of Justice staff who are entitled to travel by air on business or first class are permitted to travel in cheaper class. Any consequent saving accrues to the Department, not them individually.

All official travel by Ministers and civil servants is undertaken in accordance with the requirements of the "Ministerial Code" and the "Civil Service Management Code" respectively. Copies of these are available in the House Library.

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice pursuant to the answer to the right hon. Member for Horsham of 24 June 2008, Official Report, columns 240-41W, on departmental aviation, what information on the number and destination of flights is transferred to the Government Carbon Offsetting Fund by his Department in order to calculate the carbon offset payments for his Department's flights. [222193]

Maria Eagle: The information transferred to the Government Carbon Offsetting Fund is on the air miles travelled on long haul, short haul and domestic flights as required by the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs.

Departmental Buildings

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the location is of each office occupied by (a) his Department and (b) each of its agencies which has been (i) newly occupied and (ii) refurbished in the last 24 months; and what the floor area in square metres is of each. [221971]

Departmental Cleaning Services

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what contracts his Department has with cleaning services providers; and what the hourly rate of pay for cleaners working in his Department is. [224094]

Maria Eagle: The Ministry of Justice (MoJ) does not have any contracts for cleaning services with (a) ISS, (b) ITS, (c) ICS or (d) GBM.

Cleaning services for the courts, tribunals and MoJ HQ buildings are contracted out. The current hourly pay rate ranges paid by contractors to their staff working within MoJ, are as follows:

	Pay range (£)
London and HQ	5.52-9.02
North East	5.52-8.25
North West	5.52-7.50
Midlands	5.52-7.50
South West	5.52-7.50
South East	5.52-10.00
Wales	5.52-8.58

In respect of National Offender Management Service: as part of the work to provide prisoners with skills to aid their resettlement and to reduce cost to the public purse, most cleaning within prisons is undertaken by prisoners. Their pay will depend on the individual establishment's rates of pay and on what level of the incentive or earned privilege scheme the prisoner is on.

Departmental Databases

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what use (a) his Department and (b) its agencies make of (i) MOSAIC data and (ii) ACORN data. [221966]

Maria Eagle: The Ministry of Justice does not directly make any routine or systematic use of MOSAIC or ACORN data. However, officials have, on occasion, made limited use of ACORN data as part of internal modelling work to assess the likely impact of policy proposals.

It is possible that the Ministry of Justice or its agencies may have used MOSAIC or ACORN data indirectly, through work carried out on its behalf by consultants or contractors. However, this information could be compiled only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Disciplinary Proceedings

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the five most serious disciplinary breaches in his Department were in the last 12 months; and what steps were taken in response to each breach. [223063]

Maria Eagle: Proven cases of gross misconduct are, by their very nature, the most serious disciplinary breaches. Staff who are proven to have committed gross misconduct are subject to dismissal.

The following information gives a breakdown of proven gross misconduct cases in the Department that have been concluded in the 12 month period ending on 31 July 2008, together with the total number of dismissals for each category:

	Number
Receipt of criminal conviction	8
Threat to public/security	14
Threat to staff	8
Threat to prisoners	4
IT abuse	6
Fraud	4
Falsifying records	4
Failure to report arrest	3
Other	12

Each case was dealt with in accordance with published departmental policy and procedures, concluding in dismissal. As these matters relate to individual members of staff the details are considered to be confidential.

Departmental Home Working

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice pursuant to the answer of 30 June 2008, Official Report, column 680W, on departmental home working, if he will make it his policy to collate and maintain central records of home working by his Department's staff. [222536]

Mr. Wills: There is no requirement to maintain records of home working arrangements centrally. The Ministry of Justice (MoJ) is introducing a shared services system by the end of 2010. As part of that project it is being considered whether it would be practical and cost effective to collate and maintain central records of MoJ staff working at home. In the interim it would not be possible to do so without disproportionate cost.

Departmental Information

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what types of data have been sold by (a) his Department and (b) its agencies under the Re-use of Public Sector Information Regulations in the last 12 months. [221969]

Maria Eagle: My Department has not received any requests for information directly arising from the Re-use of Public Sector Information Regulations. However, we currently have data sharing arrangements in place with the suppliers listed as follows for the services indicated:

Smee and Ford—charitable bequests

Courtel—Crown court listing

Registry Trust Ltd. (RTL)—Registry of Judgments, Orders and Fines.

Departmental Postal Services

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what steps his Department has taken to monitor the cost of its mail services in the last 12 months. [221477]

Maria Eagle: My Department monitors the cost of its mail services using a combination of financial planning/forecasting, budget monitoring, analysis of management information from suppliers and regular contract review meetings. In addition to this, Her Majesty's Court Service (HMCS) has recently commenced a postal benchmarking exercise across all HMCS sites to identify any disparity of postage spend across their estate.

Departmental Public Participation

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what (a) listening exercises and (b) public forums his Department has held in each of the last two years; what the (i) purpose and (ii) cost was in each case; and who the private contractor was and how much it was paid in each case. [221347]

Bridget Prentice: The Ministry of Justice carries out a wide range of activities which allow Ministers and officials to listen to and understand the views of the public and stakeholders. My answer on 3 June 2008, Official Report, column 842W, to the hon. Member for Dundee, East (Stewart Hosie) set out the main activity undertaken over the last three years and the following table sets out the main activities which have taken place since then. It is not possible to provide in-house costs for all listening exercises and the data is therefore limited to activity where external organisations have been contracted to undertake the work.

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the differences are between citizens' summits and citizens' juries. [223069]

Mr. Wills: The discussion paper "A National Framework for Greater Citizen Engagement" published in July 2008 sets out what the Government see as the main differences between the two mechanisms. These are:

Size: citizens' juries are likely to involve 50-100 participants. Citizens' summits should involve large groups of around 500 or more to provide a more representative sample of public opinion;

Result: recommendations from a summit would be put to Parliament for consideration, along with a Government statement on the proposed way forward, while recommendations from juries would require a Government response; and

Coverage: the Government envisage that summits would be limited to national issues where there is a compelling case for large scale deliberation, while juries might be used as part of the policy development process, both national and locally.

We are currently seeking views on these proposals.

Departmental Records

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice if he will make it his policy to adopt a principle of data minimisation in the information the Government collect and hold on citizens. [222930]

Mr. Wills: The processing of all personal data by private companies and public authorities must be in accordance with the Data Protection Act 1998 (DPA).

The data protection principles are predicated on, among other things, a requirement to ensure that data collected and processed is adequate, relevant, not excessive and not kept for longer than is necessary.

The Government will also consider the recommendations in the Data Sharing Review published by Richard Thomas and Dr. Mark Walport, and will announce in the autumn what further measures they will take to strengthen the protection of personal data.

Departmental Retirement

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Hornsey and Wood Green of 1 July 2008, Official Report, column 873W, on departmental retirement, how many requests to work beyond the standard retirement age have been received by his Department in respect of (a) the former Department of Constitutional Affairs, (b) HM Prison Service and (c) the National Offender Management Service and Office for Criminal Justice Reform. [222437]

Maria Eagle: Such requests are dealt with at a local business level and considered on an individual basis. As a consequence, information on the number of applications and the number of successful applications for working beyond the standard retirement age is not held centrally and to collate this would incur disproportionate costs.

Domestic Violence

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the average delay before offenders convicted of offences of domestic violence or abuse commenced integrated domestic abuse programmes was in each probation area in England and Wales in each of the last five years for which figures are available. [224445]

Mr. Hanson: The following table shows the average number of weeks that elapse from the date of sentence for offences of violence or abuse to the commencement of domestic violence programme requirements in probation areas for 2005-06 to 2007-08. Prior to commencement on the core programme all offenders are required to complete pre-programme work.

These figures have been drawn from administrative data systems. Although care is taken when processing and analysing the returns, the detail collected is subject to the inaccuracies inherent in any large scale recording system.

Dorneywood

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice pursuant to the answer to the right hon. Member for Horsham of 19 June 2008, Official Report, column 1187W, on Dorneywood: official hospitality, what use his Department has made of Dorneywood for official engagements in the last 12 months. [221962]

Mr. Wills: My right hon. Friend, the Chancellor of the Exchequer has the use of Dorneywood as an official residence. The Chancellor and the Trustees have made Dorneywood available to other Ministers to use for official engagements. Since September 2007, the Commons Chief Whip, the Leader of the House of Lords and Treasury Ministers have made use of Dorneywood for official engagements.

The Ministry of Justice has not used Dorneywood for any official engagements in the last 12 months.

Driving Offences: Greater London

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many people were (a) cautioned and (b) fined for speeding in each London borough in each year since 2000; and what proportion of those offences were detected using speed cameras. [221892]

Maria Eagle: Available information on speed limit offences within the Metropolitan and City of London police force areas combined from 2000 to 2006 (latest available) is provided in the following tables. 2007 data should be available later in the autumn of this year.

Data is only available data at police force area level.

[6] Metropolitan and City of London police force areas combined.
Notes:
1. It is known that for some police force areas, the reporting of court proceedings in particular those relating to summary motoring offences, may be less than complete. Written warnings may also be under-reported.
2. Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, if is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts and police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

EDF Energy

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what contracts (a) his Department and (b) its agencies have with EDF; and how much (i) his Department and (ii) its agencies paid to EDF in each of the last 10 years, broken down by the purpose of the payment. [221839]

Mr. Wills: The information requested to give a complete answer could be provided only at disproportionate cost as it is not held centrally nor in common format.

The Ministry of Justice was created in May 2007. Contracts held with EDF for the former parts of the Department for Constitutional Affairs were for supply of gas prior to November 2005, post November 2005 expenditure was for the supply of electricity on sites with a maximum demand greater than 100 kVA (kilovolt amp (one thousand volt amperes)). From 2005 figures shown include HM Courts Service and from 2006 figures also include the Tribunals Service. The amount paid to EDF (including VAT) is:

2002-03	[1]1,410,351
2003-04	1,403,316
2004-05	2,027,000
2005-06	10,007,169
2006-07	12,397,035
2007-08	15,890,347

[1] Contract started in 2002

Contracts held with EDF for HM Prison Service (HMPS) were for the supply of electricity on sites with a maximum demand greater than 100 kVA (kilovolt amp (one thousand volt amperes)). The amount paid to EDF (including VAT) by HMPS for each of the last three financial years is:

	Amount paid to EDF (£)
2005-06	19,455,146
2006-07	28,694,051
2007-08	22,981,574

The accounting practices changed for the financial year of 2005-06, therefore HMPS will only be able to provide prior year data at a disproportionate cost.

Contracts held with EDF for The National Archives were for the supply of electricity. The amount paid to EDF (including VAT) by The National Archives is:

2003-04	0
2004-05	0
2005-06	[1]783,078
2006-07	1,144,845
2007-08	937,709

Elections: Fraud

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice pursuant to the written ministerial statement of 24 June 2008, Official Report, columns 9-11WS, on consultation on weekend voting, what the evidential basis is for the statement that there is no evidence that overall levels of fraud are increasing in elections. [223070]

Mr. Wills: The Electoral Commission's report "Allegations of electoral malpractice in England and Wales 2000 to 2006", gives details of allegations of electoral malpractice. The report found that between 2000 and 2006 there were 402 allegations of offences under the Representation of the People Act (RPA) 1983 (RPA offences include tampering with nomination papers, making false declarations as to election expenses, bribery, treating, undue influence and personation offences). A breakdown of the figures is set out as follows:

	Number of allegations
2000	50
2001	66
2002	59
2003	90
2004	59
2005	59
2006	19

The figures show that the number of allegations reached a peak in 2003 and has since declined.

Further, the Electoral Commission's report "Further analysis of CPS files on allegations of electoral malpractice in England and Wales, 2000 to 2006", gives details of prosecutions for electoral malpractice. The report found that there were 23 convictions for RPA offences between 2000 and 2006. Though convictions do not necessarily occur in the same year that proceedings are initiated, the information published with the report shows that the number of convictions relating to RPA offences in the period 2000 to 2006 peaked at 11 in 2001, and the number of convictions has since declined.

The Electoral Commission's separate reports on the introduction of absent voting personal identifiers in England and Wales and on the May 2007 local government elections note that the introduction of personal identifiers for postal voters has had a positive impact on the safety and security of the electoral system, and that at the 2007 elections the scale and volume of allegations of offences were both considerably down on 2006. More recently, the Electoral Commission concluded in its report on the May 2008 local elections in England that the available information suggests that the scale and volume of allegations of offences during the elections in May 2008 were down on 2007.

Elections: Parish Councils

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what dispensations are granted to parish and town councils to enable them to hold elections without issuing polling cards to the electorate. [222663]

Bridget Prentice: Parish and town councils have the discretion to decide whether or not a poll card should be issued for an election when the poll is not combined with the poll at another election. A parish or town council's decision may be based on a number of local factors such as the size of the electorate, the anticipated turnout and whether an election is likely to be contested.

If poll cards are required, parish or town councils must request the returning officer to issue official poll cards for that election nineteen days prior to the date of the poll.

Electoral Register

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice pursuant to the answer of 21 July 2008, Official Report, columns 902-3W, on the electoral register, which local authorities (a) do and (b) do not (i) send the annual canvas form more than once to non-respondents, (ii) make house-to-house enquiries of non-respondents and (iii) inspect all records which an electoral registration officer is permitted to inspect; and if he will make a statement. [222760]

Bridget Prentice: Section 9 of the Electoral Administration Act 2006 ("the 2006 Act") placed a new duty on Electoral Registration Officers (ERO) to take all necessary steps to maintain the electoral register, including sending the annual canvass form more than once and making house to house enquiries and inspecting records the ERO is permitted to inspect. It is for the ERO to decide on the most appropriate steps to ensure that the electoral register is as complete and accurate as possible.

Government do not collect data on the extent to which individual local authorities carry out each of these activities. However, the 2006 Act makes provision for the Electoral Commission to introduce new performance standards for EROs. The Electoral Commission has recently developed these standards and, following public consultation, the final standards were published on 21 July 2008. A copy has been laid before the House. The performance standards framework is intended to allow a picture to be built up of the delivery of electoral services across Great Britain, including electoral registration.

Hywel Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what consideration he has given to extending the arrangements for completion of the electoral register in force in Northern Ireland to the rest of the UK. [224529]

Bridget Prentice: The Government are committed to the principle of individual registration. However, this would be a far-reaching reform, and it would need to be undertaken with great care, both to make sure a new system is robust, and to ensure that it properly tackles the problem of under-registration. As part of any change the Government would clearly wish to consider carefully the experience of individual registration in Northern Ireland.

Electoral Register: Databases

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Bromley and Chislehurst of 26 June 2008, Official Report, column 473W, on the electoral register: databases, why the CORE service will not apply to Northern Ireland. [222776]

Bridget Prentice: Part I of the Electoral Administration Act 2006, which makes provision for CORE, applies to the whole of the United Kingdom. Northern Ireland has a different system of electoral registration from the rest of the UK, and the Electoral Office for Northern Ireland provides a voter registration service there. In light of these differences, we are currently considering the inclusion of Northern Ireland in the CORE Scheme.

General Elections

Mrs. Laing: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what estimate he has made of the marginal cost of holding general elections at weekends. [222255]

Mr. Wills: We currently estimate that the additional cost of holding a general election on one day of the weekend could be at least an additional £38 million, rising to approximately £58 million if an election were held across both Saturday and Sunday. These figures are based on the cost of a general election, and involve a number of assumptions about how the elections would be run. We expect that the consultation will provide additional information to allow a more accurate assessment of cost to be made.

Home Information Packs

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Bromley and Chislehurst of 2 July 2008, Official Report, column 957W, on home information packs, (1) how many of the 20 properties that were marketed with home information packs included a voluntary home condition report; [223013]

(2) if he will place in the Library a copy of one of the 20 home information packs that were produced; [223015]

(3) what the cost, including value added tax, was of each home information pack. [223016]

Maria Eagle: None of the 20 properties marketed with home information packs included a voluntary home condition report.

A copy of one of the 20 home information packs (HIPs) will be placed in the Library electronically. (The HIP for each residential property disposed of is available to the general public when it goes on sale.)

The cost of producing each of the 20 HIPs ranged from £299.00 plus VAT to £560.00 plus VAT.

Housing: Prices

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what estimate the Land Registry made of the average house price in London in (a) April 2006, (b) April 2007 and (c) the most recent period for which figures are available. [222928]

Mr. Wills: Land Registry's estimate of average house prices in the Greater London area for the periods referred to are as follows:

Period	Average house price (£)
April 2006	286,502
April 2007	328,481
August 2008	336,620

These figures are taken from Land Registry's house price index, which is available free of charge and published monthly. Land Registry also provides quarterly property price reports calculated in a different way for which a fee is charged.

Limitation of Actions

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice pursuant to the answer of 29 April 2008, Official Report, column 389W, on limitation of actions, whether the issues to be resolved include a further examination of the limitation period between the dates of the offence and of the application for a legal remedy; when he expects the examination of the outstanding issues to be resolved; when he expects to make the announcement on the way forward; and if he will make a statement. [222504]

Bridget Prentice: Preparations are still ongoing for a consultation on a draft Bill to implement the Law Commission's recommendations to reform the law of limitation. The consultation will take full account of the ruling by the House of Lords in 'A v. Hoare and others' including the exercise of the court's discretion to extend the limitation period and the way in which the claimant's 'date of knowledge' is defined in abuse cases. I am unable to say when these preparations will be complete or when I will make a further announcement on the way forward. However, the Draft Legislative Programme, which was published on 14 May, announced that the limitation proposals could be included in a Civil Law Reform Bill which may be published in draft by Easter 2009. An announcement about the final legislative programme is expected to be made in the Queen's Speech to Parliament in December.

Magistrates Courts

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many magistrates courts there were in each local authority area in England and Wales in (a) 1996-97 and (b) the most recent period for which figures are available. [222787]

Maria Eagle: The information requested detailing the magistrates courts in each local authority district and unitary authority in England and Wales in (a) April 1996 and (b) July 2008 has been placed in the Libraries of the House.

The Courts Act 2003 gave responsibility of managing magistrates courts to the Lord Chancellor. Up until 1 April 2005, magistrates courts were the responsibility of locally managed magistrates courts committees who were statutorily independent.

Magistrates: Personation

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many prosecutions were brought against individuals fraudulently claiming to be magistrates in each of the last 10 years. [221817]

Magistrates: Warley

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many magistrates there are on the Warley magistrates' bench; and how many live in postcode areas (a) B65, (b) B66, (c) B67, (d) B68 and (e) B69. [222523]

(e) 12 live in postcode area B69

82 magistrates live in other postcode areas.

Maria Eagle: I replied to the hon. Member on 30 July.

Mortgages: Arrears

Ms Keeble: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what recent discussions his Department has had with the Civil Justice Council on their proposed pre-action protocol on mortgage arrears; and if he will make a statement. [222393]

Bridget Prentice: The Ministry of Justice and the Civil Justice Council has held regular meetings, where the pre-action protocol for mortgage arrears was discussed. Officials attended the Housing and Land Committee of the Civil Justice Council on the following occasions:

2 November 2006
10 January 2007
26 April 2007
8 October 2007
22 January 2008
7 May 2008
28 July 2008
10 September 2008

Officials also attended a meeting with the Council of Mortgage Lenders on 23 May, where the content of their consultation response was discussed.

Copies of all consultation responses have been copied to departmental officials.

National Probation Service for England and Wales

Mark Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what recent discussions he has had with the Probation Association on the future structure of the National Probation Service. [222302]

Mr. Hanson: A comprehensive review of the NPS structure has been undertaken. As part of this process informal briefings between representatives of the Probation Association and the Change Programme Director have taken place.

National Probation Service for England and Wales: Finance

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the budget for the National Probation Service for 2008-09 is; and what the projected budgets for 2009-10 and 2010-11 are. [224447]

Mr. Hanson: The budgets issued to Probation Boards and Trusts for 2008-09 are £914 millions (resource) and £3 millions (capital). Budgets have not yet been agreed for 2009-10 or 2010-11.

National Probation Service for England and Wales: ICT

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what estimate he has made of the cost of rolling out the Delius IT system to all probation areas in England and Wales. [224448]

Mr. Hanson: The cost of rolling out the OMNI (Offender Management National Infrastructure) IT system to all probation areas in England and Wales from 2006 through to completion in 2010 is estimated a £65.7 million.

Offenders: Employment

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice if he will bring forward proposals to provide incentives to employers to train or employ former offenders as part of resettlement programmes. [221908]

Mr. Hanson: My Department attaches great importance to improving the skills and employment outcomes of offenders and is working in partnership with the Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills (DIUS) and the Department of Work and Pensions (DWP) to implement the Reducing Re-Offending through Skills and Employment: Next Steps action plan.

Engaging with employers to work with offenders is a key part of this plan. Many employers are delivering training workshops for offenders in custody with support from the National Offender Management Service, the Learning and Skills Council and Jobcentre Plus.

Many employers are also delivering training and offering employment opportunities to offenders on release and in the community. DIUS is funding Train2Gain which is an incentive to employers to improve the skills of their workforce and DWP has introduced many programmes, such as the New Deal, Progress2Work and Progress2Work-LinkUP, which are designed to incentivise employers to work with disadvantaged groups, including offenders.

The Corporate Alliance for Reducing Re-Offending will support all of this work through employers who are already engaged with offenders making the case to other employers.

Offenders: Rehabilitation

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what support his Department provides to local authorities in resettling former offenders, with particular reference to the provision of housing and employment advice. [221907]

Mr. Hanson: The Ministry of Justice supports local authorities via partnership arrangements. The National Offender Management Service works with them to resettle offenders. Over 130 prisons operate housing advice and support services. Resettlement begins on reception into custody; local prisons in England and Wales assess the housing needs of prisoners to help prevent future homelessness. A strong partnership with Jobcentre Plus, with advisers working in many prisons, provides employment advice. Offender managers work with local authority staff to protect the public and reduce the risk of re-offending. Managing an offender's risk of harm is paramount; probation has a key partnership role in ensuring that the needs of victims and offenders are addressed, including through multi-agency public protection arrangements and the supporting people programme. Resettlement support is also a priority for offenders managed under local prolific and other priority offender schemes.

In 'community payback' work projects across the country, probation works with local authorities to source work for offenders, with training arranged by probation and their learning providers. For example Teesside probation's project with the local authority guarantees interviews and opportunities for successful offenders to work in council grounds maintenance.

We aim to improve local performance through a range of public sector agreements including safer communities, drugs and socially excluded adults which bring together relevant agencies at national, regional and local levels. Our proposals in the recent Policing Green Paper "From The Neighbourhood To The National: Policing Our Communities Together" to strengthen arrangements for Crime and Disorder Reduction Partnerships will make probation a responsible authority and include reducing re-offending as a partnership duty.

Offensive Weapons: Yorkshire and the Humber

Shona McIsaac: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many people were convicted for offences relating to the illegal possession of knives in a public place in the Humberside police area in each year since 1997. [222785]

Mr. Straw: Court proceedings data on convictions for illegally carrying knives for Humberside police force area from 1997 to 2006 can be viewed in the following table.

Court proceedings data for 2007 will be available in the autumn of 2008.

Number of defendants who were convicted at all courts for illegally carrying knives, in Humberside police force area for the years 1997 to 2006[1, 2]

[1] These data are on the principal offence basis.
[2] Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts and police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

Office of the Public Guardian: Manpower

Tom Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many members of staff the Office of the Public Guardian were employed to process applications for lasting power of attorney in (a) October 2007 and (b) June 2008. [221815]

Bridget Prentice: Since the implementation of the Mental Capacity Act 2005 in October 2007 the Public Guardian is responsible for registration of both enduring powers of attorney and lasting powers of attorney. In October 2007 there were 36 members of staff at the Office of the Public Guardian to process applications to register powers of attorney. In June 2008 there were 92 staff to process applications to register powers of attorney.

Parental Compensation Orders

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many (a) mothers and (b) fathers were issued with a parental compensation order in respect of a child aged under 10 years in each of the last two years, broken down by age of child. [221796]

Mr. Hanson: The power to issue parental compensation orders has been piloted in 10 local authority areas. No orders have been reported to date.

Political Parties: Finance

Mr. Maude: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice pursuant to the answer of 15 September 2008, Official Report, column 2028W, on political parties: finance, whether his Department plans to publish informal guidance on the definition of campaign spending. [224524]

Bridget Prentice: The Ministry of Justice has no plans to publish guidance on this issue.

Prisoners Release

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many (a) male and (b) female prisoners aged (i) over 21, (ii) between 18 and 21 and (iii) under 18 remain in custody having completed their sentence; and what the reason for such post-sentence detention is in each case. [224010]

Mr. Hanson: The information requested is not available centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost. There are a number of reasons why an individual may remain in custody beyond the end of a sentence of imprisonment, these include for example a new remand in custody warrant, contempt of court order and an immigration detention warrant.

Prisoners: Voting Rights

Mrs. Laing: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what plans he has to extend voting rights to sentenced prisoners in England and Wales. [222253]

Bridget Prentice: The judgment in the case of Hirst v. UK requires the Government to reconsider their policy of a blanket ban on the voting rights of convicted prisoners. That requirement is a consequence of a judgment in the European Court of Human Rights and is something that would need to be implemented in the UK even if the Human Rights Act was not in place.

In response, the Government undertook a first stage consultation which concluded in March 2007. However, since that point the context for the debate about the rights and responsibilities of citizenship, and in particular the exercise of the franchise, in the United Kingdom has changed significantly following the launch of the Governance of Britain Green Paper and publication of the Goldsmith Review.

The Government remain committed to carrying out a second, more detailed public consultation on how voting rights might be granted to serving prisoners, and how far those rights should be extended. But we consider it essential that any changes to the law to extend the franchise to those held in custody are considered in the context of the wider development of policy on the franchise and the rights that attach to British citizenship.

Prisons

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the maximum prison population was in each of the last 10 years. [222956]

Mr. Straw: The following table shows the highest prison population in each of the last 10 years with the date on which it was recorded, based on the published weekly figures for the total held in prison establishments in England and Wales and in police cells under Operation Safeguard each Friday (and Maundy Thursday prior to 2007).

	Population	Date
1997	63,973	Friday 5 December 1997

Prisons: Crimes of Violence

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) how many violent offences committed by prisoners on other prisoners in each of the last five years resulted in (a) the prisoner being dealt with through the prison's internal disciplinary procedure, (b) a police investigation and no further action and (c) a police investigation and charges brought; [224227]

(2) how many violent offences were committed by prisoners against other prisoners in each of the last five years, broken down by offence. [224228]

(3) how many prisoners were (a) charged, (b) convicted and (c) sentenced for violent crimes committed whilst in custody in each of the last five years. [224232]

Mr. Hanson: The term 'offence' refers to police and Crown Prosecution Service processes and it is not used by the National Offender Management Service (NOMS). The nearest equivalent to 'violent offences' in NOMS data is incidents of assault.

Information on incidents of assault is set out in the following table but is subject to important qualifications. Assault data covers a range of behaviour and may include threatening behaviour, projection of bodily fluids and other non-contact incidents and allegations. Information on assault incidents may involve more than one assailant or more than one victim. In a proportion of incidents only the victim is known.

The Prison Service Incident Reporting System processes high volumes of data which are constantly being updated. The numbers provide an indication of overall numbers but should not be interpreted as absolute.

Prisoner on Prisoner Assault	2003	2004	2005	2006	2007
Adjudication Recorded	7003	7235	8684	9201	9533
Mid year population	73,657	74,488	76,190	77,982	80,205
Rate (Percentage)	10	10	11	12	12

Information on action taken by the police, including whether or not charges result, is not held centrally and can be provided only at disproportionate cost. The following table contains the data held on prisoner on prisoner assaults that have been reported to the police.

Prisoner on prisoner assaults reported to the police

Prisoner on prisoner assaults	2003	2004	2005	2006	2007
Reported to police	791	695	834	761	739
Mid year population	73,657	74,488	76,190	77,982	80,205
Rate (Percentage)	1.1	0.9	1.1	1.0	0.9

Notes:
1. The numbers supplied refer to the number of individual assault incidents.
2. The 2007 figures do not include the three prisons (Albany, Camphill and Parkhurst) where the incident recording has transferred to the separate NOMIS system.

The nearest equivalent to 'violent offences' is incidents of assault. Central data on incidents of assault cannot be broken down into incident types. The following table contains the data held on prisoner on prisoner assault incidents.

Assault Incidents	2003	2004	2005	2006	2007
Prisoner on Prisoner	9,105	9,559	10,987	11,508	12,003
Mid year population	73,657	74,488	76,190	77,982	80,205
Rate (Percentage)	12	13	14	15	15

Notes:
1. The numbers supplied refer to the number of individual assault incidents.
2. The 2007 figures do not include the three prisons (Albany, Camphill and Parkhurst where the incident recording has transferred to the separate NOMIS system.

Information about action taken by the police is not held centrally by NOMS and can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Probation Trusts

Mark Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice whether he plans to increase the number of First Wave Probation Trusts. [222303]

Mr. Hanson: The Government will be continuing to work closely with and support the first six probation trusts in the learning year of 2008-09 as they develop and evolve. There are no plans to establish any further First Wave Trusts but better development of the next wave is under consideration.

Reoffenders

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many former prisoners re-offended within 12 months of release in (a) Lancashire and (b) nationally in each of the last five years. [222951]

Mr. Straw: The following table shows the number of offenders released from custody who committed a reoffence within 12 months, where the offender was subsequently convicted of this offence at court in England and Wales. I regret that figures on where reoffences are committed by police force area are not currently available. These figures have been taken from the most recently available adult reoffending cohorts, which include all offenders released from prison or starting community sentences in the first quarters of 2002 to 2006, where the offender could be matched to the Police National Computer (PNC).

	Number of offenders reoffending within 12 months of release from prison	Total number of releases from prison[1]	Percentage of offenders reoffending within 12 months of release
Q1 2002	8,574	15,578	55.0
Q1 2003	7,738	14,358	53.9
Q1 2004	8,185	15,761	51.9
Q1 2005	7,165	14,595	49.1

[1] Where the offender could be matched to the PNC

The latest reoffending statistics, 'Reoffending of adults: results from the 2006 cohort', including additional information on frequency and severity of reoffending, were published on 4 September 2008. It showed that between the 2000 and 2006 cohorts, frequency of reoffending fell by 22.9 per cent., severity of reoffending fell by 11.1 per cent., and the proportion of offenders reoffending fell by 10.7 per cent.

Secure Training Centres: Restraint Techniques

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many times restraint has been used in secure training centres for the purpose of (a) ensuring good order, (b) preventing a child from escaping from custody, (c) preventing a child injuring himself or others and (d) preventing a child from damaging property. [222794]

Mr. Hanson: The information requested has been collected centrally by the Youth Justice Board since April 2008 and is set out in the following table.

	April 2008	May 2008	June 2008	July 2008	August 2008	Total

Solicitors Regulation Authority

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice whether he has received the report of Lord Ouseley into allegations of racism in the Solicitors Regulation Authority. [220232]

Bridget Prentice: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State and Lord Chancellor (Mr. Straw), and I have received copies of Lord Ouseley's report into disproportionate regulatory outcomes for black and minority ethnic solicitors, which was published on 14 August 2008.

We welcome Lord Ouseley's review and his recommendations and also the SRA's commitment to implementing the recommendations. We look forward to receiving a copy of the SRA's action plan setting out how they propose to do this and the time scales to which they are working.

Stress

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what arrangements his Department has in place to assist officials to overcome the effects of stress experienced in the workplace. [222176]

Mr. Wills: The Ministry of Justice (MOJ), excluding HM Prison Service, has a formal Stress at Work policy, which is supported by a dedicated toolkit and a learning guide on the MOJ intranet. The toolkit provides detailed guidance for managers and employees as to how the causes of harmful stress experienced as a result of either a work or a non-work related condition can be identified and prevented. Individuals who are experiencing stress are encouraged to complete a formal assessment with their line managers designed to identify possible remedies and constructive actions that can be taken to address the causes identified.

Individuals and line managers can access support through their HR advisors if necessary and further specialist advice and support can be obtained via our Employee Assistance Programme and internal support services. The MOJ operates a 24-hour support help line that any member of staff can access and support is also available through corporate staff networks and via the TUS.

The public sector Prison Service offers comprehensive support to staff at risk of post traumatic stress following an incident at work. In the immediate aftermath of a potentially traumatic incident, line managers conduct initial debriefing and care teams are in place in every establishment to offer peer support. If necessary, a full critical incident debrief is later conducted by specialist employee support officers, who can recommend referrals for specialist treatment, including counselling and cognitive behavioural therapy. The prison service also operates a 24-hour support helpline that any member of staff can access.

The prison service has been working closely with the Health and Safety Executive (HSE) in Kent area on a project aimed at implementing the HSE stress management standards and using this information and lessons learned to develop stress management policies and guidance for the Service. In accordance with the best practice approach advocated by HSE, stress management initiatives will be integrated into wider HR initiatives.

We are also currently developing in-house training for general 'stress awareness' and 'stress management for line managers' for the benefit of staff.

Taxis

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how much (a) his Department and (b) its agencies spent on taxis in the last financial year for which figures are available. [223028]

Maria Eagle: For the 2007-08 financial year figures are as follows.

National Offender Management Service—Centre
Taxi Fares Admin Travel	54,950
UK Taxi Fares Programme Travel	33,340
Overseas Taxi Fares Admin Travel	255
Total	88,545
Office for Criminal Justice Reform
Taxi Fares Admin Travel	15,352
Overseas Taxi Fares Admin Travel	24
Total	15,376

Ministry of Justice HQ and Associated Offices, HM Courts Service, HM Prison Service, Tribunals Service, Office of the Public Guardian

It is not possible to determine how much was spent on taxis in the last 12 months, as the expenditure is not separately identifiable within the Department's financial systems. This information could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

All official travel by Ministers and civil servants is undertaken in accordance with the requirements of the 'Ministerial Code' and the 'Civil Service Management Code' respectively. Copies of these are available in the House Library.

Voting Behaviour

Mrs. Laing: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice for what reasons the consultation on weekend voting offers distinct options of Saturday, Sunday and both Saturday and Sunday and only a single weekday option. [222256]

Mr. Wills: The "Election Day: Weekend Voting" consultation paper explains that a General Election may currently be held on any weekday, although local government elections are required to be held on a Thursday. The "Governance of Britain" Green Paper made a commitment to consult on the question of moving elections to the weekend on the basis that there may be advantages in moving in terms of convenience for voters. The benefits that moving elections to a weekday other than Thursday might have in terms of convenience for the voter are less obvious.

Mrs. Laing: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what estimate he has made of the turnout rate at (a) national and (b) local elections among (i) men and (ii) women in the latest period for which figures are available. [222285]

Bridget Prentice: The Government believe that elections must be equally accessible and responsive to the needs of all eligible male and female electors.

A number of surveys have been conducted on behalf of, or used by, the Electoral Commission which provide estimated figures for the percentage of men and women who voted at the national and local elections between 2001 and 2008:

General elections

2001: Male 61 per cent., Female 58 per cent.

2005: Male 62 per cent., Female 61 per cent.

Source:

MORI

Local elections

2008 (England and Wales): Male 48 per cent., Female 42 per cent.[1]

Source:

ICM

2007 (England): Male 37 per cent., Female 39 per cent.

Source:

GfK NOP

2006 (England): Male 37 per cent., Female 38 per cent.

Source:

BRMB

[1] In 2008, unlike in previous years, the research questioned a higher proportion of actual voters (45 per cent. of those who had voted and 55 per cent. of non voters) than had turned out at the poll (the overall turnout was 35 per cent.). As a result, the figures for the percentage of men and women voting do not reflect turnout directly but should be seen as a guide to relative turnout among men and women.

Mrs. Laing: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many (a) men and (b) women voted in the 2005 general election. [222286]

Bridget Prentice: Information is not held centrally on the number of men and women who voted in the 2005 general election. However, an independent MORI poll conducted at the time of the 2005 general election estimated that 62 per cent. of men voted compared with 61 per cent. of women.

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what role he expects external opinion research firms to play in the Citizens' Summit on weekend voting. [223959]

Mr. Wills: We are currently exploring the potential use of external opinion research firms to assist in the design and delivery of the deliberative element of the summit.

Voting Methods: Pilot Schemes

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what plans he has for voting pilots in the 2009 local elections; and what assessment he has made of the effect of moving the date of the 2009 local elections to the date of the elections to the European Parliament on the feasibility of holding such pilots. [223071]

Mr. Wills: The Secretary of State for Justice is obliged by section 10 of the Representation of the People Act 2000 to consider any application from a local authority to run an electoral pilot. The provisions of the Act restrict piloting to local government elections only: it would not therefore be possible for any pilots to take place if the English local government elections were moved to be combined with the date of the European Parliamentary elections in June 2009. The Government published a consultation document on the combination of those elections on 20 May 2008 the consultation period closed on 11 August. The consultation paper is available at http://www.communities.gov.uk/publications/localgovernment/2009electionsconsultation

Written Questions: Government Responses

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice when he plans to answer question 172523, on the operation of the Prevention of Corruption Act 1906, tabled on 4 December 2007 by the hon. Member for Southend West; what the reason for the time taken to reply is; what steps he has (a) taken and (b) plans to take to answer written parliamentary questions within a working week of them being tabled; and if he will make a statement. [222358]

Maria Eagle: The question was transferred to the Solicitor-General on 6 December 2007. The Ministry of Justice's Parliamentary Branch wrote to the hon. Member on that day informing him of the transfer.

Young Offender Institutions: Ethnic Groups

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many and what proportion of children in young offender institutions are (a) white, (b) black and (c) Asian. [221897]

Mr. Straw: Young offender institutions accommodate sentenced prisoners aged from 15 to 21. The following table gives the breakdown by known ethnicity of all such sentenced young offenders as at 30 June 2007.

Ethnic group	Total sentenced young offenders aged 15 to 20	As percentage of all with known ethnicity
White	6,875	75
Black or Black British	1,312	14
Asian or Asian British	471	5
Chinese or other	64	1
Mixed	500	5

These figures are taken from table 9.2 of the publication Statistics on Race and the Criminal Justice System—2006-07 at the following link:

http://www.justice.gov.uk/docs/stats-race-criminal-justice.pdf

TRANSPORT

Aviation

Stephen Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many passengers took flights from London Gatwick Airport to (a) Birmingham, (b) Manchester, (c) Edinburgh and (d) Glasgow in each of the last three years. [223970]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The following table shows the number of passengers who took flights from London Gatwick Airport to Birmingham, Manchester, Edinburgh and Glasgow in 2005, 2006 and 2007.

Passengers from London Gatwick to Birmingham, Manchester, Edinburgh and Glasgow

Note:
There are no flights from London Gatwick to Birmingham.

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assumptions her Department made in calculating the price elasticity of demand for air travel in its (a) 2007 publication UK Air Passenger Demand and CO_2 Forecasts and (b) 2000 publication Air Traffic Forecasts for the United Kingdom 2000. [224537]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The air price elasticities and explanation of how they are were calculated are set out in the forecasts documents.

The UK Air Passenger Demand and CO_2 Forecasts report is available at:

http://www.dft.gov.uk/pgr/aviation/environmentalissues/ukairdemandandco2forecasts/

The Air Traffic Forecasts for the United Kingdom 2000' is available at:

http://www.dft.gov.uk/pdf/pgr/aviation/atf/airtrafficforecastsfortheuni281.

Aviation: Disabled

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent steps the Government have taken to improve air travel for disabled passengers. [224282]

Jim Fitzpatrick: EC Regulation 1107/2006, which gives rights to disabled passengers when travelling by air, was implemented in the UK from 26 July 2008.

On 23 July 2008, the Department for Transport published a revised code of practice "Access to air travel for Disabled Persons and Persons with Reduced Mobility", which provides guidance to the aviation industry on how to comply with its obligations under the regulation.

In addition to the code of practice, the Department has also published a passenger guidance leaflet which mirrors the contents of the code and covers the rights and responsibilities of passengers.

Aviation: Oil

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what projection of oil prices per barrel for (a) 2010, (b) 2020 and (c) 2030 were used in the calculations contained in her Department's publication UK Air passenger Demand and CO_2 Forecasts; and upon what assumptions such projections were based. [224538]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The oil price projections are set out at page 88 (Table B3) of the UK Air Passenger Demand and CO_2 Forecasts report

http://www.dft.gov.uk/pgr/aviation/environmentalissues/ukairdemandandco2forecasts/

Table B3: Range of real oil price assumptions, $/ barrel (2004 prices)

	Low	Central	High
2005	55	55	55
2010	25	57	70
2015	25	50	75
2020	25	53	80
2025	25	53	80
2030	25	53	80

The central oil assumptions are assumed to move in line with the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform central oil projection, which falls from about $65 per barrel in 2006 to $53 per barrel in 2030.

As part of the sensitivity testing, the oil price test varies the projection of oil within the BERR oil price projection range ($25 per barrel to $80 per barrel by 2030) at (base year) 2004 prices.

The relevant BERR documents:

'Meeting the Energy Challenge: A White Paper on Energy', BERR, Cm 7124, Annex B Table B5 for central assumptions.

Biofuels

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent steps the Government have taken to encourage greater global usage of sustainable biofuels. [224284]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The UK is seeking to ensure that biofuels used both inside and outside of the UK are sustainable. We have developed a world class carbon and sustainability reporting system under the UK's Renewable Transport Fuel Obligation. This requires suppliers to provide reports containing information about the environmental performance of the biofuels they supply. We are working within Europe to ensure that the proposed sustainability criteria under the draft Renewable Energy Directive are made as robust as possible. We are also working with the Global Bioenergy Partnership (GBEP) to develop an internationally recognised lifecycle greenhouse gas methodology for biofuels.

In response to widespread concerns about the indirect impacts of biofuel production the Government asked Professor Gallagher of the Renewable Fuels Agency to carry out a review of the wider sustainability impacts of biofuels. The review involved a number of international experts and examined the impacts of biofuel production at a global level. This review was published in July 2008 and has been disseminated widely. Following the review we are seeking for indirect impacts to be included in the EU's mandatory sustainability criteria.

Bus Services: Pensioners

Mr. Crausby: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many pensioners have applied for free national bus passes in (a) Bolton and (b) England. [222624]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department for Transport is not responsible for issuing passes and so does not maintain records of how many applications for passes individual authorities have received. Bolton is part of Greater Manchester Passenger Transport Executive and the latest figures held by the Department show that as of June 2008 GMPTE had issued approximately 387,000 concessionary passes to both elderly and disabled people.

As of August 2008, approximately 7.1 million Integrated Transport Smartcard Operation concessionary smartcard passes have been issued and approximately 900,000 London Freedom Passes have been re-stickered for national use. We cannot currently break down the figure by disabled and elderly passes, but reporting systems are being set up to allow us to do so in the future.

Coventry Airport

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps the Government has taken to increase passenger numbers at Coventry Airport; and if she will make a statement. [221831]

Jim Fitzpatrick: It is for airport owners and operators to bring forward proposals for development in the normal way, through the statutory land use planning system.

The White Paper "The Future of Air Transport" does not itself authorise or preclude any particular development, but sets out a policy framework that will guide decisions on planning decisions.

Departmental Carbon Emissions

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the Answer to the right hon. Member for Horsham of 14 July 2008, Official Report, column 27W, on carbon emissions: Government departments, how much air mileage incurred through departmental travel was used to calculate the departmental payment to the Government Carbon Offsetting Fund in each year that her Department has participated in the fund, broken down by (a) domestic, (b) short-haul and (c) long-haul flights. [222121]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department for Transport has made one contribution to the Government Carbon Offsetting Fund for financial year 2006-07. For that year flights were broken down only into short haul and long haul. The Department's contribution related to 1,647,309 miles of short haul travel, and 1,585,631 miles long haul, a total of 3,232,939 miles.

Departmental Data Protection

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what types of data have been sold by (a) her Department and (b) its agencies under the Re-use of Public Sector Information Regulations in the last 12 months. [222120]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Core information produced by the Department for Transport and its Executive agencies can be re-used free of charge under the terms of the Public Sector Information Click-Use Licence, which is administered by the Office of Public Sector Information in accordance with the Re-Use of Public Sector Information Regulations.

The DFTs Executive agencies have, sold the following data under PSI regulations in the last 12 months:

DSA has sold mailing list data of approved and trainee driving instructors, with their consent, to mailing houses.

DVLA has sold two types of non-personalised vehicle data sets to contracted businesses related to statistical, lifestyle analysis and HPI vehicle checking.

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many applications (a) her Department and (b) its agencies have made under the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 to (i) undertake directed surveillance, (ii) use covert human intelligence sources, (iii) acquire communications data and (iv) undertake intrusive surveillance in the last 24 months. [222125]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department for Transport includes seven executive Agencies and a Shared Service Centre. The Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 ('RIPA') and legislation made under it has enabled the Department to undertake direct surveillance, use covert human intelligence sources and acquire communications data.

Figures on public authority use of covert techniques controlled by RIPA are published annually by the Interception of Communications Commissioner, the Chief Surveillance Commissioner and the Intelligence Services Commissioner who each have particular inspection and oversight responsibilities under RIPA. The latest, reports were laid before Parliament and copies placed in the Libraries of the House on 22 July. The figures provided in the reports are not broken down by individual public authority use of specific covert technique as, depending on the particular technique and authority using it, this could either reveal sensitivities or be misleading. The question of further disclosure for any particular public authority is a matter for the relevant Commissioner.

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many notifications (a) her Department and (b) its agencies made to the Information Commissioner following the loss or mishandling of personal information or data in each of the last three years; and what was notified in each case. [222902]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department for Transport has published details of the personal data related incidents notified to the Information Commissioner's Office in 2007-08 in its resource accounts published on 17 July 2008.

Before November 2007 the Information Commissioner's Office did not specifically keep records of instances of security breaches.

I refer the hon. Member to the statement made by my right hon. Friend the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster on 25 June 2008, providing the final report on measures for data handling procedures in Government.

Departmental Databases

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what use (a) her Department and (b) its agencies make of (i) MOSAIC data and (ii) ACORN data. [222117]

Jim Fitzpatrick: None.

Departmental Disciplinary Proceedings

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the five most serious disciplinary breaches in her Department were in the last 12 months; and what steps were taken in response to each breach. [223047]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department for Transport's five most serious disciplinary cases in the past 12 months involved cases of fraud and inappropriate use of IT equipment. These were considered as acts of gross misconduct and the usual penalty for this is dismissal which applied in these cases.

Departmental Home Working

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the answer of 2 July 2008, Official Report, column 919W, on departmental home working, if she will make it her policy to collate and maintain central records of home working by her Department's staff. [222539]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department for Transport does not keep central records of staff who are home workers at present.

When all business areas of the Department for Transport has fully migrated to a shared service centre, the information will be collated and maintained centrally.

Departmental Mobile Phones

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much her Department spent on mobile telephones in each year since 1997. [222260]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department for Transport was formed in May 2002 and the available data for each full year after 2002-03 is set out in the following table.

GCDA	29.9	25.2	26.8	31.5	30.0	32.7

The costs shown for the central Department and agencies except for MCA are in respect of all costs associated with mobile phone provision and use. The Maritime and Coastguard Agency costs are for line rental only, other costs could be provided only at disproportionate cost. Data for 2002-03 is not available from The Driving Standards Agency because of a change to their finance system or for the Vechicle and Operator Services Agency because this agency was only formed on 1 April 2003.

Departmental Offices

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the location is of each office occupied by (a) her Department and (b) each of its agencies which has been (i) newly occupied and (ii) refurbished in the last 24 months; and what the floor area in square metres is of each. [222126]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The information requested is as follows:

(a) Nil.

(b) The requested information is provided in the following table.

Property	Area (square metres)
Driving Standards Agency HQ, Nottingham	2,549
Highways Agency—Lateral, Leeds	3,300
Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency:

Departmental Official Residences

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what permanent residential accommodation is provided for use by civil servants in her Department; how many residential dwellings are provided; where they are located; and for what grade of civil servant they are provided. [222118]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department for Transport provides individual residential accommodation for six Vehicle Certification Agency staff based overseas as follows:

United States of America. Accommodation provided for a Pay Band 6, Pay Band 5 and a Pay Band 4.

Japan. Accommodation provided for a Pay Band 6 and for two Pay Band 4s.

Departmental Pay

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many people her Department employs who have an annual salary of over £100,000. [222323]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department for Transport employs 44 people with an annual salary of over £100,000.

Departmental Procurement

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if she will place in the Library the names and addresses of each organisation that supplied goods and services to her Department in 2007-08, based on the purchase order data held in the Department's financial database. [222124]

Jim Fitzpatrick: A table showing the names and addresses of each organisation that supplied goods and services to the Department for Transport and its agencies in 2007-08 has been placed in the Libraries of the House. This is based on details of purchase orders raised. The Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency, the Vehicle Certification Agency and the Government Car and Despatch Agency could not provide the information requested without, incurring disproportionate cost.

Departmental Retirement

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the answer of 16 July 2008, Official Report, column 414W, on departmental retirement, how many requests to work beyond the standard retirement age have been received by her Department in each of the last five years. [222431]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The information requested can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

The Department has provided details of the number of requests to work beyond the standard retirement age in the last five years where those requests have been agreed and employees have continued to work.

Details of declined requests to work beyond the standard retirement age are currently not available. Declined requests are not recorded in a way that is readily retrievable.

Departmental Television

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the Answer to the right hon. Member for Horsham of 10 July 2008, Official Report, column 1754W, on departmental television, whether staff in her Department's Ministerial private offices have access to the Sky Sports channel. [222224]

Jim Fitzpatrick: None of the Department for Transport's ministerial private offices have access to the Sky Sports channel.

Departmental Travel

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether staff of (a) her Department and (b) its agencies who are entitled to business class or first class air travel are permitted to (i) travel in a cheaper class to the destination and (ii) benefit in monetary terms or kind from the saving. [222119]

Jim Fitzpatrick: All official travel in the Department for Transport and its agencies is carried out in accordance with the requirements of the "Civil Service Management Code" and the departmental or agency staff handbooks.

Staff members who are entitled to first or business class air travel are permitted to travel in a cheaper class, but are not permitted to derive any monetary or other benefit from the consequent saving.

Driving Tests

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) how many multi-purpose test centres will be operational (a) by 29 September 2008 and (b) in January 2009; [221914]

(2) if she will assess whether the date for implementation of EC Directive 2000/56/EC can be deferred so as to enable the full roll-out of multi-purpose test centres prior to the Directive coming into force. [222030]

Jim Fitzpatrick: 38 multi-purpose test centres were operational on 29 September. A further four multi-purpose test centres will be operational by the end of January 2009.

The Driving Standards Agency has deferred the date for implementation of the EC Directive 2000/56/EC until the end of March 2009.

Driving Under Influence: Accidents

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many road traffic accidents have been caused by drivers under the influence of either alcohol or drugs in (a) Ribble Valley constituency, (b) Lancashire and (c) England in the last 12 months. [221896]

Jim Fitzpatrick: In 2006, the latest year available, there were an estimated 8,170 personal injury road accidents involving at least one driver or rider over the legal alcohol limit in England.

In 2007, there were 601 reported personal injury road accidents with 'impairment by drugs (illicit or medicinal)' as a contributory factor in England.

The information requested is not available at constituency or local authority level.

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many deaths were caused by drivers under the influence of (a) alcohol and (b) prohibited drugs in each of the last 10 years. [221924]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The numbers of fatalities resulting from reported personal injury road accidents involving at least one driver or rider over the legal alcohol limit in 1998 to 2007 in Great Britain are shown in the table.

	Number of fatalities
1998	460
1999	460
2000	530
2001	530
2002	550
2003	580
2004	580
2005	550
2006	560
2007[1]	460

[1] Provisional data. The sample of fatality data from Coroners for 2006 has now been finalised but 2007 estimates are based on a reduced sample of coroners' returns. They remain provisional until more complete information for 2007 is available.

This information is also available in table A of '2007 estimates for accidents involving illegal alcohol levels', available at http://www.dft.gov.uk/162259/162469/221412/221549/399405/rcgb07drinkdrive.pdf.

The numbers of fatalities resulting from reported personal injury road accidents involving at least one driver/rider with impairment by drugs (illicit or medicinal) as a contributory factor for 2005 to 2007 in Great Britain are shown in the table.

Fatalities in accidents involving impairment by drugs

	Number
2005	59
2006	59
2007	70

Information on contributory factors is not available prior to 2005.

The contributory factor "impairment by drugs" applies to prohibited drugs as well as all medicines, whether prescription or 'over the counter'. It is not possible to separate the factor into prohibited and medicinal drugs.

The drug factor is recorded in accidents in which the police officer's opinion at the time of reporting is that the driver/rider was affected by drugs and behaved in a way which caused, or contributed to, the accident. This may not be the result of a drug screening test.

Driving: Mobile Phones

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent comparative research has been (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated by her Department on the effect of using (i) hands-free mobile telephones and (ii) hand-held mobile telephones while driving, on (A) driver reaction times and (B) accident rates. [222259]

Jim Fitzpatrick: None. However, the Department is aware of research undertaken elsewhere that shows the dangers of using mobile phones while driving. For example, a study for Direct Line Motor Insurance, published in 2002 and undertaken by TRL Ltd., demonstrated the effect on driver reaction times of using both hand-held and hands-free phones, adversely comparing that to the effect on a driver's reaction times while impaired through alcohol.

East London Line

Martin Linton: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what discussions she has held with the Mayor of London on the completion of phase two of the East London line extension. [223968]

Jim Fitzpatrick: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer of 10 September 2008, Official Report, columns 2003-4W.

East London Line: Finance

Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when she plans to authorise the release of the funds for the phase 2 extension of the East London line. [224181]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The East London line extension is a TfL project. At the end of last year we agreed a generous a long term funding settlement with Transport for London (TfL). This gives TfL and London's Mayor the ability to set their own priorities and deliver a wide range of improvements to London's transport network. In this context, it is a matter for TfL and the Mayor to decide on the funding of this £100 million phase 2 extension of the East London line.

EDF Energy

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what contracts (a) her Department and (b) its agencies have with EDF; and how much (i) her Department and (ii) its agencies paid to EDF in each of the last 10 years, broken down by the purpose of the payment. [221836]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department for Transport and a number of its agencies make use of the Office of Government Commerce Buying Solutions framework Energy: Over 100 Electricity for the supply of electricity. Payments are made directly to EDF companies under these framework arrangements for the supply of electricity and related services. There are a small number of additional contracts for energy supply.

The Highways Agency makes payments direct to EDF companies in relation to maintenance and management of the strategic road network in the east and south-east of England. These payments include ones to EDF as a "statutory undertaker" under the provisions of the New Roads and Street Works Act 1991. These occur when it is necessary for EDF to move their apparatus, e.g. cables or other equipment that are in or associated with the highway, to allow the agency to carryout building or maintenance works. The 1991 Act sets out the arrangements for these payments.

The Vehicle Operator and Services Agency has made payments to EDF companies in respect of the provision and maintenance of services.

The Department was formed in May 2002. The following table shows the total value of recorded payments (where information is available) made to EDF since this date. Omitted information and details of the specific purpose of spend could be provided at only disproportionate cost.

EU Law

Mr. Francois: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many officials in her Department are wholly or mainly tasked with the negotiation, implementation or the administration of European Union legislation and consequent policies. [222280]

Jim Fitzpatrick: This Government are firmly committed to the importance of the EU in delivering on 21st century challenges. The EU is of central importance to the work of HM Government across all Departments. It is relevant to a wide range of policy areas, and to the work of many Government officials.

Four members of the Department for Transport's EU co-ordination team are mainly tasked with various aspects of the Department's work on European legislation, including preparation of transport councils, UK parliamentary scrutiny, and co-ordination of briefing for UK Members of the European Parliament.

Heathrow Airport: Noise

Martin Linton: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) when she plans to publish the 54 decibel noise exposure contour maps for (a) easterly and westerly preference and (b) landings on the northern and southern runways at Heathrow; [221855]

(2) when she plans to publish estimates of the number of people resident within the 54 decibel noise exposure contour for (a) landings on the northern and southern runways and (b) easterly and westerly preference at Heathrow; [221856]

(3) when she will publish an estimate of the number of people who would be resident within the 54 decibel noise exposure contour at Heathrow if the westerly preference were abandoned. [221857]

Jim Fitzpatrick: It is standard practice in the UK to produce aircraft noise contours between 57 dBA Leq and 72 dBA Leq. Based on past research, the 57 dBA Leq noise level has been used as marking the approximate onset of community annoyance. However the November 2007 Attitudes to Noise from Aviation Sources in England (ANASE) study which had been commissioned to update Government research found that people were more annoyed by all levels of aircraft noise than they were in 1985, when the last major study in this field was carried out. However the study reported that there was no identifiable threshold at which noise became a serious problem. Accordingly we believe it is right to retain the 57 dBA level as a safeguard for those most affected by aircraft noise.

The consultation 'Adding Capacity at Heathrow Airport' addressed the issue of whether westerly preference operations should be retained at Heathrow. In particular, the supporting Civil Aviation Policy report ERCD 0705 'Revised Future Aircraft Noise Exposure Estimates for Heathrow Airport' reviews, in detail, the noise impacts of changing between westerly and easterly preferences in terms of area, population and households affected.

Modelling aircraft noise below 57 dBA Leq 16 hrs becomes increasingly uncertain as the noise level decreases, primarily because of difficulties in obtaining aircraft noise measurements that are not contaminated with other sources of noise. Aircraft noise modelling at such levels is less likely to generate accurate and reliable results. Secondly, noise levels much below 57 dBA Leq correspond to generally low disturbance to most people. It is for these reasons that noise exposure contours are not routinely produced below 57 dBA Leq and only for specific purposes at 54 dBA Leq, e.g. usually as sensitivity test in relation to an assessment of airport expansion.

As regards to the production of separate maps for the number of people resident within the 54 dBA contour for landings on the northern and southern runways, it is considered that such maps would raise issues of interpretation for local residents between the runways who are exposed to noise from either runway. Accordingly it is not proposed to produce such maps.

The report also considered the option of the airport abandoning the westerly preference and operating on a no preference scenario. However the ERCD 0705 report concluded that operating such an arrangement potentially raised issues about how runway direction changes would be managed (with the possibility a greater number of changes). Accordingly the assessment was not taken forward.

HM Coastguard: North West

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport which HM Coastguard units, including air assets, are tasked to cover the North Lancashire and Cumbria coastline during a typical 24 hour period. [223702]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Search and rescue needs across the UK are met by a number of providers including those from the Maritime and Coastguard Agency.

The response to maritime emergencies in the Lancashire and Cumbria coastal areas is normally coordinated from the Maritime Rescue Coordination Centre at Crosby (MRCC Liverpool). This is an all hours centre. Its functions may be taken over, for resilience purposes, by MRCC Holyhead.

The other HM Coastguard units in this area are the 12 volunteer Coastguard rescue teams who are on call 24 hours a day, providing between them search, mud and cliff rescue responses along the coast.

There are no Coastguard helicopters in this area but helicopter coverage is provided by Ministry of Defence assets based at RAF Valley (Anglesey), RAF Boulmer (Northumberland) and RNAS Prestwick.

Others providing services are the RNLI and other independent responders in the maritime sector. The police and fire and rescue services and others may also be called upon if an incident involves land based rescue.

HM Coastguard: Standards

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what guidelines her Department issues on response times by HM Coastguard vessels to incidents. [223701]

Jim Fitzpatrick: There is no guidance on response times specifically for HM Coastguard vessels. Instead, the Maritime and Coastguards Agency service standards require the agency to decide upon the appropriate search and rescue response and initiate action with five minutes of being alerted. In addition, the Department's contract with Klyne Tugs (Lowestoft) Ltd, specifies that the four emergency towing vessels (strategically located around the UK to provide support to vessels in need of assistance) are maintained at a constant 30 minutes state of readiness.

London Underground: Public Private Partnership

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the answer of 10 June 2008, Official Report, columns 163-4W, on London Underground: Public Private Partnership, what response she has received to her request to London Underground that KPMG's Final Assessment of Public Private Partnerships be placed in the Library. [222657]

Jim Fitzpatrick: I have now placed a copy of the report that consists of two letters from KPMG to London Underground Limited dated 8 February and 17 December 2002 in the House Libraries.

Morning Star

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the answer to the right hon. Member for Horsham of 7 July 2008, Official Report, column 1191W, on the Morning Star, which division of her Department receives the copy of the Morning Star. [222225]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Press Office in the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency receives a copy of the Morning Star on a daily basis (Monday to Saturday).

Motor Vehicles: Licensing

Mr. Denis Murphy: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) how many people have (a) contested and (b) contested successfully a late licensing penalty received from the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency (DVLA) (i) in the county court and (ii) directly with the DVLA in each of the last five years; [223774]

(2) how many people were issued with a late licensing penalty by the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency in each of the last five years. [223775]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The agency began issuing late licensing penalties (LLP) with the introduction of continuous registration (CR) in 2004. The volumes of LLP's issued each financial year since the commencement of CR are as follows:

	Number
2004-05	1,183,544
2005-06	1,341,598
2006-07	1,272,384
2007-08	1,219,462

When an LLP remains unpaid, the agency may issue a county court claim pack to the registered keeper, potentially leading to a county court judgement (CCJ). On receiving a county court claim pack, the registered keeper must make a formal response to the court if they wish to defend the claim.

The agency does not hold statistics to readily identify the number of county court cases which have been contested. This information could only be provided at disproportionate cost. The number of county court claims successfully contested by the registered keeper are as follows:

	Number
2004-05	15
2005-06	167
2006-07	290
2007-08	158

The agency does not hold statistics to readily identify the number of appeals received in cases for which an LLP has been issued. This information could be provided only at disproportionate cost. The number of cases closed due either to dispute or mitigating circumstances are as follows:

	Number
2004-05	313,819
2005-06	397,543

	Number
2006-07	209,286
2007-08	134,746

These figures do not include those cases in which other factors have prompted closure, for example the Agency was unable to trace the registered keeper.

Motor Vehicles: Registration

Mr. Goodwill: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many fines have been levied by the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency for failure to notify a change of ownership of a vehicle in the last 12 months; and in how many of these cases the fine has been waived subsequently. [224531]

Jim Fitzpatrick: During the calendar year September 2007 to August 2008 the agency created 45,339 cases for failure to notify a change of ownership of a vehicle. During the same period a total of 26,927 cases were closed due to mitigating circumstances.

Motorcycles: Accidents

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) what steps the Government plan to take to reduce deaths and injuries of motorcyclists; [224305]

(2) what recent steps the Government have taken to reduce deaths and injuries of motorcyclists. [224306]

Jim Fitzpatrick: In February 2005, the Department for Transport published the Government's Motorcycle Strategy, which was developed with the full involvement of motorcycling industry and user groups.

The theme for the strategy is to facilitate motorcycling as a choice of travel within a safe and sustainable transport framework and it sets out a range of actions to improve safety, for central or local government, manufacturers, retailers, trainers and user groups.

On 23 July 2008, we published a revised action plan which updated the actions in the 2005 strategy.

Key achievements include:

A new TV and radio campaign from 2006 aimed at car drivers with the message 'take longer to look for bikes';

Think! sponsorship of the British Superbikes Championship;

Research on fatigue, training and drivers' attitudes to motorcyclists;

A new safety rating system for motorcycle helmets (SHARP);

A leaflet raising awareness of the dangers of diesel spills;

An online motorcycle users' survey on tyres, brakes and mirrors, to inform policy development;

A voluntary register of approved post test motorcycle trainers;

An Enhanced Rider Scheme offering insurance discounts to licensed riders who take further training with an approved instructor;

New guidance to local authorities on Use of Bus Lanes by Motorcycles;

Guidance to highway authorities on motorcycle-friendly infrastructure; and Use of motorcycle-friendly crash barriers on parts of the Highways Agency network.

The overall motorcycle casualty rate per 100,000 vehicle kilometres is at the lowest level for many years. By 2007, the number of fatal and serious motorcycle casualties was 4 per cent. above the baseline of the 1994-98 average, but motorcycle traffic increased by 44 per cent. over this period, so the rate of fatal and serious casualties has fallen by 28 per cent.

We will continue with our efforts to reduce these casualty figures further.

Olympic Games 2012

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many full-time equivalent members of staff in (a) her Department and (b) its associated public bodies are working on projects relating to the London 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games; how many of them are working on (i) project management, (ii) legacy planning, (iii) project oversight and (iv) financial oversight; and what plans she has for future staffing levels. [221876]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department for Transport has 6.5 full-time equivalent members of staff whose work relates wholly to the London 2012 Olympic Games and Paralympic Games. Many other members of staff in the Department and its agencies are also contributing to delivery of the Government's objectives for the 2012 Games.

Parking: Stoke-On-Trent

Joan Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what funding is available to Stoke-on-Trent city council to expand its car-sharing and lorry parking scheme over the next five years. [223877]

Jim Fitzpatrick: We have allocated local transport capital funding of £15.3 million to Stoke-on-Trent city council in the three years to 2010-11. No decisions have been taken on the level of funding in later years. It is for the local authority to determine what priority and resources should be allocated to widening its car sharing and lorry parking scheme.

Pedestrian Areas: Safety

Mr. Morley: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if she will make an assessment of the potential impact of introducing audible automatic and manual warning signals for electric scooters and similar vehicles that commonly use pedestrian areas. [224162]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Only those mobility scooters that can use the road (Class 3 scooters) are legally required to be fitted with an audible warning instrument.

Research was undertaken by the Department for Transport in 2006 on the use of Class 2 and Class 3 scooters. The research found that users of Class 2 scooters (which can be used in the pedestrian environment) were in favour of the introduction of audible warning instruments and lights for these vehicles. The Department is now looking at the future requirements for these vehicles and will take the results of this research into consideration.

Railways: Radioactive Materials

Ms Abbott: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many trains are assigned to the transport of nuclear flasks (a) from Bradwell and (b) Sizewell nuclear power stations to Sellafield via the Great Eastern Main Line and the North London Line; at what frequency the trains run; and if she will make a statement. [221826]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The number and frequency of future shipments of irradiated nuclear fuel flasks and the routes to be taken are an operational matter for the organisations concerned and this Department does not hold this information.

Defueling operations at Bradwell are now complete and therefore there will be no further shipments of irradiated nuclear fuel from this site.

Roads: Accidents

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many road traffic accidents were reported in each London borough in each year since 1997. [221891]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The number of reported personal injury road accidents in each London borough between 1997 and 2007 are given in the table.

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many reported deaths from traffic accidents there were in (a) Romsey constituency, (b) the city of Southampton, (c) the non-metropolitan county of Hampshire and (d) Test Valley borough in each of the last five years. [222995]

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what plans she has to make road traffic accident investigation reports accessible to the public. [223891]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Police accident investigation reports form a subjudice criminal investigation file once proceedings have been commenced. The contents of these files are not published, and extracts are only provided to courts and the Crown Prosecution Service in the process of providing evidence, and provided to third parties and insurance companies according to law. Following proceedings, the police files are held in confidence, given the personal and other data they contain. There are no plans to change this.

Roads: Safety

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) what progress has been made on the Road Safety After 2010 Strategy; and when she plans to publish the strategy; [222261]

(2) what groups and organisations are being consulted in relation to her Department's Road Safety After 2010 Strategy. [222262]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The current road safety strategy runs from 2000 to 2010. The Department for Transport has been discussing with road safety stakeholders the challenges we face in the period after 2010 and listening to ideas on how to reduce casualties further. We expect to consult formally early in 2009 on a new road safety strategy.

We have so far involved the following organisations and intend to consult more widely prior to the formal consultation:

Parliamentary Advisory Council on Transport Safety
Road Safety Foundation
Hyder Consulting
Cycling England
Living Streets
County Surveyors' Society
Institute of Highways and Transportation
Transport for London
The Motorists' Forum
The RAC Foundation
The AA
The Motorcycle Industry Association
Brake
TRL
Child Accident Prevention Trust Road Haulage Association
Roadsafe
Local Government Association
Ford Motor Company
Toyota Europe
Tata Motors
Jaguar Land Rover
Volvo Trucks
IVECO
BMW
The Society of Motor Manufacturers and Traders
Thatcham
Millbrook
Mira
Southampton University
Vehicle Safety Research Centre (Loughborough University)
Institute for Transport Studies (Leeds University)
The FIA Foundation
Cranfield University
ITS UK
Innovits

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport who the members of the Road Safety Advisory Panel are; what the output of the panel was in each of the last 12 months; and how often the panel meets. [222263]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Road Safety Advisory Panel is a group of road safety interests convened by the Department for Transport to inform Government policy at key points in policy development. Its last meeting was on 6 December 2006 to discuss the second review of the road safety strategy. At that point, its membership was:

Highways Agency
Living Streets
Home Office
Motorcycle Advisory Group
Local Authority Road Safety Officer' Association
Royal Society for Prevention of Accidents
Welsh Local Government Association
County Surveyors' Society
CTC, the national cyclists' organisation
Parliamentary Advisory Council on Transport Safety
Driving Standards Agency
The AA Motoring Trust
Association of British Insurers
Welsh Assembly Government
Motor Schools Association
Scottish Executive
Child Accident Prevention Trust
RAC Foundation
RoadSafe
Brake
Local Authority Road Safety Officers' Association
Association of Chief Police Officers
Highways Agency
Health and Safety Executive

We expect to convene a meeting of the panel shortly to discuss the new road safety strategy, for the period beyond 2010.

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what allocation her Department has made for expenditure on road safety in the next 12 months; and if she will make a statement. [222961]

Jim Fitzpatrick: It is not possible to identify a budget figure for road safety alone, given that spending often serves multiple purposes. For example, highway authorities' spending on roads is both to make trunk roads safer and to tackle congestion. Many individual schemes have multiple objectives.

However, the Department's annual report allocates budget by broad objective. The planned spend on the relevant objective—strengthening the safety and security of transport—is £3.867 million for 2008-09. There is further detail in Appendix A of the annual report, available on the Department's website at:

www.dft.gov.uk/about/publications/apr/ar2008/apr08appendixa.pdf.

Roads: Surveys

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Bromley and Chislehurst of 2 July 2008, Official Report, column 927W, on roads: surveys, if she will place in the Library copies of the Office for National Statistics Omnibus Survey research on road pricing compiled in the last two years. [223014]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Reports were published by the Department for Transport (DfT) on 25 October 2007 and 8 May 2008. They are on the DfT website at:

http://www.dft.gov.uk/pgr/statistics/datatablespublications/trsnstatsatt/congestionroadpricing

Copies have been placed in the Libraries of the House.

South East

Dr. Stoate: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much her Department spent on services, broken down by type in (a) Dartford Borough, (b) Kent Thameside, (c) the Thames Gateway, (d) Kent County Council area and (e) the South East region in each of the last five years. [222455]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The following tables show Department for Transport funding allocated to Kent county council and the total funding allocated to local authorities within the South East region over the last five years.

More detailed figures are not available since it is for Kent county council to decide on the allocation of available resource and investment to different areas. Spend in the Thames Gateway area may also include allocations from Essex county council and relevant London boroughs. Most transport revenue spend is supported through the revenue support grant, paid by the Department for Communities and Local Government.

The region has also benefited from substantial investment in rail and strategic roads over the period. The relevant figures are not broken down between individual local authorities, but estimates of total identifiable expenditure by region are included at table A7 of the Department's annual report.

The majority of central funding for concessionary fares is provided through formula grant in the environmental protective and cultural services block from the Department for Communities and Local Government. From 1 April 2008, the Department for Transport is paying an additional special grant to local authorities to help fund the cost of the new statutory minimum bus concession, as detailed in the tables.

Since 2003, the Department has made available about £1.75-2 million per year of additional funding to Kent county council and Thurrock borough council. This is to help deliver local transport projects, in recognition of the impact of the Dartford crossing on local residents. Funding for Kent and Thurrock in 2004-05 and 2005-06 has been £1 million and £730,000, respectively. From 2006-07 to 2008-09, a similar amount of funding has been made available through the Integrated Transport Block, although it is not distinguished specifically from the other funding provided to the councils.

Stress

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what arrangements her Department has in place to assist officials to overcome the effects of stress experienced in the workplace. [222167]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department for Transport has a stress policy in place and is proactively looking at measures to reduce all sick absence. The Department also believes in early intervention by Occupational Health in response to reported stress absences and all staff have access to counselling services.

The Department is represented at Health and Safety Executive's Stress Management Network. HSE is helping Government Departments to implement the HSE management standards for work-related stress in their organisation.

Transport: ICT

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent steps the Government has taken to encourage technological advance in the transport industry. [221830]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department for Transport has regular dialogue with transport industry groups, wider Government and academia (particularly through the research councils) on a broad range of issues, including the role that technology can play in delivering departmental objectives.

An example of this is work that the Department is currently joint funding with the Technology Strategy Board and Engineering and Physical Research Council through the Future Intelligent Transport Systems Programme which is looking into innovative ways to solve transport problems.

We also provide funding and support to research and development work for the provision of bus real time information, journey planning and better traffic management and control systems and techniques. Development in all these areas will help to address departmental objectives to improve passenger journeys and reduce traffic congestion, which will in turn bring environmental benefits.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Ballistic Missile Defence

Jeremy Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the (a) financial, (b) political and (c) security benefits and costs to the UK of supporting US plans to deploy missile defence facilities in Europe; and if he will make a statement. [224214]

Caroline Flint [holding answer 17 September 2008]: I refer my hon. Friend to chapter 4, section 4.68 of the recently published National Security Strategy which deals with the UK's response to the current and emerging security challenges. The UK contributes to ballistic missile early warning through the facilities at RAF Fylingdales and RAF Menwith Hill. The cost of the upgrade at RAF Fylingdales—and the work at RAF Menwith Hill—was funded by the US Government. We do not anticipate the direct running costs incurred by the UK to increase because of the participation of these stations in the US ballistic missile defence system.

Bosnia and Herzegovina: Politics and Government

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether the political situation in Bosnia-Herzegovina was on the agenda of the General Affairs and External Relations Council meeting on 15 and 16 September. [224191]

David Miliband: The Western Balkans was on the agenda for the September EU General Affairs and External Relations Council, though discussion focused mainly on Serbia's co-operation with the International Criminal Tribunal for the Former Yugoslavia. Ahead of the Council. I sent a joint letter with Czech Foreign Minister Schwarzenberg to all EU colleagues highlighting the ongoing challenges in Bosnia and Herzegovina and the need for EU focus and engagement in addressing these challenges. We used the Council to introduce that letter and will be discussing it further with EU colleagues in the coming months.

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent assessment he has made of the political and security situation in Bosnia-Herzegovina; and if he will make a statement. [224192]

David Miliband: I remain concerned about the political situation in Bosnia and Herzegovina. Progress on the key reforms detailed in Bosnia and Herzegovina's European Partnership and on the objectives necessary to allow for closure of the Office of the High Representative has been slow and uncertain. I am also concerned by ethnic nationalist rhetoric, from both Federation and Republika Srpska politicians, which questions the structure of the state as set out in the Dayton Peace Agreement. The Government continue to support High Representative/EU Special Representative Lajcak in upholding the Dayton Peace Agreement and in fulfilling his mandate.

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what plans he has for the future of the Office of the high representative in Bosnia-Herzegovina and its status beyond the end of 2008; and if he will make a statement. [224193]

David Miliband: The Government remain committed to increased ownership and responsibility for Bosnia and Herzegovina's political leaders and therefore to closure of the Office of the high representative. However, this can only happen when the time is right. In February 2008, the Peace Implementation Council Steering Board agreed to link closure of the Office of the high representative to the fulfilment of five objectives and two conditions. Key among these is the need for a stable political and security situation, based on full compliance with Dayton. The Peace Implementation Council Steering Board will meet from 20-21 November to discuss the situation in Bosnia and Herzegovina and progress on these objectives and conditions.

British Council: Marketing

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how much the British Council has spent on rebranding in the last 24 months. [222985]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The British Council has not spent any resources on rebranding in the last 24 months.

Brunei: Foreign Relations

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (1) when he last visited Brunei; what recent steps he has taken to strengthen United Kingdom economic, commercial, cultural and educational links with Brunei; and if he will make a statement; [222244]

(2) what recent assessment he has made of relations with Brunei; and if he will make a statement. [222245]

Meg Munn: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has not visited Brunei Darussalam but the UK continues to engage with Brunei at the highest levels. My right hon. Friend the Prime Minister met His Majesty the Sultan of Brunei Darussalam in London on 24 June. They discussed a range of issues, including the global economic outlook, Brunei's support for deployments of our Brunei Garrison to Afghanistan and Brunei's initiative on preserving the Borneo rainforest. His Majesty the Sultan of Brunei Darussalam also pledged to sign the Call to Action Plan on the UN Millennium Development Goals. I also met Brunei's Second Minister of Foreign Affairs and Trade, Pehin Lim, in London on 18 March.

The UK and Brunei have a long-standing and strong bilateral relationship, particularly on defence co-operation, trade and education. We are grateful for His Majesty the Sultan of Brunei Darussalam's continued support for the battalion of Gurkhas based at Brunei. The UK continues to play a strong role in developing Brunei's oil and gas sector, and the Brunei Investment Agency is a significant investor in the UK, with their largest overseas operations in the City of London. The UK remains the destination of choice for Bruneian students, with about 1,220 of them enrolled in higher education in the UK in 2006-07. Our high commission has also organised cultural events in Brunei with particular focus on links with the Islamic world.

China: Human Rights

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how the Government plans to engage with China on human rights over the next three years. [222300]

Meg Munn: Engaging with China on human rights is a Government priority and requires a sustained commitment. We will maintain a multi-layered approach, based around advocacy, dialogue and project work. We engage in regular high-level lobbying to encourage political progress, and project work to deliver concrete assistance on the ground. We are firmly committed to the UK-China and EU-China Human Rights Dialogues, which allow us to discuss human rights in greater depth with the Chinese government. We believe these dialogues contribute to incremental progress on human rights in China. They continue to provide a direct channel of communication with the Chinese government, allowing us to discuss difficult and complex issues in detail. We regularly review our approach, including through stakeholder consultation. We fund and work closely with the Great Britain-China Centre, which carries out projects related to human rights and rule of law in China.

China: Politics and Government

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what projects the Government funds in China to encourage (a) development of a legal system, (b) good governance, (c) respect of human rights and (d) labour and structural reform. [222298]

Meg Munn: The Government fund projects in China through the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) Human Rights and Democracy Strategic Project Fund (SPF), through the Ministry of Justice judicial training scheme and through British Council work to support social enterprise. The SPF is currently funding six projects in China on criminal justice reform (for instance, introducing monitoring of detention centres and providing capacity building for defence lawyers) and progress towards abolition of the death penalty. We are developing further projects in these areas and on freedom of expression and the development of civil society. The Ministry of Justice judicial training scheme, which is now in its eleventh year, supports legal development by bringing Chinese judges to the UK for a year long study programme. Later this year the British Council will launch a social enterprise programme to support individuals in launching community-based governance projects. Some of these projects are delivered for the Government by the Great Britain-China Centre, which itself receives a grant-in-aid from the FCO.

Departmental Buildings

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the location is of each office occupied by (a) his Department and (b) each of its agencies which has been (i) newly occupied and (ii) refurbished in the last 24 months; and what the floor area in square metres is of each. [222095]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The information requested is not held centrally and could be provided only at a disproportionate cost.

Departmental Homeworking

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 2 July 2008, Official Report, column 1003W, on departmental home working, if he will make it his policy to collate and maintain central records of home working by his Department's staff. [222469]

Meg Munn: Our policy is to encourage flexible working for those staff who would like to take advantage of it. We encourage managers to respond positively to requests for flexible working wherever they can. We have anecdotal evidence of a significant rise in the number of staff working, at least part of the time, from home. But we do not intend to monitor or measure specifically how many staff work from home nor for how many hours/days per week as collating this information would involve disproportionate cost and manual effort.

Departmental Official Residences

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what permanent residential accommodation is provided for use by civil servants in his Department; how many residential dwellings are provided; where they are located; and for what grade of civil servant they are provided. [222104]

Meg Munn: Throughout our overseas network, the Foreign and Commonwealth Office has some 3,700 units of permanent residential accommodation—comprising owned, loaned, gifted and leased properties—in 220 locations worldwide for all grades of civil servants.

There are no units of permanent residential accommodation provided for civil servants in the UK.

Departmental Public Relations

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how much (a) his Department and (b) its agencies spent on each of the external public relations and marketing companies included in the Central Office of Information's public relations framework in each of the last 36 months. [222102]

Meg Munn: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office has spent the following amounts with the external public relations and marketing companies included in the Central Office of Information's public relations framework. There has been no recorded spend by its agencies:

Hill and Knowlton
2005-06	28,782
2006-07	427,483
2007-08	142,248
Trinedia
2006-07	909
Lexis Public Relations
2005-06	24,166

The amounts paid to Hill and Knowlton include £5,104 paid on behalf of UK Trade and Industry.

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many staff from public relations or public affairs firms or consultancies have been seconded to his Department and its agencies in each of the last five years. [222207]

Meg Munn: One member of staff from a public affairs organisation is currently seconded to the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO). There are no secondments involving staff to the FCO's agencies.

Figures on the number of secondments from 2002 to 2007 were not collated and cannot be obtained without incurring a disproportionate cost.

Departmental Surveillance

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many applications (a) his Department and (b) its agencies have made under the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 to (i) undertake directed surveillance, (ii) use covert human intelligence sources, (iii) acquire communications data and (iv) undertake intrusive surveillance in the last 24 months. [222094]

David Miliband: Figures on warrants issued by me under the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 are included in the confidential annex of the annual reports of the Interception of Communications Commissioner and the Intelligence Services Commissioner, but excluded from the published reports. In his 2007 annual report, the Intelligence Services Commissioner said that he did "not propose to disclose publicly the numbers of warrants or authorisations issued to the security and intelligence agencies because it would assist those unfriendly to the UK were they able to know the extent of the work (of those agencies) in fulfilling their function".

The Interception of Communications Commissioner in his annual report for 2007 gave a similar explanation for non-disclosure of the number of warrants issued by me. The latest reports were laid before Parliament and copies placed in the Library of the House on 22 July.

Diego Garcia: Detainees

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 7 May 2008, Official Report, columns 932-3W, on Diego Garcia: detainees, what reports his Department has received of allegations relating to the USS Peleliu; and what discussions he has had with his US counterpart on the matter. [222706]

Dr. Howells: We have received allegations relating to detainees being held on US naval vessels, including the USS Peleliu, from human rights non-governmental organisations. We have asked the US to clarify their position on detainees being held on ships and to verify previous assurances that detainees had never been held on ships in the territorial waters of Diego Garcia.

The US confirmed to us that no detainees have been held on ships within Diego Garcia's territorial waters since 11 September 2001. They also informed us that they do not operate detention facilities for terrorist suspects onboard ships, although US naval vessels were used in the early days of Operation Enduring Freedom in Afghanistan to screen and temporarily hold a very small number of individuals pending their transfer to land-based detention facilities. These ships were not located within the territorial waters of Diego Garcia. We have no information to suggest that these ships were supplied from the island.

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 7 May 2008, Official Report, columns 932-3W, on Diego Garcia: detainees, if he will place in the Library the response received to the request made to the US Secretary of State for clarification on a number of specific issues. [222707]

Dr. Howells: Further to my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary's letter to US Secretary of State Rice relating to the two renditions through Diego Garcia in 2002, the US have informed us that:

> there have been no other instances in which US intelligence flights landed in the UK, our overseas territories or the Crown dependencies, with a detainee on board since 11 September 2001;
> no detainees have been held on ships within Diego Garcia's territorial waters since 11 September 2001; and > no non-US service personnel have been held on Diego Garcia or within its territorial waters since 11 September 2001.

The US have also underlined their firm understanding that there will be no rendition through the UK, our overseas territories and Crown dependencies or airspace without first receiving our express permission.

Diplomatic Immunity

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the written ministerial statement of 26 June 2008, Official Report, columns 34-36WS, on diplomatic immunity (serious offences), how many of the offences indicated in the table resulted in the diplomatic representative subsequently leaving the United Kingdom in each year from 2003 to 2007. [223005]

Meg Munn: As a result of Foreign and Commonwealth Office representations, the following number of diplomats left the UK during the period 2003-07.

	Number
2003	1
2004	2
2006	1
2007	5

Diplomatic Service: Buildings

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what properties are (a) owned and (b) rented or leased by his Department in (i) Israel, (ii) Malta, (iii) the Holy See and (iv) Egypt; and for what purposes. [222247]

Meg Munn: For security reasons the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) does not disclose the addresses of staff residential accommodation.

The following are categories of properties owned, rented or leased by the FCO in Israel, Malta, the Holy See and Egypt.

	Office	Residence	Residential	Other[1]

Diplomatic Service: Parking Offences

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the written ministerial statement of 26 June 2008, Official Report, columns 32-34WS, on diplomatic missions (traffic violation fines 2007), how many fines are outstanding, broken down by diplomatic mission; and of what value in each case. [222968]

Meg Munn: The written ministerial statement of 26 June 2008, Official Report, columns 32-34WS, on outstanding parking fines incurred by diplomatic vehicles names all missions with outstanding fines of £1,000 or more. We have no plans to publish the remaining figures for those missions with outstanding fines of less than £1,000. For small missions or those missions with a small number of outstanding fines, there is some risk that diplomats or their vehicles could be individually identified. This would breach our data protection obligations under the Vienna Convention on Diplomatic Relations.

EU Law

Mr. Francois: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how much the UK paid in fines for non-implementation or inadequate implementation of EU directives in each year since 1997. [222318]

Mr. Jim Murphy: None. The UK has never been fined for non-implementation or inadequate implementation of EU directives.

European Union: Diplomatic Service

Mr. Francois: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many officials worked in the UK Permanent Representative to the EU in each year since 1978. [222227]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The number of UK civil servants from the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO), or on secondment to the FCO from other Whitehall Departments, who worked at the Office of the UK Permanent Representative to the EU on 1 April each year was:

	Number
2005	93
2006	78
2007	79
2008	81

Our current management information database only holds figures centrally for 2005 (when it was introduced) onwards. We could not compile figures for earlier years without incurring a disproportionate cost.

Government Art Collection

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what items from the Government Art Collection are located in his Ministerial residence in 1 Carlton Gardens. [222987]

David Miliband: The following items from the Government Art Collection are located in the ministerial residence at 1 Carlton Gardens.

Corner of the Stackyard painting by Brian SEAGO;

Orange Dahlias painting by Hugh Micklem;

Full Summer painting by Amy K. Browning;

Petworth Park, as it appeared at the Time of the Annual Dinner given by the late Earl of Egremont, 9 June 1835 print after W. F. Witherington;

P&O Steamship "Niphon" off Hong Kong painting by an unknown artist;

Seated Female Figure watercolour by an unknown Chinese artist;

Seated Male Figure watercolour by an unknown Chinese artist;

Twigs with Leaves and Blossom watercolour by an unknown Chinese artist;

The Cottage, Giverny painting by Charles Conder;

Gillingham Churchyard, Kent painting by William Muller;

Evening Landscape with Church on a Hill painting by Enid Hay; and Paris Scene painting by Edward Morland Lewis.

Great Britain-China Centre

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of how the Chinese authorities view the work of the Great Britain-China Centre. [222297]

Meg Munn: We believe that the Chinese government welcome the work carried out by the Great Britain-China Centre in facilitating contacts and collaboration with high-level decision-makers engaged in legal and labour reform both in the UK and in China.

The Great Britain-China Centre has delivered many projects on the rule of law with the support of Chinese counterpart organisations and we expect this level of co-operation to continue.

International Criminal Tribunal for the Former Yugoslavia

Jo Swinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of (a) the level of Serbian co-operation with the International Criminal Tribunal for the former Yugoslavia (ICTY) and (b) the prospect of the delivery of Ratko Mladic to the ICTY in the near future. [222825]

Caroline Flint: The Government believe that the arrest and transfer of Radovan Karadzic was a significant step forward in Serbia's co-operation with the International Criminal Tribunal for the former Yugoslavia (ICTY). ICTY Prosecutor Serge Brammertz visited Belgrade from 10-11 September and briefed the EU General Affairs and External Relations Council on 15 September. His next report to the UN Security Council is due in December.

In itself, the arrest of Karadzic does not equate to 'full co-operation'. In our view, evidence of full co-operation would be a period of committed and sustained activity by the Serbian Government, demonstrating hundred per cent. effort and political will. Co-operation with the Tribunal covers efforts in a range of areas including: tackling support networks; in meeting requests for documents; in allowing access to archives; in ensuring protection of witnesses; as well as in locating and transferring the two remaining indictees, Goran Hadzic and Ratko Mladic.

Our assessment is that the Serbian Government are working actively to ensure the transfer of the remaining indictees, including Ratko Mladic, to The Hague. We call upon them to make every effort to ensure that transfer takes place as soon as possible.

Iran: Detainees

Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make representations to the Government of Iran urging the release of six members of the Baha'i community arrested in that country on 14 May 2008; and if he will make a statement. [222232]

Dr. Howells: We remain very concerned about the overall treatment of Iran's Baha'i community and, in particular, the continued detention without charge of seven members of their informal leadership since May. We have consistently voiced our concern about this and urged the Iranian government to release them unconditionally. Following a UK recommendation, the EU issued a public statement on 21 May expressing serious concern at the discrimination and harassment of Baha'is in Iran and calling for the release of the Baha'i leaders. In statements to the UN Human Rights Council in Geneva on 6 June and 16 September, the UK once again called on Iran to release the detained Baha'is. Most recently, and again with strong UK support, the EU issued a further public declaration on 26 September about the increasing pressure on people belonging to religious minorities in Iran in recent months. This declaration set out that the EU was 'deeply disturbed'

by the arrests of members of the Baha'i community and called for their 'immediate and unconditional release'.

We will continue to press Iran to fully uphold the right to freedom of religion and to end the persecution of Baha'is in Iran.

Mr. David Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations his Department has made to the Iranian authorities on the detention on charges of apostasy of Mahmoud Mohammad Matin-Azad and Arash Ahmad-Ali Basirat. [224509]

Dr. Howells: We continue to have concerns about the treatment of Christians in Iran. In recent months we have received a number of reports about detentions of individuals who have converted from Islam to Christianity, including Mahmoud Matin-Azad and Arash Basirat, who were arrested in May and subsequently charged with apostasy. With strong UK support, the EU issued a public declaration on 26 September expressing concern about the deteriorating situation of religious minorities in Iran and calling for the release of Christian converts who had been arrested in recent months. We have since received information that Mr. Matin-Azad and Mr. Basirat have been acquitted of these charges. However, we remain deeply concerned that the new draft penal code would introduce a mandatory death sentence for the 'crime' of apostasy (the death penalty is currently one possible punishment) and the impact that this would have on religious minorities including Christian converts. The EU statement of 26 September also called on Iran to reconsider these elements of the new draft and allow all its citizens the right to exercise freedom of religion or belief in full.

Iraq: Human Rights

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what further investigations he has undertaken or has supported into whether the Anfal campaign of Saddam Hussein in 1987-88 was a war crime; and if he will make a statement. [222402]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The UK helped fund, with international partners, the cost of sending international advisers to the Iraqi High Tribunal to provide advice to the Judiciary on international law—including human rights—in the trial of Saddam Hussein and members of his former regime. On 24 June 2007, the Iraqi High Tribunal reached its verdict on the Anfal trial and sentenced the senior figures involved in the campaign.

The tribunal findings underscore the brutality Saddam Hussein's regime imposed on the Iraqi people and characterised many of the actions that had given rise to the charges as war crimes.

Kosovo: Politics and Government

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent assessment he has made of the security situation in Kosovo, with particular reference to the safety of returning refugees; and if he will make a statement. [223969]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The security situation in Kosovo remains calm but tense. The Kosovo police service, the UN Interim Administration Mission in Kosovo (UNMIK) and the North Atlantic Treaty Organisation-led peacekeeping force in Kosovo are all engaged in ensuring security on the ground. They have the full support of the UK in ensuring a safe and secure environment in Kosovo.

In its declaration of independence, the Parliamentary Assembly of Kosovo committed Kosovo to the principles of democracy and equality for all its citizens contained in the UN Special Envoy's comprehensive settlement proposal. Under the proposal, all refugees and internally displaced persons from Kosovo have the right to return and reclaim their property and personal possessions based on a voluntary and informed decision.

The security situation is only one of a number of factors affecting the returns process. According to the report of the UN Secretary-General on UNMIK of 15 July 2008, the boycott by Kosovo Serb representatives of various decision-making fora on returns, an absence of dialogue and co-operation between the authorities in Pristina and Belgrade and a lack of economic opportunities and occupation of property are obstacles to the returns process. We continue to work with the Governments of Kosovo and Serbia to make progress on these issues.

Mauritania: Peace Negotiations

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent steps the Government has taken to promote peace in Mauritania. [224164]

Dr. Howells: On 6 August I made the following statement on the situation in Mauritania:

"The UK is following the situation in Mauritania closely and is concerned by reports of a military coup. We condemn any attempt to seize power by force and call on all parties to ensure respect for democracy, human rights and the rule of law and to safeguard the well-being of their own citizens and foreign nationals in Mauritania. Britons currently in Mauritania should monitor local press reports and take sensible precautions for their safety".

I remain deeply concerned that the President Abdallahi remains in detention and no progress has been made towards the restoration of democracy. That is why I strongly support statements made by the EU Presidency, the African Union and others which have called for the immediate release of the President and Prime Minister and the restoration of constitutional order. A UN presidential statement agreed on 20 August condemned the coup and called for the immediate restoration of the legitimate, constitutional, democratically-elected institutions.

The UK is working with our international partners to bring pressure to bear on the military regime in Mauritania and to promote peace in the region and will continue to monitor the situation closely.

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps the Government have taken to protect Britons living in and visiting Mauritania since the recent coup in that country. [224165]

Dr. Howells: On 6 August I made the following statement on the situation in Mauritania:

"The UK is following the situation in Mauritania closely and is concerned by reports of a military coup. We condemn any attempt to seize power by force and call on all parties to ensure respect for democracy, human rights and the rule of law and to safeguard the well-being of their own citizens and foreign nationals in Mauritania. Britons currently in Mauritania should monitor local press reports and take sensible precautions for their safety".

On 6 August the Foreign and Commonwealth Office amended the travel advice advising against "all but essential travel to Mauritania" and advising "British nationals to keep a low profile, exercise caution and avoid all areas where there are large gatherings of people". Travel advice was updated again on 23 September and we will continue to monitor the situation closely.

While the UK does not have permanent representation in Mauritania, our honorary consul in Nouakchott offers support and emergency assistance to British nationals in Mauritania.

Morocco: Fisheries

Mark Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps the Government are taking to ensure that the indigenous people of Western Sahara receive licensing revenues or aid derived from the EU-Morocco Fisheries Agreement as a result of UK trawlers' fishing activity in the waters of the occupied Western Sahara. [223165]

Dr. Howells [holding answer 10 September 2008]: Morocco, as the de facto administering power in the Western Sahara, has an obligation under international law to ensure that economic activities carried out under its administration in the territory do not adversely affect the interests of the people of the Western Sahara. This includes revenues from the EU-Morocco Fisheries Agreement 2006. Trawlers from the UK and those from other EU member states fishing in the waters off Morocco or the Western Sahara must act in accordance with the provisions of this agreement.

Mark Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether the Government regard the waters off the coast of Western Sahara as international waters; and what the status is of UK fishing vessels fishing in those waters under the terms of the EU fisheries agreement with Morocco. [223166]

Dr. Howells [holding answer 10 September 2008]: The EU-Morocco Fisheries Agreement was agreed in 2006 and sets out the terms for which UK and other European fishing vessels may fish in the waters off the coast of Western Sahara. The agreement does not prejudice the issue of the status of Western Sahara, which the UK regards as undetermined pending UN efforts to find a resolution. Nor does the agreement represent recognition of Morocco's sovereignty over the maritime waters of Western Sahara.

Morocco: Human Rights

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether provisions relating to human rights will be included in the EU agreement with Morocco on advanced status. [223295]

Dr. Howells [holding answer 10 September 2008]: The UK welcomes closer co-operation between the EU and Morocco, including the proposal for an Advanced Status Agreement currently under discussion between EU member states, the European Commission and Morocco. These discussions cover a range of issues, including human rights. Human rights will also remain part of the political dialogue between the EU and Morocco and will be discussed at the sub-committee on human rights, governance and democracy, which is due to meet again later this year.

Morocco: Mining

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will hold discussions with the Government of Morocco on the export of phosphate from the Bou Craa mine in Western Sahara; and if he will make a statement. [222308]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The Government are aware of the extraction of phosphate in Western Sahara and its exportation. The UK maintains its position that Morocco, as the de facto administering power of Western Sahara, is obliged under international law to ensure that economic activities under administration—including the extraction and exportation of phosphates—do not adversely affect the interests of the people in Western Sahara.

Morocco: Western Sahara

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether the occupation of Western Sahara by Morocco will be raised in his discussions with Morocco on advanced status. [222307]

Mr. Jim Murphy: We welcome closer co-operation between the EU and Morocco, including the proposal for an Advanced Status Agreement that is under discussion between EU member states, the European Commission and Morocco. These discussions cover a range of issues, including economic and commercial issues, justice and security, regional co-operation, cultural and educational co-operation and human rights. The issue of Western Sahara, while not discussed within the context of the Advanced Status, remains part of the political dialogue between the EU and Morocco, which will be strengthened as part of the Advanced Status. Western Sahara will also be discussed as part of the political dialogue at the next Association Council in October.

The Government continue to believe that progress towards a negotiated solution to the dispute in Western Sahara providing for the self-determination of the people of Western Sahara is best achieved under the auspices of the UN. To this end and in accordance with UN Security Council Resolution (1813) of 30 April, the UK fully supports the efforts of the UN Secretary-General and his Personal Envoy to the Western Sahara, Peter van Walsum, and the negotiation process currently under way.

Mark Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether the EU-Moroccan Association Agreement provides for special arrangements for products originating from the Western Sahara such as those provided for in the Association Agreement for products originating in Melilla and Ceuta which are to be accompanied by a certificate stating their origin. [224172]

Dr. Howells: There are no provisions in the current Association Agreement that provide for special arrangements for goods originating from Western Sahara.

However, the Government maintains the position that the Government of Morocco, as the de facto administering power of Western Sahara, is obliged under international law to ensure that economic activities carried out under their administration do not adversely affect the interests of the people of Western Sahara.

Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty

Jeremy Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what proposals his Department will put forward at the 2009 Preparatory Committee Meeting of the 2010 Review Conference on the Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty; and if he will make a statement. [224215]

Dr. Howells [holding answer 17 September 2008]: The UK will work intensively with international partners before, at and after the 2009 Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty (NPT) Preparatory Committee to identify areas of convergence that can form the basis of a successful outcome to the 2010 NPT Review Conference. In particular we will submit proposals to strengthen the NPT in all its aspects, promoting zero tolerance of proliferation, upholding the rights of all States party to the NPT to benefit from the peaceful uses of nuclear energy and reinvigorating the commitment of NPT Nuclear Weapons States to nuclear disarmament.

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what his assessment is of the effects of the recent decision by the Nuclear Suppliers Group to support a nuclear agreement between the USA and India on the operation of article II of the Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty; and if he will make a statement. [224251]

Dr. Howells [holding answer 17 September 2008]: We assess that the decision by the Nuclear Suppliers Group (NSG) to allow an exemption for India to the NSG guidelines will not have any effect on the operation of article II of the Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty. Article II prohibits the transfer of nuclear weapons or other nuclear explosive devices; the NSG exemption for India does not allow for such transfers.

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps his Department has taken to encourage India to sign the Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty; and if he will make a statement. [224252]

Dr. Howells [holding answer 17 September 2008]: Universalisation of the Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty (NPT) is a long-standing UK objective. The UK regularly calls on India to accede to the NPT as a non-nuclear weapon state. This is a message we convey both publicly and privately.

Official Gifts: Animals

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the policy of the Government is on receipt of wild animals as diplomatic gifts. [224053]

David Miliband [holding answer 17 September 2008]: The rules governing the acceptance of diplomatic gifts do not specifically cover wild animals. We are not aware of any previous instances where wild animals have been given to Diplomatic officers. Each case would be dealt with on its merits. The rules governing gifts are:

Except in very limited circumstances, Diplomatic officers must always refuse a gift. If it is appropriate to accept a gift, they must consider the propriety in doing so and in particular, whether acceptance would give rise to an actual, potential or perceived conflict of interest. It must be made clear to the donor that the gift is accepted on behalf of the Government rather than in a personal capacity, which makes it clear that no personal advantage is gained from the gift.

All staff are aware of the regulations concerning the import into the UK of endangered species of animals and Deputy Heads of Mission are asked to ensure that if they are consulted by host governments about gifts for officials, they should explain the difficulties over importing animals into the UK.

Pakistan: Christianity

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps he is taking to voice concerns with the Government of Pakistan on recent reports of the abduction of two Christian girls in southern Punjab on 26 June; and if he will make representations to seek their release and safety. [221458]

Dr. Howells: Our High Commission in Islamabad followed the judicial process of the case of the two Christian sisters Anila and Saba closely through local human rights organisations. Following a hearing at the Lahore High Court on 9 September, Anila was returned to the custody of her parents since she is a minor. However, on the evidence of a medical board, Saba was found to be aged between and 15 and 17 and therefore considered by the court to be able to take her own decision. Saba chose to join her alleged abductors during the course of legal proceedings but we have been unable to interfere in the judicial process of this case. Officials from the Foreign and Commonwealth Office and from our High Commission in Islamabad will remain in contact with human rights organisations who are considering taking this case forward through the UN Committee on the Rights of the Child. Since Saba chose to join her alleged abductor, we understand that she would need to challenge the findings of the medical board or testify that her decision was made under duress to establish grounds for appeal.

Whilst this case is recognised as being unique in so far as the parents were granted custody of one child whilst the other was given the right to choose for herself, we—with our European partners—will continue to raise our concerns with the Government of Pakistan over human rights issues and encourage the delivery of pledges that the Government of Pakistan has made as part of its membership of the UN Human Rights Council. These include the implementation of the International Convention on the Rights of the Child which Pakistan has ratified. Article 35 of this convention calls on States to take action to prevent the abduction of, sale of or traffic in children for any purpose.

Paraguay: United Nations

Mr. Grogan: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the state of relations between the United Nations and Paraguay; and if he will make a statement. [223124]

Dr. Howells [holding answer 10 September 2008]: The UK has a good relationship with Paraguay; we conduct our affairs via our embassy in Buenos Aires and through our honorary consul in Asuncion. Our officials make regular visits to Paraguay to ensure that this relationship is maintained. The last visit was in August 2008 by our accredited ambassador to Paraguay for President Lugo's inauguration. In addition, the UK also funds project work in Paraguay. For example, this year we are funding projects on climate change and organised crime.

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Fareham of 30 June 2008, Official Report, column 595W, on the Heads of Government Summit, if he will break down by category of expenditure the cost of (a) the press marquee and (b) audio-visual and public address services. Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Fareham of 30 June 2008, Official Report, column 595W, on the Heads of Government summit, for how much his Department invoiced Policy Network in respect of the Progressive Governance Conference that preceded the Heads of Government summit. [222729] Meg Munn: No invoice was issued by the Government as they had no responsibility for the costs of the Progressive Governance Conference. This was the responsibility of Policy Network.

A clear distinction was maintained between costs falling to the summit on 5 April and those which fell to Policy Network, who organised the Progressive Governance Conference on the preceding day.

Sri Lanka: Diplomatic Service

Mr. Love: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps have been taken following the attack on a staff member of the British High Commission in Sri Lanka on 30 June; and if he will make a statement. [221769]

Dr. Howells: I refer the hon. Member to the letter my noble Friend Lord Malloch-Brown wrote to him on 29 August concerning this matter. A copy of that letter will be placed in the Library of the House.

Stress

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what arrangements his Department has in place to assist officials to overcome the effects of stress experienced in the workplace. [222172]

Meg Munn: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office is committed to the well-being of its employees. It has a number of procedures in place to reduce stress at work. A stress management framework, based on the Health and Safety Executive's management standards, is available to all employees and gives easy-to-use advice on the successful prevention, recognition and management of stress at work.

Television

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer to the right hon. Member for Horsham of 9 July 2008, Official Report, column 1658W, what premium channels his Department's (a) press office and (b) private and ministerial offices subscribe to; and at what annual cost. [222204]

David Miliband: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office press office, private office and ministerial offices receive the parliamentary television service. The channels included in this service are provided to Parliament, hon. Members of Parliament, Ministers, noble Lords and bona fide users of the system at no cost.

UK-France Helicopter Initiative

Mr. Francois: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what progress has been made on the UK-France helicopter initiative since its announcement; and if he will make a statement. [222320]

Caroline Flint: Since the launch of the helicopter initiative at the UK-France Summit in March 2008, work to increase European helicopter capability has been taken forward in two key work streams: pilot and crew training; and helicopter and equipment upgrades. This work involves experts from the EU and the North Atlantic Treaty Organisation (NATO) institutions, as well as from EU and NATO Member states and partners.

On pilot and crew training, training requirements and providers across Europe have been matched together as an interim measure to provide the necessary pre-operational training. Work has also begun to design common training programmes for helicopter crews to prepare them for multinational operations, in broadly the same way that has happened for fast jet pilots for many years.

On helicopter and equipment upgrades, business cases have been submitted by the Czech Republic, Ukraine, Hungary and Bulgaria for upgrade of their helicopters and their subsequent deployment on multinational operations. We expect further offers to be made in due course. These business cases are being considered by the UK in consultation with other pledged and potential financial contributors. We expect some of these to be approved and receive funding before the end of the year from the Helicopter Fund established by the UK and to which several partners have contributed or pledged funding, including so far Denmark, Norway, Iceland, Finland, Lithuania, Australia and France.

Ukraine: Human Rights

Dr. Iddon: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what plans he has to (a) promote the remembrance and (b) increase public awareness of the 1932-33 Holodomor in Ukraine, as agreed during President Yushchenko's visit on 15 May 2008. [222911]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The Famine of 1932-33 in Ukraine was an appalling man-made human tragedy. The Government fully recognise their importance in Ukraine's history. In August this year, my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary laid a wreath at the Famine memorial in Kiev. In November 2007, the UK supported a resolution at the UN Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organisation and a joint statement at the Organisation for Security and Co-operation in Europe honouring the memory of those who perished in the Famine and encouraging the promotion of its remembrance. The Ukrainian Government plan a ceremony to commemorate the 75th anniversary later this year. The UK will support this and other appropriate acts of remembrance. We will continue to seek further ways in which we can promote remembrance and public awareness of the Famine, as agreed during President Yushchenko's visit to the UK.

USA: Administration of Justice

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement as to what representations the UK Mission in Washington DC has made to (a) members of the US Congress and (b) the US Administration on the Congressional Bill that would preclude UK citizens from pursuing civil litigation in US Federal Courts against the Government of Libya in respect of (i) the Lockerbie/Pan Am 103 bombing, (ii) Libya's involvement in IRA bombings and (iii) the bombing of La Belle disco in Berlin; and if he will make a statement. [223285]

Dr. Howells [holding answer 10 September 2008]: The conclusion of a Government-to-Government agreement between the US and Libya on 14 August will provide for compensation for many of the victims of Libya's past sponsorship of terrorism, while ruling out the possibility of legal action against Libya before the US courts as regards allegations of Libyan involvement in terrorism before 30 June 2006. The Government regard inclusion of the British families of the victims of the bombing of PanAm flight 103 over Lockerbie in 1988 in the recipients of compensation as welcome news for these families, but it is regrettable that the deal will not benefit all UK nationals with cases in US courts against Libya.

During the course of negotiations between the US and Libya, the Government made representations to the US Administration that the families of Lockerbie victims and existing UK claimants, with claims before US courts against Libya for its past sponsorship of Irish Republican Army (IRA) terrorist acts (the McDonald case), should be included as recipients of any compensation package. In the event, it proved not possible to include the McDonald case claimants in the recipients of compensation under the US/Libya Agreement. The Government did not make representations to the US Administration regarding the Berlin bombing as there are no UK nationals with cases in US courts against Libya regarding this attack.

A key reason for not including the McDonald claimants in the compensation package was that international and US law do not permit the US Administration to espouse the claims of foreign nationals. Also relevant to the US decision was their assessment of how likely it would be that claims would fall within the jurisdiction of US courts and how likely it would be that they would succeed. We understand from the US that US courts would not have jurisdiction to hear such actions by British nationals against Libya.

It was possible for the UK victims in the Lockerbie case to receive payments from the compensation fund due to the unique circumstances of that case. The Lockerbie bombing was subject to a UN Security Council resolution which required that Libya accept responsibility for the Lockerbie bomb and pay victims' families appropriate compensation. On this basis, the US assisted in bringing closure to that case on behalf of the entire international community and the Libyan Government agreed in 2003 to the payment of compensation to the victims' families. The sums to be paid to those families under the terms of the recent US/Libya agreement reflect the final (so far unpaid) tranche of the previously agreed settlement payments. There is no such mechanism, settlement or court judgment in place in relation to the legal actions regarding the supply of arms by Libya to the IRA.

The Government have already openly responded to queries on the US/Libya deal and will continue to do so. Therefore, we consider that a statement from my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary is not necessary.

Vatican: Diplomatic Service

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how much has been spent on (a) refurbishment, (b) redecorations and (c) furnishings for (i) the embassy and (ii) HM Ambassador's residence to the Holy See in each year since 2006; and if he will make a statement. [222246]

Mr. Jim Murphy: No monies have been spent on our embassy's offices in the Holy See in relation to refurbishment, redecoration or furnishing since the beginning of the financial year (FY) 2006-07.

The following table illustrates expenditure on our ambassador's residence in those three categories over the same period. Purchases were made in euros. An average annual exchange rate has been used to give an illustrative sterling figure.

Holy See residence

	Refurbishment		Redecoration		Furnishing
	Euro	Sterling rate (1.47)	Euro	Sterling rate (1.47)	Euro	Sterling rate (1.47)
FY 2006-07	4,600.00	3,129.25	0	0	25,781.00	17,528.10
	Euro	Sterling rate (1.41)	Euro	Sterling rate (1.41)	Euro	Sterling rate (1.41)
FY 2007-08	1,600.00	1,134.75	2,160.00	1,531.91	14,400.00	10,212.77
	Euro	Sterling rate (1.27)	Euro	Sterling rate (1.27)	Euro	Sterling rate (1.27)
FY 2008-09	0	0	0	0	1,400.00	1,102.36
Total	6,200.00	4,264.00	2,160.00	1,531.91	41,581.00	28,853.23

The ambassador's residence moved location in 2006 and an additional €20,619 (£14,027) was therefore incurred for removal costs in FY 2006-07. Certain items that were surplus to requirements in the new, smaller residence were either re-used elsewhere or sold. The proceeds of these sales are not reflected in these figures. A limited amount of more appropriate furnishings were bought specifically for the new residence.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the (a) entertainment budget was and (b) allowances were of HM Ambassador to the Holy See in each year since 2006. [222353]

Mr. Jim Murphy: Our ambassador to the Holy See has been able to draw on an entertainment budget of £36,000 for each of the financial years: 2006-07; 2007-08; and 2008-09. These sums reflect the shift to out-source catering in 2006 and should be seen in the context of savings made from employing fewer full-time permanent domestic staff. In addition the sum of £4,500 was made available to mark the birthday of Her Majesty The Queen, both in 2007 and 2008.

An officer posted as ambassador to the Holy See receives the same allowances as an officer of similar grade posted elsewhere overseas to compensate for the additional costs of living and working overseas. I refer the hon. Member to the response to written Parliamentary Question 59475 of 23 March 2006, Official Report, column 570W.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what plans he has for the future of the British embassy in the Holy See; and if he will make a statement. [222354]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The UK attaches considerable importance to its relations with the Holy See. There are regular high level visitors from the UK. I visited in June for discussions covering a wide range of foreign policy issues with senior officials in the Secretariat of State and the Pontifical Council for Justice and Peace. Our embassy will continue to play a critical role in facilitating these links and furthering the warm relationship between the Government and the Holy See.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many staff were employed by the British embassy in the Holy See in each year since 2006; at what grade each was employed; and how many were locally engaged staff. [222355]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The staffing levels at our embassy to the Holy See have remained constant since 2006. Our ambassador is the sole UK based member of staff and his position is graded at D7 level at the Foreign and Commonwealth Office. He is supported by two permanent locally engaged (LE) staff at grades LE II and LE III.

Western Sahara: Fishing Vessels

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will take steps to ensure that fishing by Scottish trawlers in the waters of Western Sahara does not conflict with the UN General Assembly's affirmation of the need to avoid any economic and other activities which adversely affect the interests of the peoples of the Non-Self Governing Territories. [222314]

Mr. Jim Murphy: All fishing in the waters of Morocco or Western Sahara must be conducted in accordance with the EU-Morocco Fisheries Agreement 2006. EU member states and the European Commission engaged in detailed discussion about the legality of the Agreement before it was finalised. The EU's Legal Service opinion was that the Agreement was in accordance with international law, including Chapter XI of the Charter of the UN which requires of administering powers that the development of their economic activities in a non-self governing territory does not adversely affect the interests of its peoples. All British vessels and those from other EU member states fishing in the waters of Morocco or Western Sahara are obliged to act in accordance with the terms of the Agreement.

Western Sahara: Human Rights

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps the UK embassy in Morocco takes to monitor the human rights situation in the Western Sahara; and when UK diplomats last discussed matters arising with the Moroccan Government. [223296]

Dr. Howells [holding answer 10 September 2008]: The Government are concerned that the long-running dispute over the status of the Western Sahara remains unresolved and that human rights across the region continue to suffer. Staff from our embassy in Rabat continue to monitor the situation through non-governmental organisations, journalists and visits to the territory. Staff from our embassy in Rabat are hoping to visit the territory later this year. Our ambassador in Rabat discusses a range of issues relating to the Western Sahara with Moroccan officials, including the issue of human rights when appropriate.

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the Government's policy is on whether MINURSO should be mandated to monitor human rights in the Western Sahara. [223297]

Dr. Howells [holding answer 10 September 2008]: The UK is concerned that the conflict in the Western Sahara remains unresolved and we are keen to see a resolution to the issue of the Western Sahara that will provide for a just, lasting and mutually acceptable political solution offering self-determination of the people of the Western Sahara. To this end, we support the efforts of the UN Secretary-General and the negotiations between the parties under his auspices.

The UK also continues to support the UN Mission for the Referendum in Western Sahara (MINURSO). MINURSO's mandate does not include human rights monitoring. However, success in the negotiations depends upon building greater confidence between the parties. In this respect, the UK remains open to supporting UN human rights monitoring in the Western Sahara if it can be shown to enhance the mutual confidence of the parties.

Western Sahara: Politics and Government

Ms Katy Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports he has received of the treatment of Saharawis by Moroccan police following a Saharawi demonstration in Dakhla on Western Sahara's fisheries resources on 9 July; and if he will make a statement. [221766]

Mr. Jim Murphy: We have received reports of confrontations between local fishermen and Moroccan fish importers in the coastal town of Dakhla in Western Sahara throughout the month of July. These events escalated on 21 July when further demonstrations led to attacks on local fishermen and their property in the fishing village of Eintirfit, 65 kilometres from Dakhla.

The Government maintain their position that Morocco, as the de facto administering power of Western Sahara, is obliged under international law to ensure that economic activities under administration, including fisheries activities, do not adversely affect the interests of the people of Western Sahara.

Peter Bottomley: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will meet representatives of the Polisario Front to discuss the resolution of conflict over the Western Sahara. [222334]

Mr. Jim Murphy: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary does not currently have plans to hold discussions with representatives of the Polisario. However, my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary held discussions with consultants working on behalf of the Polisario in January 2008. He reiterated the UK's concerns over the conflict in the Western Sahara and our hope that the negotiations will achieve a just, lasting and mutually acceptable political solution, which will provide for the self-determination of the people of the Western Sahara. In addition, officials from the Foreign and Commonwealth Office in London and overseas maintain regular contact with the representatives of the parties to the dispute, including the Polisario.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions he has had at EU level on (a) Saharawi rights and (b) the resolution of the Western Sahara situation; and if he will make a statement. [222681]

Mr. Jim Murphy: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has not recently discussed Western Sahara with EU colleagues. However, Government officials are in regular discussion with European colleagues about a range of issues relating to North Africa, including the dispute over the status of Western Sahara and the situation of human rights in the territory. Human rights are an important element of the UK's bilateral relationship with Morocco and play a significant part of the EU's co-operation with Morocco. The issue of Western Sahara remains part of the political dialogue between the EU and Morocco, which will be discussed at the Association Council in October.

While the EU has an important relationship with Morocco, the UK continues to believe that progress towards a negotiated solution to the dispute in Western Sahara providing for the self-determination of the people of Western Sahara, is best achieved under the auspices of the UN. To this end and in accordance with UN Security Council Resolution (1813) of 30 April, the UK fully supports the efforts of the UN Secretary-General and his Personal Envoy to the Western Sahara, Peter van Walsum, and the negotiation process currently underway.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he has had (a) with the UN and (b) at EU level on allegations of illegal exploitation of mineral resources in the Western Sahara. [222682]

Mr. Jim Murphy: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary and I have not recently discussed the issues of mineral resources in Western Sahara with colleagues at the UN or the EU. Western Sahara was discussed by the UN Security Council in April when Resolution 1813 was passed. Western Sahara was discussed as part of the political dialogue at the EU-Morocco Association Council in July 2007.

However, the Government maintains the position that the Government of Morocco—as the de facto administering power of Western Sahara—is obliged under international law to ensure that economic activities under administration, including the extraction and exportation of phosphates, do not adversely affect the interests of the people of Western Sahara.

Mr. Grogan: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the likelihood of a referendum in Western Sahara on independence; and if he will make a statement. [223125]

Dr. Howells [holding answer 10 September 2008]: The UK continues to support the efforts of the UN Secretary-General and his staff to assist the parties to achieve a just, lasting and mutually acceptable political solution which will provide for the self determination of the people of the Western Sahara.

The UN Security Council (UNSC) adopted UNSC resolution 1813 on 30 April 2008 which extended the mandate of the UN Mission for the Referendum in Western Sahara. There are no plans for a referendum to be held in the near future. However, the resolution also called for both sides to maintain their commitment to the ongoing negotiations under the auspices of the UN Secretary-General. The UK welcomes the four rounds of talks held between the parties and hopes that a further round will be held later this year.

Joan Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what his policy is on (a) the EU granting advanced status to Morocco and (b) the political process in the Western Sahara. [223776]

Dr. Howells: The UK welcomes closer co-operation between the EU and Morocco, including the proposal for an advanced status agreement currently under discussion between EU member states, the European Commission and Morocco. These discussions cover a range of issues, including economic and commercial issues, justice and security, regional co-operation, cultural and educational co-operation and human rights. The issue of Western Sahara, while not discussed within the context of the advanced status, remains part of the political dialogue between the EU and Morocco, which will be strengthened as part of the advanced status. Western Sahara will also be discussed as part of the political dialogue at the next Association Council in October.

The UK continues to believe that progress towards a negotiated solution to the dispute in Western Sahara providing for the self-determination of the people of Western Sahara, is best achieved under the auspices of the UN. To this end and in accordance with UN Security Council Resolution 1813 of 30 April, the UK fully supports the efforts of the UN Secretary-General and his staff and the negotiation process currently underway. We hope a further round of talks will take place later this year.

Mark Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of Mr. Peter van Walsum's briefing to the UN Security Council, UN Doc. S/2006/817 on 16 October 2006, with particular reference to its references to the self-determination of the people of Western Sahara; and if he will make a statement. [223917]

Dr. Howells: In his report to the UN Security Council (UNSC) of 16 October 2006, Peter van Walsum, the then Personal Envoy of the UN Secretary-General to the Western Sahara, recommended that both parties

"enter into negotiations without preconditions, with a view to achieving a just, lasting and mutually acceptable political situation that will provide for the self-determination of the people of Western Sahara".

This view was subsequently endorsed by UNSC Resolution 1754 (April 2007).

The UK continues to believe that progress towards a negotiated solution to the dispute in Western Sahara providing for the self-determination of the people of Western Sahara, is best achieved under the auspices of the UN. To this end and in accordance with UNSC Resolution 1813 of 30 April, the UK fully supports the efforts of the UN Secretary-General and his staff and we have called on the parties to engage in the negotiation process currently underway.

Mr. Holloway: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many rounds have been fired by British forces in Afghanistan since October 2007, broken down by type of ammunition used. [224450]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The amount of ammunition used by UK forces in Afghanistan between October 2007 and 30 September 2008, the latest date for which data is available, is set out in the following table:

Type of Ammunition	Total
7.62mm (all variants)	2,492,600
5.56mm (all variants)	2,667,000
0.5 inch (all variants)	398,000
12.7mm (all variants)	1,800
9mm (all variants)	143,000
0.338 inch	13,800
12 bore shotgun (all variants)	300
105mm artillery (all variants)	22,100
30mm Armoured Fighting Vehicle rounds	9,500
30mm Attack Helicopter rounds	39,400

This data has been rounded to the nearest 100 rounds and includes rounds used in training and on operations.

Afghanistan: Casualties

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many servicemen have been wounded in Afghanistan as a result of (a) friendly fire, (b) accident and (c) enemy action in each year since 2001. [224510]

Mr. Hutton: The numbers of service personnel injured while serving in Afghanistan are published on the departmental website at fortnightly intervals, two weeks in arrears, at the address given below.

http://www.mod.uk/DefenceInternet/AboutDefence/CorporatePublications/DoctrineOperationsandDiplomacyPublications/OperationsInAfghanistan/OpHerrickCasualtyAndFatalityTables.htm.

For convenience, the figures to 15 September, the latest available, are reproduced in the table. It is not possible to provide confirmed figures separately for casualties caused by enemy action and blue-on-blue incidents as in a small number of cases it is not possible definitively to determine whether wounds have been caused by enemy, Afghan or coalition forces. Operational accidents, including road traffic incidents, form approximately 23 per cent. of reported casualties.

	Casualties (Very seriously or seriously injured)
2001	0
2002	1
2003	1
2004	6

[1] To 15 September

Afghanistan: China

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many Chinese nationals fighting alongside the Taliban have been killed or taken into custody as part of UK military operations in Operation Herrick. [223920]

Mr. Hutton: No individuals killed or detained by UK forces operating in Afghanistan have been confirmed as having Chinese nationality.

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will hold discussions with his Chinese counterpart on the security of the China-Afghanistan border against (a) drugs, (b) arms and (c) people smuggling. [223921]

Mr. Hutton: We recognise that Afghanistan's neighbours have an integral role to play in helping Afghanistan to manage her borders. Given the United Kingdom's engagement in Afghanistan border security is regularly discussed with the Afghan authorities. My predecessor also discussed this among a range of issues relating to Afghanistan with the Deputy Chief of the Chinese People's Liberation Army General Staff when he met him in June of this year.

Afghanistan: Peacekeeping Operations

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many UK nationals have been taken into custody following military operations as part of Operation Herrick in Afghanistan. [223226]

Des Browne: As I stated in the answer I gave on 9 June 2008, Official Report, column 66W, to the hon. Member for Chichester (Mr. Tyrie), the Ministry of Defence is undertaking a review of its detention records. I will write to the hon. Member when the review has completed.

Substantive answer from Des Browne to Mark Pritchard:

I undertook to write to you in answer to your Parliamentary Question of 10 September 2008, Official Report, column 1806W, concerning UK nationals being detained in Afghanistan.

No individuals with confirmed UK nationality have been detained by UK forces as part of Op HERRICK.

Aircraft Carriers

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what estimate he has made of the cost for fuel for the recently ordered aircraft carriers in the first 12 months of their operation; and what cost of oil per barrel this calculation assumes. [222521]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The estimated cost of fuel for 12 months is some £12.5 million. This calculation was based on a marine fuel price of £0.47 per litre which corresponds to a Brent crude oil price of approximately $114.60 per barrel.

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether it is intended to man both the Future Aircraft Carriers simultaneously. [224454]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The currently assumed operating pattern for the future carriers requires both ships to be available for operational tasking and therefore fully manned concurrently.

Armed Forces: Compensation

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what sources of funding there are for the increase in compensation payments outlined in the Service Personnel Command Paper. [222070]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The Armed Forces Compensation Scheme is funded from the defence budget, which was detailed to the House in the comprehensive spending review settlement announced by my right hon. Friend, the then Secretary of State for Defence, on 25 July 2007.

Armed Forces: Deployment

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) how many UK personnel were deployed on operations on the most recent date for which figures are available, broken down by location; [222310]

(2) how many UK armed forces personnel were deployed on operations at the latest date for which figures are available, broken down by location of operation. [223848]

Mr. Hutton: The following table shows the number of UK service personnel deployed on operations by location at 15 September 2008. The number of personnel in theatre will naturally fluctuate on a daily basis for a variety of reasons, including leave (rest and recuperation), temporary absence for training, evacuation for medical reasons, the roulement of forces and other factors.

Number of UK armed forces personnel deployed by location[1]

Location	Number
Total	14,280
of which:
Afghanistan[2]	8,100
Iraq[2]	3,900
At Sea	830
Qatar	410
Cyprus	280
Oman	260
Kuwait	170
Kosovo	140
Bahrain	80
Bosnia	10
Other	20

[1] Countries with 10 or more personnel are shown separately. Other countries with fewer than 10 personnel per country include Georgia, Nepal, Sudan, Sierra Leone, Democratic Republic of Congo and Liberia

[2] Figures for Iraq and Afghanistan have been rounded to the nearest 100 for operational security reasons. Other figures have been rounded to the nearest 10. Due to rounding methods used, the total may not equal the sum of the individual locations.

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence which tasks have been completed by 7 Regiment Air Army Corps in the last six months. [222494]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 15 July 2008, Official Report, column 299W.

Armed Forces: Disciplinary Proceedings

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what reports he has received on the practice of beasting in the Royal Welsh Regiment; which senior officers (a) have been admonished and (b) are the subject of disciplinary action arising from the practice of beasting in the regiment since 3 July 2006; and if he will make a statement. [223905]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: No personnel from any of the three Royal Welsh battalions have been admonished or subject to disciplinary action arising from allegations over the practice of beasting in the regiment since 3 July 2006.

Now that the trial of three individuals from the 2nd Battalion the Royal Welsh Regiment for the manslaughter of Private Gavin Williams on 3 July 2006 has concluded, the Royal Military Police have begun to investigate whether there has been any breach of military law. Once this investigation and any subsequent proceedings have concluded, an Army Board of Inquiry will be held to examine the circumstances surrounding Private Williams' death. It would not be appropriate to comment further at this time.

Armed Forces: Manpower

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the annual cost of employing an (a) Unit Welfare Officer and (b) padre is. [223501]

Derek Twigg [holding answer 15 September 2008]: Information on the annual cost of employing every group or category of Service personnel, e.g. Unit Welfare Officers (UWOs) and chaplains is not centrally held by my Department. The bulk of these costs, however, comprise pay, employers' national insurance contributions and superannuation charges adjusted for past experiences (SCAPE), for which figures are available and are shown in the following table for UWOs and chaplains.

	Average annual pay	Employers' national insurance contribution	SCAPE	Total
Army Unit Welfare Officer (Late Entry Captain rank)	46,100	3,897	16,734	66,731
Chaplain	53,349	4,830	19,366	77,545

There is no single definition of a UWO which applies across the services. At most major Army units, the UWO will be at the rank of Late Entry Captain. The Royal Navy and Royal Air Force provide welfare assistance through the Chain of Command and other mechanisms. An Army Late Entry Captain therefore provides an example of the pay cost of a UWO.

The figure for Service chaplains quoted above reflects an average pay cost based on the tri-Service population who are paid from a tri-Service incremental pay spine.

Armed Forces: Procurement

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what provision his Department has made for research and development expenditure on (a) manned contact aircraft, (b) Future Surface Combatant, (c) next generation helicopters, (d) Future Infantry Soldier Technology and (e) military satellites in 2008-09. [220467]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The Minister of Defence currently plans for expenditure during the financial year 2008-09 on research likely to be exploited in and development directly on (a) manned fixed-wing aircraft of some £710 million; (b) Future Surface Combatant of some £25 million; (c) next generation helicopters of some £160 million; (d) Future Infantry Soldier Technology of over £13 million; and (e) military satellites of over £2 million.

Armed Forces: Recruitment

Mr. Jamie Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) how many members of (a) the Army, (b) the Royal Navy and (c) the Royal Air Force were recruited from (i) Cumbria and (ii) Copeland in the last five years; [223948]

(2) how many members of HM armed forces recruited from (a) Cumbria and (b) Copeland are expected to complete their military service in financial year 2008-09; and how many of them will be eligible to receive recently-announced further education support; [223949]

(3) how many members of HM armed forces who were recruited from (a) Cumbria and (b) Copeland who will complete military service in 2008-09 and will be under 60 years of age will qualify for concessionary bus travel. [223950]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave him on 10 September 2008, Official Report, column 1807W.

Mr. Jamie Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what estimate his Department has made of the number of members of HM armed forces from (a) Cumbria and (b) Copeland completing their military service in financial year 2008-09 who will require specially-adapted social housing; [223954]

(2) what estimate his Department has made of the number of (a) primary school places and (b) secondary school places in (i) Cumbria and (ii) Copeland which will be required for children of members of HM armed forces completing their military service in 2008-09. [223955]

Mr. Kevan Jones: Information on how many personnel leaving the armed forces settle in each county is not held by the Department.

Armed Forces: Scotland

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many service personnel (a) were stationed in Scotland, (b) were serving with a Scottish regiment, (c) were serving with a regiment whose home base was located in Scotland, (d) were recruited in Scotland, (e) trained in Scotland, (f) retired in Scotland and (g) identified their nationality as Scottish in each of the services in each year since 1997; and if he will make a statement. [215678]

Mr. Kevan Jones: Figures for the stationed location of UK regular forces since 1997 are available in United Kingdom Defence Statistics (UKDS) table 2.3 and can be found at the following link:

http://www.dasa.mod.uk/applications/newWeb/www/apps/publications/pubViewFile.php?content=10.203&date=2007-09-26&type=html

Copies of UKDS are available in the Library of the House and also at www.dasa.mod.uk.

The following table shows the number of UK regular forces who identified their nationality as Scottish in each year since 1997.

April each year	All services	Naval service	Army	RAF
1997	n/a	n/a	13,280	n/a
1998	n/a	n/a	13,290	n/a
1999	n/a	n/a	13,260	n/a

2001	n/a	n/a	12,900	n/a
2002	20,480	3,220	12,760	4,500

2006	18,620	3,200	11,400	4,030

n/a = not available. Naval Service and RAF data are not held centrally prior to April 2002. Following the staged introduction of JPA from April 2006 it is not possible to identify Scottish personnel.

Notes:

1. UK regular forces includes nursing services and excludes full time reserve service personnel, Gurkhas and mobilised reservists. It includes trained and untrained personnel.
2. Nationality data comprise of personnel for whom we hold a record of nationality, i.e. excluding those of unspecified nationality.
3. When rounding to the nearest 10, numbers ending in 5 have been rounded to the nearest multiple of 20 to prevent systematic bias.

Further information is either not available or not held centrally and could be provided at only disproportionate cost.

Armed Forces: Training

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many training airborne jumps were conducted by service personnel in the armed forces in each month since November 2007, broken down by type of aircraft. [222017]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The following table shows parachute descents by entitled service personnel conducted from November 2007 to July 2008 broken down by aircraft type. This includes displays conducted by the RAF Falcons Display team, whose descents can be broken out only at disproportionate cost.

	Total descents	C130[1]	Other aircraft	Chinook	Other helicopters
November	4,420	2,799	1,621	0	0

July	1,798	1,300	440	30	28

[1] The breakdown of figures for C130 variants can be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Armoured Fighting Vehicles

Mr. Holloway: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence with reference to the answer of 19 July 2006, Official Report, column 505W, on armoured vehicles, what progress has been made in securing delivery of the Vector armoured vehicles. [221900]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: All Vector Protected Patrol Vehicles, including the ambulance variants, were delivered by January 2008.

Atomic Weapons Establishment

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much has been spent on taking forward the disarmament laboratory initiative at AWE Aldermaston; what the total budget allocated to the project is; how many staff are working on the project; and what security clearance is required for project participants. [223893]

Mr. Hutton: The "disarmament laboratory" initiative is not a discrete AWE project but rather a concept under which the UK is trying to move the disarmament agenda forward as a whole. AWE's contribution to the "disarmament laboratory" is being conducted under the Arms Control Verification Research programme.

This research programme started in April 2000 and the total spend is forecast to exceed £3 million by the end of FY08-09.

Within AWE a dedicated team of five staff form the core of the Arms Control Verification Research programme. This team draws on experts and resources from other AWE programme areas as well as wider government. In order to fully understand the implications of potential verification technologies some of the research is UK only and remains classified; staff working on this research are appropriately security cleared. The joint research with Norway and the non-governmental organisation VERTIC carries no proliferation risk and is unclassified; special security clearances are not required.

BAE Mantis

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what his most recent estimate is of the in-service date for the Mantis unmanned aerial vehicle. [223989]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Departmental arrangements with BAE Systems concerning the Mantis UAV—unmanned aerial vehicle—project are currently limited to involvement in the early stages of a technology demonstrator programme. No commitments have been made by the Department beyond the current stage of the programme.

Bye-Law Review Team

Robert Key: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the terms of reference are of the Army's Byelaws Review Team. [223736]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The terms of reference for the Ministry of Defence (MOD) Byelaws Review Team are to review all of the MOD byelaws and bring them up to date.

More detailed information on the terms of reference as well as other useful background information can be found online at:

http://www.defence-estates.mod.uk/byelaws/Internet/Intro.php

Cluster Munitions

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many (a) deaths and (b) injuries of service personnel resulted from cluster munitions and other similar ordnances in each of the last five years. [222525]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: There has been one death and no injuries to UK service personnel as a result of cluster munitions or similar ordnances in the last five years.

In March 2003, in Iraq, a UK serviceman was attempting to diffuse an M42 bomblet, which unfortunately exploded and killed him.

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many cluster munitions were deactivated (a) in the field of action and (b) amongst UK stores of weapons in each year since 1997, broken down by location. [222526]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Information which would confirm how many cluster munitions have been deactivated in each respective operational theatre since 1997 is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Stocks of all UK cluster munition types have been withdrawn from service and a number are currently awaiting disposal, but they are not deactivated while being held in UK stores; deactivation occurs at the point of disposal.

I can confirm that the disposal of the total stock of 82,900 high explosive M483 shells began in April 2005 and was completed in July this year and that the total stock of 3,687 BL755 bombs (including variants), have been removed from the Ministry of Defence's inventory and shipped to Germany for physical disposal, which is expected to be completed in 2009.

The disposal process in respect of our total stock of 7,282 multiple launch rocket system (MLRS) M26 rocket pods began in September 2007 and should be completed by the end of 2013.

A contract has recently been placed for the disposal of 4,270 CRV-7 multi-purpose sub-munition (MPSM) warheads; disposal is due to complete in 2009. The disposal of 56,000 L20A1 extended range bomblet shells (ERBS) is currently the subject of a competitive tendering process, and it is expected that disposal will be completed in 2010.

In all cases, disposal includes both the munitions and their sub munitions.

Dangerously Ill Forwarding of Relatives

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what the standard Dangerously Ill Forwarding of Relatives (DILFOR UK) payment was in the latest period for which figures are available; [222068]

(2) what his Department's annual expenditure was on the (a) Dangerously Ill Forwarding of Relatives (UK) and (b) Dangerously Ill Forwarding of Relatives (Overseas) programmes for each year since 2003. [222069]

Mr. Kevan Jones: There is not a standard payment for the Dangerously Ill Forwarding of Relatives (UK) (DILFOR (UK)). Each payment made will vary depending on the number of relatives, travel and accommodation costs incurred. Information about the average DILFOR (UK) payment is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Information about the Department's annual expenditure on DILFOR (UK) and DILFOR (Overseas) for each year since 2003 is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Defence Equipment: Procurement

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence which 10 companies have supplied his Department with the most equipment in the last 12 months; and what the UK-based workforce is of each company. [222340]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: This answer takes "most equipment" to mean the total value of assets delivered, as it is a more relevant measure than volume or quantity. The 10 companies that received the highest total direct payments[1] from the Ministry of Defence during financial year 2007-08 in respect of equipment procurement, along with the approximate number of UK-based employees of each company, are shown in the following table.

Company	Employees[2]
BAE Systems plc	34,000
Thales	9,000
EDS Defence Limited	16,500
The Boeing Company	600
Westland Helicopters Limited	[3]3,500
Devonport Royal Dockyard Limited	[4]7,200
MBDA UK Limited	2,600
Europaams SAS	Nil
General Dynamics UK Limited	1,700
Raytheon Systems Limited	1,300

[1] Expenditure excludes payments made through other nations or international procurement agencies on behalf of the Ministry of Defence.

[2] Employee numbers are based on information provided by the companies and BERR.

[3] Westland Helicopters Ltd: Employee numbers refer to the UK based employees of parent company Agusta Westland.

[4] Devonport Royal Dockyard Ltd: Employee numbers refer to the UK based employees of Babcock Marine which includes Devonport Royal Dockyard Ltd.

Defence Estates

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what plans are in place for the re-investment of capital generated by the sale of land identified as disposable in the Defence Estates Development Plan. [222493]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The capital generated from the planned sale of MOD land is reinvested in defence in accordance with Treasury guidelines, and in line with our priority of support to our people, including improved accommodation.

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what acreage of land is owned by his Department and used for non-military agricultural purposes; and for what reasons such land is held. [222529]

Mr. Kevan Jones: Data regarding the amount of defence land used for agricultural purposes have not been reported since 2005. At that time some 106,000 hectares of defence land was used for agricultural purposes. Agricultural land is held by the Department to provide a realistic military training environment.

Defence Training Review Programme

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the value of the contract for package 1 of the Defence Training Review programme is. [223990]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The value of the DTR package 1 contract is currently estimated at £9.2 billion, while the residual costs to the MOD are estimated to be about £2.8 billion. These figures will continue to be subject to the outcome of negotiations with Metrix and the ongoing review of the proposal and assumptions related to the project.

Defence: Secondary Education

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) who has (a) contributed resources to, (b) offered to develop and (c) taken part in online polls relating to the Defence Dynamics e-learning tool; [208881]

(2) what the results were of (a) the online polls and (b) the rating of lessons in relation to the Defence Dynamics e-learning tool website; [208882]

(3) what (a) representations he has received on and (b) audit he has conducted of the e-learning product Defence Dynamics; and if he will place in the Library copies of the representations received; [209037]

(4) how many students have used the e-learning product Defence Dynamics; [209038]

(5) how many people have registered on the Defence Dynamics website; [209039]

(6) who have registered on the Defence Dynamics website have (a) used interactive exercises, (b) registered a class, (c) used teaching materials, (d) accessed the multimedia library, (e) downloaded multimedia resources, (f) used forums, (g) filed a complaint and (h) reported technical problems; [209040]

Derek Twigg: I will write to the hon. Member.

Substantive answer from Derek Twigg to Andrew Murrison:

I undertook to write to you in answer to your parliamentary questions on 12 June 2008,

Official Report, columns 420-21W about Defence Dynamics. As you asked a number of questions I will answer each in turn.

Who had contributed resources to, offered to develop and taken part in online polls relating to Defence Dynamics.

Kids Connections are the agency commissioned by the Central Office of Information (COI), on behalf of the MOD, to produce Defence Dynamics. Under supervision of the MOD Schools Adviser, Kids Connections has been responsible for creating the site from conception stage through to its current maintenance and continuing development. Kids Connections work in partnership with a panel of practising teachers from across the whole of the UK.

As interest in the programme develops so more offers of assistance in developing resources have been made. Offers have mostly come from within the Department. The Department for Children, Schools and Families has offered to be more formally involved in reviewing materials.

What were the results of online polls and lesson ratings.

The online poll asks a range of questions relating to frequency of use, relevance, appropriateness and future planning.

On average 20 teachers participate per month.

On average 7 students participate per month.

The average lesson rating is 8 out of 10.

What representations have we received and what audit has been conducted of the e-learning product.

Many representations have been made on the materials contained on the website. Some can be found on the discussion strands on the site itself, others have been made by teachers in face-to-face contact at national Education Shows and in other meetings with teachers. Almost all reflect positive support for the resource. The remainder suggest ways in which lesson plans might be improved. It would be difficult to place these representations in the Library and they are best viewed in the context of the website at www.defencedynamics.mod.uk.

The resource was launched in November 2007 with the first major audit of the website due at the end of 2008. The audit will be managed by an external organisation selected by COI. I shall place a copy of the audit report in the Library of the House when this becomes available.

How many people have registered oh the website and how many students have used it.

2,961 teachers have fully registered on the Defence Dynamics website. Additionally non-registered teachers and Heads of Department also use the site.

It is not possible to track unique user hits due to multiple students sharing PC's and IP addresses in schools and there is no registration process. In total there have been 69,887 page views on the student website up to 12 June 2008.

Access, registration, usage and technical issues.

The following points address the questions you raised on access, registration and technical issues.

The total number of interactive exercises used is 131.

There are currently 174 registered classes. Each class roughly averages 25 students, thus approximately 4,350 students have been registered. If a teacher registers a class it indicates a commitment to using the site and reflects well on the quality of the material contained.

It is not possible to accurately report the number of individuals who have 'used' the teaching materials as they are available to registered and non-registered users.

1,774 teachers have viewed and downloaded at least one resource in the multimedia library.

2, 014 videos have been downloaded, however these may be shared and therefore no exact user figure is available.

23 teachers have taken part in 16 forum threads.

Number of complaints

The number of complaints by registered users is as follows:

Error in lesson materials - 5 teachers.

Registration issue - 7 teachers.

Technical issues -11 teachers.

How many schools have acquired and used the multi-media tool cited at page 25 of the Report of Inquiry into National Recognition of our Armed Forces.

The number of schools that have registered to the website to access the resources is 2,322 and a further 1,558 schools have registered to receive the CD Rom only but have not registered to the website. Other youth organisations and non-registered schools are also using Defence Dynamics resources - thus exposing more young people to these educational resources.

In addition, 1,774 registered teachers have downloaded at least one element from Defence Dynamics and 23,493 anonymous users (not logged in) have viewed resources.

Defence Dynamics and the former Schools Presentation Teams are not directly comparable because two different media are involved. However, we expect that the cumulative effect of students interacting with Defence Dynamics lessons will produce a similar result to that of the half-day Team presentation.

Departmental Air Travel

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer to the right hon. Member for Horsham of 14 July 2008, Official Report, column 27W, on carbon emissions: Government departments, how much air mileage incurred through departmental travel was used to calculate the departmental payment to the Government Carbon Offsetting Fund in each year that his Department has participated in the fund, broken down by (a) domestic, (b) short haul and (c) long haul flights. [221938]

Mr. Kevan Jones: Since 2006, the MOD has offset Head Office non-operational official and ministerial flights, through the Government's Carbon Offsetting Fund (GCOF) managed by EEA Fund Management. For the year 2006-07, the MOD paid the total offsetting cost of £180,599.38 to the GCOF. This is broken down as follows:

	Km
Short haul	42,872,925
Long haul	24,373,071

MOD is currently calculating its return for 2007-08.

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether those staff of (a) his Department and (b) its agencies who are entitled to business class or first class air travel are permitted to (i) travel in a cheaper class to the destination and (ii) benefit in monetary terms or kind from the saving. [221946]

Mr. Kevan Jones: All official travel is carried out in accordance with the requirements of the Civil Service Management Code and internal Policy Rules and Guidance. Ministry of Defence or Defence Agency staff entitled to first or business class air travel are permitted to travel in a cheaper class if they wish. Many business areas actively encourage staff to travel by the most economical means in order to reduce travel and subsistence costs.

Departmental Buildings

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the location is of each office occupied by (a) his Department and (b) each of its agencies which has been (i) newly occupied and (ii) refurbished in the last 24 months; and what the floor area in square metres is of each. [221949]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The information requested is not held in the format requested and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Home Working

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 7 July 2008, Official Report, column 1169W, on departmental home working, if he will make it his policy to collate and maintain central records of all home working by his Department's staff. [222473]

Mr. Kevan Jones: Since November 2006, information about applications to move to home working have been held centrally for civil service staff in the Department, excluding the trading fund agencies. However, the Department has no plans to hold details centrally of discretionary arrangements for staff to work at home on an ad hoc basis.

Departmental Official Residences

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what permanent residential accommodation is provided for use by civil servants in his Department; how many residential dwellings are provided; where they are located; and for what grade of civil servant they are provided. [221945]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The Ministry of Defence does not provide any permanent residential accommodation in the UK for civil servants.

The following table gives details of residential accommodation provided overseas to civil servants and other entitled civilians, including but not limited to: teachers, welfare workers, contractors, customs officials and meteorological officers.

	Number
Cyprus	471
Falkland Islands	16
Ascension Island	13
Germany	1,558
Europe	45

The grades of these civilian occupants are not recorded centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Property

Mr. Alan Reid: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many houses owned by his Department in each location in Argyll and Bute constituency are empty; and how many years it is since each was last occupied. [220166]

Mr. Kevan Jones [holding answer 21 July 2008]: In the UK and overseas, a number of service family accommodation (SFA) properties are 'void'. Void SFA are those properties that are unoccupied to allow for planned moves of service units, planned upgrades, sale or release, modernisation or demolition.

Within the Argyle and Bute constituency there are 249 void SFA at Rhu and Helensburgh. The 169 void SFA properties at Helensburgh have been void for the following periods:

	Number
Under 3 months	32
Between 3 months and 6 months	15
Between 6 months and 12 months	37
Between 1 year and 2 years	37
Between 2 years and 3 years	28
Between 3 years and 4 years	17
Between 4 years and 5 years	3
Total	169

The 80 void properties at Rhu have all been empty for five years.

These properties have remained void subject to the outcome of the Naval Base Review, which was started in September 2006 and completed in June 2007. We are now identifying future requirements for SFA. Once this work is complete we will consider whether it would be possible to dispose of any of the properties at Helensburgh and Rhu.

Departmental Publicity

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will place in the Library a copy of materials his Department has distributed to schools in the last three years. [222549]

Mr. Kevan Jones: I have provided copies of all the material released by central MOD schemes, Single Service teams and the MOD Schools team to the Library of the House.

A number of MOD resources, notably Defence Dynamics, are online resources that are designed for web usage and are constantly refreshed. It is not possible or practical to provide print outs or electronic downloads because of the size. Additionally, the web will always provide the most up to date version.

Departmental Surveillance

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many applications (a) his Department and (b) its agencies have made under the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 to (i) undertake directed surveillance, (ii) use covert human intelligence sources, (iii) acquire communications data and (iv) undertake intrusive surveillance in the last 24 months. [221948]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The Ministry of Defence does undertake operations involving powers described and governed by the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 ('RIPA'). RIPA provides that oversight of the use of these controlled powers is by regular inspection and publication of annual public reports by independent Commissioners and it is a matter for the Commissioners what details they disclose.

Figures on public authority use of covert techniques controlled by the RIPA are published annually by the Interception of Communications Commissioner, the Chief Surveillance Commissioner and the Intelligence Services Commissioner who each have particular inspection and oversight responsibilities under RIPA. The latest reports were laid before Parliament and copies placed in the House Library on 22 July. The figures provided in the reports are not broken down by individual public authority use of specific covert techniques as, depending on the particular technique and authority using it, this could either reveal sensitivities or be misleading. The question of further disclosure for any particular public authority is a matter for the relevant Commissioner.

Devonport Dockyard

Mr. Streeter: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment he has made of the effects of the Equality Act 2006 on redundancy terms for employees at Devonport Dockyard aged 50 years and over. [222418]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: It is for Babcock Marine, the owner of the Devonport dockyard, to determine the terms of redundancy for its employees, including the requirements of legislation. Any assessment of the effects of the Equality Act 2006 on such redundancy is therefore a matter for the company.

EC Defence Policy

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 16 July 2008, Official Report, column 449W, on EU defence policy, how many departmental (a) military and (b) civilian personnel work in each position listed. [222065]

Mr. Hutton: All 19 staff posts listed in the sections "EU Military Staff" (18) and "EU Military Committee" (1) are filled by UK military staff officers.

For the "European Defence Agency" and "Other EU Institutions" sections, the following numbers of (a) military and (b) civilian personnel work in each position listed:

European Defence Agency

Capabilities Director (1 UK military staff officer):

Responsible for the leading of Agency work in European Security and Defence Policy (ESDP) activities related to capabilities development, from goal definition to project design, and including capability harmonisation, assessment and evaluation.

Head of Capabilities Development Support Unit (1 UK military staff officer):

Supports the capabilities director in the co-ordination of the directorate's work, and in managing external interfaces (with member states, European Union military staff (EUMS) and other key stakeholders).

Research and Technology (R&T) Assistant Director (1 MOD civilian):

Responsible for preparing strategies and policies for increasing co-operation and strengthening of defence R&T and the European defence technological and industrial base.

Principal Officer for Armaments Co-operation (1 MOD civilian):

Responsible for supporting the armaments director in his relations with OCCAR (Organisation conjointe de coopération en matière d'armement) and member states regarding the management of co-operative programs.

Senior Officer for Defence Market (1 MOD civilian):

Responsible for assessing and analyzing the European defence equipment market including collecting, comparing and reporting quantitative and qualitative data, and ensuring close relations with the Commission, industry and others regarding industrial issues.

Principal Officer for Defence Industry (1 MOD civilian):

Responsible for contributing to assessing and analysing the European defence technological and industrial base (DTIB), preparing strategies and policies regarding DTIB and developing measures for enhanced security of supply of defence goods between European nations.

Other EU Institutions

European Council General Secretariat—Seconded National Expert (1 MOD civilian):

Desk officer responsible for providing advice and briefings on EUFOR ALTHEA (EU mission to Bosnia-Herzegoina).

European Commission—Seconded National Expert (1 MOD civilian):

Desk officer in DG Environment.

European Global Navigation Satellite System Supervisory Authority (GSA)—Seconded National Expert (1 MOD civilian):

Security advisor and project officer for the Galileo project.

EDF

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what contracts (a) his Department and (b) its agencies have with EDF energy; and how much (i) his Department and (ii) its agencies paid to EDF energy in each of the last 10 years, broken down by the purpose of the payment. [221844]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Information on contracts the Department and its agencies have with EDF energy is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

I am able to provide figures on MOD payments to companies and entities forming part of EDF Energy plc as it was structured at 31 March 2008. Data are provided from 2001-02 onwards. Before this there was no record of any MOD payments to EDF Energy plc or companies and entities that currently belong to it.

The payments made are detailed in the following table. The data exclude payments made by the MOD trading funds, for which records are not held centrally. The purpose of these payments was for the provision of utilities (e.g. electricity) for the MOD.

Annual MOD payments to EDF Energy (VAT exclusive at current prices)

FY	£000
2001-02	70
2002-03	140
2003-04	190
2004-05	260
2005-06	340
2006-07	420
2007-08	230

EU Law

Mr. Francois: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many officials in his Department are wholly or mainly tasked with the negotiation, implementation or the administration of EU legislation and consequent policies. [222282]

Mr. Kevan Jones: In the Ministry of Defence there are four members of staff working exclusively on intergovernmental aspects of European Security and Defence Policy issues in the Directorate for Policy on International Organisations, and three full-time members of staff dealing with EU business in the Defence Equipment and Support International Relations Group. A number of other staff throughout the Department are involved for part of their time in a wide range of EU business.

The MOD has nine military and civilian staff in the UK Military Representation to the EU in Brussels and two seconded to the UK diplomatic representation to the EU to work on European Security and Defence Policy. In addition 18 British military officers are seconded to the European Union Military Staff, and one British military officer seconded as the Military Assistant to the permanent Chairman of the EU Military Committee. One MOD civilian is seconded to each of the European Council General Secretariat, the European Commission and the European Global Navigation Satellite System Supervisory Authority (GSA) and six military and civilian staff are seconded to the European Defence Agency.

First Sea Lord

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment he has made of the elements of the First Sea Lord's job which the post holder would (a) be unable to conduct and (b) find difficulty in accomplishing without sea command experience. [222010]

Mr. Hutton: Holding a command at sea is not a pre-requisite to hold the Office of First Sea Lord. A candidate for the position of First Sea Lord is selected on merit against a range of competences. The incumbent would, however, have naturally attained a wide breadth of experience during their service career and would have completed the most demanding appointments, of which operational command at sea is clearly a prime example. The ability to undertake the full range of duties expected of the First Sea Lord is not, however, dependent on whether or not the individual has held a sea command.

Future Rapid Effect System

Mr. Keetch: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether the Future Rapid Effects System programme was discussed at the meetings between the Minister for Defence Equipment and Support and GDUK on 13 September 2007 and 29 January 2008; and what ministerial meetings were held with either of the other principal bidders between June 2007 and June 2008. [221920]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The Future Rapid Effects System programme was discussed in general terms at the meetings between the Minister for Defence Equipment and Support and GDUK on 13 September 2007 and 29 January 2008.

No ministerial meetings were held between June 2007 and June 2008 with the other principal bidders.

Iraq: Armed Forces

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what plans there are to establish a Status of Forces Agreement with the government of Iraq. [222585]

Mr. Hutton: I refer the hon. Member to the answer my predecessor gave on 16 June 2008, Official Report, column 723-24W, to the hon. Member for Carmarthen, East and Dinefwr (Adam Price).

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the Oral Statement made by the Prime Minister on 22 July 2008, on Iraq, (1) when Operation Charge of the Guards (a) commenced and (b) ended; [222932]

(2) what objectives were set for Operation Charge of the Guards; [222933]

(3) how many British troops participated in Operation Charge of the Guards. [222934]

Mr. Hutton: Charge of the Knights is the codename given by the Government of Iraq to a series of operations, led by the Iraqi Security Forces, which were aimed at defeating militia groups, enforcing the rule of law and thereby enabling reconstruction and economic development. Operations under this codename commenced on 25 March 2008 and concluded on 19 June 2008. However, work to achieve the wide-ranging objectives of this series of operations continues.

It is very difficult precisely to define how many UK military personnel were involved in this operation: in principle the entire UK military force in Southern Iraq acted in support. This support ranged from direct involvement with the embedded training teams, through the logistics and engineering staff who performed a critical role in supporting Iraqi and UK units during the operation, to the UK medics in our hospital who provided treatment to those injured during the fighting. As the Prime Minister made clear in his statement to the House on 22 July 2008, more than 800 UK personnel are now embedded with the Iraqi army.

Iraq: Peacekeeping Operations

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence with reference to the answer of 19 February 2007, Official Report, column 304W, on Iraq: peace keeping operations, what recent reports he has received on the (a) detention and (b) status of Abdul Razzaq Ali al-Jedda; what representations he has received on the case; and if he will make a statement. [222503]

Mr. Hutton: Mr. al-Jedda was released from UK custody in December 2007.

Prior to his release Mr. al-Jedda was held as a security internee by UK forces in Iraq because it was assessed that he posed a threat to the lives of Multi- National Forces personnel, Iraqi security personnel and Iraqi civilians. In December 2007, on the basis of the latest intelligence and security assessment, it was decided that it was no longer necessary to intern Mr. al-Jedda and he was released to a safe location in Iraq.

Mr. al-Jedda's internment was pursuant to UNSCR 1546 and subsequent resolutions, and was found to be lawful by the House of Lords.

Kosovo: Armed Forces

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many patrols of each type were conducted by the 2 Battalion, The Rifles during their recent deployment to Kosovo. [222019]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: During their recent deployment to Kosovo, 2nd Battalion, the Rifles, carried out approximately 10 framework patrols (foot patrols and vehicle checkpoints) per day across their area of operations.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many personnel were (a) injured and (b) wounded during the 2 Battalion, The Rifles recent deployment to Kosovo. [222020]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: One soldier was taken ill briefly with heat illness and received treatment in theatre; aside from this there were no recorded instances of UK personnel being injured or wounded during 2nd Battalion, the Rifles' recent deployment to Kosovo.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many rounds of each type of ammunition were fired by the 2 Battalion, The Rifles during their recent deployment to Kosovo. [222073]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The following numbers of rounds were fired by 2 Rifles. All but one, a 5.56 mm round used to kill an aggressive feral dog attacking one of the patrols, were used for training and calibration of weapons after transit.

Type of round	Number fired
5.56 mm Ball	902
338 Sniper Ball	163
5.56 mm 4 Bit Belted	800
7.62 mm 4 Bit Belted	360
Green Smoke Screen Training Round	1

Military Aircraft

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether there are plans to pool the burden of the (a) maintenance, (b) provision of spare parts and (c) any other requirements for the future operation of the A400M cargo plane between EU member states. [222075]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The A400M in service support programme is in the assessment phase where all options, including possible partnering with other nations, are being considered. This phase is expected to last until July 2009 when a Main Gate Business Case will be submitted to the Investment Approvals Board with the preferred in service option identified.

Military Flying Training System

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether any savings will have been forgone as a result of the time taken to sign the Military Flying Training System contract; and if he will make a statement. [222342]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The contract term for the Military Flying Training System is 25 years from the date of contract award. The exact timing of its placement does not impact on the scale of benefits.

Nuclear Non Proliferation Treaty

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what evaluation was made of the compatibility with the United Kingdom obligations under Article 1 of the Nuclear Non Proliferation Treaty (NPT) when deciding to invite Norway to participate as a non-nuclear state party to the NPT in the disarmament laboratory project on nuclear warhead dismantlement at AWE Aldermaston. [223894]

Mr. Hutton: The joint research between the UK's Atomic Weapons Establishment, several Norwegian laboratories and the non-governmental organisation VERTIC on the verification of warhead dismantlement is being conducted in full accord with the mutual obligations under Articles I and II of the NPT. The underlying aim of the research is to investigate, under a hypothetical future verification regime, what technical evidence and assurances could be demonstrated to third parties without undermining national security or releasing proliferation sensitive information. The research is specifically designed to examine issues of verification while avoiding the use of sensitive design information or materials; constraints, necessarily levied by the NPT, that inspired the initiative.

Open Skies Treaty: Russia

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will hold discussions with his Russian counterpart on Russia's continuing cooperation on the Open Skies Treaty. [223918]

Mr. Hutton: There are no plans to hold discussions with the Russian Defence Minister on the Open Skies Treaty.

RAF St. Athan

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether the enhanced repair and maintenance facility for military equipment at RAF St. Athan will have the capability to repair and maintain road transport carriers for nuclear weapons. [223892]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The large aircraft repair and maintenance facility operated by the Defence Support Group at MOD St. Athan has no capability to repair and maintain road transport carriers for nuclear weapons, and there are no plans to develop such a capability there.

Sandhurst

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence from which countries cadets have attended RMA Sandhurst in the last three years. [223824]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to the right hon. Member for Richmond, Yorks (Mr. Hague) on 29 February 2008, Official Report, columns 2016-20W.

Taxis

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much (a) his Department and (b) its agencies spent on taxis in the last financial year for which figures are available. [223030]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The information is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Weapons

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many (a) SA-80 assault rifles, (b) 9mm Browning pistols and (c) other weapons, listed by type, were reported (i) lost or missing and later recovered and (ii) lost or missing and not recovered by armed forces in the United Kingdom in each month since November 2007. [222066]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The latest available statistics report no lost or missing SA 80 assault rifles or 9 mm Browning Pistols since November 2007. Between that date and July 2008, one Explosive Ordnance Disposal Disrupter device was reported lost or missing and was later recovered; and one Signal Pistol was reported lost or missing and has not been recovered.

Written Questions: Government Responses

John Howell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when he expects to reply to the letter of 29 July from the hon. Member for Henley regarding a constituent, Alan Hill, and the sale of property by the Ministry of Defence. [224520]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The letter dated 29 July was not received in MOD until a copy was forwarded under cover of the hon. Member for Henley's letter of 10 September. My predecessor replied on 2 October.

BUSINESS, ENTERPRISE AND REGULATORY REFORM

Accountancy: Standards

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform if he will take steps to ensure that people may only advertise their services as accountants once they have undertaken professional requirements similar to those required of solicitors and barristers. [222490]

Mr. Thomas: The Government have no plans to regulate those who provide accountancy services in this way. It is not persuaded that introducing such regulation would justify the costs to business.

Alcoholic Drinks: Prices

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what discussions his Department has had with (a) the Home Office, (b) the Treasury, (c) HM Revenue and Customs and (d) the Scottish Executive on the economic impact of minimum pricing of alcohol. [221890]

Mr. Thomas: A number of Government Departments, including BERR, the Home Office and HM Treasury, are engaged in considering a range of possible measures aimed at helping to reduce alcohol related harms. BERR has had no separate discussions on these matters with either HM Revenue and Customs or the Scottish Executive.

Bank Services

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what assessment he has made of the findings contained in the Office of Fair Trading's market study of personal current accounts. [224300]

Mr. Thomas: The Office of Fair Trading (OFT) published its market study on personal current accounts on 16 July. The OFT is engaging with interested parties to try and achieve greater clarity, transparency and consumer empowerment in this market. The consultation ends on 31 October. This matter therefore remains with the OFT for the time being. Depending on the outcome of the consultation the OFT hopes to publish a further or final report early in 2009.

Bankruptcy

Ms Keeble: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many people have filed for personal bankruptcy by region in each of the last four quarters for which figures are available. [224112]

Mr. McFadden [holding answer 17 September 2008]: Table 1 below shows the number of bankruptcies in each region of England and Wales for each quarter of 2007, derived from postcodes provided by bankrupt individuals[1].

[1] Figures for Q1 2008 and Q2 2008 are not yet available on this basis.

Grand Total[1]	17,906	16,529	15,656	14,376	64,467

[1] Totals recorded here are not entirely consistent with those published, as they are based on an extract from a live database taken on a particular date and using a slightly different reporting system.

Note:

Missing cases are those where a region could not be assigned to the bankruptcy due to missing or invalid postcode information.

Companies

Ann McKechin: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many companies were removed from the (a) Register of Companies in England and Wales and (b) Register of Companies in Scotland following the submission of a form 652a in each of the last 10 years; and how many such companies (i) had not previously filed a set of accounts and (ii) had not filed accounts in the preceding 12 months but had done so previously. [221750]

Mr. Thomas: The number of companies removed from the Register of Companies in England and Wales, and Scotland following the submission of a form 652a in each of the last 10 years is as follows.

Financial year	England and Wales	Scotland
1998-99	47,578	3,485
1999-2000	55,345	3,700
2000-01	72,351	4,010
2001-02	78,172	5,195
2002-03	91,080	4,925

2004-05	97,367	5,547
2005-06	104,644	5,850
2006-07	119,112	6,668
2007-08	117,428	5,857

Details of companies who had not previously filed a set of accounts and had not filed accounts in the preceding 12 months and had accounts overdue at the time of their removal is not available without incurring disproportionate cost.

Ann McKechin: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many applications to have a company removed from the (a) Register of Companies in England and Wales and (b) Register of Companies in Scotland using form 652a where the company in question had been incorporated for a period of less than 21 months were rejected due to an objection received from HM Revenue and Customs during 2007. [221751]

Mr. Thomas: The number for England and Wales was 214. The number for Scotland was 46.

Day Care: Pay

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what estimates he has made of the number and proportion of child day-care establishments that pay at least one member of staff below the national minimum wage. [223754]

Mr. McFadden: Data on payments made by individual companies are not available. They would, in any case, be disclosive.

Data from the Annual Survey of Hours and Earnings datasets from the ONS suggest that there were in total around 6,000 employees paid below the national minimum wage in the standard industrial classification sector 'Social Work Activities Without Accommodation[1]', this sector includes child day-care activities but it also includes elements of social work beyond the child care sector—see footnote.

However, this does not necessarily indicate non-compliance on behalf of the employer as certain groups of people are exempt from NMW regulations including, for example, those on Government training schemes and apprentices under the age of 19.

[1] SIC code 85.32 Social work activities without accommodation includes:

Child day-care activities, including day-care activities for handicapped children;

Day-care activities for disabled adults;

Day facilities for homeless and other socially weak groups;

Social, counselling, welfare, refugee, referral and similar activities;

Charitable activities such as fund raising or other supporting activities aimed at social work.

Defence Export Services Organisation

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what the operating costs of the Defence Export Services Organisation were in each of the last five years. [222767]

Mr. Thomas: For financial year 2007-08 I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my hon. Friend the Minister of State for Energy on 16 June 2008, Official Report, column 639W. For financial years 2005-06 and 2006-07 I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my hon. Friend the Minister of State for the Armed Forces on 17 July 2007, Official Report, column 196W and for financial years 2003-04 and 2004-05 I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to my hon. Friend the Minister of State for the Armed Forces on 24 April 2006, Official Report, column 845W.

Departmental Air Travel

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform pursuant to the answer to the right hon. Member for Horsham of 14 July 2008, Official Report, column 27W, on carbon emissions: Government departments, how much air mileage incurred through departmental travel was used to calculate the departmental payment to the Government Carbon Offsetting Fund in each year that his Department and its predecessors have participated in the fund, broken down by (a) domestic, (b) short-haul and (c) long-haul flights. [222048]

Mr. Thomas: The Department and its predecessor the DTI have participated in the Government Carbon Offsetting Fund since 1 April 2006.

For the period 2006-07 details are only available for short haul and long haul flights. The number of air miles used to calculate the departmental payment was:

	Number of air miles
(a) Short haul	3,557,092
(b) Long haul	7,773,937

For the period 2007-08 the number of air miles used to calculate the departmental payment was:

	Miles
(a) Domestic	1,850,032
(b) Short haul	2,798,771
(c) Long haul	11,157,261

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform whether those staff of (a) his Department and (b) its agencies who are entitled to business class or first class air travel are permitted to (i) travel in a cheaper class to the destination and (ii) benefit in monetary terms or in kind from the saving. [222055]

Mr. Thomas: In BERR, the criteria for booking flights should be value for money and flights selected on the basis of cost and convenience. No matter what class of travel is used, staff travelling on official business must take advantage of any cheap facilities which maybe available (e.g. special offers, restricted tickets) wherever practical. Should staff choose to travel in a cheaper class than permitted, they may do so.

Staff are not entitled to any benefits in monetary terms or in kind from any savings made.

All travel is undertaken in accordance with the Civil Service Management Code and the Ministerial Code.

Letter from Stephen Speed, dated 6 October 2008:

The Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform has asked me to reply to you directly in respect of your question (2007/3620) whether those staff of (a) his Department and (b) its agencies who are entitled to business class or first class air travel are permitted to (i) travel in a cheaper class to the destination and (ii) benefit in monetary terms or kind from the saving.

The Insolvency Service Executive Agency of the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform expects staff to use low cost airlines wherever possible. Business class air travel is used on an exceptional basis for a very small number of mostly European and International flights.

Flights are booked through official channels and no remuneration or benefits related to the cost of air travel are paid directly to staff.

It is not possible for staff to claim for savings based on a lower air travel class entitlement.

Letter from Gareth Jones, dated 6 October 2008:

I am responding on behalf of Companies House to your recently tabled Parliamentary Question to the Secretary of State for Business Enterprise and Regulatory Reform.

Members of staff who are entitled to business class or first class air travel are permitted to travel in a cheaper class to their destination. There is no benefit in monetary terms, or kind, from the savings made.

Departmental Appeals

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform on how many occasions his Department and its predecessor instructed the Treasury Solicitor to seek leave to appeal to the House of Lords from (a) the Court of Appeal and (b) the House of Lords itself in each of the last 10 years; and on how many occasions the application was rejected. [220812]

Mr. Thomas: The information requested is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Buildings

Mr. Betts: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what his Department's policy is on improving the energy efficiency of the buildings which it (a) rents and (b) owns; what changes there have been in the energy efficiency of such buildings in the last (i) five and (ii) 10 years; and whether his Department has adopted targets on energy efficiency improvements in the buildings it occupies over the next (A) five and (B) 10 years. [221089]

Mr. Thomas: BERR are working toward achieving the energy efficiency targets expressed in the Sustainable Operations on the Government Estate (SOGE) framework. The targets set are to improve the energy efficiency of the buildings on the estate by 15 per cent. in terms of KWH usage and that used per square metre by 2010-11 and 30 per cent. by 2020-21.

The main strategy is to gain efficiencies as a result of the estate strategy to reduce the physical size of the estate and the number of buildings. As a result the BERR HQ estate has been reduced by 46 per cent. with a decrease of 11.2 per cent. in energy consumption since 1999-2000. This included the introduction of flexible desking throughout our main buildings on the basis of eight work stations for every 10 staff.

BERR has also implemented a number of energy efficiency initiatives since the target was published. In 1 Victoria street this included a number of energy efficiency projects to improve lighting and environmental controls as well as occupant awareness. The Department has also undertaken a study into the use of localised microgeneration of energy on the estate. Energy efficiency is taken into account in any estate project undertaken and has included the introduction of energy minimising technology within the recent IT systems refresh.

The Department has recently undertaken energy audits across its estate. Projects identified to reduce carbon emission include using lighting controls more effectively and piloting the use of LED technology.

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what the location is of each office occupied by (a) his Department and (b) each of its agencies which has been (i) newly occupied and (ii) refurbished in the last 24 months; and what the floor area in square metres is of each. [222058]

Mr. Thomas: The Department has not occupied any new space nor undertaken any major refurbishments during the last 24 months.

I have approached the chief executives of the Insolvency Service and Companies House and they will respond to you directly.

Letter from Gareth Jones, dated 6 October 2008:

I am responding on behalf of Companies House to your recently tabled Parliamentary Question to the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform.

In the last 24 months Companies House has decorated and replaced the carpet in the London office, a floor area of 275 square metres. Out of a total area of 28,800 square metres in the Cardiff office, an area of 1051 square metres has been refurbished.

Letter from Stephen Speed, dated 6 October 2008:

The Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform has asked me to reply to you directly in respect of your question (2007/3623) asking what the location is of each office occupied by (a) his Department and (b) each of its agencies which has been (i) newly occupied and (ii) refurbished in the last 24 months; and what the floor area in square metres is of each.

For the Insolvency Service the information is:

Newly occupied and fitted out demises:

Birmingham (Cannon House) – 3990 m^2

Croydon (Sunley House) – 1498 m^2

Gloucester (Southgate House) – 978 m^2

Reading (Apex Plaza) – 792 m^2.

None of our demises were refurbished in the period.

Departmental Disciplinary Proceedings

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what the five most serious disciplinary breaches have been in his Department in the last 12 months; and what action was taken to correct the breach in each case. [222559]

Mr. Thomas: There have been no serious disciplinary breaches in BERR during the last 12 months. BERR has a disciplinary procedure which is available for all staff to view on the HR intranet. Line managers also have access to dedicated advice through nominated HR consultants.

Departmental Homeworking

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform pursuant to the answer of 7 July 2008, Official Report, column 1320W, on departmental home working, if he will make it his policy to collate and maintain central records of homeworking by his Department's staff. [222470]

Mr. Thomas: Records of homeworking by the Department's staff are not collated centrally. There is no intention to introduce this policy.

Departmental Information

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what types of data have been sold by (a) his Department and (b) its agencies under the Re-use of Public Sector Information Regulations in the last 12 months. [222056]

Mr. Thomas: Core information produced by the Department can be re-used free of charge under the terms of the PSI Click-Use Licence which is administered by the Office of Public Sector Information in accordance with the Re-Use of Public Sector Information Regulations. The Department has not sold any data during this period.

I have approached the Chief Executives of the Insolvency Service and Companies House agencies and they will respond to you directly.

Letter from Gareth Jones, 6 October 2008:

I am responding on behalf of Companies House to your recently tabled Parliamentary Question to the Secretary of State for Business Enterprise and Regulatory Reform.

Companies House has not sold any data under the Re-use of Public Sector Information Regulations in the last twelve months.

Letter from Stephen Speed, 6 October 2008:

The Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform has asked me to reply to you directly in respect of your question (2007/3621) asking if he will list each type of data that has been sold by (a) his Department and (b) its agencies under the Re-use of Public Sector Information Regulations in the last 12 months.

The Insolvency Service does not sell any data under the above regulations.

Departmental Official Residences

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what permanent residential accommodation is provided for use by civil servants in his Department; how many residential dwellings are provided; where they are located; and for what grade of civil servant they are provided. [222054]

Mr. Thomas: The Department has no permanent residential accommodation.

Departmental Pay

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what estimate he has made of the average pay per hour worked by (a) permanent and (b) temporary staff in his Department in the last period for which figures are available, broken down by pay band. [212490]

Mr. Thomas: The available information for average hourly rates of pay for permanent staff in BERR in 2008 is shown in the following table.

The pay data for temporary staff are not available as their pay is determined by the agencies that employ them.

Ranges[1]	London Hourly Rates (£)[2]	National Hourly Rates (£)

[1] The BERR pay system below SCS has 10 pay ranges.

[2] The hourly rate calculations were based on average annual salary and gross hours of 41 hours per week for those working in London and 42 hours for those working outside London.

Notes:

1. There are very few SCS posts in BERR located outside London and it is therefore not possible to provide such average figures for outside London.
2. Annual Salaries for staff in SCSPB3 and the Permanent Secretary are published in the Departmental Annual Report.

Departmental Procurement

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform if he will place in the Library a copy of the names and addresses of each organisation that supplied goods and services to his Department in 2007-08, based on the purchase order data held in the Department's financial database. [222051]

Mr. Thomas: I have arranged for this information to be placed in the Libraries of the House. In line with the applicable legislative provisions relating to personal data, the names and addresses of individuals have not been included in this list.

Departmental Public Participation

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what public consultation exercises were undertaken by his Department in each of the last five years; and what the cost of each was. [222768]

Mr. Thomas: Data on the number of written consultations undertaken by the Department are published in the annual report and accounts available on the Department's website. The number of written consultations undertaken in each of the last three years was:

	Number
2005-06	71
2006-07	47
2007-08	45

All the Department's consultations are listed in the consultations index of its website at http://www.berr.gov.uk/consultations/index.html.

We estimate that the total production costs of the written consultations carried out by the Department in the last three calendar years were as follows:

2005	67,000
2006	71,000
2007	51,000

Data for earlier years and for individual consultations could be produced only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Public Relations

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how much (a) his Department and (b) its agencies spent on each of the external public relations and marketing companies included in the Central Office of Information's Public Relations Framework in each of the last 36 months. [222052]

Mr. Thomas: In the last three full financial years the Department spent the following on external public relations and marketing companies included in the Central Office of Information's Public Relations Framework:

[2] Spend by the former DTI.
Note:
These costs are inclusive of COFs fees.

BERR's agencies will reply separately.

External public relations and marketing companies are only used where the internal specialism is not available. They are used for raising public awareness on specific issues, such as for the Department's 'Employing People' campaign.

Letter from Gareth Jones, dated 6 October 2008:

I am responding on behalf of Companies House to your recently tabled Parliamentary Question to the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform.

Companies House did not spend any money on any of the external public relations and marketing companies included in the Central Office of Information's Public Relations Framework in the last 36 months.

Letter from Stephen Speed, dated 6 October 2008:

The Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform, has asked me to reply to you directly in respect of your question (2007/3617) asking how much (a) his Department and (b) its agencies spent on each of the external public relations and marketing companies included in the Central Office of Information's (COI) Public Relations Framework in each of the last 36 months.

The Insolvency Service spent approximately £14,500 in 2007-08 on external public relations to provide cover for the press officer during a period of absence. No other monies were spent on public relations and marketing companies included in COI's public relations framework in either 2005-06 or 2006-07.

Departmental Surveillance

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many applications (a) his Department and (b) its agencies have made under the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 to (i) undertake directed surveillance, (ii) use covert human intelligence sources, (iii) acquire communications data and (iv) undertake intrusive surveillance in the last 24 months. [222057]

Mr. Thomas: The Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 allows BERR and its agencies to conduct directed surveillance in accordance with Section 28 of the Act, grant authorisations for the conduct and use of a covert intelligence source in accordance with Section 29 of the Act and to obtain certain types of communication data in accordance with Section 22 of the Act. In each case the use of powers within RIPA has to be appropriately authorised.

Figures on public authority use of covert techniques controlled by the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 ('RIPA') are published annually by the Interception of Communications Commissioner, the Chief Surveillance Commissioner and the Intelligence Services Commissioner who each have particular inspection and oversight responsibilities under RIPA. The latest reports were laid before Parliament and copies placed in the House Library on 22 July. The figures provided in the reports are not broken down by individual public authority use of specific covert technique as, depending on the particular technique and authority using it, this could either reveal sensitivities or be misleading. The question of further disclosure for any particular public authority is a matter for the relevant Commissioner.

EDF Energy

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what contracts (a) his Department and (b) its agencies have with EDF; and how much (i) his Department and (ii) its agencies paid to EDF in each of the last 10 years, broken down by the purpose of the payment. [221833]

Mr. Thomas: EDF provides the energy for the BERR estate through a call off contract via an Office of Government Commerce framework.

Spend over the past five financial years is as follows:

2003-04	530,550
2004-05	520,011
2005-06	856,367
2006-07	1,240,938
2007-08	1,495,498

I am unable to provide the figures for the previous five years as disproportionate costs would be incurred.

I have approached the chief executives of the Insolvency Service and Companies House and they will respond to you directly.

Letter from Gareth Jones, dated 6 October 2008:

I am responding on behalf of Companies House to your recently tabled Parliamentary Question to the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform.

The Insolvency Service started making payments to EDF, for electricity payments only from 2005. The table below shows the breakdown of the payments.

2005	381,600
2006	381,600
2007	381,600
2008 to July	222,600

EU Law

Mr. Francois: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many officials in his Department are wholly or mainly tasked with the negotiation, implementation or the administration of EU legislation and consequent policies. [222277]

Mr. Thomas: This Government are firmly committed to the importance of the EU in delivering on 21st century challenges. The EU is of central importance to the work of HM Government across all Departments. It is relevant to a wide range of policy areas, and to the work of many Government officials.

Within BERR, officials working specifically on EU business total around 180. In addition, there are a number of seconded national experts working on priority policy areas in the European Institutions in Brussels and on occasion other EU member states, usually around a dozen individuals. A fuller breakdown of the figures as requested would incur disproportionate cost.

Family Businesses

Lorely Burt: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what plans he has to reduce the regulatory burdens on family businesses. [216501]

Mr. McFadden: The Government's plan to reduce regulatory burdens apply to all businesses including family businesses. Administrative burdens arising as a result of regulation can disproportionately impact on smaller firms.

Family run businesses tend to be small (10-49 employees) micro (1-9 employees) or have no employees. "The larger a business is the less likely it is to be family owned"[1]

On 12 March 2008, the Government published a new Enterprise Strategy. In the 2008 Enterprise Strategy, the Government committed to a new approach to the way that new and existing regulation applies to firms that employ fewer than 20 people; this includes considering whether small firms can be exempt from requirements without affecting essential protections—or if there is scope for simplified inspection, enforcement and guidance. A risk based approach to regulation will help minimise costs for small businesses.

Within the Enterprise Strategy, Government also announced that it would consult on the introduction of a system of regulatory budgets. At present there are limited controls on new regulatory proposals and there is no overall method for the Government to directly manage regulatory costs. A regulatory budget would provide such a mechanism. The Government is currently carrying out its consultation on this proposal.

In June 2008 The Small Firms Impact Test (SFIT) became a mandatory part of the Impact Assessment (IA) process when a Government proposal imposes or reduces costs on business. The Government's manifesto commitment in 2001 ensured the 'Think Small First' principle was followed as part of UK policy development. The SFIT is intended to establish impact on small businesses and how it is possible to minimise the impact of the requirements on small firms through flexibilities such as exemptions, simplified inspection, less frequent reporting for businesses with fewer than 20 employees.

More generally, Government undertook an exercise, supported by industry, to measure the administrative burdens that impact businesses of all sizes as a result of complying with regulations. Upon the completion of this exercise, 25 per cent. net targets by 2010 were set to reduce this burden.

In December 2007, 19 Simplification Plans were published, showing more than 700 measures to reduce the burdens of complying with regulations. Over 280 of these measures have already been delivered saving businesses £800 million per year.

Examples include:

Simpler law for smaller businesses (BERR): Smaller businesses stand to benefit from substantial rewrite of Company Law. Coupled with better guidance, new provisions are expected to lower third party costs and make compliance easier. Conservative estimate of £2 million annual savings delivered.

Changes to Small Business Rate Relief (Communities): Small firms eligible for Small Business Rate Relief no longer have to register for relief annually. £3 million annual savings delivered, and expected to rise to £11 million by 2010.

Small Firms audit requirements (Financial Services Authority): Removed the need for 3,400 small firms to have a statutory audit, saving £12.9 million per year

Copies of these plans are available online at:

Herbal Medicine: EC Law

Sir Nicholas Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what assessment the Better Regulation Executive has made of the impact of the Traditional Herbal Medicinal Products Directive on (a) manufacturers, (b) retailers and (c) consumers of specialist herbal remedies; what estimate he has made of the effect of the Directive on the number of herbal remedies on the market; and if he will make a statement. [221881]

Mr. McFadden: It is the responsibility of the relevant Government Department or agency to assess the impact of new policies, through the publication of an impact assessment.

In October 2005, a detailed impact assessment (IA) was conducted by the Medicines and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency (MHRA) to determine the impact of the directive on various stakeholders and sectors, including manufacturers, retailers and consumers. This is available on www.mhra.gov.uk.

Sir Nicholas Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform whether the Better Regulation Executive was consulted by the Medicines and Healthcare Products Regulatory Agency about the consistency with the principles of good regulation of the Traditional Herbal Medicinal Products Directive; and what assessment he has made of whether those principles are met by the Directive. [221883]

Mr. McFadden: In introducing the new legislation, the Medicines and Healthcare Products Regulatory Agency consulted publicly and across government, including with the Better Regulation Executive (then in Cabinet Office) and the Better Regulation Task Force (BRTF). At the time, officials from both organisations would have considered whether proposals were in line with better regulation principles.

Industrial Disputes

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many working days were lost as a result of strikes in (a) each parliamentary constituency in Cornwall, (b) the South West region and (c) England in each year since 1979. [222403]

Mr. McFadden: Data on days lost to industrial action are collected by the Office for National Statistics only at Government office region level. Therefore information on days lost relating to parliamentary constituencies is outside of the scope of data collected.

The available data for days lost to industrial action in the Government office region of South West England and for England as a whole for each year since 1979 are shown in the following table.

	South West	England	UK total	UK strikes which could not be disaggregated to GOR level[1]

Innovation: Medical Equipment

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what discussions he has had with the Department of Health on the potential implications for the (a) urology market, (b) stoma market and (c) single-line items market of the proposed new arrangements under Part IX of the Drug Tariff for the provision of stoma and urology appliances, and related services, in Primary Care: A consultation, June 2008; and if he will make a statement. [222387]

Malcolm Wicks: The Department has had no recent discussions with the Department of Health about its consultation "Proposed new arrangements under Part IX of the Drug Tariff for the provision of stoma and urology appliances—and related services—in Primary Care. June 2008".

However, I refer the hon. Member to the answers given to the hon. Member for Bristol, West (Stephen Williams) by my right hon. Friend, the Minister of State for Public Health on 22 July 2008, Official Report, columns 1311W and 1148W.

The Department of Health consultation regarding arrangements under Part IX of the Drug tariff closed on 9 September 2008. Responses are being analysed and no decisions have yet been made.

Insurance

Mr. Goodwill: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what assessment he has made of the adequacy of market provision of insurance services for particular age groups. [212630]

Barbara Follett: The Government have announced their intention to prohibit age discrimination in the provision of goods, facilities and services as part of the Equality Bill.

In advance of further public consultation on how the new law should be framed, an expert working group has been set up to help establish the extent of nature of age- based policies and practices in the provision of financial services, and the possible impact of legislation in this area.

Investment: West Midlands

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what recent steps the Government has taken to encourage business investment in the West Midlands. [224174]

Mr. McFadden: The regional development agency for the west midlands, Advantage West Midlands (AWM) has primary responsibility for measures to encourage business investment in the region. Recent initiatives, highlighted in the recent report 'The West Midlands Economy—A joint response to changing economic circumstances' include:

The extension of the Selective Finance for Investment in England (SFIE) grant to provide greater support for capital projects undertaken by small and medium sized enterprises outside the main assisted areas. The scheme paid approximately £10 million to nearly 150 businesses in the region in the year to 31 March2008;

Providing an additional £1 million to the region's Community Development Finance Institutions to enable them to increase their lending to businesses;

Further investment in venture capital funds as the current funds mature;

At the national level, the Government have extended the Small Firms Loan Guarantee Scheme to businesses over five years old and increased the funding allocated to the scheme by £60 million. This will benefit firms across the country, including the west midlands.

These initiatives are in addition to other programmes already in place, including:

Grant for Research and Development, which pays out around £2 million a year in the west midlands to help SMEs finance new products and services;

AWM's Index Voucher scheme which encourages smaller businesses to work to build links with universities and other research institutions;

Business Link West Midlands and the Manufacturing Advisory Service provide impartial and expert information, support and advice to help businesses develop and become more successful.

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what recent steps the Government has taken to encourage international corporations to base businesses in the West Midlands. [224175]

Mr. McFadden: The west midlands has been successful in attracting inward investment including the acquisition of Jaguar Land Rover by the Tata Group. In 2007-08 114 investment projects created 4,640 jobs and safeguarded 25,840 more.

Advantage West Midlands has an ongoing programme of inward investment activity designed to attract prospective inward investors into the region. This activity is aimed at attracting knowledge driven investment into the west midlands region from the business and professional services, ICT, automotive engineering, medical technologies, building technologies and environmental technologies sectors.

Proactive sales activities are taking place in the USA, France, Germany, Scandinavia, Benelux, Japan, Australia and India. Recent and forthcoming steps to attract inward investors include the continued roll-out of the Bridge to Growth initiative across Scandinavia, France, Germany, the Benelux countries and Ireland. This is an innovative project aimed at high tech SME's which has resulted in nearly 20 companies setting up operations in the region.

The Regional Minister, Liam Byrne, has visited India and China to discuss business opportunities with local companies. An India Business Action Plan for the region was launched in July and a plan to develop business and academic ties with China is being prepared.

Other initiatives include ICT seminars in conjunction with Warwick university which will take place in three cities in India in October 2008. A more integrated programme of activity with UKTI is being developed and rolled out in three vanguard markets—India, Canada and France. The global roll-out to all markets will take place in April 2009.

Manufacturing Industries: Greater London

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what steps he is taking to support manufacturing companies in London. [222770]

Mr. McFadden: BERR recognises the contribution the manufacturing sector makes to both the regional and national economies, and is currently reviewing the Government's manufacturing strategy in order to ensure that it continues to address the changing needs of the sector.

London manufacturers are able to access mainstream BERR business support products, which encourage increased competitiveness, productivity, investment and innovation. Support for manufacturing is available from a variety of sources including:

London Manufacturing Advisory Service

[222212]

Mr. McFadden: The locations were chosen to enable us to reach as many of our target audience of low paid workers and their employers as possible during the nine week tour. The national minimum wage bus was just one element of the 2007-08 national minimum wage awareness campaign.

Ordnance Survey

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what assessment he has made of the effect of Ordnance Survey's licensing terms on trends in business take-up of its services; and if he will make a statement. [222736]

Mr. McFadden: As part of the Trading Funds Assessment announced in Budget 2008, Shareholder Executive and HMT are currently considering the impact, both on the Ordnance Survey's business model and the wider UK economy, of the Ordnance Survey's current licensing and pricing regime for its data and the costs and benefits of any possible options for change. The issues are being considered for five other data-rich Trading Funds (Met Office, UKHO, DVLA, Companies House and Land Registry) as well as Ordnance Survey.

This work has not yet concluded but will provide recommendations to Ministers shortly.

Post Offices: Closures

Susan Kramer: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many post office branches have experienced temporary closures of more than one month in the last five years for which information is available; and what assessment he has made of the merits of using mobile post offices during such periods of temporary closure. [221768]

Mr. McFadden: This is an operational matter for Post Office Ltd. (POL). I have therefore asked Alan Cook, Managing Director of POL, to reply direct to the hon. Member.

Post Offices: Devon

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what representations from hon. Members on the Devon post office closures programme have been received by the Post Office National Consultation Team. [224058]

Mr. McFadden [holding answer 17 September 2008]: This is an operational matter for Post Office Ltd (POL). I have therefore asked Alan Cook, Managing Director of POL, to reply direct to the hon. Member.

Copies of the letter will be placed in the Libraries of the House.

Postal Services: Fees and Charges

Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what assessment he has made of the appropriateness and transparency of handling fees charged to UK customers by international parcel delivery services. [223464]

Mr. McFadden [holding answer 15 September 2008]: Postal operators are legally required to work with HM Revenue and Customs (HMRC) to facilitate the collection of customs duty and taxes on goods entering the UK from outside the EU. The handling fee goes towards covering the costs incurred in storing items and collecting the duty fee on behalf of HMRC before it can be released to the customer.

In such a highly competitive market, it is for the parcels companies to review their own pricing structures in response to competitive pressures and market demands. Where there is evidence that an operator is behaving in an anti-competitive manner, the matter should be drawn to the attention of the Office of Fair Trading (OFT).

Public Houses: EU Legislation

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform if he will review (a) the effects of tied lease agreements for pubs on (i) competition and (ii) bar prices and (b) the extent to which tied lease agreements are consistent with EU regulations; and if he will make a statement. [224035]

Mr. Thomas [holding answer 17 September 2008]: The Department has no plans to commission research of this type. The relationship between pub operating companies and their tied tenants has been extensively examined in recent years by both European and UK competition authorities. The conclusion has been that tied lease and tenancy agreements generally do not raise competition concerns.

Regional Development Agencies

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what research his Department has undertaken into the functions of regional development agencies in the last four years. [223335]

Mr. McFadden [holding answer 15 September 2008]: Since 2004, the Department has conducted the following research into the functions of the regional development agencies (RDAs):

In 2006-07, the National Audit Office carried out Independent Performance Assessments (IPAs) of all the RDAs (except for London which had been covered in a previous Audit Commission Review). This is available on the NAO website: http://www.nao.org.uk/guidance/rdas.htm.

PricewaterhouseCoopers (PwC) is currently undertaking a thorough review for the RDAs of their impact since 2002. The report will be publicly available once concluded in autumn 2008.

Regional Development Agencies: Managers

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (1) how many staff there are in managerial posts in each regional development agency (RDA); what pay scales apply to such posts; how many such staff are employed on each scale; and what the average salary of managerial staff employed by RDAs is; [220092]

(2) what change there has been in the number of (a) administrative and (b) managerial posts in each regional development agency in 2007-08; and what such changes he expects to occur in 2008-09. [220096]

Mr. McFadden: The RDAs do not draw a common administrative/managerial distinction between staff. However, for the sake of consistency, administrative staffs have been classified as those occupying posts primarily concerned with supportive responsibilities, e.g. PAs, assistants to PAs, team administrators, office administrators. In the same way, managers are considered to be those who have a discrete area of managerial ' responsibility for a team or programme of work. RDAs vary in overall staffing numbers as some have much bigger budgets/geographical coverage than others. The following tables show this information.

[2] This excludes three vacant managerial posts, which have subsequently been filled.
[3] The LDA is currently in the process of restructuring. This restructure is subject to a formal consultation, which is already under way. However, the phasing of this restructure has yet to be consulted upon with staff and unions. Therefore the LDA is unable to provide estimated figures for 2008-09.
[4] This increase on 2007-08 is due to recruiting additional senior staff managing strategic programmes and relations with partners.
[5] SWRDA has additional programmes over other RDAs due to Cornwall's Objective One status.
[6] YF has appointed three managerial posts in relation to the delivery of the new ERDF programme. Due to internal restructuring, two existing finance posts have been re-graded to include additional responsibilities. There is a new post to manage the contract for Business Link services. There is a temporary post for a payroll specialist.

Regional Development Agencies: Offices

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what expenditure was incurred by regional development agencies in maintaining offices overseas in 2007-08; and what expenditure on such offices has been budgeted for in 2008-09. [222829]

Mr. McFadden: The English Regional Development Agencies maintain representation overseas for the purpose of attracting inward investment, an important element of the Regional Economic Strategy for each region. The following table shows Regional Development Agencies' expenditure on overseas offices.

RDA	Actual 2007-08	Budgeted for 2008-09

[1] EEDA no longer maintains overseas offices.
[2] Following the London elections, the new Mayoral administration have committed to a review of the GLA Group's overseas offices. This review is currently ongoing and it is therefore important to note that these are only projected costs and could be subject to significant change.
[3] In October 2007 Yorkshire Forward implemented a new strategy regarding overseas investment and part of this included making provision to attract inward investors from Western Europe. Also, a Yorkshire Forward representative in Mumbai was appointed in December 2007.

Mr. McFadden [holding answer 15 September 2008]: The Department has not recently carried out specific and detailed research into the procedures for small and medium enterprises to apply for regional development agencies' support.

Regional Planning and Development: Finance

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar of 25 June 2008, Official Report, column 329W, on regional planning and development: electronic government, how much funding each regional development agency has provided to the regional equality and diversity partnership in each region. Retail Trade: Competition

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform with reference to the Government's response to the Competition Commission's inquiry into grocery retailing of 29 July 2008, what definition of consumer interest his Department will use when determining whether to establish an independent Ombudsman to oversee the Groceries Supply Code of Practice. [224279]

Mr. Thomas: The Competition Commission (CC) is seeking, under Section 159 of the Enterprise Act 2002, undertakings from the grocery retailers covered by the new groceries supply code of practice (GSCOP) to establish an ombudsman to monitor and enforce compliance with the GSCOP. If the CC is unsuccessful in establishing the Ombudsman within a reasonable period of time, the CC will formally ask BERR to take the necessary steps to set up an ombudsman. BERR would then carry out a full consultation before taking a decision on the way forward. At this stage BERR would not want to pre judge the range or type of issue that might be raised by stakeholders.

Small Businesses: Ethnic Groups

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what estimate he has made of the number and proportion of small businesses owned by black and ethnic minority people. [219045]

Mr. McFadden: The Department estimates there are around 280,000 small (0-49 employees) Minority Ethnic Group led businesses in the UK.

Minority Ethnic Group led businesses are where 50 per cent. or more of the partners or directors are from ethnic minority groups.

It is estimated that these businesses represent 6 per cent. of all UK small businesses.

It is not possible to report on the proportion of businesses run by black people or other minority ethnic groups separately to the overall estimate.

South East

Dr. Stoate: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how much his Department spent on services in (a) Dartford Borough, (b) Kent Thameside, (c) the Thames Gateway, (d) Kent County Council area and (e) the South East region in each of the last five years, broken down by type of service. [222448]

Mr. McFadden: Information on the Department's spending by Region and service is published in the Department's Annual Report and Accounts 2007-08 Annex 8 which is lodged in the House. Expenditure is broken down by country and region for years 2002-03 to 2007-08 (Table 7), by Head of Population for years 2002-03 to 2007-08 (Table 8), and by identifiable expenditure on services by function, country and region for 2006-07.

Payments made to Kent County Council during the last five years were as follows:

Financial year 2004-05, £52,940.76 re-imbursement of salary costs, £2,519.38 conference room rental.

Financial year 2007-08, £1,100,190.98 waste electrical and electronic equipment grant.

No payments are recorded on the Department's system to either Dartford BC, Kent Thameside, or the Thames Gateway.

Any further breakdown would be at disproportionate cost.

BERR's spending in the South East includes funding to South East England Development Agency (SEEDA).

The following table shows SEEDA's expenditure for Kent as a whole and also, separately, cross-regional funding. This is all spending and not just on 'services'. It is not possible to show how much of this expenditure came from the BERR grant-in-aid.

To break down expenditure by each area requested would involve disproportionate effort.

Please note that EEDA and LDA also provide funding to the Thames Gateway.

A stress management framework, based on the Health and Safety Executive's management standards, is available to all employees and gives easy to use advice on the successful prevention, recognition and management of stress at work.

The amount spent on Companies House's taxi account in the financial year 2007/8 was £22,332.

Letter from Stephen Speed, dated 6 October 2008:

The Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform has asked me to reply to you directly on behalf of The Insolvency Service in respect of your question (2007/3644) asking how much (a) his Department and (b) its agencies spent on taxis in the last financial year for which figures are available.

The Insolvency Service's policy is that public transport must be used in preference to taxis on all possible occasions.

The Service is unable to extract details of annual taxi expenses for the year 2007-2008, but a sample data has been extracted which shows costs of £1,510 for a month. We would not expect annual taxi fares to be more than £20,000.

TICC: Redundancy

Mr. Betts: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many employees were made redundant when TICC Ltd went into liquidation; how many received compensation from public funds; how such compensation payments were determined; and under what statutory authority such payments were made. [222802]

Mr. McFadden: TICC Ltd was placed into creditors voluntary liquidation on 8 November 2002. The Insolvency Service's Redundancy Payments Service received claims from 21 dismissed employees in respect of statutory redundancy payments, arrears of wages, holiday pay, notice pay, and a basic award for unfair dismissal. The sum of £53,850.24 was paid from the National Insurance Fund with the amounts being determined in accordance with the statutory provisions contained in Parts XI and XII of the Employment Rights Act 1996.

Trading Funds

Adam Afriyie: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform which representatives of the private sector the shareholder executive team (a) has met and (b) plans to meet as part of the trading fund assessment. [223240]

Mr. McFadden [holding answer 10 September 2008]: To date, as part of the trading funds assessment, the Shareholder Executive team has heard the views of around 20-25 stakeholders from the private sector, as well as others from the public and third sectors. The private sector stakeholders have included customers, suppliers and competitors of the trading funds, small UK-based companies, large multinationals and representatives of trade associations and interest groups. It would not be appropriate to name the organisations individually because their contributions to and comments on the assessment have been to inform advice to Ministers and were on a non-attributable basis. The team will continue to seek the views of a large number of stakeholders as the assessment progresses. Any change in Government policy that arises as a result of the assessment will be subject to the appropriate public consultation.

UK Trade and Investment: Manpower

Jeremy Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform who is on the UK Trade and Investment Defence Advisory Group. [215440]

Mr. Thomas [holding answer 1 July 2008]: UK Trade and Investment has set up a Defence Advisory Group (DAG) to advise on strategy and objectives for the defence sector. The DAG comprises 15 members, who are expected to serve for two years and who have been selected on the basis of the expertise that they personally bring to speak with authority and experience of defence exports. At the first meeting Sir Kevin Tebbit, Chairman of Finmeccanica UK, acted as Chairman of the Group. Information on individual members of the Group is considered to be personal information and is withheld for that reason.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

ABL Consulting

Mr. Carswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether her Department has a contract with ABL Consulting. [222076]

Mr. Khan: The Department has let no contracts with ABL Consulting.

Arc Manche Assembly

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what meetings of the Arc Manche Assembly representatives of (a) her Department and (b) the Government Offices attended in the last 12 months; and on what dates. [224482]

Mr. Khan: No representatives of my Department or the Government Offices have attended meetings of the Arc Manche Assembly in the last 12 months.

Carbon Emissions

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment has been made of the effect of greenfield development on carbon dioxide emissions. [222869]

Mr. Iain Wright: Assessments of the likely effects of new development, including likely impacts on carbon emissions, are made through the sustainability appraisals supporting the preparation of regional and local planning strategies. Actual carbon emissions arising from greenfield development will vary according to the type, size and design of the development concerned and its location. Our planning policies on climate change, including the new planning policy statement on climate change, expect new development to be planned to limit carbon dioxide emissions and sustainability appraisal to be used to shape planning strategies that help achieve this.

Community Development: Newcastle Upon Tyne

Mr. Henderson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what further assessment her Department plans to make of the performance of Pathfinder in the Newcastle area in meeting the needs of communities by developing retail premises within communities which previously fell within the most deprived indices. [222633]

Mr. Iain Wright: Housing market renewal pathfinders have an important role to play in helping shape the redevelopment of the neighbourhoods where they operate, as well as focusing simply on improving the housing stock. This will include consideration with local partners of a wide range of facilities, including retail. The Department will continue to take a close interest in the performance of each pathfinder, including against business plans prepared last November and targets agreed in this year's Funding Agreements. We are also discussing with pathfinders a new set of performance monitoring indicators, as recommended recently by the Public Accounts Committee, in order to measure the change in quality of an area as well as the amount of refurbishment, demolition and new build.

Community Infrastructure Levy

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether the rules for the (a) liability and (b) the tariff rate for the Community Infrastructure Levy will be centrally or locally determined. [222576]

Mr. Iain Wright: The document "The Community Infrastructure Levy" published on 5 August by the Department sets out the Government's detailed proposals for how CIL liability will be established. Rates of CIL will be determined locally, according to a process which the Government will set out in guidance.

Community Relations: Islam

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar of 23 June 2008, Official Report, column 19W, on community relations: Islam, what the timetable is for the report by the Change Institute on Understanding Muslim Ethnic Communities to be completed; and if she will place a copy in the Library on receipt. [222888]

Mr. Khan: The Understanding Muslim Ethnic Communities report will be subject to external peer review and copy editing before it is completed, which the Department anticipates will be by November. Following this, a decision will be taken on whether to publish the report and place a copy in the Library.

Council Housing

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much funding her Department provided for the improvement of standards in council housing in each year since 1997. [222960]

Mr. Iain Wright: The following table shows the overall capital sums provided by CLG for capital investment in council owned housing stock from 1997-98 to 2007-08.

	CLG capital investment council owned stock (£ million)
1997-98	909
1998-99	1,135
1999-2000	1,126
2000-01	1,959
2001-02	2,378
2002-03	2,459
2003-04	2,683
2004-05	2,772
2005-06	3,055
2006-07	2,442
2007-08	2,516

Government investment in council owned housing stock has primarily been provided through the housing revenue account (HRA) subsidy system in the form of local authorities supported capital expenditure (SCE), ALMOs supported borrowing allocations and major repairs allowance (MRA).

Prior to 2006-07, local authorities were provided with SCE for the renewal of private sector housing combined with that for their own stock. In the table therefore the SCE for private sector renewal is included in the council housing column as it cannot be disaggregated until 2006-07, which also helps to explain the reduction in the level of council owned stock in 2006-07 from 2005-06 levels.

Council Housing: Cumbria

Mr. Jamie Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) whether her Department has made an estimate of the average length of time a family has been on a socially provided housing waiting list before being suitably housed within (a) Cumbria and (b) Copeland; [223914]

(2) how many families are on waiting lists for social housing within (a) Cumbria and (b) Copeland. [223938]

Mr. Iain Wright: Information for average length of time on a housing waiting list is not collected centrally.

Information about social housing waiting lists is collected in respect of households rather than families. Where local authorities and registered social landlords operate a common register, households registered with the RSL will be included in the data. However, registered social landlords are independent bodies and can keep their own waiting lists.

At 1 April 2007, the number of households on the local authority housing waiting list in Cumbria was 13,119 and in Copeland was 1,935.

Information on the number of households on local authorities' waiting lists broken down by Government office region and local authority for 1997 to 2007 is published on the Communities and Local Government website in Table 600 at:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/documents/housing/xls/144458.xls

Copies of this table have been deposited in the Library of the House.

Mr. Jamie Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) what estimate her Department has made of the number of socially provided homes that will need to be adapted for disabled tenants in (a) Cumbria and (b) Copeland over the next five years; [223931]

(2) what estimate her Department has made of the number of empty disabled-adapted social homes in (a) Cumbria and (b) Copeland in 2008-09. [223934]

Mr. Khan: The Department does not hold the requested information.

On 30 September we published the Regional Spatial Strategy (RSS) for the North West. The RSS indicates that in Cumbria, 8,980 homes are required over the next five years and in Copeland 1,150 homes are required over the same period. It is now up to local authorities to decide on how this provision should be divided between market housing and affordable housing, including socially rented, intermediate and supported housing.

4NW (formally, the North West regional assembly) have commissioned a report looking at the needs for Support and Supported Housing Services in the North West from 2008 to 2020, which will help identify the need for supported housing. In response to this report, the Supporting People Commissioning Body in Cumbria has allocated £50,000 this year, to meet the shortfall in supply of accommodation based and non accommodation based services required for physical disabilities.

Across Cumbria, the county council and Copeland borough council in partnership with local housing associations are currently undertaking a housing needs survey to develop a disabled needs register. This will map current provision and ensure future housing projects meet the needs of the community. It is anticipated this work will be completed in 2009.

Council Housing: Repairs and Maintenance

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment has been made of progress in applying the decent homes standard to occupied council houses flooded in 2007 and still awaiting repair. [224440]

John Healey: Councils that had housing stock that was flooded in 2007 have regularly reported the impact of the floods including on their decent homes programme to CLG, the last report was in September. Nine authorities had 3,064 properties affected. It is for councils to prioritise their expenditure to deal with the repairs required by the floods. We have not been notified of any authority that faces a particular problem as a result of the flooding nor been asked for additional time to undertake remedial works and meet the decent homes standard.

Council Tax

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether billing authorities will have a liability for the administrative costs of rebilling in circumstances similar to the decision to cap Lincolnshire Police Authority in 2008 and issue new bills. [222572]

John Healey: No. As I made clear in my statement to the House on 9 July 2008, it is Lincolnshire police authority that is responsible for the costs of rebilling, not the billing authorities. The legislative basis for this can be found at section 31(5) of the Local Government Finance Act 1992.

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which councils reduced their absolute rate of council tax for 2008-09 compared to 2007-08. [222950]

John Healey: Details of the average Band D council tax in each local authority in England in 2007-08 and 2008-09 are available on the Communities and Local Government website at http://www.local.communities.gov.uk/finance/ctax/data/ctaxtimes.xls

Council Tax: Floods

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what additional central funding has been given to local authorities to assist them in funding local council tax discounts for those affected by flooding. [222557]

John Healey: The Government have given local authorities £30.6 million through the Restoration Fund and £18.4 million through Flood Recovery Grant. Both of these sources of funding were not ring-fenced. This allowed local authorities to decide how best to use fund locally, including, if they wished, to fund council tax discounts. This is part of a Government overall package of £133 million made available to local areas to support recovery.

In addition I announced, in June, our intention to provide financial support to those authorities who exercise their discretion under section 13 A of the Local Government Finance Act 1992 to grant discounts in respect of the council tax payable on properties which are still vacant and require major repairs due to the floods of June and July 2007. We are currently in contact with local authorities to finalise the details.

Council Tax: Lincolnshire

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the average band D 2008-09 council tax, (a) including and (b) excluding average parish precepts will be in each billing authority in Lincolnshire, following the decision to cap the police authority there in 2008. [222594]

John Healey: Details of the average band D council tax levels for 2008-09, both including and excluding average parish precepts, following the designation of the Lincolnshire Police Authority, are contained in a Statistical Release 'Updated council tax levels set by local authorities in England-2008-09'. This release was published on 21 August and available on the Communities and Local Government website at http://www.local.communities.gov.uk/finance/ctax/ctax089.htm

Council Tax: Valuation

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will place in the Library a copy of the minutes of the Valuation Office Agency's Programme Board of the council tax revaluation in England for the meetings of (a) 20 September 2005 and (b) 18 October 2005. [222589]

John Healey: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my hon. Friend the Member for Oldham, East and Saddleworth (Mr. Woolas) to the hon. Member for Meriden (Mrs. Spelman) on 27 April 2006, Official Report, column 1285W. These minutes relate to internal discussion and advice to Ministers on the formulation and development of government policy.

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what types of information are obtained from local authority building control and planning departments by the Valuation Office Agency for council tax valuation purposes; and what use is made of electronic billing authority reports in transferring such data. [222712]

John Healey: The information obtained from local authority building control and planning departments varies between authorities. Most provide no direct information, but the information from others can comprise commencement notices, completion notices and plans.

Electronic billing authority reports (e-BARs) are not used for transferring such information.

Departmental Advertising

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much her Department spent on advertising with general ledger account number 40001 in the most recent 12 month period for which figures are available. [222654]

Mr. Khan: The central Department, including the Government offices, spent £528,905 on statutory advertising recorded against general ledger account code 40001 for the financial year ended 31 March 2008.

Departmental Air Travel

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer to the right hon. Member for Horsham of 14 July 2008, Official Report, column 27W, on carbon emissions: Government departments, how much air mileage incurred through departmental travel was used to calculate the departmental payment to the Government Carbon Offsetting Fund in each year that her Department and its predecessors have participated in the fund, broken down by (a) domestic, (b) short haul and (c) long haul flights. [221976]

Mr. Khan: Communities and Local Government offsets its air travel through the Government Carbon Offsetting Fund. In 2006-07, Departments were only required to report on air travel broken down by short haul and long haul. In that year, the Department spent £2,730 to offset 275 tonnes of carbon dioxide equivalent emissions from its ministerial and official air travel in 2006-07.[1] This comprised 129,479 kilometres of short haul flights and 882,225 kilometres of long haul flights.

2006-07 was the first year that the Department offset any of its emissions.

Data from 2007-08 have been provided to the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs, who will subsequently request payment for the Department's offsets, but figures and payment details are not yet finalised.

[1] These figures do not include data from the Department's Executive agencies or the regional Government offices.

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether those staff of (a) her Department and (b) its agencies who are entitled to business class or first class air travel are permitted to (i) travel in a cheaper class to the destination and (ii) benefit in monetary terms or kind from the saving. [221983]

Mr. Khan: The current policy of the central Department for Communities and Local Government and its agencies is that all staff, including those entitled to business class or first class air travel, are required to travel in a cheaper class flight unless there are exceptional circumstances agreed beforehand by a senior manager. The class of air tickets that staff can use depends on the overall cost, relative convenience and duration of the flight. Benefits accrued as a result of official travel, such as "air miles", must not be used for personal travel but staff are encouraged to use them to offset the cost of future official journeys.

Departmental Buildings

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the location is of each office occupied by (a) her Department and its predecessor and (b) each of its agencies which has been (i) newly occupied and (ii) refurbished in the last 24 months; and what the floor area in square metres is of each. [221986]

Mr. Iain Wright: In the last 24 months Communities and Local Government refurbished and occupied one floor at Portland House, Victoria Street, London, an area of approximately 1022 m^2.

Departmental Computers

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the cost to the public purse was of (a) the theft of her laptop, (b) the theft of her ministerial driver's mobile telephone and satellite navigation system and (c) the associated damage to her official car. [222595]

Mr. Khan: The desk top computer stolen from my right hon. Friend's constituency office was not provided by the Department. My right hon. Friend's official car is supplied under a lease agreement with the Government Car and Despatch Agency and the damage was repaired at no cost to the Department. Her ministerial driver's mobile telephone was covered by an insurance policy and was replaced without cost. The satellite navigation device was not insured and the cost of replacement of £192 has been met by the Department.

Departmental Consultants

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many consultants have been employed by her Department in each of the last five years. [222032]

Mr. Khan: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for North Cornwall (Dan Rogerson) on 3 April 2008, Official Report, column 1250W.

Departmental Contracts

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Bromley and Chislehurst of 30 June 2008, Official Report, columns 621-22W, on departmental contracts, who each of her Department's approved suppliers is; and which suppliers provide goods and services to her Department under an Office for Government Commerce-approved Product Framework Agreement. [222846]

Mr. Khan: The Department does not operate a list of approved suppliers.

Details of suppliers used under an Office of Government Commerce Buying Solutions framework agreement could be supplied only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Databases

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what use (a) her Department and (b) its agencies make of (i) MOSAIC data and (ii) ACORN data. [221981]

Mr. Khan: MOSAIC and ACORN data is made use of by the Department as an input into the following.

(a) MOSAIC

1. The National Strategy for Neighbourhood Renewal Evaluation

(b) ACORN

1. The CLG House Price Index;
2. Local Authority Formula Grant Distribution;
3. The Citizenship Survey.

None of the Department's agencies use either data set.

Departmental Disciplinary Proceedings

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the five most serious disciplinary breaches in her Department were in the last 12 months; and what steps were taken in response to each breach. [223054]

Mr. Khan: During the last 12 months (for the period July 2007 to July 2008) the Department for Communities and Local Government has dealt with less then five disciplinary breaches. As there have been less than five disciplinary breaches initiated, it would not be appropriate to give detailed information on grounds of confidentiality.

Departmental Expenditure

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what level of expenditure may be undertaken by her Department without an approved purchase order. [222892]

Mr. Khan: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Bromley and Chislehurst (Robert Neill) on the 2 June 2008, Official Report, column 538W.

[222534]

Mr. Khan: The Department's Human Resource database has been recently updated to record requests for flexible working patterns where working from home is a permanent feature of the arrangement.

Departmental Information

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what types of data have been sold by (a) her Department and (b) its agencies under the Re-use of Public Sector Information Regulations in the last 12 months. [221984]

Mr. Khan: The Department does not keep this information centrally and this question could be answered only at disproportionate cost.

The Departments Agencies have responded as follows, both Queen Elizabeth II Conference Centre and Planning Inspectorate have not sold any data in the last 12 months.

As the national mapping agency for Great Britain, Ordnance Survey provides a wide range of geodetic, geographical and topographic mapping information for sale or licence to users. These take the form of topographic maps and plans in paper and digital formats, together with digital gazetteers, digital road network data, digital terrain models and contours, satellite positioning data and paper records.

As a Trading Fund, the Fire Service College has delegated authority from the Office of Public Sector Information (OPSI) to administer its own Crown copyright and is able to license its information for re-use, in accordance with the Re-Use of Public Sector Information Regulations. In addition, the Department conducts some public relations activity, notably for the Fire Kills fire safety campaign, through the COI's in-house PR unit. For information on this and other communications activity I refer the hon. Member to the Department's annual reports.

Government policies and programmes affect the lives of millions of people and may save lives, as with Fire Safety. They must be communicated effectively to meet our duty to inform and in order for policies to be successful. There are strict rules to ensure value for money on Government communications.

Information on the spend of the Department's agencies could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Surveillance

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many applications (a) her Department and its predecessor and (b) its agencies have made under the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 to (i) undertake directed surveillance, (ii) use covert human intelligence sources, (iii) acquire communications data and (iv) undertake intrusive surveillance in the last 24 months. [221985]

Mr. Khan: The Department for Communities and Local Government was created in May 2006. There have been no applications made by (a) the Department for Communities and Local Government or (b) any of its Agencies under the Regulatory of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 to (i) undertake directed surveillance, (ii) use covert human intelligence sources, (iii) acquire communications data and (iv) undertake intrusive surveillance in the last 24 months.

This answer does not include the Government Offices who carry out functions on behalf of 10 Government Departments.

Deprivation Indicators

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar of 23 June 2008, Official Report, columns 24-25W, on deprivation indicators, if she will seek permission to publish the underlying indicators for each of the sub-domains of the 2004 Index of Deprivation. [222887]

John Healey: The indicators underpinning the 2004 Index of Multiple Deprivation were published in 2005-06 by the Office for National Statistics. The indicators can be accessed at www.neighbourhood.statistics.gov.uk.

Eco-towns

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) whether planning policies for eco-towns will (a) include the provision of a community heating system and (b) include mitigation measures to reduce the impact on surrounding areas; and what provisions there are in areas of (i) outstanding natural beauty and (ii) green belt in relation to minimum standards of green space and tree retention; [222476]

(2) whether planning policies for eco-towns will contain measures to (a) prevent or mitigate building on flood plains, (b) deal with any instances of contaminated land and (c) regulate the provision of car parking spaces and reduce car usage; [222583]

(3) whether her Department's planning policies for eco-towns will (a) be site specific, (b) specify a minimum number of affordable houses and their size and (c) specify the required level of transport infrastructure and public service provision. [222507]

Mr. Iain Wright: Our thinking on the standards that eco-towns will need to meet, including on affordable homes, flood risk, green belt, green infrastructure and transport are set out in "Eco-towns—living a greener future: progress report", published on 24 July 2008. In terms of affordable housing we have said that a minimum of 30 per cent., of homes should be affordable.

All eco-towns must comply with existing national policies and legislation, as well as meeting tough and stretching standards. More details about this will be set out in the draft planning policy statement that we will be publishing shortly for consultation.

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what minimum level of the Code for Sustainable Homes homes in eco-towns will have to meet. [222562]

Mr. Iain Wright: In "Eco-towns—living a greener future: progress report" we have set out current thinking on the standards for eco-towns. In the draft planning policy statement we will be setting out a range of standards for homes in eco-towns concerning zero-carbon, waste, water and climate change, and we will publish this shortly.

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the estimated timetable is for (a) outline and (b) final planning permission to be granted for the successful eco-town bidders. [222563]

Mr. Iain Wright: We propose to announce the successful locations for eco-towns next year. Following this announcement local authorities will work closely with developers to bring forward schemes through the planning process culminating in a planning application or series of planning applications. Each application will be different and have different issues.

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the latest timetable is for the decision to be made on selecting the final 10 eco-town bids. [222564]

Mr. Iain Wright: We will shortly be publishing the draft eco-towns planning policy statement and sustainability appraisal for consultation. We then expect to publish the final planning policy statement and a final list of locations with the potential to be an eco-town early in 2009. Individual schemes will then need to submit planning applications, which will be for local authorities to determine through the local planning process.

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment she has made of whether local authorities may purchase land compulsorily for eco-towns to provide the land for the whole development. [222570]

Mr. Iain Wright: Local authorities have numerous powers under which they may purchase land compulsorily if authorised to do so by the Secretary of State. Land for schemes such as town centre redevelopments is generally purchased using the power in section 226(1)(a) of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 (as amended). The compulsory purchase order may include all the land required for the development, although it is usual to omit plots already owned by the local authority or its developer partner.

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether the proposed Planning Policy Statement on eco-towns will be (a) locationally specific and (b) binding on local planning authorities. [222590]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Planning Policy Statement (PPS) will set out the environmental and other standards for eco-towns that will help inform decisions on whether particular eco-towns will proceed. In the new year, following consultation on the PPS we will then publish the final Planning Policy Statement and a final list of locations with potential to be an eco-town.

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether supporting infrastructure for new eco-town developments will be considered to be of nationally significant importance. [222592]

John Healey: Under the provisions of the Planning Bill, projects will be considered to be "nationally significant infrastructure projects" and dealt with by the Infrastructure Planning Commission where they meet specific thresholds; these are defined in clauses 15-29 of the Bill.

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what visits and on what dates has she made to the locations proposed for the development of an eco-town in the last 12 months; and what such visits, on what dates, she plans to undertake in the next two months. [222673]

Mr. Iain Wright: My right hon. Friend the former Housing and Planning Minister made visits to 10 of the locations which were included on the short list of locations, set out in Eco-towns: Living a Greener Future consultation paper on 3 April 2008. The details of these are set out in the following table. As Rossington is a part of my right hon. Friend's constituency and for reasons of propriety I visited this location. We also plan to visit those locations that we have so far been unable to, including those locations where there have been discussions on the potential for an appropriate scheme such as Rushcliffe. The dates for these are yet to be agreed.

Location	Date Minister visited
Manby	22 May 2008
Marston	16 June 2008
Coltishall	23 June 2008
Hanley Grange	26 June 2008
NE Elsenham	26 June 2008
Rossington	23 July 2008
Pennbury	28 July 2008
Middle Quinton	28 July 2008
Ford	30 July 2008
Bordon-Whitehill	30 July 2008
Weston Otmoor	31 July 2008

Note:
Since announcement of the shortlist in April, Curborough withdrew from the process before visits could be arranged.

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment she has made of the effects of (a) changes in the housing market and (b) local opposition on her Departments plans to establish 10 eco-towns. [222713]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Government recognise that the housing market faces significant challenges as a result of turbulence in the global financial markets and is committed to taking action to alleviate pressures in the domestic housing market. Eco-towns are an important element in our long term strategy to provide the homes this country needs and to tackle climate change. Without action to increase the supply of housing, first-time buyers and growing numbers of families will continue to struggle to find the housing they need.

We have undertaken our first stage of consultation on eco-towns in which we sought initial views on the eco-towns vision and potential locations, and will shortly be publishing a summary of the responses. This has informed our second stage of consultation and we will shortly be publishing a draft Planning Policy Statement and Sustainability Appraisal for consultation. We want to hear all views and will be taking account of all the feedback from consultations and events before decisions are taken on those locations with the potential to be eco-towns, and before applications are considered through the local planning process.

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if her Department will publish (a) a planning policy statement and (b) a sustainability strategy on eco-towns. [222817]

Mr. Iain Wright: We will shortly be publishing a draft eco-towns planning policy statement and sustainability appraisal for consultation. Copies of the document will be placed in the House Library once published.

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Bromley and Chislehurst of 4 June 2008, Official Report, column 983W, on eco-towns, whether the leadership role of the Homes and Communities Agency in delivering eco-towns may include the Agency using its planning powers. [222875]

Caroline Flint: I refer the hon. Member to the answer my right hon. Friend the Minister for Housing gave to the hon. Member for Welwyn Hatfield (Grant Shapps) on 7 July 2008, Official Report, column 1354W.

Eco-towns Challenge Panel

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar of 30 June 2008, Official Report, column 625W, on the eco-towns challenge panel: business interests, what the declared (a) pecuniary and (b) non-pecuniary interests of each challenge panel member are. [223051]

Mr. Iain Wright: Members of the Challenge Panel were selected for their expertise in matters of the environment, sustainability, transport and design to be part of a short-term independent panel working with bidders during the first stage of the process for taking eco-towns forward.

At the first meeting of the panel in May, members were asked to declare pecuniary and non-pecuniary interests, and to advise us of any changes in their position for the duration of the panel (end July). Six members declared interests and these are set out as follows. None of these interests were deemed to conflict with the role of the panel, which was to help bidders develop and improve their plans, and they had no responsibility for assessing the proposals.

	Pecuniary interest
Joanna Yarrow	Director of Beyond Green. Beyond Green provided unpaid advice to the promoters of Weston Otmoor, and then withdrew. There was an initial expression of interest for Beyond Green's services from the promoters of Marston Vale and Bordon Whitehill, but no involvement.
Sue Riddestone	Director, BioRegional Development Group, a registered charity. BioRegional's associated consulting company were invited to bid for work by the Weston Otmoor eco-town promoters, but advised on 13 May that this was not going ahead.

	Non-pecuniary interests
Sir Peter Hall	Town and Country Planning Association (TCPA) President (voluntary basis). TCPA are working with Communities and Local Government (CLG) on the practical implementation of the eco-town criteria and running the Eco-towns Expert Group. TCPA's work is not location/ scheme specific.
Lynda Addison	TCPA trustee (voluntary basis). TCPA are working with Communities and Local Government (CLG) on the practical implementation of the eco-town criteria and running the Eco-towns Expert Group. TCPA's work is not location/scheme specific.
Richard Simmons	Commission for Architecture and the Built Environment (CABE) Chief Executive. CABE working with CLG on design aspects for eco-towns. One CABE Commissioner is working for the firm which was a consultant to three of the bidders and another is a consultant to a bidder. Neither has a commercial interest in the eco-town projects concerned.
Sunnd Prasad	Royal Institute for Architects (RIBA) President. Sue Smith, Chief Executive of Harborough district council, which is concerned with Pennbury eco-town, was a member of the RIBA Professional Services Board and resigned that position to avoid a potential conflict of interest, given the RIBA and RIBA President's involvement in the eco-towns programme.

Eco-towns: Road Traffic Control

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what role she plans for (a) workplace parking taxes, (b) residential parking charges and (c) congestion taxes to play in eco-town developments. [222588]

Mr. Iain Wright: In "Eco-towns—living a greener future: progress report", we have set out our thinking on the standards for eco-towns, including those for transport. These set out the outcomes that we want to achieve, and it is for promoters to decide how they will achieve these. As part of the Town and Country Planning Association's work on the practical implementation of the standards they have produced a worksheet on transport. This provides guidance and good practice to help those taking forward eco-towns to plan and implement their transport systems.

More details about the standards will be provided in the draft Planning Policy Statement that we will be publishing shortly.

Eco-towns: Sites of Special Scientific Interest

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will make it her policy to reject eco-town proposals where such development would cause indirect, irreparable damage to sites of special scientific interest as a result of interference with ground and surface water flows. [222659]

Mr. Iain Wright: As we set out in "Eco-towns—living a greener future: progress report" (published 24 July 2008) all eco-towns must comply with existing national policies, except where we have set a specific standard, which is either more specific, or more stretching than that set out in wider national planning policies and this includes protection and conservation of biodiversity and flood risk. Account will also need to be taken of European legislation on issues such as conservation.

We will shortly be publishing a draft Eco-towns Planning Policy Statement and Sustainability Appraisal for consultation, and these will set out more details about the standards, the locations and how their sustainability is assessed.

Eco-towns: Green Belt

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) pursuant to the answer to the hon. member for Bognor Regis and Littlehampton of 19 June 2008, Official Report, column 1135W, on eco-towns: land what the area and proportion is of (a) greenfield and (b) brownfield land use in each of the other short-listed eco-town bids; [222556]

(2) pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar of 1 July 2008, Official Report, column 789W, on eco-towns: green belt, which proposed eco-town bids would involve development on green belt land for fixed infrastructure; [222640]

(3) pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar of 30 June 2008, Official Report, column 624W, on eco-towns, which proposed eco-town developments will involve development on greenfield land; [222741]

(4) whether any of the proposed eco-town developments will require development of associated infrastructure on green belt land. [222977]

Mr. Iain Wright: An updated description of the proposals for each location was included in "Eco-towns—living a greener future: progress report" which was published on 24 July 2008. Further information will be published shortly in the Sustainability Appraisal alongside our draft eco-towns planning policy statement as part of our second stage consultation. Copies of these documents will be placed in the House Library.

EDF Energy

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what contracts (a) her Department and (b) its agencies have with EDF; and how much (i) her Department and (ii) its agencies paid to EDF in each of the last 10 years, broken down by the purpose of the payment. [221838]

Mr. Khan: In all cases expenditure was for the supply of electricity under the Office of Government Commerce Buying Solutions Framework Agreement. Where figures have not been supplied for the full 10 years this was because they could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

The following amounts were paid to EDF Energy by the Department for our central London offices:

Empty Homes Agency

Lembit Öpik: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much funding her Department has provided for the Empty Homes Agency in each year since the Agency was established; and what funding has been allocated for the Agency for (a) 2008-09, (b) 2009-10 and (c) 2010-11. [221803]

Mr. Iain Wright: The following table shows grant funding by CLG and its predecessor organisation to the Empty Homes Agency in each year since 1995-06 up to 2008-09.

Funding allocated for the Empty Homes Agency in 2008-09 is £100,000. CLG have not yet made any decision regarding the allocation of funding to the Empty Homes Agency post 2008-09. This is in line with previous years' arrangements.

Empty Property

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many empty (a) residential and (b) commercial properties there are in (i) St. Albans, (ii) London and (iii) England; and what steps she is taking to encourage property owners to bring these properties back into use. [222031]

Mr. Iain Wright: The following table shows the number of empty residential dwellings in (i) St. Albans, (ii) London and (iii) England in 2007.

Council Taxbase and Council Taxbase Supplementary (CTB1 and CTB1S) returns from local authorities

Initiatives to bring empty homes back into use are, rightly, channelled through local authorities who are best placed to assess what measures are appropriate to their local circumstances. In the first instance, we encourage local authorities to work with owners to persuade them of the benefits of bringing their property back into use.

However, where it is clear that owners are not prepared to co-operate with efforts to get their property occupied through agreement, we have provided enforcement powers to deal with them. Key powers are compulsory purchase and enforced sale which were added to by the Housing Act 2004 by which introduced a new power for local authorities to make empty dwelling management orders (EDMOs) in respect of long-term empty homes. An EDMO allows a local authority to take over the management of an unoccupied dwelling in certain circumstances.

Empty Property: Charities

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Bromley and Chislehurst of 30 June 2008, Official Report, column 625W, on empty properties: charities, whether an impact assessment was produced on the effect of the empty business rate changes on property owned by charities which is not wholly or mainly used for charitable purposes. [222848]

John Healey: Where the liable ratepayer of an empty property is a charity and it appears that when next in use the property will not be wholly or mainly used for a charitable purpose, the impact of empty business rates will be the same as if the property was owned by a business. An impact assessment detailing the impact of the empty property reforms was published by Communities and Local Government in May 2007 accompanying the introduction of the Rating (Empty Properties) Bill and a further assessment was laid before this House on the 26 February accompanying the Non-Domestic Rating (Unoccupied Property) (England) Regulations 2008—number: 386.

Empty Property: Flats

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what proportion of the empty dwellings in England were flats in the most recent period for which figures are available. [222884]

Mr. Iain Wright: Information on vacancies by type of dwelling is not held centrally.

Empty Property: Non-domestic Rates

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) what assessment (a) her Department and (b) the Valuation Office Agency has made of whether businesses are demolishing buildings to avoid paying empty property business rates; [222565]

(2) what assessment has been made of the level of avoidance and evasion of empty property business rates. [222854]

John Healey: The Government have asked local authorities and the valuation office agency to provide information about how reforms to the empty property rate are working. The information provided on evasion of empty property rates will be based on the informed judgment of individual officers and is being gathered as a broad indicator of the scale of possible avoidance activity and not a detailed survey. There is no suggestion the activity in question is unlawful and we will set out in an appropriate form our general findings in due course.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether properties which are (a) boarded up and (b) without a roof are liable for empty property business rates. [222688]

John Healey: Whether a property, which is (a) boarded up and or (b) without a roof, is liable for empty property rates would depend on whether the property is considered rateable. Under the Rating (Valuation) Act 1999, one of the assumptions for valuation purposes is that a building is assumed to be in a reasonable state of repair, except for any repairs that the landlord would regard as uneconomic.

Where it would be economic to repair a building the assumption is that the repairs would be carried out. It is the responsibility of the Valuation Office Agency to determine, on the merits of each individual case, whether a property remains rateable and therefore liable to non-domestic rates, including empty property rates.

English Partnerships: Brahm

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many payments English Partnerships has made to Brahm for public affairs, public relations or stakeholder engagement contracts; which contracts for future work have been agreed; and what the value of such contracts is. [222921]

Mr. Iain Wright: English Partnerships has made nine payments, covering 12 invoices totalling £54,032.50 to Brahm in the past 18 months, with a sum of £7,339 committed but not yet invoiced. No contracts for future work have been agreed with the company.

EU Law

Mr. Francois: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many officials in her Department are wholly or mainly tasked with the negotiation, implementation or administration of EU legislation and consequent policies. [222269]

John Healey: This Government are firmly committed to the importance of the EU in delivering on 21st-century challenges. The EU is of central importance to the work of HM Government across all Departments. It is relevant to a wide range of policy areas, and to the work of many Government officials. As such, the specific information requested is not held centrally, and to provide it would involve disproportionate costs.

European Regional Development Fund

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to her Department's resource accounts for 2006-07 what the fines are that her Department (a) has received and (b) is expected to receive in respect of ERDF programme irregularities; and if she will make a statement. [224485]

John Healey: The European Commission imposed financial corrections on two ERDF programmes in England in 2007-08 which amounted to €25 million. The Commission is considering the imposition of two further financial corrections in respect of ERDF programmes that operated in the late 1990s. Details are given in the Communities and Local Government resource accounts 2007-08 (HC791).

Fire Extinguishers

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what steps the Government has taken to encourage people to put fire extinguishers in their homes. [222012]

Mr. Khan: The installation of properly maintained smoke alarms in every household has been the centrepiece of our efforts to reduce fire deaths in the home as they provide the vital early warning of fire and help people escape. Through the Fire Kills campaign, we also promote in the "Fire Safety in the Home" leaflet, other fire safety equipment householders could consider, such as fire extinguishers and fire blankets.

Fire Prevention

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) what steps the Government has taken to encourage people to take precautions to prevent fires; [222013]

(2) what steps the Government has taken to promote fire safety in homes; [222014]

(3) what steps the Government plans to take to inform people about fire safety; [222015]

(4) what steps the Government has taken to educate the public on how to react to a fire. [222016]

Mr. Khan: The Government are committed to raising awareness of fire safety and does so through the long standing Fire Kills media campaign. This campaign supports the outreach work carried out at a local level by the Fire and Rescue Service, but also educates and informs people through the promotion of fire safety messages at a national level. A variety of leaflets and campaign material is available, which features the key messages on fire safety in the home, as well as advice on how to behave if a fire breaks out. This material is distributed through the many branches of the campaign and by the Fire and Rescue Service.

The Fire Kills media campaign is led by TV advertising, with our fire safety advert having been shown in January to March and September this year and then again in January next year. The advert delivers the important message of smoke alarm maintenance and reminds people what damage a fire can do. The TV advert is supported by innovative work which targets the vulnerable and harder to reach groups of society that were established through research. Our partnerships with organisations and charities, such as the British Darts Organisation, the Royal National Institute for Deaf People and Age Concern, are built upon by our PR work to enable us to better reach these target groups.

Fire Services

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many hoax 999 calls were answered by the fire service in London in the last period for which figures are available. [222761]

Mr. Khan: During 2006-07, London Fire Brigade received 9,702 hoax 999 calls, and attended to 3,159 of them.

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what her policy is on requiring local fire and rescue authorities to move their operations into a regional fire control centre if they do not voluntarily agree to do so; and if she will make a statement. [224483]

Mr. Khan: We are working closely with all interested parties, including chief fire officers, Fire and Rescue Authorities and local authority controlled companies, to deliver the FiReControl Project.

As the recently published Business Case Part 1: The Regional Cases show, FiReControl will significantly enhance national resilience and will provide a much greater functionality for the fire and rescue service in England. Communities and Local Government is committed to delivering this project. "The Fire and Rescue Service National Framework 2008 to 2011" reinforced this commitment.

Communities and Local Government have worked in partnership with other interested parties to deliver the FiReControl Project, and wishes to continue working in this way. But because of its importance we would consider, as a last resort, the use of powers under sections 22 and 29 of the Fire and Rescue Services Act 2004 to ensure a successful move to FiReControl Network.

Fire Services: Equipment

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much the Government spent on modernising equipment used by the Fire Service in 2007-08. [224289]

Mr. Khan: The Department's Fire and Resilience Programme is providing the Fire and Rescue Service with the resilience needed to meet the challenges of an increased terrorist threat and the risks posed by major incidents such as last year's flooding. The programme comprises: the New Dimension programme to provide response equipment and training; Firelink to provide a single, resilient, digital, wide-area radio system able to communicate with the police and ambulance services; and FiReControl, which will create a network of nine integrated and fully networked regional control centres in England. The Department spent £128.5 million on the programme in 2007-08, of which £28 million was capital expenditure. This is in addition to support which the Department provides to the service through Revenue Support Grant.

Fire Services: Helicopters

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the average annual (a) revenue and (b) capital cost to the public purse of a fire service helicopter was in the last period for which figures are available; and she will make a statement. [222464]

Mr. Khan: None of the Fire and Rescue Services in England owns a helicopter. A number of Fire and Rescue Authorities (FRAs) in England participate in schemes utilising helicopters owned by other organisations, such as the private sector, the police, the ambulance service, HM Coastguard and the armed forces.

Information on the costs incurred by FRAs which participate in such schemes is not held centrally.

Fire Services: South West

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the timetable is for the publication of the updated business case for the South West Regional Fire Control Centre. [222619]

Mr. Khan: The business case for FiRe Control is being published in two parts. Part 1: "The Regional Case" was published on the 8 July and was placed in the House library. Part 2: "The National Case" will be published later in the year.

Fire Services: Training

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what recent steps the Government has taken to improve training facilities for the Fire Service. [224290]

Mr. Khan: Within Communities and Local Government's Fire and Resilience Programme, the New Dimension project is enhancing the capability of the Fire and Rescue Service to respond to particular types of major emergencies. Through this project the Department provided over £8 million in 2005 to build a central training facility for urban search and rescue (USAR) at the Fire Service College and, in 2007, a further £2 million towards the costs of local training facilities for those fire and rescue authorities hosting USAR teams.

Since 2004 the Department has also provided capital funding of £7.5 million for upgrading the Fire Service College's facilities, including the construction of a new student accommodation block providing 100 en suite bedrooms.

First Time Buyers

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what steps her Department is taking to assist first-time buyers with property purchases; and how many first-time buyers she estimates will receive such assistance in 2008-09. [221898]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Government's Low Cost Home Ownership programme helps to make home ownership more affordable to first time buyers, and enables purchasers to get a foot on the property ladder through its HomeBuy scheme: New Build HomeBuy, Open Market HomeBuy and Social HomeBuy.

New Build HomeBuy enables people to buy a minimum 25 per cent., share of a newly built property, paying a rent on the remainder. This includes the First Time Buyers Initiative.

Open Market HomeBuy enables people to buy a property on the open market with the help of an equity loan of up to 50 per cent.

Social HomeBuy enables tenants of participating local authorities and housing associations to buy a minimum 25 per cent., in their current home at a discount and pay rent on the remainder.

We have helped over 65,000 households into home ownership over the last three years.

The Government want to offer as many people as possible the opportunity to own their own home and build a stake in their community. We are committed to take action to increase confidence and help ensure stability and fairness in the housing market. We therefore announced a package of new initiatives to help more first time buyers into affordable home ownership.

As announced by the Chancellor in the 2008 Budget, on 1 April two new equity loan products were made available through the Government's Open Market HomeBuy scheme. The loans provide first time buyers with more flexibility in the percentage of the value of their home that can be borrowed—to a maximum of 50 per cent., and more choice in the mortgage they can take out.

In addition we have expanded the eligibility criteria for our HomeBuy products so that all first time buyers with a household income under £60,000 who could otherwise not afford to buy, will be eligible for our New Build HomeBuy and Open Market HomeBuy products. Up to £100 million is being focussed on expanding Open Market HomeBuy to help 2,500 first time buyers to purchase a new build home from developers in 2008-09.

In order to help households who, because of current market conditions may now be unable to access home ownership through the HomeBuy scheme, we announced a pilot "Rent to HomeBuy" scheme to support first time buyers into affordable home ownership by renting first and buying later.

Finally, in September, as part of a wider housing package, we announced the creation of a new product "HomeBuy Direct" in partnership with house builders. HomeBuy Direct is designed to help up to 10,000 first time buyers into affordable home ownership in new homes over the next two years, offering equity loans of up to 30 per cent., which will be co-funded by developers.

Overall, despite market uncertainty, the Government's aspiration is to support up to 25,000 households into home ownership in 2008-09.

First Time Buyers: Cumbria

Mr. Jamie Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate her Department has made of the number of first-time buyers who purchased a home in (a) Cumbria and (b) Copeland in the last five years. [223937]

Mr. Iain Wright: Data on UK total number of first time buyers (FTBs) using a mortgage are available from the Regulated Mortgage Survey which is supplied to Communities and Local Government by the Council of Mortgage Lenders. However, as the survey is a sample, data on the number of FTBs are unavailable for Cumbria and Copeland specifically.

Flats

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what percentage of newly-built dwellings were flats in each year since 1996-97. [222674]

Mr. Iain Wright: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 21 July 2008, Official Report, column 770W.

Greenbelt: Databases

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the Answer to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar of 1 July 2008, Official Report, columns 790-91W, on green belt: databases, for what reasons the Maps on Tap database was discontinued; and what the total cost of the project was. [222641]

Mr. Iain Wright: Maps on Tap provided an online interactive mapping portal for central Government. It was discontinued to enable a re-focusing of the services developed by the project to support this Department's requirements.

The total cost of the Maps on Tap project was £4.83 million. This was made up of £3.03 million development costs (as reported to the hon. Member for Surrey Heath (Michael Gove) on 25 April 2007, Official Report, column 1189W) and £1.80 million running costs.

Greenbelt: Guildford

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to her statement of 11 July 2007, Official Report, columns 1449-51, on protecting the Green Belt, if she will make it her policy to ensure that the approved South East Plan should not propose or facilitate the weakening of Green Belt protection in north east Guildford. [224514]

Mr. Khan: We have made it clear in national policy statements and in the Housing Green Paper that Government remains committed to the principles of the Green Belt.

Following a recommendation by the independent Panel which examined the draft South East Plan, the Government's 'Proposed Changes' to the draft include a possible selective review of the Green Belt at Guildford. They also state that where Green Belt land is lost reviews should consider the designation of additional Green Belt land. These Proposed Changes are currently out for public consultation, and we are seeking views on the proposals until 24 October. Because of this formal round of public consultation and the need to make sure that we consider the views of all interested parties, I am not in a position to comment on the contents of the final version of the South East Plan at this stage.

Hazardous Substances: Planning Permission

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what plans she has to amend land use planning rules around major hazard sites following the recommendations of the Buncefield accident review. [222923]

Mr. Iain Wright: We will consider carefully the recommendations in the report of the Buncefield Major Incident Investigation Board (MIIB) about land use planning as it applies to major hazard sites. We will respond in due course.

Hazardous Substances: Waste Management

Joan Ryan: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what national guidance she issues on the location of hazardous waste management facilities. [222720]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Government's national planning policy for waste management is provided in Planning Policy Statement 10: Planning for Sustainable Waste Management. It sets out that positive planning has an important role to play in delivering sustainable waste management by providing sufficient opportunities for new waste management facilities of the right type, in the right place and at the right time, including for hazardous waste. Accompanying guidance to support the implementation of PPS10 is provided in 'Planning for Sustainable Waste Management: Companion Guide to Planning Policy Statement 10'.

In addition, Annex C9 to the Government's 'Waste Strategy 2007 for England' published in May 2007 sets out an assessment of capacity need for hazardous waste to guide regional planning bodies and business in the planning and procurement of new hazardous waste infrastructure.

Heathrow Airport: Planning Permission

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what approval for the introduction of mixed mode at Heathrow airport would be required from (a) the Infrastructure Planning Commission and (b) Hillingdon Borough Council. [224472]

John Healey: Depending on final policy decisions on the future development of Heathrow Airport, the introduction of mixed mode, should the airport operator decide to take forward proposals, would, under present legislation:

not require planning permission if it involved no change in the existing planning condition setting a maximum limit of 480,000 on the number air transport movements using the airport per year;

require planning permission from the local planning authority (unless the application was called in by the Secretary of State for decision) if it involved an increase in the number of air transport movements to a level above that limit.

If a proposal for the introduction of mixed mode was to come forward after enactment and implementation of the Planning Bill, then under the provisions of that Bill it would:

not require planning permission or development consent if it involved no change in the existing planning condition setting a maximum limit of 480,000 on the number air transport movements using the airport per year;

require planning permission from the local planning authority (unless the application was called in by the Secretary of State for decision) if it involved an increase in the number of air transport movements to a level above that limit but the expansion fell below the threshold specified in clause 22 of the Planning Bill of 10 million additional passengers or 10,000 additional air transport movements of cargo aircraft per year;

require development consent under this Bill if the increase was above that threshold. This would mean it would be examined by the IPC. If an NPS was in force the IPC would determine the case. If not a recommendation would be made by the IPC to the Secretary of State.

Home Information Packs

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Welwyn Hatfield of 30 June 2008, Official Report, columns 626-27W, on home information packs, what the timetable is for her Department to consider whether home condition reports should be mandatory. [222847]

Mr. Iain Wright: Members of our Stakeholder Panel on Home Buying and Selling are currently considering proposals for encouraging take-up of property condition information within home information packs. The panel will submit its proposals for our consideration in the autumn.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what penalties may be imposed upon a householder not completing, in whole or in part, information on a Property Information Questionnaire on a home information pack and then marketing a property. [224501]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Home Information Pack Regulations provide that the person responsible for marketing the property must ensure that a valid pack is provided to potential buyers. This would include ensuring a completed PIQ has been included in the HIP. In the vast majority of cases the responsible person will be the seller's estate agent.

The local weights and measures authority has the power to issue a penalty charge notice of £200 on the responsible person for a breach of the HIP duties.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will use her powers under section 162 of the Housing Act 2004 to suspend the requirement to produce a home information pack to market a property. [224502]

Mr. Iain Wright: We have no plans to suspend Home Information Packs.

Homelessness

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) what categories of (a) men and (b) women are entitled to receive housing under statutory homelessness regulations; and if she will make a statement; [221771]

(2) what guidance she gives to local authorities on the definition of vulnerability when considering young men for local authority housing under statutory homelessness regulations; and if she will make a statement. [221772]

Mr. Iain Wright: Under the homelessness legislation (Part 7 of the Housing Act 1996), local housing authorities must secure accommodation for applicants who are eligible for assistance, unintentionally homeless and fall within a priority need group. Some categories of persons from abroad are ineligible for homelessness assistance (other than the provision of advice and information about homelessness and the prevention of homelessness).

The Secretary of State has issued the "Homelessness Code of Guidance for local authorities" which includes statutory guidance on, among other things, eligibility and priority need. Copies of the code are available in the Library of the House; the code can also be viewed on the Department for Communities and Local Government website:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/publications/housing/homelessnesscode

Chapter 9 provides guidance on eligibility; a person's gender is not relevant to whether or not they will be eligible for assistance. Chapter 10 provides guidance on priority need, including the test of vulnerability (equally applicable to both sexes) and the full list of priority need categories. Apart from pregnant women these categories are not gender specific.

Homelessness: Castle Point

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) how many private sector homes for homeless people were used in each of the last five years by Castle Point Borough Council, (a) within the borough and (b) outside the borough; [221773]

(2) how many registered homeless people originating from outside Castle Point are housed within the borough. [221858]

Mr. Iain Wright: Information about English local authorities' actions under the homelessness legislation is collected quarterly at local authority level.

Information collected includes the number of households accepted by local housing authorities as eligible for assistance, unintentionally homeless and in priority need, and therefore owed a main homelessness duty (to secure that suitable accommodation is available). If a settled home is not immediately available, the authority must secure temporary accommodation until a settled home becomes available.

Data are collected on the number of households being housed in temporary accommodation as at the end of each quarter. The figures include: those households who have been accepted as owed the main homelessness duty; those for which inquiries are pending; those being accommodated for a limited period because they have been found intentionally homeless and in priority need; those being accommodated pending possible referral to another authority, and those being accommodated pending the outcome of a local authority review or county court appeal.

The total number of households in temporary accommodation arranged by a local authority includes households housed both within and outside their own borough. The table shows data reported by Castle Point, for 2003-04 to 2007-08 (as at the last day of March each year).

Authorities report on the types of accommodation used as temporary accommodation, some of which fall in (or mainly in) the private sector:

Bed and breakfast hotels

Other nightly paid, privately managed accommodation—both shared facilities and self-contained

Private sector accommodation leased by authority

Private sector accommodation leased or managed by RSLs

Directly with a private sector landlord

Any other type of accommodation (most of which is likely to be private sector)

Data reported by Castle Point are provided for 2003-04 to 2007-08, and show the number of households in these mainly private sector forms of temporary accommodation as at the end of March each year. However, data on the number of households accommodated within and outside the borough, in private sector accommodation, are not collected centrally.

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what funding her Department provided to Castle Point borough council to support its provision of housing for registered homeless (a) men, (b) women and (c) families in each of the last five years. [222458]

Mr. Iain Wright: Revenue funding for local authority homelessness services is principally provided through revenue support grant which is unhypothecated. The Government additionally provide homelessness grants to support all local housing authorities' strategies for tackling and preventing all forms of homelessness, including rough sleeping.

The following table shows total allocations of homelessness grant to Castle Point borough council for each of the five years from 2003-04 to 2007-08.

Homelessness grant for Castle Point borough council

	Total (£000)
2007-08	60.0
2006-07	60.0
2005-06	45.0
2004-05	45.0
2003-04	45.0

On 5 December 2007, we announced homelessness grant funding of at least £150 million over the three years 2008-11 to continue to support local authorities to tackle and prevent homelessness. This is the biggest ever cash injection for homelessness services.

Since 2003, administering authorities have been allocated funding through the Supporting People programme, to support the most vulnerable people in their communities through the provision of housing-related support, based on their local knowledge of the needs of vulnerable people in their areas. This would include homelessness funding for men, women and families if needed. Essex, the administering authority for Castle Point borough council, received a Supporting People programme grant allocation of:

2004-05	31,742,850
2005-06	30,144,101
2006-07	29,622,839
2007-08	29,622,839
2008-09	29,622,839

Homelessness: Young People

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many 16 and 17 year-olds (a) applied for and (b) received homelessness assistance in each housing authority in England in each of the last five years. [222683]

Mr. Iain Wright: Information about English local housing authorities' actions under the homelessness legislation (Part 7 of the Housing Act 1996) is collected quarterly at local authority level.

Information collected includes the number of households accepted by local housing authorities as eligible for assistance, unintentionally homeless and in priority need, and therefore owed a main homelessness duty (to secure that suitable accommodation is available).

Data on total decisions taken under Part 7 by age band are not collected centrally.

Local authorities provide advice and assistance to some applicants not owed a main homelessness duty, but data on such assistance are not collected centrally by age band. However information on those applicants accepted as owed a main homelessness duty is collected by priority need category, one of which is applicants in priority need because they are 16 or 17 years old.

A table has been placed in the Library showing the number of applicants accepted as owed a main homelessness duty, with priority need primarily through being 16 or 17 years old. However it is important to note that some 16 and 17 year old applicants may have been accepted in alternative primary priority need categories, for example through having dependant children or being a pregnant woman, and so will not show up in these figures. Some authorities collect and report secondary priority need categories of applicants (when they fall into more than one priority need group), and these figures are also presented. Data are provided for each local authority, between 2003-04 and 2007-08.

Housing Estates

Mr. Henderson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether her Department plans to review the effects of open plan planning policy on large housing estates. [222628]

Mr. Iain Wright: Planning for Housing policy is currently set out in Planning Policy Statement 3 (PPS3), which was published in November 2006. Specific aspects of this policy, such as density rates and development on brownfield land, are collected by the Department and published regularly. This detail helps guide policy development, for example the effectiveness and achievement of the target that 60 per cent. of all development should be on brownfield land.

It is general practice to review the overall effectiveness of policy after it has had time to establish itself, although I cannot say yet when this will happen for PPS3 which has only been in place for 21 months.

Housing: Advisory Services

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much her Department spent to support advice services for homeowners in each of the last three years; and how much (a) has been spent in 2008-09 and (b) is expected to be spent in each of the next three years. [222558]

Mr. Iain Wright: CLG will be providing over £200 million to local authorities and the voluntary sector over the next 3 years, including the current year, to tackle and prevent homelessness effectively. This is the biggest cash injection for homelessness services. All local authorities receive a homelessness grant allocation and nearly all will use some of this allocation to fund advice services enabling them to prevent homelessness, including assisting home owners. Funding from CLG is not ring-fenced; it is therefore at the discretion of each local authority to determine how best to use the funding to serve its community.

Within this £200 million, CLG provide direct funding to the National Homeless Advisory Service (currently £2.5 million PA) for the very specialist homeless prevention work carried out by Citizens Advice Bureau (CAB) and Shelter. NHAS have recently produced a leaflet advising homeowners on preventing repossession. This is being distributed by Courts, Councils CAB and other advice agencies

All local authorities fund their local CAB networks separately. This is through local service level agreements.

We also announced on the 2 September that we will be providing a £200 million mortgage rescue scheme, which will help 6,000 of the most vulnerable households facing repossession over the next two years.

Housing: Bassetlaw

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assistance has been given by (a) local and (b) national government to individual householders whose properties were flooded in Bassetlaw constituency in 2007. [224443]

John Healey: We do not hold records on what assistance local authorities provided to individual householders whose properties were flooded in 2007.

In response to the 2007 summer floods, central Government made available a comprehensive package around £133 million to assist the affected regions and help those in greatest need. Bassetlaw district council received a total of £421,619 in flood recovery funding. This consisted of £250,000 flood recovery grant, £131,181 Bellwin funding and £40,438 from the restoration fund.

Flood recovery grant and the restoration fund was unringfenced so local authorities had the flexibility to decide how best to use the grant based on their own local circumstances. In practice, this has included support payments to flood affected households; purchase and provision to flood affected households of new household items, provision of temporary caravans to allow people to remain within their communities while houses are repaired; and other priorities set through consultation with flood-affected householders and communities.

Due to the unringfenced nature of flood recovery grant and the restoration fund, local authorities were not required to inform Government as to how this money was spent. We are therefore unable to say how much of the central Government funding allocated to Bassetlaw district council was provided to individual households, although this is information that the council may provide.

Housing: Carbon Emissions

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate she has made of the average annual volume of carbon dioxide emissions from domestic dwellings for designated level (a) one, (b) two, (c) three, (d) four, (e) five and (f) six under the Code for Sustainable Homes. [222675]

Mr. Iain Wright: The average annual volume of carbon dioxide emissions within the Code for Sustainable Homes are expressed as improvements against the standards set in the Building Regulations Approved Document L (2006) and measured using the Standard Assessment Procedure (SAP).

The target emission rate for an average home meeting the standards in Part L of the Building Regulations 2006 is 2203 kg of carbon dioxide emissions a year. An average home is defined as a semi-detached house with a gas-fired central heating boiler, a floor area of 100m^2 with typical occupancy and patters of heating and hot water usage for average UK weather data. The model only takes into account regulated energy use (space and hot water heating, ventilation and fixed lighting); it does not take into account use of appliances. In Code Level 6 the dwelling must be 'net' zero carbon over a year, which does include appliances. These figures are target emission rates and developers will use a variety of different solutions to achieve compliance.

1	10	1,983
2	18	1,806
3	25	1,652
4	44	1,234

Housing: Construction

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the target dates are for all (a) new build private sector homes and (b) new build social housing to meet (i) Level 4 and (ii) Level 6 of the Code for Sustainable Homes. [222853]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Code for Sustainable Homes is a voluntary national standard for designing and building of sustainable homes. There are no UK Government target dates for private homes to reach Code level 4 or 6 as a whole. However the Code energy efficiency component does signal the future direction of building regulations. There will be a progressive tightening of the energy efficiency standards, by 25 per cent. in 2010 and by 44 per cent. in 2013—up to the zero carbon target in 2016. In 2009 part G of the building regulations will be revised to ensure all new homes are designed and built with an internal water use of 120 litres (plus five for external use) per person per day, which is similar to Code level 1 and 2 water efficiency levels. Other elements such as site management are also being incorporated into legislation.

Homes that receive grant funding from the Housing Corporation's National Affordable Housing Programme or English Partnership must be built to a minimum Code level 3. Current plans are to change this to Code level 4 in 2010 and level 6 in 2013.

The Code for Sustainable Homes is designed to provide designers, developers and builders a flexible framework to innovate and prepare for higher future sustainability standards.

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what steps the Government have taken to ensure developers take account of the wishes of the local community. [224178]

Mr. Iain Wright: All planning applications have a statutory period for consultation. The local authority, in determining a planning application, must take comments into account and make both the decision and the reasons publicly available. Statements of community involvement should explain how the authority will involve the community in determining planning applications.

Better community involvement is one of the Government's key aims in reforming the planning system. The principles are in PPS1 "Delivering Sustainable Development" which emphasises the importance of pre-application discussions so that proposals can be adapted to ensure that they better reflect community aspirations. Planning Performance Agreements have been introduced to help local authorities and developers manage large-scale major planning applications and these should make clear what level of resources and community engagement are required.

Under proposals for nationally significant infrastructure projects in the Planning Bill, developers will have to undertake a thorough pre-application consultation process. Developers will need to draw up and publish a statement setting out how they propose to consult local people about the proposed development, and then carry out the consultation in accordance with this.

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what steps the Government has taken to encourage developers to provide amenities for the local community. [224179]

Mr. Iain Wright: In order to ensure that developers provide amenities for the local community as part of development proposals, Government policy requires local authorities to ensure that green and other public spaces are incorporated as part of developments, and that developments support local facilities and are visually attractive. This policy is set out in 'Planning Policy Statement 1 (PPS1): Delivering Sustainable Development', which was published in 2005.

In addition, local planning authorities can use planning obligations to mitigate the impacts of new developments, and to secure contributions from developers to compensate for the loss or damage to a local amenity caused by a development proposal, in order to make the proposal acceptable in planning terms. This is set out in 'Circular 05/05 on Planning Obligations'.

Both documents are available in the House Library.

Housing: Cumbria

Mr. Jamie Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate her Department has made of the number of homes required to house key workers in (a) Cumbria and (b) Copeland in the next five years. [223915]

Mr. Iain Wright: We do not hold data on the number of homes required to house key workers. Any such assessment would be for key worker employers in the area to undertake.

Mr. Jamie Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) how many private home owners have received disability adaptation grants in (a) Cumbria and (b) Copeland in the last five years; [223933]

(2) what estimate her Department has made of the number of private sector homes that will need to be adapted for disabled owners in (a) Cumbria and (b) Copeland over the next five years. [223932]

Mr. Khan: The Disabled Facilities Grant (DFG) is a mandatory grant used to provide adaptations to the homes of disabled people. Local authorities in England report their annual Disabled Facilities Grant number of recipients to Communities and Local Government through the Housing Strategy Statistical Appendix (HSSA). The information is not broken down by tenure type. Social housing tenants receive assistance from other local authority funding streams.

The following table sets out the numbers of Disabled Facilities Grant for all authorities in Cumbria including Copeland borough council for 2002-03 to 2006-07. The Department does not hold information on prospective recipients of the grant for the next five years. However the 2006-07 HSSA does offer a forecast for 2007-08 and 2008-09 which has been included in the table.

It is the Department's intention to publish the 2007-08 data in the HSSA report at the end of November.

Mr. Jamie Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether her Department has identified any suitable properties that could be purchased under the unsold stock programme within (a) Cumbria and (b) Copeland to help meet affordable housing needs. [223935]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Housing Corporation is actively working with all the local authorities in Cumbria both individually and through the Cumbria Affordable Housing Sub Group to encourage bids for affordable housing in Cumbria, particularly in small rural settlements with population of less than 3,000. This includes schemes that will complete in the current financial year, to either buy existing properties or new build stock which developers are struggling to sell in current market conditions.

In a recent meeting with the Housing Corporation, Cumbrian authorities including Copeland confirmed that they had been approached by developers regarding unsold stock. The proposals are currently being investigated but as yet have not resulted in any detailed bids to the Housing Corporation.

Mr. Jamie Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many home repossessions there were in (a) Cumbria and (b) Copeland in the last five years. [223936]

Mr. Iain Wright: There are two independent sources of data on actual numbers of mortgage possessions: The Council of Mortgage Lenders and the Financial Services Authority. However both are only available for the United Kingdom as a whole.

The Council of Mortgage Lenders data is available on their website at http://www.cml.org.uk/cml/filegrab/3AP4.xls?ref=2753

The Financial Services Authority data are available on their website at http://www.fsa.gov.uk/pages/Doing/Regulated/Returns/IRR/statistics/

Mr. Jamie Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) what estimate her Department has made of the number of socially provided homes that will be needed to meet housing needs in (a) Cumbria and (b) Copeland over the next five years; [223956]

(2) what estimate her Department has made of the number of private sector homes that will be needed to meet housing needs in (a) Cumbria and (b) Copeland over the next five years. [223957]

Mr. Iain Wright: On 30 September we published the Regional Spatial Strategy (RSS) for the North West.

The RSS indicates that in Cumbria, 8,980 homes are required over the next five years and in Copeland 1,150 homes are required over the same period. It is now up to local authorities to decide on how this provision should be divided between market housing and affordable housing, including social rented and intermediate housing. Authorities will take forward this process through local development frameworks.

Housing: Databases

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will produce a privacy impact assessment on her Department's proposals to allow access to the Energy Performance Certificate database by any energy assessor. [222544]

Mr. Iain Wright: Communities and Local Government is carrying out a full audit on the security of all data forming part of the Energy Performance of Buildings Directive programme.

Housing: Disabled

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what steps the Government has taken to provide sufficient affordable housing for people with disabilities. [222367]

Mr. Iain Wright: Through the Housing Corporation's Affordable Housing Programme for the 2008-11 period we have already approved over £300 million to deliver affordable housing for those with supported housing needs including older people. This funding also includes the Home Ownership for Long-term Disabilities (HOLD) scheme, a low cost home ownership scheme specifically designed for people with long term disabilities.

Through the Housing and Regeneration Act 2008, we are establishing the Homes and Communities Agency. One of the objects of this new organisation is to contribute to the achievement of sustainable development and good design with a view to meeting the needs of people living in England. Good design specifically includes design which has due regard to the needs of elderly persons and disabled persons.

"Lifetime Homes, Lifetime Neighbourhoods: A National Strategy for Housing in an Ageing Society", sets out our aspiration to see all new homes built to Lifetime Homes Standards by 2013. Lifetime Homes Standards are inexpensive, simple features designed to make homes more flexible and functional for all. We will undertake a review of Lifetime Homes Standards take-up across all sectors in 2010. We will also use standards set out in the code for Sustainable Homes to ensure that all public sector funded housing is built to Lifetime Homes Standards by 2011.

Housing: Empty Property

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar of 1 July 2008, Official Report, column 791W, on housing: empty property, how many empty dwellings there were in each Government Office region in England in October 2005. [222886]

Mr. Iain Wright: The following table shows the total number of empty dwellings in England and each Government office region at 9 October 2005.

Region	Empty dwellings as at 9 October 2005
North East	47,571
North West	132,443

The figures in the table are for all empty homes. The following table shows levels of dwellings which have been empty for more than six months. It is sometimes more appropriate to look at trends in long-term vacancies since they are ones that should be tackled. Those dwellings vacant for less than six months are more likely to be empty for short period following a sale and are a characteristic of the housing market.

Housing: Floods

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government when she expects those affected by recent floods to be able to return to their homes. [224194]

John Healey: An assessment of the impact of the recent flooding has found that as at 12 September 2008 around 1,827 households were affected by the recent floods, with water entering habitable areas. It is too early to assess how many households were displaced or when they are likely to return to their homes.

Housing: Greater London

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate her Department has made of the average house price in London in (a) April 2006, (b) April 2007 and (c) the most recent period for which figures are available. [222661]

Mr. Iain Wright: Communities and Local Government calculate regional monthly mix-adjusted average purchase prices of domestic dwellings based on data from the Regulated Mortgage Survey. These are available back to February 2002 on our website at:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/documents/housing/xls/table592.xls.

For London this gives mix-adjusted average house prices as:

	Average house prices (£)
(a) April 2006	277,235
(b) April 2007	318,976
(c) July 2008	343,182

Housing: Low Incomes

Mr. Love: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what total spending was on (a) newly built and (b) renovated social housing in each of the last 20 years at constant 2008 prices, broken down by (i) registered social landlords, (ii) local authorities and (iii) other providers; and if she will make a statement. [221777]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Department is not able to provide figures on newly built and renovated social housing dating back 20 years, nor is it able to provide figures for other providers. For local authorities, reliable statistics were first collected from 2001, initially through the Housing Investment Programme (HIP) and subsequently through the Business Plan Statistical Appendix (BPSA) from 2002. The figures in tables 1 and 2 are published and available via the Department's website:

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what access the Valuation Office Agency has to the National Register of Social Housing. [222569]

John Healey: None.

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what property attributes the National Register of Social Housing will collect in 2008-09. [222718]

Mr. Iain Wright: The current priority is to collect the property attributes required to replace existing Housing Corporation and Communities and Local Government forms. This includes ownership, size, type and age of property, energy efficiency, decent homes standard, rent, service charges, tenure and vacancy information; and for newly developed housing the funding sources. Information on NROSH can be found on the Department's website at www.communities.gov.uk/nationalregisterofsocialhousing

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) how much has been allocated to support the Rent to Homebuy scheme; and over what period the allocation has been made; [222913]

(2) what target she has set for the number of households to benefit from the Rent to Homebuy pilot scheme; and over what period the pilot will be assessed. [222914]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Rent to Homebuy scheme was announced on the 16 July as a pilot which is to run for the remainder of the Housing Corporation's 2008-09 bidding round for the Affordable Housing Programme and will then be evaluated. The amount funded will depend upon the number of bids brought forward which satisfy the Housing Corporation's criteria. £6 million has been allocated to-date for 199 units and the Housing Corporation expect to allocate more funding as suitable bids are brought forward.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether the National Register of Social Housing will including property attributes from shared ownership dwellings. [224503]

Mr. Iain Wright: Yes.

Housing: Offenders

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what guidance she gives to local authorities on consulting local residents who live in the vicinity of homes used to house people who (a) have been charged with criminal acts and are awaiting a court hearing, (b) have served time in prison and have recently been released and (c) behave disruptively; and if she will make a statement. [221774]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Department does not give any specific guidance to local authorities on these matters. There would not normally be any need for such consultations unless an application for planning permission had been made in relation to the homes. Local planning authorities determine in the first instance whether planning permission is required, taking into account individual circumstances. This might occur if the occupation of a dwelling house involved a material change of use for which planning permission was considered necessary.

Housing: Planning Permission

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) pursuant to the answer of 18 June 2008, Official Report, column 955W, on housing: planning permission, what the name was of each respondent to the consultation; [222844]

(2) if she will place in the Library each response to the consultation. [222845]

Mr. Iain Wright: Annex 1 of the document I referred to in my previous answer contains a list of the names of the individuals or organisations that responded to the consultation. The document is available at:

www.communities.gov.uk/publications/planningandbuilding/householderpermitted

A copy of each response will be placed in the Library of the House.

Housing: Repairs and Maintenance

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment she has made of the availability of qualified contractors to undertake urgent repair work required following the recent flooding in England. [224195]

John Healey: I met with the Association of British Insurers on the 10 September 2008 and they assured me that at this stage they are confident there are sufficient resources available in the construction industry to deal with repairs to homes affected by the recent floods.

Housing: Slough

Fiona Mactaggart: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many units of (a) social housing and (b) private housing were completed in Slough in each year since 1997. [222264]

Mr. Iain Wright: The figures requested are tabulated as follows.

	Social housing new build completions[1]	Private enterprise new build completions
1997-98	202	316
1998-99	11	341
1999-2000	37	449

Social Housing completion figures are Social Rent New Build figures from the Housing Corporation Investment Management System (IMS) and HSSA returns submitted to CLG by Local Authorities.

Private Enterprise completion figures are from quarterly P2 returns submitted to CLG by local authorities and from the National House Building Council (NHBC). Figures do not include estimates for missing returns.

Fiona Mactaggart: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many properties in Slough have been improved under the Decent Homes programme in each year of the programme; and how many require improvement. [222265]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Department is unable to provide figures for all tenures relating to the homes improved and homes requiring improvement under the Decent Homes programme in Slough as these are not collected at a local level.

For local authority properties improved the table below sets out the number of local authority properties in Slough that have received capital investment since 2001-02. This will include homes where work has been carried out that is not included in the Decent Homes programme.

Source:

Local authority figures from the Business Plan Statistical Appendix (BPSA) which includes retention authorities and arms length management organisations (ALMO's).

Through the annual Housing Strategy Statistical Appendix return, Communities and Local Government collected information on private sector dwellings for vulnerable people that received assistance to become decent for the first time in 2006-07. The figure for Slough in that year was 765.

For homes that need improvement under the Decent Homes programme the latest figures state that the number of properties requiring improvement across the social sector in Slough as at 1 April 2007 was 4,154 (3,935 owned by the local authority and 219 owned by Registered Social Landlords).

Housing: Standards

Fiona Mactaggart: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many homes in (a) Slough, (b) the South East and (c) England have been improved to the Decent Homes standard in each year since 2001. [221160]

Mr. Iain Wright: Information specific to the number of homes which have been improved to the Decent Homes Standard is not collected by the Department. The main indicator used to monitor progress towards the Decent Homes target in 2010 is the reduction in non-decent homes. The Department collects statistics on non-decent social sector local authority (LA) homes through the Business Plan Statistical Appendix (BPSA) annual return.

These data are published by Communities and Local Government and can be obtained from the Department's website:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/housing/housingresearch/housingstatistics/housingstatisticsby/localauthorityhousing/dataforms/357553/databyregion/

For national information and monitoring of progress the key source is the English House Condition Survey (EHCS)—a dwelling-based survey which provides annual updates on the number of non-decent homes in England overall. The survey includes figures on all tenures. The latest published figures available are from 2006 and can be accessed here:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/housing/housingresearch/housingsurveys/englishhousecondition/ehcsreports/

Local and regional figures from the BPSA, alongside national social sector figures from the EHCS, are provided in table 1 as follows:

Table 1: Number of local authority owned non-decent dwellings by year

2. Regional figures for 2001 and 2002 not available due to missing values in the data.

Similarly, information specific to the number of registered social landlord (RSL) homes which have been improved to the Decent Homes Standard is not collected by the Housing Corporation.

Equivalent local and regional figures for non-decent social housing owned by RSLs are displayed in table 2 as follows. These figures are published and available on the Housing Corporation's website:

As in table 1, national figures are provided from the EHCS.

2. The stock for which the number of Decent Homes failures is reported is general needs, supported housing, and housing for older people stock owned by the RSL.
3. Local authority-level RSL and regional RSL net figures take into account acquisitions, sales, disposals and demolitions.

The national English House Condition Survey is the only data source available to the Department that provides estimates of non-decency across all tenures. These figures are shown in table 3 as follows:

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar of 18 March 2008, Official Report, column 771W, on housing: standards, if she will place in the Library copies of each revised business plan for each pathfinder area. [222816]

Mr. Iain Wright: I refer the hon. Member to my answer given to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar (Mr. Pickles) on 17 July 2008, Official Report, column 584W. Copies of the business plans and funding agreements are being deposited in the Library of the House.

Housing: West Midlands

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what steps the Government has taken to increase the provision of affordable housing in the West Midlands. [222366]

Mr. Iain Wright: The publication of the Government's "Sustainable Communities: building for the future" in 2003 set out a programme of actions, one of which was the establishment of Regional Housing Boards (RHBs) in each of the regions.

RHBs were given the role of developing Regional Housing Strategies; firstly to identify regional strategic housing priorities, and secondly to develop proposals to Ministers for the allocation of the Government's housing capital funding from the Regional Housing Pot.

The West Midlands RHB developed its first Strategy in 2005, and this identified the need for affordable housing as a key regional priority, particularly in the south and west of the region.

Based on the priorities identified in the West Midlands Regional Housing Strategy the RHB developed its recommendations for Ministers to determine regional funding allocations for the periods 2004-06 and 2006-08. In those four years (2004-08) just over half of the Regional Housing Pot (£377 million) was allocated to help deliver 8,500 new affordable homes, a number of these within the Housing Market Renewal Pathfinder areas of Urban Living (parts of Birmingham and Sandwell) and Renew North Staffordshire.

In October 2007 the Government announced its overall funding for housing capital allocations for 2008-11. The west midlands was allocated £206 million for 2008-09 (18 per cent., more than 2007-08); £228 million for 2009-10 (11 per cent., higher than 2008-09) and £245 million for 2010-11 (7 per cent., higher than 2009-10), making a three year total of £679 million.

The RHB further proposed to increase the proportion of the allocation from the 2008-11 Regional Housing Pot for delivery of affordable housing, recommending that over two-thirds (£467 million) should be allocated to the region's National Affordable Housing Programme in order to support delivery of an additional 10,800 affordable homes.

Alongside this, during the early part of 2008, the Government office west midlands negotiated Local Area Agreements (LAA) with the 14 "upper tier" west midlands local authorities. A key target area was "number of affordable homes" and 12 of the 14 authorities identified this as a key priority for their areas. The Government office west midlands negotiated targets with those local authorities to deliver overall 10,880 affordable homes across the west midlands during the period 2008-11.

On 2 September, my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State announced a package of measures to meet current challenges in the housing market. This announcement included a measure to bring forward £400 million expenditure (from 2010-11 to 2008-10) to enable social housing providers to deliver 5,500 more homes nationally over the coming 18 months.

Infrastructure Planning Commission

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the latest timetable is for the commencement and conclusion of the review of the Infrastructure Planning Commission's role in relation to the referral of decisions to the Secretary of State. [222484]

John Healey: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Putney (Justine Greening) on 13 May 2008, Official Report, column 1444W. We expect the Infrastructure Planning Commission to begin determining applications in 2010. The review will take place two years after the Infrastructure Planning Commission has accepted its first application for consideration. It will be concluded as soon as reasonably practicable.

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the operational start date for the Infrastructure Planning Commission is. [222676]

John Healey: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Putney (Justine Greening) on 13 May 2008, Official Report, column 1444W.

INTERACT II Programme

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what role her Department has in the INTERACT II programme. [222915]

Mr. Khan: My Department's role with the INTERACT II programme is a policy and co-ordination role through leading the UK representation on working groups, overseeing its preparation and agreeing the priorities and work programme. It is the same role it holds for all INTERREG programmes.

Local Authorities: Plants

Mr. Brady: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate her Department has made of the sum spent by local authorities in England on ornamental plants and seeds in the most recent year for which figures are available. [222497]

John Healey: The information requested is not held centrally.

Local Government Finance

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the average budget of a local authority in England was in the latest period for which figures are available. [222546]

John Healey: The total budgeted revenue expenditure by local authorities in England in 2008-09 is £103.136 billion and there were 478 local authorities in England during 2008-09. The average budgeted revenue expenditure (arithmetic mean) of a local authority for 2008-09 is therefore £215.8 million, although the average will vary considerably between authorities because the range of responsibilities varies significantly between classes of authority.

The expenditure figure is derived from the Revenue Account (RA) budget returns submitted to Communities and Local Government.

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the written ministerial statement of 26 June 2008, Official Report, columns 31-32WS, on local government, what the timetable is for the distribution of the remaining funding to local authorities. [222893]

John Healey: My written ministerial statement of 4 February 2008, Official Report, column 47WS, said that, given the greater complexity, uncertainty, and delay caused by legal action, it would be necessary to retain a portion of the Year 3 funding as a contingency in the final year of the Local Authority Business Growth Incentives scheme. My written ministerial statement of 2 April 2008, Official Report, columns 56-57WS, indicated that a further announcement about the distribution of the remaining funding would be made in due course and that the funding would be allocated to local authorities in full, in line with the policy purposes for which LABGI was designed. I also said that the exact methodology would be confirmed once any uncertainty associated with legal challenges has been resolved. That uncertainty remains.

Local Government: Gloucestershire

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what representations she has received on unitary restructuring of local government in Gloucestershire from hon. Members representing the Labour Party. [222918]

John Healey: We have no record of any such representations.

Local Government: Lowestoft

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment she has made of the effect on local identities of moving Lowestoft from Suffolk into Norfolk as part of the latest round of unitary restructuring. [222575]

John Healey: The Secretary of State has made no such assessment. We have requested the independent boundary committee to advise by 31 December 2008 on certain matters relating to proposals for unitary local government in Norwich, Ipswich and the surrounding county areas. There is no role for Government at this stage.

Local Government: Pensions

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar of 25 June 2008, Official Report, column 349W, on local government: pensions, whether her Department holds the 2007 actuarial valuation reports for each local authority pension fund in (a) physical and (b) electronic form. [222880]

John Healey: Copies of the reports relating to the 2007 Local Government Pension Scheme valuation exercise have been submitted to the Department, as required by the scheme's regulations, in electronic and physical form. Details of individual fund valuations may be requested directly from each scheme pension fund administering authority.

Mr. Newmark: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the public sector deficit of local government pensions in England and Wales is. [224506]

John Healey: At 31 March 2007, actuarial valuation of each of the 89 local authority pension funds which comprise the Local Government Pension Scheme in England and Wales, total assets represented 83 per cent. of its total accrued liabilities. The valuation exercise also established that the contribution rates for participating employers for the triennial period ending 31 March 2011 were certified by the fund's actuaries as being sufficient to ensure the ongoing solvency of scheme's funds.

Local Government: Political Impartiality

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether she plans to change the Widdecombe rules on the participation of senior officers in party political activity. [222566]

John Healey: As stated in the local government White Paper, "Communities in control: Real people, real power", we will amend the Widdicombe rules, so that only the most senior officials such as chief executives and chief planning officers continue to be barred from political aetivity along with other politically sensitive posts.

Local Government: Reorganisation

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the timetable is for local authorities to review and amend their executive structures according to the new executive models available to local authorities. [222568]

John Healey: I refer the hon. Member to my answer to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar (Mr. Pickles) of 1 September 2008, Official Report, column 1427W. In advance of the move to a new executive model, local authorities must pass a resolution to make the change during the permitted resolution periods shown for each type of local authority in the following table.

Type of local authority	Permitted resolution period
County	The period ending with 31 December 2008
Metropolitan district	The period ending with 31 December 2009
London borough	The period ending with 31 December 2009
Non-metropolitan district	The period ending with 31 December 2010

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what plans she has for further unitary restructuring of local government. [222917]

John Healey: I refer the hon. Member to the answers I gave to my hon. Friend the Member for Stroud (Mr. Drew) on 13 March 2008, Official Report, column 586W, and to the hon. Member for Forest of Dean (Mr. Harper) on 21 July 2008, Official Report, column 779W.

Local Government: Standards

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment she has made of the effects of the changes made in response to the Local Government Efficiency Review led by Sir Peter Gershon on efficiency and practice in local government.[1] [221755]

John Healey: During the 2004 Spending Review (SR04) period, councils were required to achieve 2.5 per cent. per annum efficiency gains, at least half of which had to be cashable (i.e. release cash resources that could be reallocated to meet local priorities or hold down council tax). This was in line with the efficiency target for the whole public sector and, for councils, amounted to an expectation for £3.0 billion gains by the end of 2007-08.

Councils have reported achievement of efficiency gains significantly ahead of this target for the SR04 period, as shown in the following table:

Cumulative efficiency gains achieved by English councils between 1 April 2004 and 31 March 2008

£ million

Activity	Total gains	Of which: cashable
Service sectors
Adult social services	786	612
Social housing	339	309

1. [Official Report, 20 October 2008, Vol. 481, c. 2MC.]

Cumulative efficiency gains achieved by English councils between 1 April 2004 and 31 March 2008

Activity	Total gains	£ million Of which, cashable
Environmental services	357	279
Children's services	322	269
Local transport	297	244
Non-school education	205	170
Culture and sport	152	110
Supporting People	150	111
Homelessness	61	44
Cross-cutting workstreams
Corporate services	666	579
Procurement	397	346
Productive time	205	73
Transactions	141	82
Miscellaneous	248	219
Total	4,345	3,447

The £3.447 billion cashable efficiency gains achieved by councils represent a saving worth £129 for the average Band D council tax property.

Cuts in services do not count towards the figures reported above and, throughout the SR04 period, the Audit Commission's Comprehensive Performance Assessment has shown an upward trajectory for the scores awarded. In 2005, 73 per cent. of councils obtained the top scores (three or four stars) in CPA, and 57 per cent. were identified as performing "above or well above minimum requirements" in the Use of Resources assessment. By 2007, those proportions had risen to 83 per cent. and 85 per cent. respectively.

To support councils in delivering these efficiencies, the Department set up a network of Regional Centres of Excellence (RCEs) which shared good practice and funded projects of importance to the region. The RCEs adopted a common system for measuring the benefits from the projects they funded and on average each pound invested released £5 of benefits to the public sector.

Councils are also working with each other, and other parts of the public sector, to a much greater extent. By 2007, 54 per cent. were involved in joint commissioning of services (excluding health and social care)—up from 31 per cent. in 2004—and 38 per cent. shared a procurement function with another council.

There are still opportunities for further efficiencies in local government, through the widespread adoption of better procurement, process improvement, collaboration and asset management, and a further £4.9 billion cash-releasing council efficiencies over the period from 2008-09 to 2010-11 is expected. The achievement of this target will rely on the strong foundation that councils have laid and will be supported by £384 million we are making available to support improvement, efficiency and innovation in local government.

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what performance targets or indicators the Standard Board sets for local authority monitoring officers; and whether these are incorporated into the National Indicator set. [222540]

John Healey: While the Standards Board has given guidance about how local authority's standard committees and monitoring officers should fulfil their roles in relation to members' conduct, it does not set performance targets or indicators for local authority monitoring officers.

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what obligations local authorities are under to provide performance management information to the Standards Board. [222596]

John Healey: The Local Government and Public Involvement in Health Act 2007 requires local authorities to provide to the Standards Board for England certain information relating to the exercise of functions undertaken by the standards committee or monitoring officer of a local authority.

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what guidance her Department has issued to local authorities on identifying and reporting annual efficiency gains. [222715]

John Healey: The Department has issued guidance for councils on measuring and reporting efficiency gains since 2005. Based on the advice of the Measurement Taskforce (a group formed of representatives from both local and central government), this guidance has been regularly updated to ensure it remains relevant and practical. The current version may be accessed at:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/localgovernment/efficiencybetter/deliveringefficiency/efficiencyinformation/

The Department has also produced toolkits for measuring efficiency gains in the specific areas of social housing, the Supporting People programme, corporate services, transactions, procurement and productive time. These are available online at:

http://www.rce.gov.uk/rce/core/page.do?pageId=10329

London Fire Brigade: Procurement

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what systems are operated by the fire control network in London; what plans there are for the London Fire Service to procure (a) an automatic vehicle relocation system, (b) satellite navigation, (c) an integrated geographic information system and (d) premise-based gazetteer mobilising at premises level; and if she will make a statement. [222949]

Mr. Khan: London Fire Brigade is currently operating the following systems; status messaging, enhanced Information Service for Emergency Calls (EISEC) and Automatic Location Service for Emergency Calls (ALSEC).

The FiReControl Project will be equipping London with a number of new capabilities as part of over £360 million of investment in England's Fire and Rescue Services. The provision of an automatic vehicle location system, satellite navigation, geographic information system and the full premise based gazetteer is part of the FiReControl project to create a resilient national network of control centres.

Mayor of London

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the Town and Country Planning (Local Development) (England) (Amendment) Regulations 2008, which individuals and organisations responded to her Department's consultation on the extension of the Mayor of London's powers and responsibilities; and if she will publish a summary of those responses. [222656]

Mr. Iain Wright: A summary of the responses was published on the Government Office for London website in March 2008, at http://www.gos.gov.uk/gol/Planning/624901/?a=42496. See the final link on that page, "Summary of responses to consultation on draft Mayor of London Order and draft Circular", which lists the organisations that responded and their responses. Question 4 of the consultation concerned proposed amendments to the Town and Country Planning (Local Development) (England) Regulations 2004 to give the Mayor of London power to direct changes to local development schemes. This power is now included in the 2008 Regulations. I have placed a copy of the consultation responses in the House of Commons Library.

Millennium Dome

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the cost of the Millennium Dome to public funds (a) was in 2007-08 and (b) is expected to be in 2008-09; and how much the public purse received from the New Millennium Experience Company Limited in each year since the inception of the Dome. [222828]

Mr. Iain Wright: English Partnerships, the national regeneration agency, were responsible for the costs for staff and the maintenance and management of the millennium dome from July 2001 until the opening of the arena in June 2007. During the 2007-08 financial year the amount spent by English Partnerships was £205,000. English Partnerships handed over full responsibility for the dome (now the O_2) to Anschutz Entertainment Group in June 2007, when the arena inside the former millennium dome was completed. No further costs were incurred by EP in 2008-09, therefore the amount spent from public funds in 2008-09 is nil.

The New Millennium Experience Company (NMEC) was the company set up to run the millennium exhibition in the dome. Following the end of the exhibition, it was placed in voluntary, solvent liquidation in December 2001. The public purse did not receive any money from the New Millennium Experience Company Limited.

However, because of the structure of the deal for the continued regeneration of the site, the Government expects a substantial return from the development of the land around the O_2 and will also receive a share of the profits arising from the successful operation of the O_2.

Ministerial Corrections

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the Written Ministerial Statement of 20 June 2008, Official Report, column 63WS, on a correction to a parliamentary Question, in what circumstances her Department opts to correct an answer given to a parliamentary Question by means of (a) a Written Ministerial Statement and (b) a Ministerial Correction. [222889]

Mr. Khan: Corrections to answers given to parliamentary questions are made in accordance with the guidance issued to Departments by my right hon. and learned Friend the Leader of the House on 18 October 2007, Official Report, column 56WS.

The written ministerial statement was issued on 20 June 2008 in respect of question 165558 given the length of time that had elapsed since the question was first answered (18 December 2007).

Mortgages: Cumbria

Mr. Jamie Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether her Department has made an estimate of the number of families which are more than three months in arrears with mortgage payments in (a) Cumbria and (b) Copeland. [223916]

Mr. Iain Wright: Information on mortgages which are more than three months in arrears with payments is only available for the United Kingdom as a whole and is collected independently by the Council of Mortgage Lenders. This data are available on their website at http://www.cml.org.uk/cml/filegrab/2AP1.xls?ref=2750.

Mortgages: Repossession Orders

Ms Keeble: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what steps her Department is taking to reduce the number of housing repossessions; and if she will make a statement. [222395]

Mr. Iain Wright: On 2 September, the Government set out a package of measures to help the housing market, including a £200 million mortgage rescue scheme, which will help up to 6,000 of the most vulnerable households facing repossession over the next two years.

In addition, the Government recently strengthened the £560 million advice network for home owners at risk of repossession, by extending free legal representation at county courts, expanding the National Housing Advice Service to provide a new comprehensive debt advice service, and increasing specialist training for citizens advice bureau staff and local authorities on debt advice.

Multi Area Agreements: Urban Areas

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the speech by the Minister for Local Government to the Local Government Association conference on 2 July 2008, why the introduction of multi-area agreements is not a policy for cities. [222574]

John Healey: Any group of two or more top-tier (county) or unitary local authorities in England can enter a multi-area agreement (MAA). An MAA is a voluntary agreement between two or more top-tier or unitary local authorities, their partners (including district councils) and Government to achieve certain collective targets to improve economic prosperity in their local area. The first seven MAAs were signed in July and include a wide representation of urban and rural areas and different tiers of Government from across the English regions.

Multiple Occupation

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether a residential house may be used as a house of multiple occupation involving five or more residents without planning permission. [221770]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Town and Country Planning (Use Classes) Order 1987 (as amended) is intended to be a deregulatory mechanism which removes the need for planning permission between certain specified uses by grouping into classes land uses which have similar implications for local amenity. The Use Classes Order defines dwelling houses under the C3 use class as houses used by a single person, any number of persons living together as a family, or by no more than six people living together as a single household.

HMOs do not fall within any of the specified use classes, and therefore are "sui generis" (of its own kind, unique) in terms of use. Planning permission is needed for a change of use to or from a sui generis use. Therefore, planning permission would be needed for the proposed change of use of a private dwelling to a HMO, or if such is deemed to have occurred.

The current definition of a dwelling house implies that up to six people living together as a single household should not, prima facie, be considered as a HMO. However local planning authorities may determine individual cases on the basis of "fact and degree" and may decide that dwellings with fewer than six people living together other than as a single household constitute a HMO.

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what powers local authorities have to enter private properties which are subject to (a) discretionary and (b) mandatory licensing of houses of multiple occupation for inspection purposes; and what are the penalties for refusing or obstructing entry. [224486]

Mr. Iain Wright: Local authorities have the power under sections 239 and 240 of the Housing Act 2004 to enter and inspect private properties which are subject to either discretionary or mandatory HMO licensing. The penalty for obstructing entry is a criminal offence subject to a maximum fine of £2,500.

Multiple Occupation: Castle Point

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what information her Department holds on the number of unlicensed houses of multiple occupation used by Castle Point Borough Council within Castle Point (a) in each of the last five years and (b) at the latest date for which information is available. [222459]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Department does not collect or hold information specifically on the number of unlicensed houses in multiple occupation (HMOs). However, the Department does collect information on privately rented licensed HMOs through the Register of Licensed Houses in Multiple Occupation. As at 14 August 2008, Castle Point reported no applications for licensing of privately rented HMOs on their return for the ROLHMO data collection.

New Deal For Communities

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much was spent on the New Deal for Communities in each year since it was established; and what the budget is for each of the next three years. [222561]

John Healey: New Deal for Communities Programme is a 10 year programme worth over a total of £2 billion to help regenerate 39 deprived communities across England.

Between 2000-01 and 2006-07 the New Deal for Communities Programme spent a total of £1.3 billion[1]. In 2007-08 over £250 million was allocated to the NDC programme but amounts spent by NDCs have not yet been confirmed through audit. As we announced on 1 July, this year we have allocated over £240 million. Indicative allocations for 2009-10 and 2010-11 total over £255 million. These amounts include monies for programme support, such as evaluation.

[1] Figures for spend are not final as audited records for a small number of NDCs are still to be completed.

	Funding (£)
2000-01	21,860,854

2003-04	242,274,026
2004-05	282,411,724
2005-06	277,620,369
2006-07	255,225,558

2010-2011	65,857,000
Total	2,084,050,519

Non-domestic Rates

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether the proposed minimum rateable value threshold for liability for business rate supplements will be increased in 2010 following the business rates revaluation to reflect higher average rateable values. [222545]

John Healey: Business rate supplements: a White Paper, published in October 2007, set out the Government's intention to exempt non-domestic properties with a rateable value of £50,000 or less, across England, from paying the supplement.

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment has been made of the effect of changes in business rates on rates of business closures. [222855]

John Healey: No such assessment has been made.

Non-domestic Rates: Ports

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate she has made of the increase in (a) aggregate rateable values and (b) annual revenue from the Valuation Office Agency's decision to backdate new business rate revaluations of port businesses at designated ports. [224329]

John Healey: The estimated effect of the review of large statutory ports in England is expected to be an increase in the number of occupations separately assessed for business rates at 1 April 2005 from 1,600 to 2,000, with an increase in the aggregate rateable value from £181 million to approximately £200 million. Individual ratepayers have the right of appeal against the notices served if they believe the facts or other information on which the assessments are based are incorrect.

No estimates of revenue have been made, as calculation of liability—reflecting any reliefs that may be available—are matters for individual billing authorities.

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government when the Valuation Office Agency decided to revalue business properties in the Port of Hull; what back-dated changes to business rates have been made as a result; and if she will make a statement. [224331]

John Healey: The Valuation Office Agency formally advised the port operator that a change might be needed to the rating list for properties within the Port of Hull in May 2006. This is part of a review of the rating assessments within ports to ensure, following clarification from a major rating appeal in Southampton, that properties which should be separately assessed, rather than being included in the assessment for the port operator, are consistently and correctly treated. Details of revised valuations are available on the VOA's website.

Non-domestic Rates: Valuation

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Bromley and Chislehurst (Robert Neill) of 18 June 2008, Official Report, column 988W, on non-domestic rates: valuation, on what valuation grounds the Valuation Office Agency lost the rating challenge made by representatives of the Ministry of Justice; what assessment she has made of the likely implications of the judgment for other businesses of a similar nature; and if she will make a statement. [222843]

John Healey: The challenges were made on various grounds. In each case the valuation officer considered any changes to the physical state of the properties and their localities, the points raised on behalf of the Ministry of Justice and, as he was satisfied that revised rateable values were proper, entered them in the rating list. Each case was considered on its individual merits and there are no wider implications apparent.

Non-governmental Organisations

Lembit Öpik: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what meetings (a) the Minister for Local Government and (b) the Minister for Housing has had with (i) non-governmental environmental organisations and (ii) non-governmental business organisations since her appointment. [222743]

Mr. Iain Wright: Details of meetings between Ministers and outside interest groups are provided on the Department's website at:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/corporate/about/freedom-of-information/disclosure-log/

Official Hospitality

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Bromley and Chislehurst of 30 June 2008, Official Report, column 629W, on official hospitality: Office of the Deputy Prime Minister, what the cost to the public purse of the then Deputy Prime Minister is on entertainment of the Chinese Ambassador at Mr. Cha's China Palace on 2 April 2004 was. [222894]

Mr. Khan: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar (Mr. Pickles) on 8 May 2008, Official Report, column 1090W.

Olympic Games 2012

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many full-time equivalent members of staff in (a) her Department and (b) its associated public bodies are working on projects relating to the London 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games; how many of them are working on (i) project management, (ii) legacy planning, (iii) project oversight and (iv) financial oversight; and what plans she has for future staffing levels in each case. [221864]

Mr. Iain Wright: For Communities and Local Government, there are in total 6.6 full-time equivalent staff working on the Olympics programme within the central department. Within the Housing Corporation, English Partnerships and the London Thames Gateway Delivery Corporation, work on London 2012 Olympics issues is carried out as they arise in the course of normal business. None of the posts due to be transferred from the Thames Gateway Executive to the Homes and Communities Agency work full time on this programme.

Within the figure of 6.6 full-time equivalents for Communities and Local Government, 1.5 full-time equivalent staff work on project management; two full-time equivalent staff work on legacy planning; one full-time equivalent works on project oversight and one full-time equivalent works on financial oversight. The additional 1.1 full-time equivalent comprises administrative staff (1) and a risk management consultant (0.1). There are no immediate plans for a change in staffing levels but future staffing levels will be kept under review.

Optimisa

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what research her Department has commissioned from Andrew Irving Associates or its parent company Optimisa in the last 12 months; at what cost; and what contracts the firm has for ongoing research for her Department. [222621]

Mr. Khan: The Department has commissioned the following research from Andrew Irving Associates in the last 12 months:

2007
November	Fire safety for business—Holiday Accommodation Sector Quantitative Stage 1	12,000
December	Smoke Alarms Maintenance, awareness and attitudes	33,750
2008
January	Fire safety for business—Holiday Accommodation Sector Stage 1	24,000
March	Sustainable Homes Telephone Survey	18,000
March	Fire safety for business—Holiday Accommodation Sector Stage 2	12,000
June	Eco Towns public attitudes	5,000
July	Local government Petitions	6,300
September	Smoke Alarms Maintenance, awareness and attitudes	33,750

There is a further stage of Smoke Alarm Maintenance research due to take place in October/November 2008. Beyond this, the Department has no contracts for ongoing research with Andrew Irving Associates.

Ordnance Survey

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether Ordnance Survey plans to use hectares as a unit of measurement. [223952]

Mr. Iain Wright: Ordnance Survey has used hectares in internal operations since circa 1945, and as a published unit of measurement since 1969.

Ordnance Survey: Databases

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what use Ordnance Survey makes of ACORN data from CACI Ltd. [222573]

Mr. Iain Wright: Ordnance Survey does not use ACORN data from CACI Ltd.

Parish Councils

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what guidance she has issued on the role of the Local Government Ombudsman in oversight of the functions of parish councils; and if she will make a statement. [222587]

John Healey: The local government ombudsman has no remit in relation to parish councils, and we have not issued any guidance about the local government ombudsman's oversight of parish council functions.

Parish Councils: Council Tax

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar of 25 June 2008, Official Report, column 350W, on parish councils: council tax, whether her Department plans to estimate the average Band D parish council precept for 2008-09 in due course. [222881]

John Healey: Yes.

Parking: Fees and Charges

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the (a) gross and (b) net income from parking for each local authority in England was in 1996-97. [223001]

John Healey: I have placed in the Library of the House a table showing the requested information on the gross and net income on parking services by each local authority in England in 1996-97. Aggregate 1996-97 information for England is published in "Local Government Financial Statistics No. 9: 1998" and the information is drawn from the Communities and Local Government Revenue Outturn (RO) returns.

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the aggregate gross income from local authority parking services in England was in each year since 1996-97. [222879]

John Healey: Information on parking services by local authorities in England is published in Local Government Financial Statistics (LGFS) England.

Partner Organisations

Lembit Öpik: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many applications to become partner organisations her Department has received in the last 12 months; and how many such applications have been accepted. [221804]

Mr. Khan: Assuming this is in reference to the previously proposed Strategic Partners programme, the Department received 215 applications. The decision not to proceed with the proposed programme meant that none of the applications were accepted.

My Department has consulted on a £7.5 million Empowerment Fund, the objective of which is to support a limited number of third sector organisations to achieve their goals, where the achievement of goals aligns with the objectives of the 'Communities in control: real people, real power' White Paper.

The draft prospectus anticipates around 20 organisations receiving funding. We will shortly publish a final prospectus inviting applications.

Lembit Öpik: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what funding her Department will provide to partner organisations in (a) 2008-09, (b) 2009-10 and (c) 2010-11. [221805]

Mr. Khan: In relation to third sector partner organisations, an Empowerment Fund of £7.5 million will be made available to provide strategic, stable and sector funding over the next three years.

Personal Records: Fraud

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what personal information the Audit Commission will be entitled to access as part of the National Fraud Initiative. [222810]

John Healey: Under provisions introduced by the Serious Crime Act 2007, the Audit Commission may, for the purpose of assisting in the prevention and detection of fraud, require:

(a) any body subject to audit or English best value authority, and

(b) any officer or member of such a body, to provide the Commission with such data as it may reasonably require for the purpose of conducting data matching exercises. This includes personal data.

If the Commission thinks it appropriate to conduct a data matching exercise to assist in the prevention or detection of fraud using data held by other bodies (including personal data), the data may be disclosed to the Commission or a person acting on its behalf.

These new statutory powers extend the Audit Commission's National Fraud Initiative and build on the results it has achieved to date. The 2006-07 exercise reported that a record £140 million in fraud and overpayment has been detected. This brings the total for NFI to around £450 million in fraud and overpayments since it started in 1996 and represents a 26 per cent. increase from £111 million detected in 2004-05.

Details of the personal data used in the National Fraud Initiative are published in advance of every exercise, and the data specification for the forthcoming exercise commencing in October this year can be found on the Commission's website at:

http://www.audit-commission.gov.uk/nfi/dataspec/index.asp#dds

Planning

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether the new edition of planning guidance PPS6 will be a draft version; and what the timetable is for publication and consultation. [222567]

Mr. Iain Wright: Our "Proposed Changes to Planning Policy Statement 6: Planning for town centres" were published on 10 July 2008. The proposals are in draft for consultation. The consultation period closed on 3 October 2008. A summary of consultation responses will be published by January 2009.

Planning Obligations

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment he has made of the appropriateness of using section 106 powers to levy an across-the-board planning obligation monetary charge on all household extensions. [216027]

Mr. Iain Wright: Local planning authorities can tailor planning obligation policies to meet their local needs and circumstances within the framework of national planning policy (Circular 05/05). Local planning authorities must take the Secretary of State's policy into account and have reasons for departing from it.

The Government have recently announced new planning regulations affecting householder extensions through revisions to the General Permitted Development Order. This means that from 1 October 2008 the majority of homeowners no longer need to apply for planning permission when extending their existing homes.

As such, the use of section 106 powers to levy an across-the-board planning obligation monetary charge on all household extensions will not be possible, as most extensions will no longer require planning permission.

Planning: Appeals

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what progress has been made on the introduction of local member review bodies to replace planning appeals by the Planning Inspectorate. [222591]

Mr. Iain Wright: Local Member Review Bodies are to be removed from the Bill following the submission of an amendment to this effect to the House of Lords at Committee Stage.

In her speech at the Second Reading of the Planning Bill in the other place, my hon. Friend Baroness Andrews said:

> "Part 9 also contains provision to set up local member review bodies to determine certain planning appeals instead of the Secretary of State as now. We have listened carefully to stakeholder views on this provision and concluded that, while it may bring some benefit, it risks distracting local authorities, particularly at a time when there is an urgent need for them to focus on strategic plans and issues. We therefore intend to drop this provision at Committee stage." (15 July 2008, Official Report, Second Reading debate, column 1164).

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Bromley of 24 June 2008, Official Report, column 265W, on licensing laws, how many of the planning appeals concluded with the application for the premises (a) being refused and (b) being granted in whole or in part. [222958]

Mr. Iain Wright: During the 12 month period 1 June 2007 to 31 May 2008 the inspectorate considered 182 planning appeals in respect of public houses and wine bars. Of these 109 were dismissed and 73 were allowed, either whole or in part. Of the appeals allowed 57 were generally concerned with ancillary works to existing premises or their environs, 10 related to an extension in licensing hours and six to a change of use to form a public house or wine bar.

Planning: South East

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the Answer of 17 September 2008, Official Report, column 2206W, on planning: South East, what her latest estimate is of the date upon which the South East Plan will be (a) adopted and (b) come into force as planning guidance. [224515]

Mr. Khan: The Secretary of State is aiming to adopt and publish the final version of the South East Plan as soon as practicable after considering the responses to the consultation which ends on 24 October. The exact timing will depend on the level and nature of the responses made to the Government's Proposed Changes to the draft. The final South East Plan will have statutory force on the date of adoption. In the meantime the Secretary of State would expect local authorities to attach a significant degree of weight to the emerging draft plan in their decision making.

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the Answer of 17 September 2008, Official Report, column 2206W, on planning: South East, what steps have been made to enable digitally excluded households to respond to the latest consultation on the South East Plan. [224516]

Mr. Khan: The draft South East Plan Proposed Changes have been distributed throughout the region in accordance with statutory requirements. Copies and summaries, along with supporting documents have been sent to local councils and libraries, to Parish and Town Councils, the MPs and MEPs and to anyone who requested copies earlier in the process. They are also available on request from the Government Office for the South East.

Responses can be made either in writing or electronically. A standard response form is available and can be photocopied, and the Government will consider all comments received on the published Proposed Changes.

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the Answer of 17 September 2008, Official Report, column 2206W, on planning: South East, if she will make it her policy that written representations made to the Government Office for the South East on the latest South East Plan consultation which do not cite specific paragraphs of the Plan will be considered fully as part of the consultation process. [224517]

Mr. Khan: The Secretary of State has a statutory duty to consider all responses made to the Government's own Proposed Changes to the draft South East Plan.

The Proposed Changes document makes it clear that comments should only be made where the Secretary of State has set out changes to the draft prepared by the South East of England Regional Assembly, as sections not proposed for change have already been subject to consultation and independent scrutiny.

While the Government will consider all views expressed on its published changes it would greatly assist the administrative process if respondents could quote the Proposed Change number when submitting comments.

Planning: Thames Gateway

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar of 20 June 2008, Official Report, column 1241W, on planning: Thames Gateway, what each of the agreed detailed baselines are for the performance management of the Thames Gateway; and what monitoring process is in place of these baselines. [222876]

Mr. Iain Wright: The implementation planning baselines developed for the 2008-11 period were circulated to delivery partners for their confirmation of the position as at 9 May 2008 and issued in summary form to partners and other Government Departments on the 15 July 2008. These are therefore the definitive baseline for performance management of the range of bodies accountable for delivering projects and programmes in the Thames Gateway being funded by the Department.

Each accountable body provides a monthly progress update on spend, milestones and the achievement of outcomes, which is checked against the baseline. Every quarter, the Director General Regions and Communities, the Director of Delivery and the Director of Performance meet the Chief Executive of each Accountable Body to monitor progress made, review any necessary revisions to scope, and assess future targets.

Property Development: Green Belt

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar (Mr. Pickles) of 3 July 2008, Official Report, column 1063W, on property development: green belt, how many dwellings were built on green belt land in each year since 1997 for which figures are available; and how many hectares of land were so developed in each year. [222873]

Mr. Iain Wright: Decisions about the use of land which is designated as green belt, or whether land should be designated as green belt, must be taken in accordance with the policy in Planning Policy Guidance Note 2 on green belts. This policy has performed an important role in preventing urban sprawl and protecting the countryside for 50 years. There is a presumption against inappropriate development in green belt but the policy allows for some development there, such as to support agriculture or forestry or as limited infill in existing villages. Development that is inappropriate may be permitted only where the benefits clearly outweigh any harm to the green belt and where very special circumstances are also demonstrated. The Government remain committed to current green belt policy and have no intention of making fundamental changes to it.

In the period 1997-2006, an estimated 39,800 dwellings were built in the green belt (as designated in 2007). This accounts for less than 3 per cent. of all dwellings built in that period. In the period 1997-2004, which are the most recent robust figures available for the amount of land developed, around 1,750 hectares of the 2007 designated green belt were developed for residential use. This is around 5 per cent. of all land that changed to residential use in the same period.

The total area of green belt land in England in 2007 is 1,636,000 hectares. Taking into account the 47,300 hectares of green belt land which was designated as New Forest National Park in 2005 but which has equally strong policy protection, the total area of green belt in 2007 would show a net national increase of 33,000 hectares since 1997.

Property Development: Sittingbourne

Derek Wyatt: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether Sittingbourne Light Railway Group participated in the key stakeholder discussions which gave rise to the Cluster Study report for Milton Regis. [224499]

Mr. Khan: The purpose of the Green Cluster study was to pull together existing documentation and establish an overall shared vision for Milton Creek. Two stakeholder workshops were held in November and December of last year. These covered the Milton Creek and Faversham Creek study areas, and as such involved strategic partners only, such as Kent Wildlife Trust and Natural England. Sittingbourne Light Railway Group was not involved in this—the purpose of the workshops was essentially information-gathering. However, an action arising from the final report was to liaise further with Sittingbourne Light Railway Group, and this is now being progressed.

Public Participation

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar of 24 June 2008, Official Report, columns 269-70W, on public participation, what plans in relation to the production of a national survey of attitudes are (a) in development and (b) under consideration; and what the scope of the attitudes under assessment is. [222952]

Mr. Khan: There are currently no plans to produce a bespoke national survey of attitudes, but we are currently exploring other options for measuring attitudes towards violent extremism.

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the Answer to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar of 24 June 2008, Official Report, columns 269-70W, on public participation, what topics were covered by the questions on sensitive issues referred to in the Answer. [222975]

Mr. Khan: The questions on sensitive issues covered the topic of attitudes towards violent extremism.

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar of 24 June 2008, Official Report, columns 269-70W, on public participation, in what way the proposed national survey of attitudes differs from the Integrated Household Survey. [222976]

John Healey: The Integrated Household Survey, formerly known as the Continuous Population Survey, is carried out by the Office for National Statistics. It asks sampled households questions on topics such as demographics, housing, employment, identity, health and education.

There are no plans to add questions on violent extremism to the Integrated Household Survey, nor are there currently plans to produce a bespoke national survey of attitudes, although we are currently exploring other options for measuring attitudes towards violent extremism.

Public Telephones

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar of 25 June 2008, Official Report, column 351W, on public telephones, how many stand-alone telephone boxes in England were on the 1995 ratings list on 31 March 1997 or the nearest date for which figures are available. [222882]

John Healey: The number of separate assessments of stand-alone telephone boxes appearing in the 1995 local rating lists for England at March 2000 (the nearest to that requested) was 45. This figure is the number of assessments rather than individual boxes and some assessments will be in respect of clusters of telephone boxes. British Telecom, Mercury Communications and Kingston Communications (Hull) Ltd telephone boxes—which account for the majority of such structures seen on English streets—are not separately assessed from their networks, and therefore are not identifiable in the rating lists.

Recycling: Fire Prevention

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment has been made of the fire risk from recycling sacks or boxes left near doorsteps in blocks of flats. [222644]

Mr. Khan: Under the Regulatory Reform (Fire Safety) Order 2005 it is for the 'Responsible Person' (usually the owner in these types of premises) to consider any fire risks associated with recycling boxes in and near the common parts of blocks flats, as a part of the fire risk assessment process.

Regional Planning and Development

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Bromley of 19 June 2008, Official Report, column 1141W, on regional spatial strategies: green belt, whether it is the practice of (a) the Government Office for the Region and (b) planning inspectors to give informal valuations to local authorities on the soundness of a draft core strategy. [222890]

Mr. Iain Wright: Government offices aim to provide informal views on development plan documents (DPDs) prior to the examination and will seek to highlight any major concerns as risks to the soundness of the DPD. In commenting on work in progress, Government offices will make it clear that they are not in a position to test evidence in the way that an inspector would at an examination to establish whether the DPD is sound, particularly in terms of numbers contained within the DPD.

The Planning Inspectorate provides general advice to authorities about local development frameworks (LDFs), the nature of the examination process and the sort of evidence that is likely to be needed. This is published on the Planning Inspectorate website and can be accessed via the PPS12 Plan Making Manual published on the Planning Advisory Service website.

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Bromley of 19 June 2008, Official Report, column 1141W, on regional spatial strategies: green belt, whether any core strategy development plan documents have been found unsound. [222891]

Mr. Iain Wright: Eight authorities have had their core strategy development plan documents found unsound. The authorities are Carrick district council; Chichester district council; Lichfield city council; Ryedale district council; Stafford borough council; Restormel borough council; Teignbridge district council and the Royal borough of Windsor and Maidenhead.

A paper has been placed in the House Library which sets out in summary the reasons why each core strategy has been found unsound.

Regional Planning and Development: Electronic Government

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar of 25 June 2008, Official Report, column 329W, on regional planning and development: electronic government, what public funding each regional assembly provided to its respective regional equality and diversity partnership. [222842]

John Healey: Regional assemblies receive government grant as a contribution towards the implementation of the region's proposals which are described in a business plan. The Government produce business planning guidance which sets out the framework within which business plans can be agreed.

The annual reports of each assembly, including financial information and accounts, are published and can be accessed through the English Regions Network website.

http://www.ern.gov.uk/

The specific data requested are not routinely collected centrally.

Regional Planning and Development: Pollution Control

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment she has made of the likely effect on carbon dioxide emissions of the spatial planning decisions in each regional spatial strategy. [222593]

Mr. Iain Wright: All RSS revisions are accompanied by a sustainability appraisal which considers the social, environmental and economic impacts of implementing the strategy. This includes assessment of air quality and climatic factors, which will impact upon carbon emissions.

Regional Planning And Development: South East

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the timetable is for the publication of (a) her proposed changes to the South East Regional Spatial Strategy and (b) the final version of the strategy. [222571]

Mr. Khan: The Secretary of State's Proposed Changes to the South East Regional Spatial Strategy were published on 17 July 2008, consultation closes on 24 October 2008.

Government are aiming to publish the final version of the South East Plan by the end of the year.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will make it her policy to remove from the final version of the South East Plan any proposals to remove green belt protection where such proposals are not supported by the local planning authority. [222920]

Mr. Khan: Proposed Changes to the draft South East Plan are currently out for public consultation. Policies contained in this plan will be informed by the results of this ongoing consultation, and I am therefore not in a position to prejudice this process by commenting on the final form of the Plan at this stage.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many hectares of green belt land are scheduled for (a) review and (b) deletion in the most recent version of the South East Plan. [222922]

Mr. Iain Wright: The current version of the Regional Spatial Strategy for the South East (2001) does not propose any green belt release. The Government are currently consulting on the new version of this strategy (known as the South East Plan). The draft contains proposals for selective review of green belt at Oxford and Guildford, and possibly to the South of Woking. The draft also states that boundary review will be required in the area of the former DERA site at Chertsey, as well as a small scale local review at Redhill/Reigate.

The draft also states that if green belt land is lost, consideration should be given to whether a broader review of green belt is needed with a particular view to determining whether additional land should be designated as green belt.

The exact area of land that will be reviewed, removed or added to the green belt will be assessed through these reviews, and as a consequence it is not possible to state the extent to which green belts will be amended.

Regional Planning And Development: South West

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer of 2 June 2008, whether the Government Office for the South West has issued instructions to local councils to approach local land owners regarding developments in the Lytchett Minster and Lytchett Maltravers area. [224197]

Mr. Khan: The Government office for the south-west has not issued any instructions to local councils in respect of developments in the Lytchett Minster and Lytchett Matravers area.

Rented Housing: Antisocial Behaviour

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many families with children have been evicted as a result of anti-social behaviour in each local authority area in each of the last five years. [221795]

Mr. Iain Wright: Social landlords (including local authorities and registered social landlords) can move to evict anti socially behaved families under Ground 2 of the Housing Act 1985 (for secure tenancies) and Ground 14 of the Housing Act 1988 (for assured tenancies), which both provides that social landlords can take possession action against tenants who have been guilty of conduct which has caused a nuisance or annoyance to their neighbours.

The Housing Corporation asks registered social landlords to provide numbers of evictions made during the year, broken down by reason, which includes rent arrears, antisocial behaviour, both or other. This information is not possible to break down at the local authority level, nor is it possible to identify families with children.

CLG has asked local authority landlords in England to submit data on the number of evictions they have made for 2005-06, 2006-07 and, most recently, 2007-08. This includes a breakdown by reason, specifically rent arrears, antisocial behaviour, or both, but it is not possible to identify families with children.

Repossession Orders

Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will bring forward proposals for measures to allow local authorities to raise finance against their assets to purchase homes (a) undergoing and (b) pending repossession by commercial creditors. [224188]

Mr. Iain Wright: Local authorities can already borrow to support capital investment, such as purchasing shares in homes, provided that the interest on such debt is affordable, i.e. that the interest payments can be met from the council's income.

On 2 September, the Government set out a package of measures to help the housing market. This includes a £200 million mortgage rescue scheme which will bring together local authorities and registered social landlords to prevent repossession for up to 6,000 vulnerable home owners, over the next two years.

Right To Buy Scheme

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will adjust right-to-buy discounts to take account of changes in house prices since 1997. [222716]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Government have no plans to change the current maximum Right to Buy discount limits.

South East

Dr. Stoate: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much her Department spent on services, broken down by type in (a) Dartford Borough, (b) Kent Thameside, (c) the Thames Gateway, (d) Kent County Council area and (e) the South East region in each of the last five years. [222453]

Sportsgrounds: Eltham

Clive Efford: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will make a statement on the future of the Gaelic Sports Ground in Eltham following the High Court judgement to uphold her decision to reject the appeal from Novalong. [224301]

Mr. Iain Wright: In the light of the High Court judgment to uphold the Secretary of State's decision to dismiss Novalong Ltd.'s appeal, the future of the Gaelic Sports Ground in Eltham is a matter for the site's owners and the local planning authority, Greenwich borough council.

Stress

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what arrangements her Department has in place to assist officials to overcome the effects of stress experienced in the workplace. [222178]

Mr. Khan: Individual stress risk assessments are completed by line managers and when appropriate, referrals made to our Occupational Health Provider. This allows reasonable adjustments to be made to workloads and the working environment if appropriate.

Taxis

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much (a) her Department and (b) its agencies spent on taxis in the last financial year for which figures are available. [223027]

Mr. Khan: The central Department, including the Government Offices, spent £149,566 on taxi fares in the financial year ended 31 March 2008. The Planning Inspectorate, the Department's sole executive agency, does not record details of taxi fares separately from other travel costs incurred by their inspectors in attending site meetings and hearings and the cost of identifying this information would be disproportionate.

Tenants Rights

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what statutory protection exists for people (a) living in poor conditions and (b) experiencing bullying or harassment from landlords, where those landlords are not registered social landlords. [222527]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Housing Health and Safety Rating System (HHSRS) is a risk based evaluation tool to help local authorities identify and protect against potential risks and hazards to health and safety from any deficiencies identified in dwellings. It was introduced under the Housing Act 2004 and came into effect on 6 April 2006. It applies to residential properties in England.

The HHSRS assesses 29 categories of housing hazard, each hazard has a weighting which will help determine whether the property is rated as having category 1 (serious) or category 2 (other) hazards. Local authorities are responsible for the local implementation and enforcement of the HHSRS. If a property is found to contain serious hazards the local authority has a duty to take the most appropriate action in relation to the hazard.

There is a choice of enforcement options which are available to local authorities. These can involve emergency remedial action. The route followed is for the authority to decide, having regard to statutory enforcement guidance.

The Protection from Eviction Act 1977 gives local authorities the power to start legal proceedings for offences of harassment against tenants, and to prosecute if they believe an offence has been committed. In extreme cases of harassment and where the property is in poor condition, a local authority may take over the management of a house, by making it subject to a control order. A local authority also has compulsory purchase powers which it can use in certain circumstances where there is very bad harassment.

In certain circumstances a tenant may take legal action against his or her landlord for 'breach of the covenant for quiet enjoyment'. This is a term which every tenancy agreement contains (whether set out in words or not) that the tenant should be able to enjoy his or her home in peace as a basic human right. The tenant may also have grounds on other counts according to the nature of the case.

Under the Housing Act 1988, for cases of illegal eviction and of harassment which cause a tenant to leave his or her home, the court may award damages based on the profit made by a landlord from illegally evicting the tenant.

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what representations she has received on people living in almshouses who were (a) living in poor conditions and (b) experiencing bullying or harassment from landlords in each of the last five years. [222528]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Department's records suggest that four representations on these issues have been received during the last five years, one in 2006 and three in 2007, all from the same individual.

Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will take steps to ensure that social housing tenants who do not choose to opt into arms length management organisation schemes receive the same per capita subsidy from Government as those who do. [224187]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Government required local authorities owning housing stock to undertake an options appraisal to determine how they could deliver the decent homes standard. For those authorities that considered they would not have sufficient resources to make their homes decent the Government provided three delivery options that would bring in extra resources: setting up an Arms Length Management Organisation (ALMO); transferring the ownership of the homes to a registered social landlord; and entering into a Private Finance Initiative (PFI) contract.

Thames Gateway

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will make a statement on the first anniversary of the Prime Minister's speech of 29 November 2007 to the Thames Gateway Forum giving an assessment of the progress made on the Thames Gateway policy, with particular reference to (a) land assembly for residential development, (b) planning permission granted for residential development, (c) housing construction starts, (d) use of brown field land, (e) regeneration, (f) measures to improve the skills base, (g) commercial and industrial development and (h) transport and communications. [222376]

Mr. Iain Wright: We plan to make a statement on progress at the time of this year's Thames Gateway Forum, on 26 and 27 November 2008.

[223784]

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what plans the Valuation Office Agency has to revise its Charter in relation to cold-calling following the recent ruling by the Adjudication Officer on inspecting premises without making a prior appointment. [223953]

John Healey: The Agency plans to revise its Charter to take account of the adjudicator's decision by 31 October 2008.

Valuation Office: Databases

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar (Mr. Pickles) of 21 April 2008, Official Report, column 1689W, on Valuation Office: Geographical Information System, if she will list the mapping products and datasets that the Valuation Office Agency will use from Ordnance Survey for the Geographical Information System; [222643]

(2) what geographical data sources the Valuation Office Agency will purchase, obtain and repurpose to populate its proposed geographic information system. [222714]

Jane Kennedy: I have been asked to reply.

The VOA will use the following mapping products from the Ordnance Survey in its Geographical Information System:

Mr. Iain Wright: The Department has not yet received a copy of the business plan of the zero carbon hub. When received, I will arrange for a copy to be placed in the Library.

TREASURY

Aggregates Levy

Justine Greening: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what discussions his Department has had with the British Aggregates Association on the Opinion of 17 July of Advocate General Mengozzi of the European Court of Justice on the legality of the aggregates levy; [223771]

(2) what assessment he has made of the legality of the aggregates levy following the comments of 17 July of Advocate General Mengozzi of the European Court of Justice on the legality of the levy. [223772]

Mr. Timms: The Advocate General's Opinion is designed to aid the court in reaching its decision and is a preliminary stage in the proceedings, which are continuing. Discussions with the British Aggregates Association would not be appropriate while the case continues.

Capital Gains Tax: Tax Allowances

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will estimate the cost to the Exchequer of introducing a retirement relief on capital gains tax of (a) £100,000, (b) £250,000, (c) £500,000 and (d) £1,000,000. [222939]

[222062]

Angela Eagle: The travel policy in the Treasury and its agencies is for staff to use the class of travel most appropriate to business needs. Where this means staff use standard or economy tickets in preference to business or first class, they derive no benefit either monetary or in kind.

Departmental Buildings

Mr. Betts: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what account his Department takes of the level of energy efficiency of buildings before entering into agreements to (a) rent and (b) purchase those buildings. [221096]

James Duddridge: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the location is of each office occupied by (a) his Department and (b) each of its agencies which has been (i) newly occupied and (ii) refurbished in the last 24 months; and what the floor area in square metres is of each. [221999]

[222900]

Mr. Timms: The Treasury and its agencies (DMO, OGC and OGCbuyingsolutions), in accordance with Cabinet Office guidance, did not report any personal data related incidents for the period 2007-08 to the Information Commissioner's Office.

Before November 2007 the Information Commissioner's Office did not specifically keep records of instances of security breaches.

I refer the hon. Member to the statement made by my right hon. Friend the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster on 25 June 2008, providing the final report on measures for data handling procedures in government.

Departmental Databases

James Duddridge: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what use (a) his Department and (b) its agencies make of (i) MOSAIC data and (ii) ACORN data. [222060]

Departmental Home Working

Bob Spink: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 23 June 2008, Official Report, column 128W, on departmental home working, if he will make it his policy to collate and maintain central records of home working by his Department's staff. [222535]

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer which Minister has responsibility for each of his Department's public service agreement targets. [223983]

Mr. Timms: For the 2007 comprehensive spending review period, HM Treasury has lead responsibility for one public service agreement (PSA):

"Halve the number of children in poverty by 2010-11, on the way to eradicating child poverty by 2020 (PSA 9)".

The Exchequer Secretary has responsibility for the performance of the Treasury under the direction of the Chancellor of the Exchequer.

EDF Energy

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what contracts (a) his Department and (b) its agencies have with EDF; and how much (i) his Department and (ii) its agencies paid to EDF in each of the last 10 years, broken down by the purpose of the payment. [221837]

Angela Eagle: Neither the Treasury nor its agencies have any record of contracts with EDF Energy for the supply of energy in any of the last 10 years. The Treasury's accounting record shows three annual payments of £701 having been made to EDF Energy since 2006-07 in respect of a communication charge and the leasing of an electricity meter.

EU Budget: Contributions

Mr. Brady: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate his Department has made of the effect of sterling/euro exchange rate changes on the UK net contribution to the EU in (a) each of the last five years for which figures are available and (b) 2008 to date, using the previous Budget Red Book as a base figure in each case. [222496]

Ian Pearson: No separate estimate is made. Exchange rate changes will, of course, impact on these forecasts but this is only one of a number of factors which are taken into account, and which inter-relate with each other, in putting together each forecast. Figures for UK net contributions to the EC Budget are published twice each year in the Budget and the pre-Budget report (PBR) and latest estimates will be included in the PBR later this year.

EU Law

Mr. Francois: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many officials in his Department are wholly or mainly tasked with the negotiation, implementation or the administration of EU legislation and consequent policies. [222278]

Ian Pearson: The EU is of central importance to the work of HM Government across all Departments. It is relevant to a wide range of policy areas, and to the work of many Government officials. Detailed information of the kind requested is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Excise Duties: Motor Vehicles

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the likely effect of the changes to vehicle excise duty introduced in the 2008 Budget on the value of second hand cars. [221767]

Ian Pearson: A number of factors affect the purchase price of second hand vehicles, such as brand, mileage, reliability and comfort. Tax is only one factor.

Tim Farron: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what consideration his Department has given to the introduction of a derogation from road tax increases for working farm vehicles. [224438]

Mr. Timms: Vehicles used solely for agricultural purposes are exempt from vehicle excise duty.

Fraud

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Cardiff, Central of 2 July 2008, Official Report, columns 964-65, on fraud, what cases referred to in the answer were excluding any references to individuals; and which cases (a) are under investigation and (b) have been resolved. [220835]

Mr. Timms: As there were fewer than five cases, it would not be appropriate to provide details. All cases have been resolved.

Higher Civil Servants

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many people his Department employs who have an annual salary of over £100,000. [222322]

Angela Eagle: 15 Treasury officials currently have an annual salary of over £100,000.

Housing: Greater London

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment the Valuation Office Agency has made of the average house price in London in (a) April 2006, (b) April 2007 and (c) the most recent period for which figures are available. [222839]

Jane Kennedy: The Valuation Office Agency (VOA) does not assess an average house price in London. However, it produces a biannual Property Market Report, based on valuation dates of January and July each year, that includes statistics for indicative house values across 17 areas of London for five different dwelling types ranging from pre war terraced houses to 1960s flats. The statistics can be viewed on the VOA's website www.voa.gov.uk under 'Publications'.

Housing: Valuation

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Bromley and Chislehurst of 18 June 2008, Official Report, column 988W, on housing: valuation, if he will place in the Library an Excel chart listing the numerical value of the co-efficient for each locality used by the automated valuation model. [223081]

Jane Kennedy: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar (Mr. Pickles) on 22 July 2008, Official Report, column 1393W.

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Bromley and Chislehurst of 18 June 2008, Official Report, column 988W, and to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar of 7 May 2008, Official Report, columns 912-13W, on housing: valuation, what unique number has been given to each locality; and in which billing authority each lies. [223086]

Jane Kennedy: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Bromley and Chislehurst (Robert Neill) on 7 July 2008, Official Report, column 1258W.

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much the Valuation Office Agency has allocated for data capture in 2008-09. [223089]

Jane Kennedy: Data capture is an integral part of much of the work of the Valuation Office Agency and not subject to a separate cost allocation.

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the Answer to the hon. Member for Bromley of 18 June 2008, Official Report, column 988W, on housing: valuation, what the average area of each locality is. [223092]

Jane Kennedy: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar (Mr. Pickles) on 21 April 2008, Official Report, column 1689W. No precise calculation of the total or average individual area has been made as this is not required for operational purposes—and to do so would involve disproportionate cost.

Income Tax: Prisoners

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer on how many occasions income tax has been repaid to people in custody in the last three years. [224310]

Mr. Timms: The information requested is not available.

Income Tax: Tax Allowances

Mr. Brady: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the level of the personal allowance for income tax would be in the 2008-09 tax year if it had been increased in line with the Retail Price Index since 1972. [222502]

Jane Kennedy: The income tax personal allowance would be £4,065 for 2008-09 if it had been increased in line with the retail prices index each year since 1972.

Income Tax: Tax Rates and Bands

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will estimate the effect on revenue to the Exchequer of decreasing the basic rate of income tax by (a) one penny, (b) two pence, (c) three pence, (d) four pence and (e) five pence. [222937]

Mr. Timms: The Exchequer effect of changes in the basic rate of income tax can be derived from table 1.6 'Direct effects of illustrative tax changes' on the HM Revenue and Customs website at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/tax_expenditures/table1-6.pdf

Minimum Wage

Jon Trickett: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether hon. Members who report alleged instances of employers paying wages at rates below the national minimum wage are routinely informed of steps taken by his Department in response to such reports. [221704]

Mr. Timms: HM Revenue and Customs have a legal duty of confidentiality towards their customers. For NMW, this includes employers and their workers. This means that HM Revenue and Customs cannot routinely disclose details to Members who report alleged instances of non-compliant employers. However, where the Member is acting in a representative capacity for a named worker and the worker has submitted a signed authority to that effect, the Member may be kept informed of progress.

Jon Trickett: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent steps his Department has taken on enforcement of provisions relating to the national minimum wage; and if he will make a statement. [221752]

Mr. Timms: The enforcement activities of HMRC for 2007-08 will be set out in the Government Evidence to the Low Pay Commission 2008 (non-economic evidence), expected to be available on the BERR website this month. The enforcement activities of HMRC for recent years prior to 2007-08 are set out in the Government Evidence for previous years that is now available on the BERR website.

Jon Trickett: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many fines have been issued to employers for paying employees at rates below the national minimum wage in (a) England, (b) Wakefield district and (c) Hemsworth constituency since the provisions came into force; and what the sum of such fines has been in each year. [221754]

Mr. Timms: The information requested is not available in the categories specified.

Mr. Love: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what spending was on tax reliefs under the mortgage interest relief at source scheme in each of the last 20 years, broken down by (a) type of tenancy and (b) category of housing provision. [221776]

Ian Pearson: Available information on the cost of mortgage interest relief is published on the HM Revenue and Customs website at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/mir/menu.htm

Motor Vehicles: Excise Duties

Mr. Todd: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how vehicles retro-fitted with a hydrogen kit are treated for vehicle excise duty purposes; what tax banding applies to such vehicles; and if he will make a statement. [221697]

Mr. Timms: VED will be fuel neutral from 2011-12.

Vehicles fitted with retrofitted devices marketed to aid fuel savings remain subject to VED under CO_2 graduated brandings if registered from 1 March 2001 onwards, or engine capacity based rated of VED if registered earlier. All vehicles registered or built prior to 1973 remain nil rated if not in commercial use.

Northern Rock

Mr. Fallon: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer on what date he was first advised by Goldman Sachs that under the best case scenario for Northern Rock the related costs to the Exchequer would be at least £450 million. [223253]

Ian Pearson [holding answer 10 September 2008]: The information requested relates to proceedings that are currently before the courts and so it would be inappropriate to comment.

Planning Permission

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what planning applications were made by his Department between 2001-02 and 2006-07; and for what purpose in each case. [222841]

Angela Eagle: The Treasury made no planning applications during the period concerned.

Revenue and Customs: Job Satisfaction

Philip Davies: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will place in the Library the full results of each of the staff satisfaction surveys at HM Revenue and Customs in each of the last five years. [222617]

Jane Kennedy: HM Revenue and Customs currently conduct a staff survey twice yearly covering 20,000 to 30,000 staff.

The most recent results from November 2007 are published on the Department's external website and are available for viewing.

The published results show comparisons with the previous staff surveys that have taken place since the formation of HMRC on 18 April 2005.

Revenue and Customs: Rightmove

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 15 July 2008, Official Report, column 234W, on Revenue and Customs: Rightmove, what the timetable is for the operational decision to be made on whether to extend the contract. [222486]

Jane Kennedy: No firm timetable exists.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 15 July 2008, Official Report, column 234W, on Revenue and Customs: Rightmove, when the contracts expire; and whether the expiration of the contract would mean that historic data could still be accessed. [222487]

Jane Kennedy: I refer the hon. Member to the answers given on 22 May 2006, Official Report, columns 1106-07.

Revenue and Customs: Southend on Sea

Mr. Amess: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will visit the HM Revenue and Customs offices in Southend-on-Sea to meet (a) staff and (b) union representatives to discuss the number of staff employed at the office; and if he will make a statement. [222287]

Mr. Timms: The Minister responsible for HM Revenue and Customs (HMRC) has visited several HMRC offices and will continue to do so, meeting regularly with Members of Parliament and union representatives to discuss HMRC's Workforce Change programme.

I have no current plans to visit the offices in Southend but I would be happy to meet the hon. Gentleman to discuss matters of concern to him.

HEALTH

Abortion

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 16 July 2008, Official Report, column 521W, on abortion, for what reasons a written record of discussions with the organisations referred to is not available; and if he will make a statement. [222228]

Dawn Primarolo: The Department does not hold a formal record of each of the individual interviews that took place. However, some of the information obtained from those discussions was used to develop the partial regulatory impact assessment.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 15 July 2008, Official Report, column 330W, on abortion, if he will place in the Library a copy of the guidance listed; and if he will make a statement. [222229]

Dawn Primarolo: Further to the written answer I gave the hon. Member for Southend, West (Mr. Amess) on 15 July 2008, Official Report, column 330W, a copy of the listed guidance has been placed in the Library, as requested.

[222230]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department's forthcoming document "Good Practice Guidance for the Commissioning of Contraception and Abortion Services" will be published in the autumn. Accidents

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of the work undertaken by the Accidental Injury Prevention Programme in his Department; and how many officials in his Department have responsibility for this programme, broken down by (a) pay band and (b) location. [222235]

Dawn Primarolo: The Department, in partnership with stakeholders including other Government Departments, has been working to prevent accidental injury and to promote safety. For example, the National Service Frameworks for Children and Older People, through their standards for health and well-being, recognise the importance of unintentional injury and the need for prevention initiatives led by the NHS in partnership with local authorities. The Department has also asked the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE) to develop a suite of guidance on the prevention of unintentional injury in children under 15 year olds. It is also working with Department for Children, Schools and Families on its cross-government Public Service Agreement to improve children and young people's safety.

There are five officials in the central Department who, as part of their duties, have direct responsibility for the coordination of accident prevention, as shown in the following table .

Pay Band	Number	Location
Permanent Secretary (Chief Medical Officer)	1	London
SCS3	1	London

Alcoholic Drinks: Consumption

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what account was taken of the conclusions of his Department's inter-departmental working group on sensible drinking published in December 1995 in formulating the Government's policy on alcohol consumption; and if he will make a statement. [222325]

Dawn Primarolo: The report of the conclusions of the Department's inter-departmental working group on sensible drinking, "Sensible Drinking", were published in December 1995 and drew upon a wide range of research, epidemiological evidence, expert consensus and advice, including reports from various Royal Colleges, in considering the relative risks and potential benefits of alcohol consumption to both health and mortality.

The Government fully accepted the group's conclusions and their findings remain the basis for our advice, that men should not regularly exceed 3-4 units daily and women 2-3 units daily.

The Government continue to keep under review the emergence of any major new evidence on risks relating to alcohol consumption, to ensure guidance remains up to date. For example, when new evidence concerning alcohol and pregnancy was identified the CMO issued revised advice on 25 May 2007.

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the effects on health of moderate alcohol consumption and its contribution to the prevention of coronary heart disease; and if he will make a statement. [222327]

Dawn Primarolo: The Department's interdepartmental working group on sensible drinking reviewed the evidence concerning the beneficial effects of alcohol consumption to both health and mortality and their findings were published in the report "Sensible Drinking", in 1995.

They found that light to moderate consumption of alcohol, less than two units of alcohol a day, at ages over 45 for men or post-menopause for women, can have a protective effect against a number of diseases, including coronary heart disease. However, drinking at this level may also contribute to other health harms, although at a lower level of risk.

Government guidance primarily focuses on advising the public about the progressive risks to their health associated with drinking above lower risk levels—i.e. either increasing risk or higher risk levels of consumption. This is because of the clear evidence that alcohol consumption contributes to a wide range of health harms, particularly when drunk regularly above the lower risk levels. The evidence also suggests that regular drinking above the lower risk levels does not incur any additional protective effect for coronary heart disease. Hence, the advice on lower risk drinking levels for men and women remains consistent with the evidence of possible health benefits for coronary heart disease.

The Government continue to keep under review the emergence of any major new evidence on the risks and benefits relating to alcohol consumption, to ensure that guidance remains up to date.

Alcoholic Drinks: Misuse

Stephen Hesford: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether his Department has (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated research on the impact of alcohol consumption on public health on Merseyside, with particular reference to its effect on child well-being; and if he will make a statement. [219922]

Dawn Primarolo: The public health consequences from alcohol consumption are well known. On 22 July 2008, the Department published the North West Public Health Observatory (NWPHO) report, "Alcohol-attributable fractions for England—Alcohol-attributable mortality and hospital admissions", which summarised the current information on the health risks from alcohol consumption. A copy of this report has been placed in the Library.

Although the Department's research is currently focused on improving prevention and treatment services, we continue to keep under review the emergence of any major new evidence on the risks and benefits relating to alcohol consumption, to ensure that guidance remains up-to-date.

Local Alcohol Profiles England, run by the NWPHO, provide data for local authorities and primary care trusts (PCT) on the local impact of alcohol use, which allow local alcohol strategies to be tailored to the needs for specific areas.

During 1 July 2008 and 2 September 2008 'Safe Space', a programme to make public spaces safe and to reduce anti-social behaviour, was run in Merseyside. As part of this programme Liverpool PCT and Working Neighbourhood Fund ran 'Safe Space Plus', an initiative that specially addressed alcohol related anti-social behaviour and engaged with young people to encourage safe and sensible drinking. Additional objectives for 'Safe Space Plus' included enabling access to brief interventions or treatment to reduce alcohol consumption, where appropriate, and raising awareness of the risks associated with alcohol consumption.

The NWPHO are evaluating 'Safe Space Plus' and will be outlining the impact of 'Safe Space Plus' on young people and the wider community in a report expected to be published in early 2009.

Ambulance Services: Hoaxes and False Alarms

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many hoax 999 calls were answered by ambulances in London in the last period for which figures are available. [222763]

Arthritis: Drugs

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what proportion of patients with rheumatoid arthritis are expected to receive a second anti-TNF treatment used sequentially after the failure of a first anti-TNF treatment in the next two years; and if he will make a statement; [222250]

(2) if he will estimate the number of patients with rheumatoid arthritis who will not be provided with sequential treatments with anti-TNF drugs over the next five years as a result of the ruling by the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence on the issue; [222251]

(3) what records he holds for benchmarking purposes on the use of anti-TNF treatments in other EU countries; what assessment he has made of how that pattern of use differs from (a) that of its use in England and (b) the differential results of that use in the UK and other member states; and if he will make a statement. [222252]

Dawn Primarolo: We have made no estimate of the proportion of patients with rheumatoid arthritis who are expected to receive a second anti-TNF treatment.

We have made no estimate of the number of patients with rheumatoid arthritis who are expected not be provided with sequential treatments with anti-TNF drugs over the next five years. The Department holds no records on the use of anti-TNF treatments in other EU countries.

British Fluoridation Society: Finance

Mr. Crausby: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what funding his Department has provided to the British Fluoridation Society in the last three years; and whether the Society receives such funding on (a) a regular or (b) an ad hoc basis. [223844]

Dawn Primarolo: The Department ceased to fund the British Fluoridation Society in 2005 after legislation was enacted requiring decisions on fluoridation to be taken locally.

Cancer

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what recent discussions he has had about the future of cancer care in Merseyside and Cheshire; [221765]

(2) what consideration he has given to improving cancer services on the Clatterbridge Hospital site; [222962]

(3) what assessment he has made of the merits of establishing a high dependency cancer unit on site at Clatterbridge Hospital. [223000]

Ann Keen: The delivery and organisation of services is the responsibility of the national health service locally, working in conjunction with clinicians, patients and other stakeholders. Any proposals regarding cancer services at the Clatterbridge hospital site remain the responsibility of the Clatterbridge Centre for Oncology NHS Foundation Trust in partnership with its local primary care trusts and other relevant stakeholders.

There have been no discussions involving the Secretary of State for Health or his ministerial colleagues on this matter.

Cancer: Health Services

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which cancer networks (a) have and (b) do not have a patient information manager in place. [220965]

Ann Keen: As at 8 September 2008, 18 of the 30 networks already have a patient information manager in post and the remainder are expected to have one in post by February 2009. The following tables list those cancer networks with a patient information manager currently in post and those without.

Care Homes: Fees and Charges

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many and what proportion of patients in care homes receiving nursing care (a) have their costs paid by a primary care trust through fully-funded NHS continuing care, (b) are self-funded and (c) are funded by a local authority; [222685]

(2) how many patients are receiving nursing care in care homes. [222686]

Dawn Primarolo: The information is not available in the format requested.

At December 2002, there were 41,580 self-funding residents receiving nursing care in care homes in England. Information for later years is not collected centrally.

As at 31 March 2007, the latest data available, 70,065 people whose costs were met wholly or partly by a council with adult social services responsibilities were resident in a nursing care home.

In October 2001, the Government delivered on time the commitment given in the NHS Plan to introduce national health service funded nursing care for those in a care home providing nursing care, who had previously paid for the care they needed from a registered nurse. From April 2003, all residents of care homes providing nursing care, including those placed by local authorities, have received NHS funding of their nursing care, rather than that element of their care being provided by the local council and subject to a means test.

In 2007-08, 117,587 people, including self-funders, were receiving NHS-funded free nursing care[1].

The Government have produced a new national framework, which sets out a single, national system for determining eligibility for NHS Continuing Healthcare. The Framework, which was implemented, in October 2007, will lead to fair and consistent access to NHS funding across England, irrespective of location, so that people with equal needs have an equal chance of getting all their care free.

In 2007-08, 38,168 people were receiving NHS Continuing Healthcare[1].

Chelsea and Westminster Hospital NHS Foundation Trust

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what advice on what occasions the (a) Kensington and Chelsea Primary Care Trust and (b) Westminister Primary Care Trust have received from (i) his Department and (ii) the Healthcare Commission on the requirement for patients referred to the Chelsea and Westminister Hospital Foundation by GPs contracted to their primary care trust, to be able to use the choose and book appointment system; and if he will make a statement. [222389]

Mr. Bradshaw: Advice has been continually given by the Department and national health service Connecting for Health, to primary care trusts (PCTs) and providers of NHS care on the implementation of Choose and Book. The NHS Operating Framework for 2006-07 set a target that 90 per cent., of general practitioner referrals to first consultant-led out-patient services should be made through the Choose and Book system to a directly bookable service by March 2007. This was reconfirmed in the Operating Framework for 2007-08, and also mentioned in the Information Management and Technology guidance, with the aim of moving towards a position where Choose and Book is used as the standard safe and secure method for all referrals.

We are informed that the Healthcare Commission has given no advice to the Kensington and Chelsea PCT, and Westminster PCT on the requirement for patients referred to the Chelsea and Westminster NHS Foundation Trust to be able to use the Choose and Book appointment system.

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what advice on what occasions the Chelsea and Westminister Hospital Foundation Trust has been given on the implementation of the policy of allowing patients to use the choose and book appointments system by (a) Monitor, the independent regulator of NHS foundation trusts and (b) the Healthcare Commission; and if he will make a statement. [222390]

Mr. Bradshaw: We are informed by the Chairman of Monitor (the statutory name of which is the Independent regulator of NHS Foundation Trusts) that no advice has been given to the Chelsea and Westminster NHS Foundation Trust on the implementation of Choose and Book, except to specify the basis on which NHS foundation trusts (NHSFT) should report compliance, and to draw attention to the definition of the Choose and Book target.

We are also informed that the Healthcare Commission has given no advice to the Chelsea and Westminster NHSFT in relation to the implementation of the policy of allowing patients to use the Book and Choose system.

Choose and Book is a national service that combines electronic booking and a choice of time, date and place for first consultant led out-patient appointments. Advice has been continually given by the Department and NHS Connecting for Health to primary care trusts and providers of NHS care on the implementation of Choose and Book. The NHS Operating Framework for 2006-07 set a target that 90 per cent. of general practitioner referrals to first consultant-led outpatient services should be made through the Choose and Book system to a directly bookable service by March 2007. This was reconfirmed in the Operating Framework for 2007-08 and also mentioned in the Information Management and Technology guidance with the aim of moving towards a position where Choose and Book is used as the standard safe and secure method for all referrals.

Children: Health

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) pursuant to the answer of 21 April 2008, Official Report, column 1777W, on child health who the suppliers are of information for appendices 4, 7, 13 and 17; and what those documents refer to; [221443]

(2) pursuant to the answer of 12 December 2007, Official Report, column 634W, on the Child Health Interim Application (CHIA) for what reasons (a) the output based specification for the CHIA options appraisal report and (b) the weighting and scoring spreadsheet are commercially sensitive. [221634]

Ann Keen: The documents in question comprise the following:

Appendix 4: Description of Standalone Service Community Solution (extract from output based specification);

Appendix 7: Supplier Responses (from CSW Group, CSE Servelec, McKesson UK, Health Solution Wales) to Child Health Standalone Service Requirements V1.0 04/08/06;

Appendix 13: Supplier Responses (from CSW Group, CSE Servelec, McKesson UK, Health Solution Wales) to Additional NHS Questions Post Demonstration;

Appendix 17: Weighting and Scoring Template (BT document).

Following further discussion with BT, the basis on which this material was withheld previously—namely, that it would, or would be likely to, cause prejudice to the commercial interests of the suppliers—has been reviewed. While appendices 7 and 13 continue to be judged commercially sensitive, copies of appendices 4 and 17 have now been placed in the Library.

Chiropody: Services

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what national guidelines are in place on the provision of free podiatry services for older people; and if he will make a statement; [222475]

(2) what income from charging for podiatry services each English health trust accrued in each of last five years; [222477]

(3) how much was spent on podiatry services in each English health trust in each of the last five reported years. [222483]

Dawn Primarolo: All national health service podiatry services are provided free of charge on the basis of assessed clinical need. It is for primary care trusts (PCTs) in partnership with local stakeholders, including practice based commissioners, local government and the public to determine how best to use their funds to meet national and local priorities for improving health and to commission services accordingly.

Guidance for access to foot care is included in the national service frameworks for older people, diabetes, and long-term conditions, and the White Paper, "Our health, our care, our say: a new direction for community services".

Information about how much funding PCTs allocate to podiatry services is not collected centrally.

Foot care services for older people are being reviewed as part of the prevention package announced by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Health (Alan Johnson) in May. The purpose of the package is to raise awareness among older people, of the existing core prevention services to which they are entitled and to support the service in making improvements in other key areas such as foot care. The package is due to be launched in spring 2009.

Chiropody: Standards

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 16 July 2008, Official Report, column 523W, on chiropody, whether he plans to set consistent minimum standards for NHS chiropody provision across regions. [223850]

Dawn Primarolo: There are no plans to set minimum standards for the provision of chiropody services centrally. Access to chiropody services is a matter for primary care trusts based on the assessed needs of their local population. To help trusts develop their policy for access to foot care, guidance is included in the national service frameworks for older people, diabetes, and long-term conditions, and the White Paper, "Our health, our care, our say: a new direction for community services".

CJD

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) if he will commission further epidemiological studies into common factors among those who have contracted variant Creutzfeldt-Jakob disease; and if he will make a statement; [222328]

(2) if he will hold discussions with his counterparts in the devolved administrations on epidemiological studies of possible sources of rogue prions in the 1980s and 1990s that caused variant Creutzfeldt-Jakob disease; and if he will make a statement. [222329]

Dawn Primarolo: The National CJD Surveillance Unit (NCJDSU) currently considers the epidemiology of all new cases in the United Kingdom, against the background of on-going studies examining risk factors for vCJD. Findings are regularly published in peer reviewed journals and the NCJDSU Annual Report.

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) deaths from variant Creutzfeldt-Jakob disease (vCJD) and (b) new diagnoses of vCJD there have been since the period covered by the press release placed on his Department's website on vCJD statistics in October 2007; and if he will make a statement. [222331]

Dawn Primarolo: There has been one new vCJD diagnosis and three deaths since the final monthly press release dated 2 October 2007.

CJD: Babies

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many children were diagnosed with variant Creutzfeldt-Jakob disease (vCJD) after being born to mothers with vCJD in each of the last 10 years; and if he will make a statement. [222332]

Dawn Primarolo: There have been no reported cases of maternal transmission of vCJD by the National CJD Surveillance Unit.

CJD: Blood

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 11 March 2008, Official Report, column 256W, on blood transfusions, how many infected tonsils so far analysed were from V-V or M-V genotypes; and if he will make a statement. [222311]

Dawn Primarolo: The National Anonymous Tonsil Archive has tested approximately 70,000 pairs of tonsils to date, none of them tested positive.

CJD: Death

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what records he holds on the number of UK citizens who lived overseas who died from variant Creutzfeldt-Jakob Disease in the last 10 years. [222309]

Dawn Primarolo: There have been three known cases of variant Creutzfeldt-Jakob Disease (vCJD) in which the onset of disease occurred whilst the patient was living in the United Kingdom, but who died overseas. The National CJD Surveillance Unit includes these cases in the figures for the UK, because they lived in the UK at the time of the onset of their illness.

CJD: Dental Services

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what checks have been made by his Department following the Chief Dental Officer's advice that certain instruments used in endodontic work should only be used once as a precaution against the spread of variant Creutzfeldt-Jakob disease to ensure that such instruments are not being used more than once; and if he will make a statement. [222330]

Dawn Primarolo: Feedback from primary care trusts and dental practices supported by evidence from suppliers of dental equipment, which shows that there has been an increase in sales of single use instruments, suggests that the guidance is being observed. To corroborate these findings we are to undertake a National Dental Decontamination Survey to provide data on current practice on decontamination, including use of single use instruments, in dental practices. We intend that the survey should comprise a postal questionnaire to a sample of practices followed up by visits to at least 100 practices.

CJD: Statistics

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when his Department last issued a press release with monthly vCJD statistics; when he next expects to update the figures on his Department's website; what the reasons are for the time taken to release vCJD statistics; and if he will make a statement. [222313]

Dawn Primarolo: The final monthly press release of vCJD statistics was issued on 2 October 2007. The Department is no longer issuing these statistics because it duplicates the official statistics published by the National CJD Surveillance Unit. The Department's website now refers users directly to the NCJDSU website at http://www.cjd.ed.ac.uk/, which contains the latest statistics, which are updated on a monthly basis.

Colorectal Cancer: Screening

Dr. Stoate: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when he expects the roll-out of the NHS bowel cancer screening programme to be completed for all those eligible. [222541]

Ann Keen: Roll-out of the national NHS bowel cancer screening programme began in April 2006, with the first invitations sent out in July 2006. Full national implementation is expected by December 2009.

Dr. Stoate: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which primary care trusts have yet to be included in the NHS bowel cancer screening programme for 60 to 69 year olds; and when he expects the programme to be rolled out in each primary care trust. [222542]

Dawn Primarolo: We are continuing to roll out the NHS bowel cancer screening programme and expect it to be fully implemented by December 2009. The following table lists the remaining primary care trusts where bowel cancer screening will commence in the final roll-out.

Dr. Stoate: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps he is taking to improve take-up of the bowel cancer screening programme amongst hard to reach groups. [222543]

Ann Keen: As the NHS bowel cancer screening programme has not yet been rolled out fully across the country, we have yet to identify any specific problems with uptake. We expect the programme to be fully implemented by December 2009.

When the bowel cancer screening programme is fully operational, we will be in a position to identify whether there are any issues surrounding uptake in any particular groups, including black and minority ethnic and deprived groups. If any health inequalities in bowel cancer screening are identified, it will be for those primary care trusts with low uptake levels to develop targeted programmes to tackle them.

A booklet entitled 'Bowel Cancer Screening: The Facts', which provides information about bowel cancer and sets out the benefits and risks of participating in the screening programme, is sent out with each invitation. A copy has been placed in the Library. This has been translated into a number of languages. It is important to note that no screening method is perfect and anyone invited to be screened for cancer must be aware of both the potential benefits and harms of being screened and be able to make an informed decision on whether or not to take part.

In December 2007, the Cancer Reform Strategy established the National Awareness and Early Detection Initiative, led by the National Cancer Director. The initiative will improve cancer symptom awareness amongst members of the public and healthcare professionals, and will encourage people with symptoms to seek medical help earlier than they do now. It will work with NHS Cancer Screening programmes on key messages and awareness programmes to improve screening uptake, particularly in deprived groups.

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the size of the eligible population for bowel cancer screening, broken down by (a) screening hub and (b) sex. [223018]

Mr. Bradshaw: Full national roll out of the NHS bowel cancer screening programme is expected by December 2009. The following table shows the projected estimate of the size of the eligible population for bowel cancer screening (men and women aged 60 to 69) by regional screening hub once the programme has been fully rolled out across the country.

Cot Deaths: Research

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how much funding his Department provided for research into sudden infant death syndrome in 2007-08; [223964]

(2) how much was spent by his Department on research into sudden infant death syndrome in the last 12 months. [223904]

Dawn Primarolo: The Department's policy research programme and the National Institute for Health Research spent some £200,000 on projects concerned with sudden infant death syndrome in 2007-08.

Dementia

Mr. Burrowes: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much of the money allocated to health and social care spending in the next five years has been allocated for implementation of the National Dementia Strategy. [224492]

Phil Hope: A draft of a National Dementia Strategy was published on 19 June for consultation. The consultation closed on 11 September and we are currently considering carefully all the responses received before deciding the final shape of the strategy, and what resources are available to support its implementation. Funding will be announced around the same time when the strategy is published.

Dental Services

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what guidance he has issued on the free provision of treatment by hygienists in NHS dental practices. [224463]

Dawn Primarolo: The Department has issued no guidance on the free provision of treatment by hygienists in NHS dental practices. The NHS dental system ensures that patients are entitled to all treatment that is clinically needed which the patient is willing to undergo. Which dental professional delivers the treatment is a clinical matter for the practice not the NHS. Where dental hygienists are part of the team in the practice delivering NHS care that treatment will be free where either the patient is exempt from NHS charges or the treatment itself is free. This is not affected by whether the treatment is delivered by a hygienist or any other dental professional.

Dental Services: Fees and Charges

Jon Trickett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people were charged extra dental treatment fees because a two-month period had elapsed between the start of their course of treatment and the end of that treatment in the most recent period for which figures are available; whether such fees may be charged when a patient could not get an appointment to continue treatment within two months; and if he will make a statement. [223764]

Ann Keen: Dentists are required to identify all care and treatment needed that the patient is willing to undergo at the start of treatment and include this within the treatment plan. A single charge covers all the interventions identified within that national health service treatment plan. This applies whatever the gaps between appointments within that course of treatment. Additionally, if within two months of the course of treatment ending the same provider determines that the patient requires further treatment which falls within the same or a lower charging band as the previous treatment no charge may be made in respect of that further treatment. This applies whether or not the treatment is delivered within two months of the previous course of treatment ending.

Dental Services: Waiting Lists

Jon Trickett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the average waiting time for a dental appointment to (a) receive an examination and (b) continue treatment was in (i) Wakefield district (ii) Yorkshire and the Humber and (iii) England in the latest period for which figures are available. [223765]

Ann Keen: The information requested is not collected centrally. It is for primary care trusts (PCTs) to determine how best to manage patients seeking national health service dental services, and for dental providers to manage the delivery of a complete course of treatment.

However, increasing the number of patients seen within NHS dental services is now a formal priority in the NHS Operating Framework for 2008-09 and we have supported this with a very substantial 11 per cent. uplift in overall allocations to PCTs from 1 April 2008.

Departmental Air Travel

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer to the right hon. Member for Horsham of 14 July 2008, Official Report, column 27W, on carbon emissions: Government departments, how much air mileage incurred through departmental travel was used to calculate the departmental payment to the Government Carbon Offsetting Fund in each year that his Department has participated in the fund, broken down by (a) domestic, (b) short haul and (c) long haul flights. [222084]

Mr. Bradshaw: 2006-07 was the first year that the Department offset the emissions resulting from official air travel. In that year the total distance travelled by air, for which a payment was made to the Government Carbon Offsetting Fund, was 3,620,190 km. We do not have data for this year broken down further.

In 2007-08 the distance travelled by air was as follows:

	Distance travelled (km)
Long haul	2,344,688
Short haul	927,695
Domestic	666,038

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether those staff of (a) his Department and (b) its agencies who are entitled to business class or first class air travel are permitted to (i) travel in a cheaper class to the destination and (ii) benefit in monetary terms or kind from the saving. [222090]

Mr. Bradshaw: Staff members are expected to travel in economy class when travelling by air. Travel expenses are reimbursed based on actual costs incurred and staff are expected to use the Department's travel contractor for ticket booking. Staff are not permitted to travel economy class and claim reimbursement for first class tickets, profiting from the difference. Further, any benefits or compensation obtained from business travel or similar activities is repaid to the Department and cannot be put to personal use, e.g. compensation offered by a travel company for delays in arriving at the destination.

All travel within the Department is undertaken in accordance with the Civil Service Management Code and the Department's staff expenses policy.

Departmental agencies apply similar rules. No member of staff should benefit in monetary terms or kind from any savings accruing from their travel arrangements.

Departmental Buildings

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the location is of each office occupied by (a) his Department and (b) each of its agencies which has been (i) newly occupied and (ii) refurbished in the last 24 months; and what the floor area in square metres is of each. [222093]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department and its agencies has not newly occupied and refurbished any properties in the last 24 months.

Departmental Data Protection

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many notifications (a) his Department and (b) its agencies made to the Information Commissioner following the loss or mishandling of personal information or data in each of the last three years; and what was notified in each case. [222903]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department, in accordance with Cabinet Office guidance, has prepared details of its data related incidents notified to the Information Commissioner's Office in 2007-08 for inclusion in its resource accounts. The Department expects these accounts to be laid before Parliament at the end of the current session. Before November 2007, the Information Commissioner's Office did not specifically keep records of instances of security breaches. I refer the hon. Member to the statement made by my right hon. Friend the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster on 25 June 2008, providing the final report on measures for data handling procedures in Government.

Departmental Disciplinary Proceedings

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the five most serious disciplinary breaches in his Department were in the last 12 months; and what steps were taken in response to each breach. [223059]

Mr. Bradshaw: The five most serious breaches of discipline in the Department in the last 12 months for which steps have been taken are presented in the following table:

Level of seriousness	Nature of breach	Steps taken
Serious misconduct	Internet misuse	Written warning
Serious misconduct	Falsification of records	Written warning
Absence case	Poor attendance	Absence warning
Absence case	Poor attendance	Absence warning
Performance case	Poor performance	Performance warning

There is also one case of possible gross misconduct—a charge of fraud—still outstanding for this period. This case has not yet been completed.

Departmental Homeworking

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 2 July 2008, Official Report, column 937W, on departmental home working, if he will make it his policy to collate and maintain central records of all home working by his Department's staff. [222474]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department already maintains central records of staff who are members of its official home working scheme. We do not intend to extend recording to cover staff who work at home on an occasional basis, at management discretion.

Departmental Information

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what types of data have been sold by (a) his Department and (b) its agencies under the Re-use of Public Sector Information Regulations in the last 12 months. [222091]

Mr. Bradshaw: Core information produced by the Department and the NHS Purchasing and Supplies Agency, which is central to their responsibilities and which is subject to Crown copyright, can be reused free of charge by applying for a Public Sector Information (PSI) Click-Use Licence administered by the Office of Public Sector Information (OPSI). The Medicines and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency (MHRA) has delegated authority from OPSI to administer crown copyright material on its behalf.

Data to which value is added by the Department to enhance and facilitate their use and effectiveness for the user are outside the remit of the PSI licence, and can be sold under a value added licence. The type of data sold by the Department in the last 12 months are health sector specific information on best practice and standards relating to the physical environment. The NHS Purchasing and Supply Agency has not sold any data in the last 12 months, and MHRA has allowed some data relating to licensed products to be reused for a fee in the last 12 months.

Departmental Manpower

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the full-time equivalent headcount of his Department is; and how many of his Department's staff are assigned to work on (a) public health and (b) policies and programmes designed to achieve the Government's target that two million more people regularly participate in physical activity before the 2012 Olympic Games. [221893]

Mr. Bradshaw: The number of full-time equivalent (FTE) civil servants in the Department on 30 June 2008 was 2,208.

The number of FTE staff working within the Public Health Division of the Health Improvement and Protection Directorate is 58 (as at 12 September 2008), which includes civil servants, consultancy support and secondees. The number of FTE staff working within the Health and Well-being Division of the Health Improvement and Protection Directorate is 86.1 (as at 12 September 2008). Again, this figure includes civil servants, consultancy support and secondees. In addition, each of the nine regional public health groups has a headcount of 17.6 FTE civil servants, including the regional director of public health. In the 2008-09 planning round the headcount for the regions totalled 150.8 with the difference relating to vacancies.

However, within the Health Improvement and Protection Directorate and across the Department, there are other teams engaged in aspects of public health work.

At 12 September 2008, the equivalent of 4.2 FTE staff work on policies and programmes designed to achieve the Government's target that 2 million more people regularly participate in physical activity before the 2012 Olympic Games. A further 1.0 FTE is currently being recruited. These figures include civil servants, consultancy support and secondees.

Furthermore, the Department has also assigned an envelope of funding to each of the nine regions for the comprehensive spending review period. In 2008-09 each Regional Public Health Group (RPHG) will receive £100,000 for physical activity. This will be used as each region sees best, to put in place action plans working with partner organisations and stakeholders, though each RPHG has been tasked by the Department to develop a regional 2012 Health Legacy Action Plan that complements the national Legacy Action Plan to deliver a 2012 health legacy. It is likely that a proportion of this funding will be used to secure additional capacity to take forward programmes.

Departmental Official Cars

Stephen Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which make and model of car he has chosen as his Ministerial car to be provided by the Government Car and Despatch Agency. [217758]

Mr. Bradshaw: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my hon. Friend the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State, Department for Transport on 16 July 2008, Official Report, column 414W.

Departmental Official Residences

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what permanent residential accommodation is provided for use by civil servants in his Department; how many residential dwellings are provided; where they are located; and for what grade of civil servant they are provided. [222089]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department does not provide permanent residential accommodation for any of its civil servants.

Departmental Procurement

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will place in the Library a copy of the names and addresses of each organisation that supplied goods and services to his Department in 2007-08, based on the purchase order data held in the Department's financial database. [222086]

Mr. Bradshaw: The purchasing system used by the Department until 30 June 2008 did hold names and addresses of its suppliers of goods and services, but this information is not easily distinguishable from the information relating to payments to patients, for professional services and to seconded staff. It is therefore not possible to place the information requested in the Library without incurring disproportionate costs.

Departmental Public Relations

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much (a) his Department and (b) its agencies spent on each of the external public relations and marketing companies included in the Central Office of Information's Public Relations Framework in each of the last 36 months. [222087]

Mr. Bradshaw: The information in the table details the Department's expenditure on public relations and marketing companies included in the Central Office of Information's Public Relations Framework in the last 36 month period up to the end of the fiscal year 2007-08.

	Expenditure
2005-06	76,796
2006-07	16,588
2007-08	23,320

Departmental Retirement

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the Answer to the hon. Member for Hornsey and Wood Green of 14 July 2008, Official Report, columns 193-4W, on departmental retirement, how many requests to work beyond the mandatory retirement age were received by his Department in each of the last four years. [222433]

Mr. Bradshaw: The number of requests to work beyond the mandatory retirement age received by the Department in each of the last four years are given in the following table:

2005-06	1

Departmental Surveillance

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many applications (a) his Department and (b) its agencies have made under the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 to (i) undertake directed surveillance, (ii) use covert human intelligence sources, (iii) acquire communications data and (iv) undertake intrusive surveillance in the last 24 months. [222092]

Mr. Bradshaw: Figures on public authority use of covert techniques controlled by the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 ('RIPA') are published annually by the Interception of Communications Commissioner, the Chief Surveillance Commissioner and the Intelligence Services Commissioner who each have particular inspection and oversight responsibilities under RIPA. The latest reports were laid before Parliament and copies placed in the Library on 22 July. The figures provided in the reports are not broken down by individual public authority use of specific covert technique as, depending on the particular technique and authority using it, this could either reveal sensitivities or be misleading. The question of further disclosure for any particular public authority is a matter for the relevant Commissioner.

Direct Payments

Jon Trickett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people in (a) England, (b) Yorkshire and the Humber and (c) Wakefield District have requested direct payments (i) for care provision for themselves and (ii) as a carer. [223767]

Dawn Primarolo: Table 1 shows the number of clients (aged 18 and over) receiving direct payments. Information is shown for England, for Yorkshire and the Humber region and for Wakefield council with Adult Social Services Responsibilities between 1 April 2006 and 31 March 2007. Table 2 shows the number of carers (aged 16 or over) receiving direct payments for carer's services at 31 March 2007. There is no information available on the numbers of people requesting direct payments.

Jon Trickett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) whether a (a) carer and (b) care receiver is classified as an employer when receiving direct care payments and using them to secure the care services of other professionals; what legislation governs carers and care receivers in these circumstances; and if he will make a statement; [223768]

(2) what sources of assistance are available to carers and care receivers who decide not to apply for direct payments; [223769]

(3) what (a) targets and (b) guidelines there are for the period of time between a carer or care receiver making a request for direct payments and that request being implemented. [223770]

Dawn Primarolo: Both a care receiver and carer in receipt of direct payments are classified as employers when using the payments to secure the services of other professionals. They would have all the legal responsibilities of an employer and would need to ensure that they are aware of and comply with these responsibilities.

Councils should make it clear that a person does not have to receive direct payments. If a carer or care receiver decide not to have direct payments, their local council has an obligation to meet their needs, therefore the local council remains responsible for providing or arranging the provision of services they are assessed as needing. They should also discuss with people who are to receive direct payments what they should do if they no longer wish to receive direct payments.

The Department has not set any targets or deadlines for the period of time between a carer or care receiver making a request for direct payments and that request being implemented. This would be a local decision.

Dorneywood

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer to the right hon. Member for Horsham of 19 June 2008, Official Report, column 1187W, on Dorneywood: official hospitality, what use his Department has made of Dorneywood for official engagements in the last 12 months. [222085]

Mr. Bradshaw: None.

Down's Syndrome

Mr. Walker: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many live births of children with Down's syndrome were recorded in each year for which records are available since 1980. [222580]

Dawn Primarolo: The number of live birth episodes recorded in each year from 1997-98 to 2006-07 are given in the following table. Before 1997-08 problems with data quality of the maternity data mean that figures are not available.

The figure for each year shows the number of live born recorded births with a primary or secondary diagnosis of Down's syndrome which have taken place in a national health service hospital or in an unspecified location. It does not show births that have taken place in a location that is known to be outside of an NHS hospital setting.

	Live born birth episodes
2006-07	373
2005-06	361
2004-05	363
2003-04	312
2002-03	310
2001-02	286
2000-01	277
1999-2000	303
1998-99	271
1997-98	329

Notes:
1. Finished Consultant Episode (FCE): A finished consultant episode (FCE) is defined as a period of admitted patient care under one consultant within one health care provider. FCEs are counted against the year in which the FCE finishes. Please note that the figures do not represent the number of patients, as a person may have more than one episode of care within the year. (Episode type used: 3—Birth event 6—Other Birth event)
2. Data Quality: Hospital Episode Statistics (HES) are compiled from data sent by over 300 NHS trusts, and primary care trusts (PCTs) in England. Data are also received from a number of independent sector organisations for activity commissioned by the English NHS. The NHS Information Centre for health and social care liaises closely with these organisations to encourage submission of complete and valid data and seeks to minimise inaccuracies and the effect of missing and invalid data via HES processes. While this brings about improvement over time, some shortcomings remain.
3. Assessing growth through time: HES figures are available from 1989-90 onwards. During the years that these records have been collected the NHS there have been ongoing improvements in quality and coverage. These improvements in information submitted by the NHS have been particularly marked in the earlier years and need to be borne in mind when analysing time series.
4. Some of the increase in figures for later years (particularly 2006-07 onwards) may be due to the improvement in the coverage of independent sector activity.
5. Changes in NHS practice also need to be borne in mind when analysing time series. For example a number of procedures may now be undertaken in outpatient settings and may no longer be accounted in the HES data. This may account for any reductions in activity over time.
6. Number of episodes in which the patient had a (named) primary or secondary diagnosis: These figures represent the number of episodes where the diagnosis was recorded in any of the 20 (14 from 2002-03 to 2006-07 and seven prior to 2002-03) primary and secondary diagnosis fields in an HES record. Each episode is only counted once in each count, even if the diagnosis is recorded in more than one diagnosis field of the record.
7. Down's syndrome codes used:
Q90.0—Trisomy 21, meiotic nondisjunction
Q90.1—Trisomy 21, mosaicism (mitotic nondisjunction)
Q90.--Trisomy 21, translocation
Q90.9—Down's syndrome, unspecified
8. Liveborn codes used:
Z38.0—Singleton, born in hospital
Z38.2—Singleton, unspecified as to place of birth
Z38.3—Twin, born in hospital
Z38.5—Twin, unspecified as to place of birth
Z38.6—Other multiple, born in hospital
Z38.8—Other multiple, unspecified as to place of birth
8. Ungrossed Data: Figures have not been adjusted for shortfalls in data (i.e. the data are ungrossed).

EDF Energy

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what contracts (a) his Department and (b) its agencies have with EDF; and how much (i) his Department and (ii) its agencies paid to EDF in each of the last 10 years, broken down by the purpose of the payment. [221841]

Mr. Bradshaw: Our records for contracts only go as far back as 2002 and some data can only be partially provided for the period before 2004. The information of the contracts that the Department of Health and its Executive Agencies have had with EDF since 2002 is as follows:

Organisation	Dates	Amount (£)	Purpose
NHS Purchasing and Supply Agency	October 2002 to September 2003	25,535	Electricity supply for Reading Office
NHS Purchasing and Supply Agency	October 2002 to September 2003	12,123	Electricity supply for Chester Office
Department of Health	October 2002 to October 2003	[1]—	Electricity supply for London Offices
Department of Health April	2006 to March 2007	194.58	Power supply to part of Richmond House

EU Law

Mr. Francois: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many officials in his Department are wholly or mainly tasked with the negotiation, implementation or the administration of EU legislation and consequent policies. [222279]

Dawn Primarolo: As a matter of course, the management of European Union (EU) business rests with policy officials, throughout the Department, depending on the range and type of active EU legislation being negotiated/administered. The Department has an EU coordination unit (six officials) which supports the handling of EU policy business. In addition to this unit, there is an overseas healthcare team (eight officials) responsible for the management of healthcare regulation/overseas payments to other EU member states.

Fluoride: Drinking Water

Mr. Crausby: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what research his Department has commissioned to monitor the incidence of primary bone cancer in populations receiving fluoridated water. [223845]

Dawn Primarolo: The Department has commissioned research into the effects of fluoridation on health. A Systematic Review of Public Water Fluoridation published by the university of York in 2000 found no significant association between, water fluoridation and cancer, but called for further research to strengthen the evidence base. Section 58 of the Water Act 2003 placed a duty on strategic health authorities (SHAs) to monitor the effects of fluoridation schemes on the health of persons living in the fluoridated area and publish reports containing an analysis of the effects on health at four-yearly intervals. We have commissioned the West Midland Public Health Observatory to propose a set of standard indicators, which can be used by SHAs to discharge this duty. We understand that, in compiling its proposals, the Observatory is considering whether data on the incidence of bone cancer held in cancer registries could be included among the indicators.

General Practitioners

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the evidential basis is for the Minister of State's statement on his interview published with the BBC News website on 3 July 2008 that GPs are entering into gentlemen's agreements in order to restrict a patient's ability to change practice. [218304]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department has received communications from members of the public citing examples of general practitioner (GP) surgeries that are not willing to accept other doctors' patients and thereby restricting patient choice. We do not consider that these practices are widespread but, where they do occur, they can cause significant concern to members of the public. The General Practitioners Committee of the British Medical Association has recently issued a statement, indicating that it too has been made aware of such examples and urging GP practices to ensure that this unacceptable practice does not occur.

Mr. Hepburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many patients in (a) Jarrow constituency, (b) South Tyneside, (c) the North East and (d) England were seen by a GP in each year since 1997. [223738]

Mr. Bradshaw: This information is not held centrally.

General Practitioners: Private Sector

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which GP contracts were awarded to private sector operators for (a) 2007, (b) 2008 and (c) 2009. [224439]

Mr. Bradshaw: Primary care trusts are responsible for awarding general practice (GP) contracts to the providers that can offer the best quality and value for money services to meet local needs, including independent, voluntary and third sector organisations and entrepreneurial GPs. The Department does not routinely collect this information.

However, the Department is providing the local national health service with procurement support through the national Fairness in Primary Care initiative, for which nine contracts have been awarded in 2008; of which four were awarded to independent sector operators, three to GP-led organisations and two to social enterprises.

Information on Fairness in Primary Care contracts is in the following table.

Genito-urinary Medicine

Dr. Starkey: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent steps his Department has taken to implement its commitment to develop the role of the sexual health adviser, as set out in the 2001 National Sexual Health and HIV Strategy. [224325]

Dawn Primarolo: In June 2008, the Department supported the publication of the document "Sexual Health Advising—Developing the Workforce", a copy of which has been placed in the Library.

The guidance document is for sexual health advisers, higher education institutions, strategic and public health leads and commissioners on the implications of new arrangements for educational and practice preparation of sexual health advisers. This includes the opportunity for sexual health advisers to migrate to the Specialist Community Public Health Nursing Programme.

The guidance is the culmination of collaborative work led by the Department with the Society of Sexual Health Advisers, the union UNITE and the Nursing and Midwifery Council and fulfils the Government commitment in the 2001 National Sexual Health Strategy to develop the role of the sexual health adviser, including registration with a professional body and educational development.

Headaches: Medical Treatments

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will request the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence to complete its ONSTIM evaluation as quickly as possible. [222326]

Dawn Primarolo: The National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE) is assessing occipital nerve stimulation for intractable headache under its Interventional Procedures Programme. This assessment is currently suspended, pending CE marking of the devices used to carry out the procedure. NICE will continue its assessment once this situation has changed.

Health Education

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps the Government has taken to promote local activities to encourage healthy living. [222697]

Dawn Primarolo: In January 2008, the Government published the £372 million "Healthy Weight, Healthy Lives: A Cross-Government Strategy for England". "Healthy Weight, Healthy Lives" committed us to developing a three-year, £75 million, social marketing programme to help us all maintain a healthy weight.

As part of this programme, the Government are inviting everyone in society to join a national movement called Change4Life to help people maintain a healthy weight, by making it easier for parents to make healthier food choices and encourage more activity.

Over the past few months we have been developing a programme of events, briefings and media activities that will engage grassroots local 'activists'—the many people who are already running activities that help children eat well and be active. They have been invited to join the Change4Life movement, and by tapping into this existing energy and commitment, we will ensure that Change4Life is not just another healthy living campaign, but a hands-on, practical and supportive movement. It will be driven by ordinary people across society, who want to do something now to combat obesity and make lives healthier.

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what steps the Government has taken to promote safety in the sun initiatives; [222700]

(2) what recent steps the Government has taken to educate the public on the risks to health of UV rays. [222701]

Dawn Primarolo: SunSmart, the national skin cancer prevention and sun protection campaign, is run by Cancer Research UK, on behalf of the UK Health Departments. It raises awareness and educates the public on the risks to health from ultra violet rays, both artificial and from sunlight. The campaign works through high profile media programmes, through provision of resources and information for health promotion events and targeted campaigns, and through the SunSmart website. The main emphasis for the SunSmart campaign for this year is children and young people, with a focus on the risks to health of using sunbeds. The Department also funds the Meteorological Office to produce UV Index forecasts, which are disseminated to the media and published on the Meteorological Office website.

Health Education

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent steps the Government has taken to encourage healthy eating. [222698]

Dawn Primarolo: The Government are currently working on several initiatives to encourage healthy eating, as outlined in the "Healthy Weight, Healthy Lives" Strategy which has already been placed in the Library. These include:

working with industry leaders and other relevant stakeholders to develop and deliver a Healthy Food Code of Good Practice;

the 5-A-Day programme, which seeks to promote increased consumption of fruit and vegetables (preferably five each day) and sits alongside other initiatives aimed at reducing the amount of foods consumed that are high in salt, fat and sugar, and further promoting a healthy diet;

liaising with schools to develop and apply schemes to incorporate healthy eating within schools and families, such as the school fruit and vegetable scheme which provides children, aged four to six, with a free piece of fruit or vegetable every day; and a comprehensive social marketing programme called Change4Life. The Government will invite all parts of society to join the movement, designed to help people maintain a healthy weight by helping parents make healthier food choices for their children and encouraging more activity. It will work in collaboration with other Government Departments, the NHS, schools, voluntary groups, and commercial and media partners.

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what progress the Government has made in raising awareness of the risks to health associated with hot weather, including dehydration. [222699]

Dawn Primarolo: The Department produces and disseminates to key health professionals a "National Heatwave Plan" which has been placed in the Library and is available on the Department's website at:

www.dh.gov.uk/en/Publicationsandstatistics/Publications/PublicationsPolicyAndGuidance/DH_084670

along with supportive guidance for health professionals and social care staff. Additionally, a public facing leaflet is produced providing information on how to protect yourself and vulnerable people during a heatwave. Media messages are prepared in the event of a heatwave to raise awareness of protective actions.

Health Education: Families

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps the Government has taken to educate families on nutrition and healthy living. [224287]

Dawn Primarolo: Health professionals are asked to offer pregnant women and families applying for the Healthy Start scheme with relevant advice on breastfeeding and healthy eating. Basic information on breastfeeding and healthy eating is also given in the Healthy Start user guide, welcome magazine sent to all new Healthy Start beneficiaries, and on the publicly available Healthy Start website.

The Government have committed £75 million to a three year marketing campaign, "Change4life Programme" which aims to provide families with the information, tools and support that they will need to help their children lead healthier lives. The programme will include a help line, website, printed information, advertising and public relations, specialist materials for ethnic minority communities and resources for professionals to use with the public. The campaign will address those areas—including healthy meal suggestions, ideas for family activity, tips and strategies for getting children to eat more healthily—where parents said they needed support and guidance.

On 21 March 2007, we launched Top Tips for Top Mums a new 5 A DAY-Just Eat More (Fruit and Veg) campaign to help families get more fruit and vegetable into their children's diets. The campaign aims to help families by sharing real tips from real mums on how they got their kids to eat more fruit and vegetables.

The Department also runs campaigns to motivate and support smokers to stop, and these are particularly targeted at routine and manual smokers, and their families. The messages through the motivation work focus on the impact of smoking on family life. For example, a new campaign was launched in June 2008, called 'Wanna be like you', which highlighted to parents that smoking will dramatically increase their children's chances of becoming smokers too.

Since September 2006, we have been running a social marketing programme to ensure that people know the consequences of drinking, by raising awareness of the importance of sensible drinking and making sure people know what units are and therefore know how much they are drinking.

The level of public concern about how much alcohol young people are drinking in their teenage years is growing. The Youth Alcohol Action Plan (YAAP) sets out the evidence that shows that there is reason to be concerned and how Government will address this issue.

Part of the YAAP is establishing a new partnership with parents. This includes providing them with advice and guidance concerning young people and alcohol, which will include clear guidelines about how consumption of alcohol can affect children and young people produced by the Chief Medical Officer, and evaluation of family based interventions to assess if they are improving outcomes and reducing risks with those affected by alcohol misusing parents.

Health Professions: Lancashire

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) doctors, (b) nurses and (c) midwives are employed by the NHS per head of population in Ribble Valley constituency. [222953]

Ann Keen: The information is not held in the format requested. Information on workforce levels for East Lancashire Primary Care Trust (PCT), which is the main commissioner for the Ribble Valley population, is shown in the following table.

Health Professions: Manpower

Mr. Donohoe: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) doctors, (b) nurses, (c) consultants, (d) dentists and (e) midwives there were in each year since 1998. [221884]

Ann Keen: The number of doctors, nurses, consultants, and midwives there were in each year since 1998 is shown in the following table.

The numbers of national health service dentists in England, as at 31 March, 1997 to 2006 are available in Table 4 of the 'NHS Dental Activity and Workforce Report England: 31 March 2006'. This information is based on the old contractual arrangements, which were in place up to and including 31 March 2006. This measure counted the number of NHS dentists recorded on primary care trust (PCT) lists as at 31 March each year. This report, published on 23 August 2006, has already been placed in the Library and is available on-line at:

The numbers of dentists in England with NHS activity during the years ending 31 March 2007 and 2008 are available in Table 32 of the 'NHS Dental Statistics for England: 2007-08' report. This information is based on the new dental contractual arrangements, introduced on 1 April 2006. Following a recent consultation exercise, this measure is based on a revised methodology and therefore supersedes previously published workforce figures relating to the new dental contractual arrangements. It is not comparable to the information collected under the old contractual arrangements. This revised methodology counted the number of dental performers with NHS activity recorded via FP17 claim forms in each year ending 31 March. This report, published on 21 August 2008, has already been placed in the Library and is available on-line at:

www.ic.nhs.uk/pubs/dental0708.

Further work is planned over the next 12 months to determine whether the new definition used under the new dental contractual arrangements can be applied to the years under the old contractual arrangements to produce a consistent time series.

Both reports have been published by the NHS Information Centre for health and social care.

Ann Keen: The number of doctors, nurses and general practitioners is shown in the table.

The majority of national health service dentists are self-employed.

The number of NHS dentists, as at 31 March, 1997 to 2006 is available in Annex E of the "NHS Dental Activity and Workforce Report England: 31 March 2006". Information is available by primary care trust (PCT) and strategic health authority (SHA). Equivalent information by constituency is available in Annex G of this report.

This measure counted the number of NHS dentists recorded on PCT lists as at 31 March each year. This report, published on 23 August 2006, has already been placed in the Library and is also on the NHS Information Centre website at:

Health Visitors

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what mechanisms there are to record the timing and frequency of visits made by health visitors to families with children under the age of five years. [223982]

Ann Keen: This information is not collected centrally.

Healthy Start Scheme

Jeff Ennis: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much has been spent on the Healthy Start Scheme since its inception; and what the take-up has been of the scheme in each region. [221913]

Dawn Primarolo: Total expenditure on Healthy Start across the United Kingdom between April 2007 and March 2008 (the only financial year for which specific figures are available) was approximately £94 million. This figure does not reflect the full cost of all Healthy Start vouchers issued in that year because retailers have up to six months from the use by date on vouchers to claim payment for them.

The following table shows the estimated number of families supported by Healthy Start in each national health service region in England between 4 August 2008 and 31 August 2008. It also shows the number of individual women and children receiving vouchers in these families.

Region	Families	Individuals
East Midlands	25,713	32,828
East of England	27,334	34,276
London	73,900	93,168
North East	21,208	26,320
North West	51,075	64,206
South East	36,984	46,395
South West	23,402	29,544
West Midlands	42,320	54,281
Yorkshire and the Humber	35,658	45,110
England total	337,594	426,128

Note:
These figures were provided by the Healthy Start Issuing Unit. Most families will have been supported throughout the whole four-week period, but some will have joined or left the scheme part way through. 16,000 families (19,000 individuals) across the UK who were receiving vouchers during this time could not be matched to a specific country or NHS region using the NHS postcode directory and so are not reflected in this table.

Jeff Ennis: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many retailers in (a) Barnsley, (b) Doncaster, (c) South Yorkshire and (d) England are registered to accept Healthy Start Scheme vouchers. [222153]

Dawn Primarolo: On 23 July 2008, the Healthy Start registered retailer database contained 76 individual retail outlets in Barnsley, 173 in Doncaster, and approximately 720 in South Yorkshire. Around 24,500 individual outlets accept vouchers across England as a whole.

Healthy Start Scheme: Yorkshire and the Humber

Jeff Ennis: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many families in Yorkshire and the Humber have signed up for the Healthy Start Scheme; and how the scheme is being promoted in Yorkshire and the Humber. [222154]

Dawn Primarolo: The number of people supported by Healthy Start fluctuates from week to week as families apply or cease to qualify. The scheme supported around 35,600 families in Yorkshire and the Humber between 4 August 2008 and 31 August 2008. This is the most recent four week period for which figures are available.

The Department ensures that information about Healthy Start is included in Government leaflets about the qualifying benefits and tax credits, and in the Pregnancy and Birth to Five books routinely given to first time pregnant women and new mothers by midwives. The National Service Framework for Children, Young People and Maternity Services asks midwives and other health care professionals to signpost the scheme. We produce a range of posters, application leaflets, and other resources which NHS and other organisations can order in bulk for local use and we encourage our network of nominated Healthy Start contacts in every primary care trust to order these. General practitioner surgeries participating in the Waiting Room Information Services initiative also receive their own stocks of the application leaflets. All families with children under four years old notified by Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs as newly qualifying for Healthy Start receive a personal invitation from the Healthy Start Issuing Unit to apply for the scheme, followed by two further reminders at four-weekly intervals if they do not take up the offer.

Hearing Impaired: Children

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the number of deaf children in England; and on what methodology his estimate is based. [222991]

Dawn Primarolo: The number of deaf children in England is not collected centrally. Instead, data are collected on the number of children who are registered as deaf or hard of hearing. Inclusion on the register is voluntary and therefore, does not provide a complete picture of the number of children in England who are deaf or hard of hearing.

As at 31 March 2007, 3,400 people aged 0-17 years were registered as deaf in England (4,100 were registered as hard of hearing).

The data are collected every three years on the 'SSDA910 Register of People who are Deaf or Hard of Hearing' by councils with Adult Social Services Responsibilities.

One council did not provide data and therefore an estimate was calculated based on their previous return in 2004 and the change seen nationally.

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many children aged 18 years and under received (a) unilateral and (b) bilateral cochlear implants in each year since 2001, broken down by primary care trust. [222992]

Dawn Primarolo: Unfortunately, Hospital Episode Statistics cannot provide these data by primary care trust as the data would need to be suppressed due to small numbers, therefore providing little information. Instead a break down provided by strategic health authority of residence has been placed in the Library.

Hepatitis

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the (a) primary diagnosis count and (b) all diagnosis count of finished consultant episodes for all hepatitis B-related conditions was in each year since 1997-98 for all (i) inpatients and (ii) outpatients as recorded by the Hospital Episodes Statistics database, broken down by primary care trust area; and which hepatitis B-related 4-character diagnosis codes are covered by the Hospital Episodes Statistics database. [222420]

Dawn Primarolo: The information requested for in-patients has been placed in the Library, for years 1997-98 to 2006-07. However, outpatient data are not included as clinical coding is not mandatory for the out-patients dataset and coverage is very low.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many notifications of hepatitis B have been made to the Health Protection Agency and its predecessor bodies; and what estimate he has made of the overall prevalence of hepatitis B (a) in England in total and (b) in each primary care trust area in each year since 1997. [222421]

Dawn Primarolo: The information requested about notifications of hepatitis B is shown in the following table.

The Department estimates that about 0.3 per cent. of the United Kingdom population is chronically infected with hepatitis B virus (about 180,000 people)[2]. Estimates of hepatitis B prevalence at primary care trust level are not available.

Statutory notifications of hepatitis B in England: 1997 to 2007

	Number of hepatitis B notifications[1]
1997	670
1998	813
1999	817
2000	985
2001	970
2002	1,014
2003	1,097
2004	1,134
2005	1,239
2006	1,061
2007	1,123

[1] Hepatitis B is notifiable under the Public Health (Infectious Diseases) Regulations 1988.

[2] The increase in statutorily notified cases of hepatitis B is considered to be due primarily to reports of chronic hepatitis B cases detected through increased patient testing as part of clinical investigation and screening. The increase coincided with the introduction of universal antenatal testing for hepatitis B.

The National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence has published technology appraisal (TA) guidance on the treatment of chronic hepatitis B (TA 96, TA 153 and TA 154).

The Department is not currently planning further guidance to the NHS about hepatitis B but keeps this under review, including in the light of advice from its expert scientific advisory committees, the Advisory Group on Hepatitis and the Joint Committee on Vaccination and Immunisation.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what (a) technology appraisals, (b) interventional guidelines, (c) clinical guidelines and (d) public health guidelines which have an effect on hepatitis B services are issued by the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE); what effect each has on hepatitis B; on what date each was issued; which workstreams under consideration by NICE have an effect on hepatitis B services; and if he will make a statement. [222423]

Dawn Primarolo: The following technology appraisals have been issued by National Institute for Health and Clinical Service (NICE):

"Adefovir dipivoxil and pegylated interferon alpha-2a for the treatment of chronic hepatitis B" (22 February 2006).

"Entecavir for the treatment of hepatitis B" (27 August 2008)

"Telbivudine for the treatment of chronic hepatitis B" (27 August 2008)

Copies of the technology appraisals have been placed in the Library and are available on NICE's website at:

www.nice.org.uk/Guidance/TA96/QuickRefGuide/pdf/English, www.nice.org.uk/Guidance/TA153/Guidance/pdf/English and

www.nice.org.uk/Guidance/TA154/QuickRefGuide/pdf/English.

A technology appraisal on tenofovir disoproxil fumarate for the treatment of hepatitis B will be published in May 2009. It was formally referred to NICE's workstream to appraise its clinical and cost effectiveness.

There are no published clinical guidelines or guidelines in development that directly address the management of hepatitis B services. However, "Drug Misuse, psychological interventions" (July 2007) addresses the need for those who misuse drugs to reduce their exposure to blood-borne viruses where hepatitis B testing is recommended. A copy of this guidance has been placed in the Library and is available on NICE's website at:

NICE is currently preparing the following public health guidelines, which are relevant to hepatitis B services:

"Needle and syringe programmes: providing injecting equipment to people who will inject drugs" (to be published in February 2009)

"Guidance on differences in the uptake of immunisations (including targeted vaccines) in people younger than 19" (to be published in June 2009)

There are no relevant interventional guidelines, which will have an effect on hepatitis B services.

These technology appraisal and guidelines for those involved in the management of hepatitis B services will promote good practice in the treatment and prevention of hepatitis B infection.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many drugs were dispensed for the treatment of hepatitis B in each year since 1997, broken down by primary care trust area; and what the net ingredient cost of the drugs was in each year. [222424]

Dawn Primarolo: A significant number of primary care trusts dispensed less that 50 items each year in the community, in England. Releasing actual figures may potentially allow the identification of individual patients. Below are national dispensing figures with net ingredient cost (NIC).

Number and NIC of prescription items used in the treatment of hepatitis B which were dispensed in the community in England

Herbal Medicine: EU Law

Sir Nicholas Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the impact upon the (a) Chinese and (b) ayurvedic medicinal traditions of the requirement that 15 years use within the European Union must be demonstrated as being part of the qualifying minimum period of 30 years traditional use required for registration of herbal remedies under the Traditional Herbal Medicinal Products Directive; what representations he has received from the (i) Chinese and (ii) Indian communities on these matters; what assessment he has made of whether these geographic requirements comply with the United Kingdom's obligations under international human rights and trade treaties; and if he will make a statement. [221880]

Dawn Primarolo: Our understanding from discussions between the Medicines and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency (MHRA) and the herbal medicine sector is that much of practice in traditional Chinese and Ayurvedic medicine is based on products prepared to meet individual patient needs. The main regulatory route for such herbal medicines in the United Kingdom would be through the provision of section 12(1) of the Medicines Act 1968 rather than traditional herbal registration scheme set up under European Directive 2004/24/EC.

It is likely that it would be possible in some cases for an applicant seeking a product registration under the traditional herbal registration scheme to demonstrate that a traditional Chinese or Ayurvedic medicinal product had had sufficient usage in the European Union (EU) for at least 15 years. There is also a provision in the directive under which the Herbal Medicinal Products Committee at the European Medicines Agency can lower the 15 years requirement in specific cases where all other requirements of the scheme are met.

We recognise that it is necessary to require demonstration of an adequate period of traditional use, given that this is the basis for lifting or easing a number of the normal requirements in medicines regulation in relation to the demonstration of efficacy and safety. However, we would like to see greater flexibility over the requirement for evidence of usage specifically within the EU. We have received a variety of representations on this issue over a period from a number of interested parties such as businesses and practitioner representatives. These have generally argued the case that the specific requirement for evidence of 15 years use within the EU is unduly onerous. The UK is not in position to set aside the provisions of a European Directive. The MHRA presented the case for changing the European legislative requirements in responding to the European Commission's consultation in 2007 on the early operation of the directive and also alerted interested parties to the opportunity to comment. We await the outcome of that review.

Sir Nicholas Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps he plans to take to assist small and medium-sized businesses which are specialist manufacturers and retailers of traditional herbal remedies to meet the costs of compliance with the Traditional Herbal Medicinal Products Directive and related measures. [221882]

Dawn Primarolo: Compliance costs of the traditional herbal registration (THR) scheme fall largely on manufacturers and wholesalers rather than retailers. The Medicines and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency (MHRA) has been running an extensive programme to manage the impact of the THR scheme. This has included well over 100 meetings held free of charge to help companies progress their plans and applications. The MHRA has taken a range of measures to help companies, for example publication of public assessment reports on registration granted, and has also issued a range of pragmatic guidance, for example on how companies can use monographs published by the European Herbal Medicinal Products Committee to mitigate the effects of delay in development of the Community positive list. The MHRA regularly meets the industry's Herbal Forum to discuss progress of the THR scheme and whether there is further action that either MHRA or industry itself can take to facilitate progress. Recently two specialist small or medium sized businesses achieved their first grants of THR, demonstrating the possibilities for this kind of company.

Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what estimate the Medicines and Healthcare Products Regulatory Agency has made of the number of herbal remedies marketed in the United Kingdom under the provisions of section 12(2) of the Medicines Act 1968; for how many and what percentage of those products an application has been received by the Agency for registration under the Traditional Herbal Medicinal Products Directive; and what the legal status will be of those products for which applications for registration have not been received by the end of the transition period in 2011; [222349]

(2) what his objective is in relation to the future availability of safe and proper herbal remedies; and what steps he is taking to achieve that objective; [222350]

(3) when Ministers of his Department last visited the facilities of small and medium-sized manufacturers of specialist herbal remedies to discuss the impact upon their business of the Traditional Herbal Medicinal Products Directive; [222351]

(4) what steps he has taken to establish whether chromatographic fingerprinting is an appropriate requirement in the testing of multi-ingredient herbal remedies in relation to registration under the Traditional Herbal Medicinal Products Directive; and what estimate he has made of the cost of commissioning such tests for a single product containing several herbal ingredients. [222352]

Dawn Primarolo: Companies are not required to notify the Medicines and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency (MHRA) of products marketed under section 12(2) of the Medicines Act 1968, therefore no estimates are available in relation to these products. Following the expiry of the transitional period permitted under Directive 2004/24/EC manufactured herbal medicines placed on the market will require either a marketing authorisation or a traditional herbal registration (THR). As now there will continue to be some herbal products that potentially can be placed on the market either as medicinal products or under other product regulatory regimes depending on their presentation.

The Government's objective in relation to over the counter herbal medicines is that the public should have access to a range of herbal medicines made to assured standards of safety and quality and accompanied by systematic information about the safe use of the product. The previous regulatory arrangements for unlicensed herbal remedies marketed under section 12(2) left companies free to decide whether to meet any standards and put responsible companies, and in particular those with specialist expertise wishing to operate to high standards, at a significant disadvantage. Consumers were unable to tell which products were made to acceptable standards. The MHRA will continue to operate the THR scheme in a proportionate way, in line with the principles of better regulation. Thereby we expect to see a competitive market offering consumers a wide range of licensed and registered herbal medicines.

Chromatographic fingerprinting is an accepted methodology in the analysis of herbal products and has been included in European Guidelines and the European Pharmacopoeia since the early 1990s. With regard to multi-ingredient herbal medicinal products it is recognised that identification and assay of individual herbal ingredients in the herbal product is difficult to perform and sometimes impossible. The European Herbal Medicinal Product Committee has recently developed a guideline, in consultation with industry, which addresses the issue of multi-ingredient herbal products. The guideline states that if testing for identity, assay or to demonstrate stability cannot be performed in the herbal product, alternative strategies may be considered. The guideline refers to appropriate fingerprint chromatograms, appropriate overall methods of assay and physical or other appropriate tests. The applicant is therefore able to select appropriate methods and justify their use.

In its regulatory impact assessment of the THR scheme the MHRA estimated that typically the overall costs of registering a product under the scheme, which includes the cost of conducting appropriate quality testing, could be several tens of thousand pounds. The impact assessment also recognised that the figure would vary widely according to specific circumstances, not least, depending on whether companies already had systematic quality control systems in place. This assessment has not changed.

I recently met a small manufacturer of herbal medicines. The MHRA has had well over a hundred meetings with companies, including small and medium sized businesses, to discuss the progress of actual or prospective applications under the THR scheme. The MHRA has also undertaken a number of site visits.

HIV Infection

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether his Department plans formally to include HIV within the schedule of long-term conditions covered by the recommendations of the NHS Next Stage Review. [221822]

Dawn Primarolo: Long term conditions are currently defined as those that cannot at present be cured, but can be controlled by medication and other therapies. The widespread use of combination anti-retroviral therapies to control HIV, means the infection is now managed largely as a long-term condition. By 2010, all people with a long term condition, including those with HIV will be offered a personalised care plan, as recommended in the NHS Next Stage Review.

HIV Infection: Health Services

Mr. Streeter: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what estimate his Department has made of the number of foreign nationals who have come to the UK for the sole purpose of accessing free HIV treatment on the NHS in the last five years; and if he will make a statement; [222414]

(2) what information his Department gathers on the number of (a) asylum seekers, (b) those of uncertain residency status and (c) other migrants who have accessed NHS HIV testing services in the last five years. [222415]

Dawn Primarolo: It is not possible to provide the information requested. Successive governments have not required the national health service to provide statistics on the number of foreign nationals seen, treated or charged under the provisions of the NHS (Charges to Overseas Visitors) Regulations 1989, as amended, nor any costs involved.

Hospitals: Accidents

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many patients experienced a fall in hospital in each health authority in each of the last five years, broken down by (a) age and (b) sex; and if he will make a statement; [222233]

(2) what steps he has (a) taken and (b) plans to take to prevent patient falls in hospital; what recent representations he has received on the issue; what reply he gave; and if he will make a statement. [222234]

Ann Keen: The following table sets out the incident data in relation to patient falls for each English strategic health authority from the 1 January 2006 to 31 December 2007. The incidents summarised in the table have been drawn from the National Patient Safety Agency's (NPSA) National Reporting and Learning System (NRLS). Age and gender are not mandatory fields in the NRLS. It is, therefore, not possible to determine whether the data reflect the true pattern of those patient characteristics.

The data prior to January 2006 have not been included due to the low number of reports received by the NPSA and issues regarding the quality of data.

Steps taken to prevent falls in hospitals include the following:

The NPSA issued a report 'Slips, trips and falls in hospital' in February 2007. This included six recommendations to ensure that efforts by hospitals to prevent patient falls are as effective as possible. The Healthcare Commission is reviewing how well trusts are meeting these recommendations in their current round of random and targeted inspections.

In February 2007 the NPSA also produced a Safer Practice Notice 'Using bedrails safely and effectively' to help hospitals prevent falls from bed. This included additional resources such as awareness raising posters, staff education materials, and patient leaflets.

The Department makes available best practice guidance, Health Technical Memorandum 61: 'Flooring' (latest edition published in February, 2006). This provides guidance on suitable floor finishes in hospitals and includes information on slip resistance. A copy has been placed in the Library.

In addition, in March 2007, the Health and Safety Executive developed the guidance 'Assessing the slip resistance of flooring. A technical information sheet'. This is intended to assist organisations including the national health service to assess pedestrian slip risks.

The Department has not received any representations on this issue.

Hospitals: Infectious Diseases

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether healthcare associated infections (HAIs) are always included on death certificates of those patients who die in NHS hospitals subsequent to contracting a HAI; and if he will make a statement. [221824]

Ann Keen: Healthcare associated infections (HCAI) (such as methicillin-resistant Staphylococcus aureus (MRSA) or Clostridium difficile infection) should, like all other illnesses, injuries, and complications of treatment, be included on a death certificate if the certifying doctor considers they contributed to the death directly or indirectly. Patients who die with a HCAI often have several other serious and potentially fatal underlying medical conditions.

The Chief Medical Officer has previously written to all doctors to remind them of their responsibility to provide appropriate information on HCAIs on death certificates and of guidance issued by the Office for National Statistics on death certification. The latest reminder was sent in October 2007.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what (a) guidance, (b) circulars and (c) statutory instruments were issued between (i) 1979 and 1997 and (ii) 1997 and 2002 on the control of healthcare-acquired infections; what (A) ministerial statements and (B) press notices on the subject were issued between 1997 and 2008; and if he will make a statement. [222238]

Ann Keen: The information requested can be obtained only at disproportionate costs.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps he (a) has taken and (b) plans to take during the next 12 months to improve hospital cleanliness in (i) Southend-on-Sea, (ii) Essex and (iii) the Metropolitan Police area of London; and if he will make a statement. [222239]

Dawn Primarolo: The Department has given a strong public commitment to improving hospital cleanliness and has in place a comprehensive programme of work to improve hospital cleanliness.

At the national level steps taken to improve cleanliness include; a deep-clean of all hospitals during 2007-2008 which will enable trusts' strategic and operational cleaning plans to make provision for ongoing deep cleaning activity, all NHS bodies being subject to the Health Act 2006 Code of Practice for the Prevention and Control of Healthcare Associated Infections, which came into force on 1 October 2006.

Here, the Healthcare Commission (HCC) inspects against the duties set out in the Code, which require them to have appropriate management and clinical governance systems in place to deliver effective infection control. In April this year, specialist HCC inspections began against the Code, thus ensuring that acute trusts will be inspected every year on the cleanliness of the environment.

the HCC's annual 'healthcheck' assessing against three national core standards which relate to cleanliness, a national Cleanliness Summit held in February 2008, hosted by the NHS Chief Executive,

Patient environment action teams (PEAT), assessing the quality of the environment, (including cleanliness),

HCC's annual inpatient survey includes questions about cleanliness of the wards and of toilets, at the end of May 2008, there were 5000 matrons in hospitals with more powers over cleaning, the Department worked with the National Patient Safety Agency to issue a revised national specifications for Cleanliness in the NHS for hospitals in 2007, an annual NHS spend on cleaning that has increased year on year since data collection began in 2000, the 2007-08 total spend being £720 million.

In the future, the Department will ensure that the momentum and operational focus on cleanliness will continue, steps specifically include; the development of a new national standard for monitoring cleanliness in healthcare environments. This work, which will be carried out under the auspices of the British Standards Institute, will focus in the first instance on hospitals in England, and will be developed by leading experts in the field of healthcare cleaning. A draft standard is anticipated by April 2009, in time for the establishment of the Care Quality Commission and its new regulation assessment.

compiling a compendium of good practice case studies arising from the Deep Clean initiative, (to be published this autumn), issuing a national specification for cleanliness relating to GP surgeries and ambulances, (to be published this autumn), reviewing the comprehensive NHS Healthcare Cleaning Manual (April 2004), to publish a revised version in summer 2009, joint working between with the NHS Purchasing and Supplies Agency that will continue to look at new technologies for cleaning.

Steps taken in Southend-on-Sea, Essex and the Greater London area to improve hospital cleanliness, reflect the national initiatives set out above. More detail of cleanliness-related action in these particular areas is available from the relevant strategic health authority.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which hospitals have been fined for poor control of hospital infection in the last 12 months; and if he will make a statement. [222240]

Ann Keen: A new standard NHS contract was introduced for 2008-09, covering agreements between primary care trusts (PCTs) and providers of general and acute services.

As set out in the Clean, Safe Care strategy, one element of the contract is the requirement for providers to achieve the target reduction in the rate of C. difficile agreed with PCTs. The contract provides for measures to remedy any failure to achieve the required improvements and ultimately for a financial sanction if the failure continues.

It is up to PCTs, as commissioners, to decide whether they want to exercise their power to fine providers and we do not hold this information centrally.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which organisations have powers to inspect hospitals for cleanliness; and if he will make a statement. [222241]

Dawn Primarolo: All national health service bodies are subject to the Health Act 2006: Code of Practice for the Prevention and Control of Healthcare Associated Infections (commonly known as the Hygiene Code), which came into force on 1 October 2006. The Healthcare Commission (HCC) inspects hospital cleanliness against the duties set out in the code and has the power to issue an 'improvement notice', when it considers an NHS body is failing to observe the code. In addition to its scrutiny of trusts' annual declarations of their own assessments of the measures they have in place to meet the code, last year, the HCC made 120 unannounced visits to assess compliance independently. To strengthen this process, since April 2008, specialist teams from the HCC have been carrying out an annual infection control inspections programme of all acute trusts in the context of the code's requirements. The HCC plans to publish a summary report of some key emerging findings from these inspections shortly.

Additionally, the HCC's annual 'healthcheck' procedure includes three national core standards set by the Department, (C4a, C4c and C21) which relate to cleanliness. The HCC assesses against these standards and it publishes the results.

Also, under the auspices of the National Patient Safety Agency, patient environment action teams, assess the quality of the environment, (including cleanliness), of every inpatient health care facility in England with more than 10 beds. The assessment takes place on a voluntary basis and leads to ratings of; excellent, good, acceptable, poor or unacceptable.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what representations he has received since June 2007 on the use of ward sisters in relation to cleanliness on hospital wards; from whom those representations have been received; what response he gave; if he will place in the Library copies of (a) the representations received and (b) the replies given; and if he will make a statement. [222242]

Dawn Primarolo: The Department has not received any formal representations on the issue of ward sisters in relation to cleanliness on hospital wards.

Fiona Mactaggart: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many cases of (a) MRSA and (b) c. difficile infection there were in (i) Wexham Park Hospital and (ii) Upton Hospital in each year since 1997. [222296]

Mr. Bradshaw: The best source of data is the mandatory surveillance system for acute trusts. Surveillance of meticillin-resistant Staphylococcus aureus (MRSA) blood stream infections (bacteraemia) started in April 2001 and surveillance for Clostridium difficile infection began in January 2004. Data are therefore not available before these times. Wexham Park hospital is part of Heatherwood and Wexham Park Hospitals NHS Foundation Trust and the data for the trust are shown in the following tables. Data are not available for Upton hospital as it is not an acute trust.

Hospitals: Waiting Lists

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate his Department has made of the average length of time spent on waiting lists by patients who were transferred from one NHS hospital to another NHS hospital when the first hospital was unable to perform an operation in the latest period for which figures are available; what steps his Department is taking to reduce such waiting lists; and if he will make a statement. [222324]

Mr. Bradshaw: The information requested is not collected centrally.

By the end of December 2008, no one should wait more than 18 weeks from the time they are referred by their general practitioner to the start of their treatment unless it is clinically appropriate to do so or they choose to wait longer. The 18-week target applies equally to those patients who need to transfer between hospitals while they are on their 18-week pathway.

Human Papilloma Virus: Vaccination

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the unit cost of Cervarix is; how many units his Department is purchasing; and what the value of the contract is. [222425]

Dawn Primarolo: The information requested on the unit cost, number of units and value of the contract for Cervarix is commercially confidential. The contract will allow the Department to purchase sufficient vaccine to vaccinate all the identified cohorts of girls eligible for the Human Papilloma virus vaccine under the national programmes in the United Kingdom.

Incontinence: Medical Equipment

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what the basis is for the efficiency assumption described on page 16 of his Department's impact assessment of proposals relating to Part IX of the Drug Tariff; [221819]

(2) with reference to the impact assessment of his Department's proposals on Part IX of the Drug Tariff, what assessment he has made of the likely effect of a cap on reimbursement payments on contractor efficiency; and what factors were taken into account in deciding on 50,000 items as the cap on reimbursement; [221820]

(3) what assessment he has made of the likely effect on patient choice of his Department's proposals to impose a capped payment structure for the reimbursement of stoma and incontinence items; [221821]

(4) whether he plans to extend the imposition of a three per cent., reduction in remuneration as referred to in his Department's proposals relating to Part IX of the Drug tariff to other NHS suppliers. [222759]

Dawn Primarolo: No explicit assumption on contractors' ability to secure greater efficiency has been made by the Department. What has been suggested is that the national health service annual efficiency targets should be shared by dispensing contractors as well.

The 50,000 items cap has been raised significantly from previous proposals. For instance, in September 2007 the cap was set at 30,000 items. The cap does not apply to payment for specific services but to the infrastructure payment that has been proposed. The infrastructure payment is intended to contribute towards the cost of elements of essential service provision which are not directly linked to dispensing a prescription item; for instance, operating within a clinical governance framework.

In the consultation entitled "Proposed new arrangements under Part IX of the Drug Tariff for the provision of stoma and urology appliances—and related services—in Primary Care June 2008" there are no proposals relating to a capped payment structure for the reimbursement of stoma and incontinence items.

However, subject to the outcome of the consultation, patient choice could be increased as proposals regarding remuneration for service relate not only to the 100-plus dispensing appliance contractors but also to the 10,000 plus pharmacy contractors.

The consultation document proposes that a uniform price reduction of two per cent., should be applied to all catheters listed in Part IXA—and for items listed in Part IXB and Part IXC.

No reduction in remuneration for services has been proposed. In fact, the Department has estimated that if these proposals had been implemented in 2007 they would have increased overall expenditure by primary care in this area by £5 million. If the proposals are implemented, the level of expenditure will continue to rise in line with any increase in the number of Part IXA, B and C prescription items dispensed in the future.

Mr. Syms: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment his Department has made of the possibility of extending the prescription fee to dispensing appliance contractors in the proposed new arrangements under Part IX of the Drug Tariff for the provision of stoma and urology appliances and related services in Primary Care: A Consultation in June 2008; and if he will make a statement. [222254]

Dawn Primarolo: In the consultation entitled "Proposed new arrangements under Part IX of the Drug Tariff for the provision of stoma and urology appliances—and related services—in Primary Care. June 2008" it has been proposed that dispensing appliance contractors should be required to provide a dispensing service for items that they supply in the normal course of their business and that they should receive a 90p professional dispensing fee for each part IX prescription item dispensed for providing this service.

This reflects one of the Department's stated aims of the review of the arrangements under part IX of the drug tariff for the provision of stoma and incontinence appliances—and related services—in primary care, which is to ensure equitable payment to dispensing appliance contractors and pharmacy contractors for equivalent services.

An impact assessment was published alongside the consultation.

Dr. Naysmith: To ask the Secretary of State for Health with reference to his Department's consultation of June 2008 on the proposed new arrangements for the provision of stoma and urology services and related services in primary care, what steps his Department is taking to ensure that the provision of associated services supplied with single line items is maintained. [222408]

Dawn Primarolo: One of the stated aims of the review of the arrangements under Part IX of the Drug Tariff for the provision of stoma and incontinence appliances—and related services—in primary care is the maintenance and, where applicable, improvement of the current quality of care to patients—and provision of a consistent level of care.

Although many dispensing appliance contractors and pharmacy contractors provide additional services such as home delivery, these services are not required under their National Health Service service provision. Therefore, we want to make sure that key services are included in the arrangements for the provision of pharmaceutical services made by primary care trusts under Part 7 of the NHS Act 2006 and incorporated in to the terms of service set out in the NHS (Pharmaceutical Services) Regulations 2005—and that such services are provided to the same standard.

Consequently, the proposals relating to services set out in the consultation document entitled 'Proposed new arrangements under Part IX of the Drug Tariff for the provision of stoma and urology appliances—and related services—in Primary Care. June 2008' apply to single line items.

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what assessment he has made of the likely effect on patient choice of his Department's proposals to impose a cap on remuneration for providers of stoma and incontinence services; [223911]

(2) what assessment he has made of the likely effect on disabled people of his Department's proposals to impose a cap on the payment for stoma and incontinence services provided by contractors; [223912]

(3) whether patients will continue to be able to choose any dispensing appliance contractor under the proposals in his Department's June 2007 consultation document on stoma and urology appliances; [223913]

Dawn Primarolo: In reviewing arrangements under Part IX of the Drug Tariff for the provision of stoma and incontinence appliances—and related services—one of the Department's key aims has been to maintain, and where applicable improve, the current quality of care to patients—and provide a consistent level of care. The Department recognises that a number of dispensing appliance contractors provide a number of services which many users value. However, these services are not required under the terms of their national health service service provision. Therefore, the Department wants to make sure that key services are included in the arrangements for the provision of pharmaceutical services made by primary care trusts under Part 7 of the NHS Act 2006, and incorporated in to the terms of service set out in the NHS (Pharmaceutical Services) Regulations 2005—and that such services are provided to the same standard.

The latest consultation entitled "Proposed new arrangements under Part IX of the Drug Tariff for the provision of stoma and urology appliances—and related services—in Primary Care. June 2008", which has just closed, set out a number of proposals relating to remuneration for service provision directly linked to dispensing a prescription item. It was proposed that remuneration for only one such service should be capped. This service is appliance use reviews, which are intended to improve the patient's knowledge and use of the appliance they are using.

It was proposed that the number of total reviews that a dispensing appliance contractor or pharmacy contractor may claim for should be limited to one for every 35 Part IXA (catheter excluding any catheter accessory and maintenance solution), Part IXB and Part IXC prescription items dispensed in a year (April to March). However, the cap that was proposed in the latest consultation was lower than that proposed in earlier consultation published in September 2007; this was one for every 70 Part IXA (catheter excluding any catheter accessory and maintenance solution), Part IXB and Part IXC prescription items dispensed in a year (April to March). The new proposals reflected discussions with Industry and with representatives from the NHS and seeks to address concerns expressed about the previous cap.

Furthermore, the consultation that has just closed (9 September 2008) provided patients and Industry with the opportunity for views to be submitted regarding the current proposal.

The proposals set out in the consultation relate to the reimbursement for stoma and incontinence items dispensed and remuneration for related services. Consequently, patients will continue to be able to choose any dispensing appliance contractor—or pharmacy contractor—subject to the fact that they provide the requisite appliance and related service in the normal course of their business.

Infectious Diseases

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans he has to revise the 2002 infectious disease strategy, with particular reference to national health and vaccination priorities. [223726]

Dawn Primarolo: In 2002, the chief medical officer published his report: "Getting Ahead of the Curve: a strategy for combating infectious diseases (including other aspects of health protection)".

This set out steps towards improving the protection of the health of the population of England. We have no plans to revise this document which has been placed in the Library. The key measure proposed in the document was the creation of a Health Infection Control and Health Protection Agency. The Health Protection Agency (HPA) was constituted accordingly under the Health Protection Agency Act 2004. The HPA now provides strong science-based support to the NHS, local government and others on all matters relating to infectious disease, radiation, chemical contamination, and other hazards.

The Joint Committee on Vaccination and Immunisation provides independent expert advice on vaccination issues. Since 'Getting Ahead of the Curve' was published, we have introduced pneumococcal vaccination for children, human papillomavirus (HPV) vaccination for girls and young women, and have switched from oral polio vaccines to an inactivated polio vaccine.

Injuries: Firearms

Mr. Hepburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people aged (a) under 16, (b) between 16 and 18 and (c) over 18 years were admitted to hospital with gunshot wounds in (i) Jarrow constituency, (ii) South Tyneside, (iii) the North East and (iv) England in each year since 1997. [223910]

Mr. Bradshaw: The available information is in the following tables. Information is collected on the number of finished admission episodes to hospital. A finished admission episode is the first period of in-patient care under one consultant within one healthcare provider. Admissions do not represent the number of in-patients, as a person may have more than one admission within the year.

Information has been included on total number of admissions and admissions per 100,000 for gunshot wounds for years 1996-97 - 2006-07. Where possible this information has been broken down by age.

Due to the small number and for reasons of confidentiality, figures between one and five have been suppressed and replaced in the attached table with an asterisk. We are unable to provide this information for South Tyneside PCT broken down by age because of the small numbers involved. It is not possible to provide information for the Jarrow constituency as information is not collected for this geographical area.

Reference should be made to the footnotes and clinical codes when interpreting the data.

Liver Diseases

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will bring forward proposals to monitor the incidence of liver disease as a marker for the performance of public health programmes on alcohol, obesity and blood-borne viruses. [222375]

Dawn Primarolo: Liver disease is a growing problem. Often it is associated with people's choices throughout their lives.

The Government have published strategies for alcohol misuse, viral hepatitis and obesity, designed to improve diagnosis and treatment for the future. However, we are aware that despite these strategies, there is a problem in the shorter term of managing the primary causes of liver disease.

We are now considering what the national health service needs to do over the next few years in order to address these pressures, and how this should be monitored. We shall announce next steps in due course.

London Ambulance Service: Standards

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what operational levels have been achieved by the London Ambulance Service since March, broken down by borough; and if he will make a statement. [222725]

Mr. Bradshaw: This information is not held centrally by borough level and is not available for the period requested.

Information on trust-level operational performance standards achieved by each national health service ambulance trust is published annually in the KA34 statistical bulletin. The latest statistical bulletin, "Ambulance Services, England, 2007-08", was published in June 2008, which has already been placed in the Library. It can also be found on the NHS Information Centre for Health and Social Care's website at:

www.ic.nhs.uk/statistics-and-data-collections/audits-and-performance/ambulance/ambulance-services-england-2007-08

London Ambulance Service: Vacancies

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many vacancies in the London Ambulance Service there are, broken down by borough; and if he will make a statement. [222726]

Mr. Bradshaw: The information is not held in the format requested. The information available on the number of vacancies is for London Ambulance Service NHS Trust as a whole, and not broken down by borough.

Three month vacancy rates at London Ambulance Service NHS Trust at 31 March 2008 can be found in the table. This is the latest information available.

The provision of health services, including members of staff at ambulance trusts, is a matter for the local national health service.

Notes:
1. Vacancy data are from the Vacancies Survey 2008.
2. Three month vacancy information is as at 31 March 2008.
3. Three month vacancies are vacancies which trusts are actively trying to fill, which had lasted for three months or more (full time equivalents).
4. Three month vacancy rates are three month vacancies expressed as a percentage of three month vacancies plus staff in post.
5. Three month vacancy rates are calculated using staff in post from the Non-medical Workforce Census September 2007.
6. Percentages are rounded to one decimal place.
7. Staff in post data are from the Non-Medical Workforce Census September 2007.
8. Vacancy and staff in post numbers are rounded to the nearest whole number.
9. Calculating the vacancy rates using the above data may not equal the actual vacancy rates.
10. Strategic health authority figures are based on trusts, and do not necessarily reflect the geographical provision of health care.

Malnutrition: Children

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many children in England were (a) treated by a GP for undernutrition not caused by an eating disorder and (b) admitted to hospital for treatment for undernutrition not caused by an eating disorder in each of the last five years. [222684]

Ann Keen: Data on general practitioner activity for those being treated for undernutrtion not caused by a eating disorder are not collected centrally.

Information on the total admissions to hospital of 0 to 18-year-olds in which the patient had a primary diagnosis of undernutrition without a primary or secondary diagnosis of an eating disorder at the start of his/her stay from 2002-03 to 2006-07 is set out in the following table. This covers national health service hospitals England and activity performed in the independent sector in England commissioned by English NHS.

Maternity Services

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what plans he has to improve quality and safety in maternity services; and whether there are mechanisms in place to monitor and audit the implementation of the maternity dashboard in trusts, as recommended by the Chief Medical Officer in his report in 2007 and by Lord Darzi in the NHS Next Stage Review; [221818]

(2) what plans he has to incorporate and implement the latest standards developed by (a) the Royal Colleges on maternity and (b) the Royal College of Obstetricians and Gynaecologists standards on gynaecology in delivering NHS services. [221906]

Ann Keen: The Department's strategy for safe, high quality, modernised maternity services is set out in "Maternity Matters: Choice, access and continuity of care in a safe service". A copy has already been placed in the Library. It is for trusts to provide maternity care in line with the clinical standards outlined in guidance issued by the Department, the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence and the professional bodies.

The new standards for maternity and gynaecological care, developed by the Royal Colleges, and the maternity dashboard, produced by the Royal College of Obstetricians and Gynaecologists (RCOG), are useful tools, which commissioners and providers are encouraged to use to develop high quality maternity care. The president of the RCOG has written to all clinical directors asking them to use and adapt the dashboard in their maternity units. Its use will be evaluated by the RCOG.

Maternity Services: Newcastle upon Tyne

Mr. Henderson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans his Department has to prepare for the likely effect on demand for maternity services in Newcastle upon Tyne NHS Foundation Trust area of the possible reorganisation of maternity facilities in neighbouring trust areas. [222630]

Ann Keen: Proposals for the reconfiguration of services are a matter for the national health service locally, working in conjunction with clinicians, patients and other stakeholders.

However, the north east strategic health authority report that commissioners from the North of Tyne 'cluster' of primary care trusts (PCTs) (Northumberland National Health Service Care Trust, Newcastle PCT, and North Tyneside PCT) are in close contact with the two trusts (Newcastle Hospitals NHS Foundation Trust and Northumbria Healthcare NHS Foundation Trust) and are in the process of organising a progress meeting with the heads of midwifery and lead obstetricians of the trusts to discuss the impact of the reorganisation.

The PCTs are also providing three-monthly updates for the North Tyneside Overview and Scrutiny Committee (OSC), which representatives of the Newcastle and Northumberland OSCs are also attending.

Medical Equipment

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when he expects to receive the evaluation report for the community equipment model; and if he will place a copy in the Library. [222404]

Dawn Primarolo: The retail model developed for community equipment met with overall approval from the sector. The outline business case was sufficiently robust to support developing the outline model to operational status. This is currently being undertaken through a shadow running process in the North West with local authority and health partners in Manchester, Oldham and Cheshire.

The shadow running process demonstrated improvements in the user experience and efficiency of the service.

Cheshire and Oldham have decided to implement the model locally. This confirms that, in their areas, the new prescription processes have been demonstrated to be effective and are capable of being scaled up to support full implementation of the retail model.

The business case for a new model of delivery of wheelchair services is currently being considered by senior officials in the Department. At the present time we are unable to specify a time scale for any future decisions to be made and announced.

Medical Examinations: Immigrants

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which ports of entry where in-bound international traffic is expected have port medical inspectors on duty at all times at which the port is open. [223841]

Dawn Primarolo: Medical inspectors are appointed under the Immigration Act 1971 to advise immigration officers at ports and airports on health issues relating to applicants for admission to the United Kingdom. Medical inspectors may be located at a port or airport, or brought in on call, according to local assessment of the most cost-effective deployment of resources. Information is not collected centrally on the deployment of medical inspectors at ports and airports.

Medical Records: Data Protection

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the Written Ministerial Statement of 25 June 2008, Official Report, columns 25-27WS, on data handling procedures, if he will commission a privacy impact assessment for the NHS Spine database project. [222208]

Mr. Bradshaw: This matter has been carefully considered, but we do not believe that such an assessment would serve any useful purpose at this stage of the project.

The aim of a privacy impact assessment is to ensure that privacy is considered at every stage of a project involving the handling of information, and that action is taken to mitigate against identified risks to the privacy of individuals. While this is clearly a useful tool for many projects where these matters might otherwise be neglected, the need to safeguard privacy and confidentiality is a necessary deliverable of any health record system, and the management of risk in this area has been a core deliverable of the national health service care records service (the spine project).

The security safeguards around access to patient data held within the new care records will provide an unprecedented level of assurance compared with existing electronic and paper systems. The Department has also produced what we believe is the most comprehensive privacy statement of any public service in the form of the NHS care record guarantee for England, setting out 12 commitments the NHS makes to patients in order to protect their confidentiality.

The Information Commissioner has confirmed that, properly deployed, the new systems have the potential to allow the NHS to better meet the various informational and privacy challenges which it faces than the systems currently in existence, and that he is content with the general approach being taken with the care records service.

Medical Records: Databases

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 13 May 2008, Official Report, column 206W, on medical records: databases, whether Connecting for Health is able to comment on the monitoring processes Caldicott Guardians will use in relation to their collective access to the Care Records Service. [222409]

Mr. Bradshaw: NHS Connecting for Health provides information governance policies, guidance and tools to the NHS. However, the local processes are matters of local accountability, and for local discretion.

NHS Connecting for Health also provides a web-site:

www.connectingforhealth.nhs.uk/infogov/caldicott on which are posted the minutes of meetings of the UK Council of Caldicott Guardians, back issues of the Caldicott Guardian newsletter, frequently-asked questions, example job descriptions and specifications, and other useful resources and information for those appointed to this important role.

Medical Treatments Abroad

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many NHS patients paid for their own treatment within the European Economic Area in each of the last three months. [222996]

Dawn Primarolo: It is not known how many national health service patients have paid for their own treatment in the European economic area in the last three months as this information is not collected centrally.

Mental Health Services

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the average weekly cost is of commissioning treatment for an individual through (a) Tier 5 NHS medium secure services, (b) community forensic services and (c) Tier 4 NHS mental health services; and how many people received treatment in each category in each of the last five years. [223862]

Dawn Primarolo: From the 2006-07 reference costs the national average cost, per bed day, for medium secure mental health units is £453. This is for national health service trusts and primary care trusts combined and is sourced from Schedule 4 of the 2006-07 reference costs.

For the number of people who received treatment in Tier 5 NHS medium secure services, I refer the hon. Member to the written answer I gave the hon. Member for Somerton and Frome (Mr. Heath) on 20 March 2008, Official Report, 1315-16w.

The information requested on community forensic services is not available centrally.

Tier 4 services are mainly specialist in-patient services for those people with severe and complex personality disorder but who do not present a risk to other people and who are not detained. For the year 2005-6 these services were treating approximately 100 to 120 people per year on an in-patient basis; and 70 patients per year on a day basis. The cost is approximately £1,500 to £2,000 per week for in-patient services.

Mental Health Services: Young Offenders

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent estimate he has made of the average time taken between initial assessment by a psychiatrist at Young Offender Institution Ashfield and Huntercombe and transfer to facilities provided by St. Andrews Healthcare. [222237]

Dawn Primarolo: This work has not been undertaken centrally.

The "Procedure for the Transfer of Prisoners to and from Hospital under Sections 47 and 48 of the Mental Health Act 1983" was published in December 2007 with contributions from the Department of Health, HM Prison Service and National Commissioning Group. A copy has been placed in the Library. The National Commissioning Group are responsible for commissioning a range of specialist services including the national in-patient Secure Forensic Mental Health Service for Young People, which oversees in-patient treatment and referrals to seven specialist units for under 18s in England.

The "Procedure for the Transfer of Prisoners to and from Hospital under Sections 47 and 48 of the Mental Health Act 1983" aims to help colleagues to work together more effectively to secure and sustain significant improvements in any unacceptable delays transferring patients from custodial care to hospital care and includes a specific section on young people. The procedure states that a child with an acute need for a mental health secure bed should be moved within seven days.

Mentally Ill: Legal Services

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the oral answer of 17 June 2008, Official Report, columns 799-800, what funding has been allocated for statutory independent advocacy services in (a) 2009, (b) 2010 and (c) 2011. [213310]

Mr. Bradshaw: We are committed to funding independent mental health advocacy and funding for this will be announced together with other departmental priorities as part of the Department's 2009-10 business plan which we expect to publish in the spring.

Mentally Incapacitated: Protection

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will bring forward proposals for legislative provisions to strengthen the safeguarding of vulnerable adults and the regulation of those that work with them so as to establish parity between such provisions and those that apply in the field of child protection; and if he will make a statement. [222373]

Ann Keen: The Government are committed to strengthening safeguarding for adults and is consulting on a range of ways of doing so. We are currently conducting a review of the No Secrets guidance, in light of the knowledge we have gained since it was introduced in 2000. We will consider the case for legislation as part of the review process.

We are working closely with other Government Departments on the review and will shortly be launching a public consultation exercise as part of it. We have already undertaken a listening exercise with key stakeholders to support the consultation process.

We want to enable adults to make informed decisions about how they live, how they are supported and what level of risk they are comfortable with. It is important that we do not assume that they automatically need the same type of protection as children.

MRSA

Mr. Crausby: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what progress has been made in eradicating MRSA infection in NHS hospitals. [222623]

Ann Keen: The latest Health Protection Agency data for January to March 2008 shows significant progress, with a reduction in methicillin-resistant Staphylococcus aureus (MRSA) bloodstream infections of 33 per cent. compared to the same quarter last year. These figures also show a 49 per cent. reduction compared to the quarterly average in 2003-04, so the national health service is on course to reach the current nationwide target to halve the number of MRSA bloodstream infections by the end of March 2008 compared to 2003-04 levels.

It is not possible to eradicate health care associated infections completely as many health care interventions have some element of risk and sick people are more vulnerable to infection. However, the NHS is seeking to ensure that no avoidable infection occurs, as well as working towards the current nationwide target for MRSA bloodstream infections.

Under the "Better Care for All" public service agreement, the NHS is required to sustain progress on reducing the number of MRSA bloodstream infections to 2010-11. This means that the annual number of MRSA bloodstream infections for the period 2008-09 to 2010-11 should be less than half of the 2003-04 figure. As we have said in the "Clean, Safe Care" strategy, we do not, however, expect that this should limit the ambitions of organisations that wish to go further, faster. The NHS has made extraordinary progress in reducing MRSA levels and there is no reason to think that the progress cannot be maintained.

National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans are being developed based on the proposals in the NHS Next Stage Review for an extended role for the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence to develop standards to monitor quality and safety of services; and what effect this role will have on organisations involved in standards-setting, with particular reference to (a) the Healthcare Commission, (b) the Clinical Negligence Scheme for Trusts and (c) the Royal Colleges. [221823]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department's report High Quality Care for All: NHS Next Stage Review Final Report (CM7432) states that, from 2009, the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE) will expand the number and reach of national quality standards either by selecting the best available standards, including the adoption of the relevant parts of national service frameworks or by filling in gaps. We are taking forward work on this proposal with NICE. NICE will need to work with a range of stakeholders as it develops national quality standards.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which interventions (a) have been assessed and (b) are being assessed by the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE) through its Single Technology Appraisal process; and on which date (i) the intervention received its product licence, (ii) the intervention was referred to NICE, (iii) NICE started its appraisal and (iv) NICE completed its appraisal in respect of each. [222426]

[1] Date of marketing authorisation by European Medicines Agency (EMEA).
[2] Topics before the 13 work programme were originally referred to NICE's Multiple Technology Appraisal (MTA) programme and were transferred to the STA programme when it was introduced in August 2006. The date provided is the date the topic was originally referred to NICE as a Multiple Technology Appraisal.
[3] The date NICE commenced work on the appraisal. NICE will also have carried out scoping work for the appraisal before this date.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what his latest estimate is of the average cost to the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence of completing a (a) single technology appraisal and (b) multiple technology appraisal; [222427]

(2) what estimate he has made of the average cost of the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence of undertaking a technology appraisal. [222428]

Dawn Primarolo: The total average direct cost to the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE) to develop either a multiple technology appraisal (MTA) or single technology appraisal (STA) is estimated at £100,000. The average cost to the National Coordinating Centre for Health Technology Assessment (NCCHTA), who carry out an independent assessment of the evidence in support of NICE's appraisals, is estimated at £150,000 for an MTA and £50,000 for an STA. These estimates do not include the costs of publication, dissemination and implementation support nor do they include corporate overheads or support costs.

NHS

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health with reference to page 38 of his Department's consultation on the NHS Constitution dated 30 June 2008, for what reason the wording of the seventh principle contained in the NHS Plan has been changed in the draft NHS Constitution. [222429]

Mr. Bradshaw: The draft national health service constitution says that public funds for healthcare will be "devoted solely to the benefit of the people that the NHS serves", whereas the NHS plan said they would be "devoted solely to NHS patients". The revised wording does not represent any change in policy, but simply recognises that not all NHS funding is spent on patients. For example, funding for public health campaigns is used to promote the health of the wider population.

The draft NHS constitution and the Government's proposals are open for public consultation until 17 October 2008. The details, including how to feed in views, are available on the Department's website at:

www.dh.gov.uk/consultations.

NHS Information Centre

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Tunbridge Wells of 21 May 2008, Official Report, column 370W, on NHS Information Centre: Grayling Political Strategy, if he will request the Chief Executive of the NHS Information Centre to provide the information requested on public expenditure. [222972]

Mr. Bradshaw: Grayling was engaged to supply a range of media and communication services including relations with trade and general media, events management and public affairs advice. They were appointed in 2006-07 and payment was made as follows:

2003-04	0
2004-05	0
2007-08	5,382

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Tunbridge Wells of 21 May 2008, Official Report, column 370W, on NHS Information Centre: Grayling Political Strategy, what contribution the NHS Information Centre makes to the preparation of answers to the parliamentary questions put to him. [222973]

Mr. Bradshaw: The NHS Information Centre collects, analyses and distributes facts and figures for health and social care in England. It provides independent data for parliamentary questions covering a wide range of information from hospital admissions, statistics, national health service work force and salary data, alcohol, smoking and lifestyle surveys through to prescriptions data.

NHS: Drugs

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the average cost to the NHS was of treating patients with (a) Gemtuzumab (Mylotarg), (b) Trastuzumab (Herceptin), (c) Imatinib (Glivec), (d) Alemtuzumab (Campath), (e) Capecitabine (Xeloda), (f) Paclitaxel (Taxol), (g) Rituximab (MabThera), (h) Azacytidine (Vidaza), (i) Docetaxel (Taxotere), (j) Temozolomide (Temodar), (k) Clorfaribine (Clolar), (l) Dasatinib (Sprycel), (m) Fulvestrant (Flaslodex), (n) Trabectadin (Yondelis), (o) Bortezomib (Velcade), (p) Irinotecan (Campto), (q) Gemcitabine (Gemzar), (r) Nilotinib (Tasigna), (s) Infliximab (Remicade), (t) Topotecan (Hycamtin), (u) Yttrium-90, (v) Pemetrexed (Alimta), (w) Erlotinib (Tarceva), (x) Lenalidomide (Revlimid), (y) Letrazole (Femara), (z) Sorafenib (Nexavar), (aa) Sunitinib (Sutent), (bb) Bevaciazumab (Avastin), (cc) Cetuximab (Erbitux), (dd) Ibritumomab (Zevalin) and (ee) Cisplatin (CDDP) in the most recent period for which figures are available; and what research his Department has (i) commissioned and (ii) evaluated for bench-marking purposes on overseas (A) use and (B) spending on each drug. [224307]

Dawn Primarolo: The Department does not hold information on the average cost to the national health service of treating patients with the cancer medicines listed.

In developing the Ministerial Industry Strategy Group's "Long-Term Leadership Strategy" report, the Department and the Association of the British Pharmaceutical Industry carried out an analysis which compared the rates of uptake for a selection of medicines in the United Kingdom compared with Germany, France, Spain, Italy, the Netherlands and Switzerland. This analysis included Trastuzumab (Herceptin), Imatinib (Glivec), and Rituximab (MabThera). The report has been placed in the Library and can be found on the Department's website at:

www.dh.gov.uk/en/Publicationsandstatistics/Publications/PublicationsPolicyAndGuidance/DH_065198

NHS: Finance

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much has been top-sliced from primary care trusts budgets in (a) 2006-07, (b) 2007-08 and (c) 2008-09, broken down by primary care trust; and for each year how much has been paid back in each case. [224302]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department collected primary care trust (PCT) top slice information in the format requested in 2006-07 only. This information, based on data collected in the 2006-07 Month 12 national health service financial monitoring forms, has been placed in the Library.

The 2007-08 NHS Operating Framework clearly stated that, because of the extent of the financial recovery across the NHS, PCTs should not need to contribute the same level of top slice from their revenue allocations as was the case in 2006-07. Consequently, in the 2007-08 NHS draft accounts, we collected data showing a single net value for the amount of top slice transferred to, and paid back by, strategic health authorities (SHAs) during the year, and the balance remaining with SHAs at the year-end.

Figures for 2008-09 will be available from the 2008-09 NHS draft accounts after the end of the financial year.

NHS: ICT

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the carbon dioxide emissions generated by (a) the NHS IT programme (i) to date and (ii) over the lifetime of the programme and (b) (A) the Connecting for Health Agency and (B) information technology usage in the NHS in the last 12 months. [222412]

Mr. Bradshaw: There are a range of initiatives to reduce carbon dioxide emissions across the national health service and in the use of information technology, including initiatives extended to IT suppliers. However, information is not collected centrally that would enable such estimates to be made and could only be obtained at disproportionate cost.

NHS: Negligence

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will publish details of the accord between the NHS Litigation Authority and FirstAssist in relation to the level of insurance premiums recovered in respect of after the event insurance provided in connection with clinical negligence claims funded by conditional fee agreements. [222625]

Ann Keen: A copy of the Accord between the NHS Litigation Authority and FirstAssist has been placed in the House Library.

The Accord is a non-binding statement of intent which seeks to give effect to the judgment of Senior Costs Judge Hurst in the RSA Pursuit Test Cases[1] and to provide an informal means for resolving disputes between the NHSLA and First Assist. The NHSLA specifically reserves the right to challenge premiums where it believes the premium is disproportionate to the size of the damages obtained. The Accord was entered into with the intention of providing an element of certainty in this area of litigation and with the aim of avoiding unnecessary costs associated with satellite litigation.

NHS: Plants

Mr. Brady: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate his Department has made of the sum spent by NHS trusts on ornamental plants and seeds in the most recent year for which figures are available. [222498]

Mr. Bradshaw: The information requested is not collected centrally.

NHS: Private Sector

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which are the largest 10 private sector providers contracted for direct health care in the NHS in terms of (a) turnover and (b) patient throughput. [224441]

Mr. Bradshaw: Primary care trusts are responsible for commissioning the majority of direct health care provision in the NHS. The detail of their contracts is not held centrally.

The largest 10 independent sector providers, by value, of services under the nationally procured independent sector treatment centre (ISTC) programme and the extended choice network (ECN) in 2007-08 are listed in the following table.

The turnover for providers cannot be released at this time for reasons of commercial sensitivity but the Department is working with providers with the intention of releasing as much information as possible in the future. By the end of November this year, contract details relating to the Phase 2 ISTC contracts will be published on the Department's website in line with the Wave 1 information that is already available there.

The largest 10 independent sector providers, by value, of services under the nationally procured ISTC programme and the ECN in 2007-08

£ rank	Independent sector provider	Patient throughput
1	Care UK	170,864
2	Ramsay Health Care UK	19,828
3	Interhealth Care Services	7,831
4	UK Specialist Hospitals	9,782
5	Nations Healthcare	35,498
6	Netcare UK	7,882
7	Spire Healthcare	33,507
8	Alliance Medical	80,368
9	Nuffield Hospitals	1,988
10	The Horder Centre	486

Note:
Patient throughput includes procedures, diagnostic assessments and episodes of primary care but not out-patient assessment appointments for elective procedures through ISTCs and the IS ECN.

NHS: Working Hours

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 20 June 2008, Official Report, column 1235W, on NHS: working hours, whether the pilots will reflect the proposed changes to the terms of the European Working Time Directive. [222411]

Ann Keen: No. The pilots are designed to meet the 48 hour week under the current legal interpretations.

Nursing and Midwifery Council

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what representations his Department has received on the governance and performance of the Nursing and Midwifery Council in the last three years. [222363]

Dawn Primarolo: The Department has received a number of representations over the last three years, including from the following individuals and bodies: former and serving members of the Nursing and Midwifery Council (NMC), unions representing NMC registrants in the United Kingdom, the Council for Healthcare Regulatory Excellence (CHRE), members of the UK Parliament and members of the devolved administrations in Northern Ireland and Wales.

The Department was made aware of concerns about the NMC. As a result of these representations, the Department asked the CHRE to expedite its annual performance review of the NMC in 2008.

The Department has accepted the recommendations made by CHRE in the 'Special report to the Minister of State for Health Services on the Nursing and Midwifery Council' and it is moving towards a newly constituted council via reforms in the Nursing and Midwifery (Amendment) Order 2008, which will deliver a new, wholly appointed Council by the new year. This piece of legislation has now received Royal Approval. In future, all Council members will be appointed rather than elected.

Obesity

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health for what reasons the Government did not set a target to reduce levels of obesity between 1997 and 2004. [223725]

Dawn Primarolo: From the 1998 comprehensive spending review until 2004, the Department agreed a range of targets (public service agreements) to improving health that were related to obesity. For example, in 2000 the Department published a public service agreement (PSA) to substantially reduce the mortality rates from major killers by 2010, including heart disease and cancer—obesity is a contributing factor to both of these health issues.

Olympic Games 2012

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many full-time equivalent members of staff in (a) his Department and (b) its associated public bodies are working on projects related to the London 2012 Olympics and Paralympics Games; how many of those are working on (i) project management, (ii) legacy planning, (iii) project oversight and (iv) financial oversight; and what plans he has for future staffing levels in each case. [221867]

Mr. Bradshaw: The information is as follows.

The Department of Health

	Current full-time equivalent (FTE) members of staff working on projects related to London 2012 (as at 12 September 2008)
Project Management	1.32 + 3 for 15 days
Legacy planning	4.01
Project oversight	1.0
Financial oversight	0.1
Total	6.43 + 3 for 15 days

Figures include both civil servants, consultancy support and secondees.

In addition, a further full-time member of staff is currently being recruited to support 2012 legacy work. This member of staff would represent-0.2 FTE on project management and 0.8 FTE on legacy planning.

Furthermore, the Department has also assigned an envelope of funding to each of the nine regions for the comprehensive spending review period. In 2008-09 each Regional Public Health Group (RPHG) will receive £100,000 for physical activity. This will be used as each region sees best, to put in place action plans working with partner organisations and stakeholders, though each RPHG has been tasked by the Department to develop a regional 2012 Health Legacy Action Plan that complements the national Legacy Action Plan to deliver a 2012 health legacy. It is likely that a proportion of this funding will be used to secure additional capacity to take forward programmes.

Our future staffing needs are currently being reviewed. The number of staff working on projects related to London 2012 is likely to increase over time.

Associated public bodies: The Health Protection Agency

	Current full-time equivalent members of staff working on projects related to London 2012 (as at 12 September 2008)
Project Management	1.0
Legacy planning	0.1
Project oversight	0.15
Financial oversight	0.05
Total	1.3

At present, there are no plans for any increase on current staff levels in relation to the 2012 Olympics at the Health Protection Agency. However, over the next four years some increase might be necessary.

Palliative Care

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the contribution of the National Gold Standards Framework Centre to the effective functioning of the Gold Standards Framework. [222440]

Dawn Primarolo: The National Gold Standards Framework Centre made an important contribution to the roll out of the Gold Standards Framework. This was recognised by the support they received through the Department's £12 million National Health Service End of Life Care Programme, which ran from 2004 to 2007.

Patient Choice Schemes: Greater London

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which of London's NHS foundation trusts and teaching hospitals are not implementing the policy of allowing patients to use the choose and book appointments system; to what extent the implementation of this policy is being overseen by (a) Monitor, the independent regulator of NHS Foundation Trusts and (b) the Healthcare Commission; and if he will make a statement. [222388]

Mr. Bradshaw: All London NHS Foundation Trusts (NHSFTs) and teaching hospitals are using Choose and Book.

We are informed by the Chairman of Monitor (the statutory name of which is the Independent Regulator of NHSFTs) that during 2007-08, compliance with the requirement to implement and maintain systems to support Choose and Book was reported by NHSFTs to Monitor on a quarterly basis. In 2007-08, no NHSFT reported to Monitor that it did not have in place the systems in order to enable it to offer choice to patients.

The Healthcare Commission has an indicator 'Convenience and Choice' as part of the annual health check. It assesses trusts on the information that providers have on NHS Choices and the availability of appointment slots on Choose and Book for patients to book their appointment.

Pregnancy: Diabetes

Helen Southworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what measures his Department has put in place to support women with diabetes during pregnancy. [222671]

Dawn Primarolo: While it is for national health service providers and commissioners to decide how best to meet the needs of pregnant women with diabetes, both the National Service Framework for Diabetes, and the National Service Framework for Children, Young People and Maternity Services include standards that refer specifically to diabetes in pregnancy. Commissioners should aim to provide services that meet these standards.

To support this, the National Clinical Director for Diabetes is currently working with key stakeholders to develop a project to support the NHS in improving outcomes for women with diabetes.

Prescription Only Medicines (Human Use) Amendment Order 2008

Mr. Streeter: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when he plans to implement the provisions of the Prescription Only Medicines (Human Use) Amendment Order 2008; and if he will make a statement. [222419]

Dawn Primarolo: The amendment order came into force on 1 April 2008. However, to fully implement the provisions allowing Nurse and Pharmacist Independent Prescribers to prescribe all controlled drugs, corresponding amendments to the Home Office's Misuse of Drugs Regulations 2001 are also necessary. These amendments are expected to come into force later this year.

Prescriptions: ICT

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what representations his Department has received from (a) hon. Members and (b) other interested parties in the last 12 months on the service provided by (i) ScriptSwitch Ltd and (ii) other systems used by clinicians to alert them to cheaper substitute medicines; [222510]

(2) what guidance his Department has issued to NHS organisations on the use of (a) ScriptSwitch and (b) other systems used by clinicians to alert them to cheaper substitute medicines; [222511]

(3) how much (a) his Department and (b) the NHS spent on ScriptSwitch in each of the last three years; [222512]

(4) what contractual arrangements there are between ScriptSwitch Ltd and (a) his Department and (b) the NHS; [222513]

(5) what assessment his Department has made of the effect of the use of ScriptSwitch on (a) patient safety, (b) patient safety with specific regard to those patients with co-morbidities, (c) quality of care, (d) prescribing costs and (e) clinical freedom to prescribe; and if he will make a statement. [222514]

Mr. Bradshaw: Following publication of the National Audit Office's May 2007 report Prescribing costs in primary care, the Department issued guidance entitled Strategies to Achieve Cost Effective Prescribing on 26 June 2007. This outlines advice to primary care trusts (PCTs) and general practitioner practices on how to consider releasing resources through so-called 'therapeutic switching' strategies. It gives details of a number of principles that should underpin any strategy, including the principle that decisions should be based on patients' individual clinical needs. The guidance has been placed in the Library and is available from the Department's website at:

www.dh.gov.uk/en/Publicationsandstatistics/Publications/PublicationsPolicyAndGuidance/DH_076350

We are aware that a commercially available prescribing support software tool provided by Scriptswitch Ltd has been adopted by a number of PCTs. The Department does not hold information on the numbers of PCTs using the tool, on individual contractual arrangements or on national health service expenditure on this product. The Department has not undertaken any assessment of the effects of the use of Scriptswitch by the NHS.

The Department is unaware of any other system similar to that provided by Scriptswitch Ltd. Apart from the questions asked by the hon. Member for Eddisbury, in the period 31 August 2007 to 1 September 2008 the Department received three written representations concerning Scriptswitch.

Psychiatry: Regulation

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the timescale is for (a) the consultation exercise on the regulation of psychotherapists, (b) the publication of the results of the consultation, (c) any decisions contingent on the consultation and (d) the implementation of those decisions. [222492]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department is not currently consulting on the regulation of psychotherapists, however discussions on the scope of practice and the national occupational standards for psychotherapists are continuing. Once agreement has been reached we will publish proposals for public consultation.

Radiotherapy

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health with reference to the Cancer Reform Strategy's Impact Assessment, if he will break down the one-off transition costs for improving radiotherapy services by anticipated expenditure on (a) increasing capacity, (b) reducing cancer waits and (c) collecting and analysing outcomes data. [220991]

Dawn Primarolo: The one-off transitional costs of £394 million on page 3 of the Cancer Reform Strategy's Impact Assessment refer only to the cost of radiotherapy capacity.

Sexually Transmitted Diseases: Babies

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many babies were born with sexually transmitted infections in each of the last five years, broken down by disease. [222291]

Dawn Primarolo: Information is only currently available in genito-urinary medicine (GUM) clinics on the number of diagnoses made, not the number of patients diagnosed.

The number of diagnoses made in babies born with a sexually transmitted infection in England, by infection for 2003-07 is shown in the following table:

	2003	2004	2005	2006	2007
Congenital syphilis, aged under 2 years	[1]—	7	14	6	[1]—
Gonococcal ophthalmia neonatorum, aged under 2 months	[1]—	24	90	28	26
Chlamydial ophthalmia neonatorum, aged under 2 months	43	76	37	32	17

[1] Cell size of 1 to 4 and totals have been masked to protect deductive disclosure in accordance with Office for National Statistics guidelines.

Notes:

1. The data available from the KC60 statutory returns are for diagnoses made in GUM clinics only. Diagnoses made in other clinical settings, such as general practice, are not recorded in the KC60 dataset.
2. The information provided has been adjusted for missing clinic data.
3. Additional information on infants born with a sexually transmitted infection can be found on the Hospital Episode Statistics (HES) Service website www.hesonline.nhs.uk.
4. Some of the data from GUM clinics may be from referrals and therefore may also be counted in the HES dataset.
5. Not all infants born with a sexually transmitted infection would have been referred to a GUM clinic.

The number of babies born with HIV infection in England for 2003-07, is shown in the following table:

	Confirmed mother to baby HIV transmission
2003	26
2004	33
2005	30
2006	23
2007	8

Note:

Additional information on reporting of infants born to HIV-infected women is available at www.nshpc.ucl.ac.uk. Since some infants with perinatally acquired HIV are diagnosed in later childhood, further reports are expected, particularly for 2006 and 2007.

Skin Cancer

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what statistics his Department collects on the outcome of operations for skin cancer conducted by general practitioners; [224449]

(2) what the (a) training, (b) accountability, (c) audit and (d) governance arrangements are for GPs carrying out surgical treatments of skin cancer. [224491]

Mr. Bradshaw: Primary care trusts can enter into arrangements with a primary medical services contractor to carry out minor surgery, provided the contractor meets minimum requirements as set out in Primary Medical Services (Directed Enhanced Services) (England) Directions 2007. This includes requirements regarding training, accountability, audit and governance arrangements.

There is a nationally mandated accreditation process for general practitioners with special interest (GPwSIs). This is underpinned by a series of speciality specific guidance including one for dermatology and skin surgery.

Statistical information on the outcomes of operations for skin cancer conducted by general practitioners is not collected centrally.

Social Services: Foreign Workers

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people born outside the UK were employed in the care-related sector in each of the last 10 years. [222413]

Dawn Primarolo: Data on the place of birth of workers in the care-related sector is not held centrally.

Social Services: Powers of Entry

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what representations his Department received on the grant to council staff of powers to enter private homes during its review of care law; and what work the Law Commission is undertaking on the issue. [222788]

Dawn Primarolo: No representations have been received by the Department. No decisions have been made on the extent of the Law Commission's review of social care law. Terms of reference for any possible future work by the Law Commission have yet to be drafted and agreed between the Department and the Law Commission.

Social Services: Vetting

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether care providers are informed when Criminal Records Bureau checks on their prospective employees are discovered not to have been correctly carried out; what estimate he has made of the number of such checks; and whether he plans to provide compensation to care providers for such cases. [222442]

Meg Hillier: I have been asked to reply.

All the quality control procedures at the Criminal Records Bureau (CRB) are geared to achieving the highest levels of accuracy. In addition, the CRB carries out a post disclosure accuracy check that analyses all aspects of the disclosure application and its issue. This check was introduced in 2007 and is based on a statistical sample of disclosure applications and from that sample it can be ascertained that the accuracy rate for 2006-07 is 99.94 per cent. and for 2007-08 is 99.98 per cent. No comparative data are available before these dates and the CRB does not collate information by specific sectors such as the care sector or providers.

If, as a result of this additional check, the CRB needs to correct a Disclosure, it does so free of charge to the employer and the applicant.

The CRB operates a central database in order to record transactions that occur during the disclosure process, where applicants' personal data provided on an application form are compared against information held by the police, the Department of Health and the Department for Children, Schools and Families. Although the CRB has access to conviction and other information through this process, the police and the other data sources above are the data owners of material held on their respective databases and as such are responsible for the accuracy of information held thereon.

As with any public sector organisation the CRB operates a Redress scheme where there has been maladministration.

South East

Dr. Stoate: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much his Department spent on services, broken down by type in (a) Dartford borough, (b) Kent Thameside, (c) the Thames Gateway, (d) Kent county council area and (e) the South East region in each of the last five years. [222450]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department allocates almost all national health service funding directly to primary care trusts (PCTs), which are responsible for using their resources to commission healthcare services that meet the needs of their local population.

Information about NHS expenditure is not available in the format requested. However, information is available about commissioning expenditure by PCTs in the South East Coast strategic health authority (SHA) area, and figures for the financial years 2002-03 through to 2006-07 have been placed in the Library. 2006-07 is the most recent year for which data is available.

In the tables placed in the Library, the figures given for gross expenditure on primary healthcare include expenditure on primary care dental services only in 2006-07. Prior to the introduction of local commissioning arrangements for primary dental care on 1 April 2006, most general dental services expenditure was accounted for by the former Dental Practice Board on a national basis only. However, some information on primary dental care expenditure in individual PCT or health authority areas is available for earlier years. The Information Centre for health and social care published the report "NHS Expenditure for General Dental Services and Personal Dental Services: England 1997-98 2005-06 on 26 March 2008. A copy has already been placed in the Library and is also available at:

www.ic.nhs.uk/pubs/dentalexpend1997to2006.

The report includes information on primary dental care expenditure by PCT and SHA for 1997-98 to 2005-06 at Tables A1 and B1 of Annex 3. Table A1 relates to 'gross' expenditure and table B1 relates to 'net' expenditure. Gross expenditure refers to the full cost of the payments recorded; net expenditure reflects the cost of these payments to the NHS after the deduction of income from NHS dental charges paid by patients.

This information is based on the old dental contractual arrangements that were in place up to and including 31 March 2006. While the information is not directly comparable with resource accounts data for the earlier years or current data on the new framework of locally commissioned dental services effective since 1 April 2006, it does reflect the major elements of primary dental care expenditure in each area. Further notes to aid interpretation of the information are shown in the 'Contents and Notes' page of Annex 3 of the Information Centre report.

The Department also sets the strategic framework for adult social care and influences local authority spending on social care. Resources and funding for local authorities/councils are allocated from the Government and distributed by the Department for Communities and Local Government. This contributes to the resources available to local authorities, alongside the collection of council tax and fees and charges. It is the responsibility of local authorities to allocate resources for adult social care in order to meet local needs, priorities and key local and national objectives.

In addition, the Department has made specific revenue grants available to local authorities to meet policy objectives. From 2008-09, the Department mainly allocates personal social services (PSS) grant funding to local authorities/councils through the area based grant. Area based grants are monies that central Government has pooled, and it is not possible for the Department to place any restrictions on how local authorities use this funding.

The Department does not hold data on PSS grants below local authority level. A breakdown of revenue and capital PSS grants allocated by the Department to Kent council in the last five years (2004-05 to 2008-09) and similar details for the South East region, which includes Kent council, have been placed in the Library.

Speech Impairment: Children

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many and what proportion of three and four-year olds have received a pre-school assessment of speech and language abilities in the last 12 months. [223761]

Dawn Primarolo: Information on treatment received from speech language therapists (SLT) provided by the national health service is not collected centrally. The Department collects data by consultant led specialties. SLT is not a consultant led speciality. The Government's objective is to balance the need for data against the burden that data collection places on the NHS.

Stress

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what arrangements his Department has in place to assist officials to overcome the effects of stress experienced in the workplace. [222171]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department is committed to the well-being of its employees. It has a number of policies and procedures in place to reduce stress at work. Our internal guidance on how to reduce stress at work, based on the principles of the Health and Safety Executive's management standards, is available to all employees and gives easy-to-use advice on the successful prevention and management of stress at work. We are also developing a Mental Health policy which will be launched in autumn this year.

Syringes: Injuries

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health on how many days NHS nurses were absent from work owing to needle stick injuries in the last 12 months. [222812]

Dawn Primarolo: Data on the number of days of absence relating to needle stick injuries to national health service nurses are not collected centrally. However, the Health Protection Agency (HPA) collects information on surveillance of significant occupational exposures to blood borne viruses in health care workers in the United Kingdom; its latest report is available on the HPA's website at:

www.camr.org.uk/web/HPAwebFile/HPAweb_C/1205394781623.

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of cost to the NHS of (a) treatment and (b) follow-up of a needle stick injury to a member of staff where the needle is known to have been used on a HIV-positive patient. [222813]

Dawn Primarolo: The cost of a course of antiviral drugs for HIV post-exposure prophylaxis, as recommended in the Department's publication, "HIV post-exposure prophylaxis: Guidance from the UK Chief Medical Officers' Expert Advisory Group on AIDS", is about £680. Follow up will vary depending on case by case needs and cost estimates are therefore not available centrally.

A copy of this guidance has been placed in the Library and is available on the Department's website at:

www.dh.gov.uk/en/Publicationsandstatistics/Publications/PublicationsPolicyAndGuidance/DH_088185

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans he has to monitor each NHS trust's adherence to section 10e of the Code of Practice for the prevention and control of healthcare-associated infections issued under the Health Act 2006, with particular reference to the requirement to prevent needle stick injuries through the provision of medical devices incorporating sharps protection mechanisms. [222815]

Dawn Primarolo: It is the duty of the Healthcare Commission to monitor adherence by trusts of 'The Health Act 2006 code of practice for the prevention and control of healthcare associated infections'. However, the use of devices which incorporate sharps protection mechanisms is not mandatory. Trusts have to consider the use of these devices but are not obliged to use them. Although these devices are designed to reduce needle stick injuries the evidence is not complete and providers find that such devices are not acceptable to their staff and can reduce safety.

Syringes: Procurement

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many NHS Trusts purchase medical devices incorporating sharps protection mechanisms through the NHS supply chain. [222814]

Mr. Bradshaw: A total of 241 trusts purchase medical devices incorporating sharps protection mechanisms through NHS Supply Chain.

Taxis

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much (a) his Department and (b) its agencies spent on taxis in the last financial year for which figures are available. [223033]

Mr. Bradshaw: For the financial year April 2007 to March 2008, the amount spent on taxis for the Department is £331,192.43. We do not have figures for the whole of the financial year April 2007 to March 2008 for our Executive agencies. For the financial year April 2006 to March 2007, the amount spent on taxis for NHS Purchasing and Supply Agency is £242.30 and Medicines and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency is £16,125.21.

Teenage Pregnancy

Mr. Henderson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether his Department plans to introduce additional programmes over the next academic year for students in the further education sector to raise awareness of unwanted pregnancies amongst young people. [222634]

Beverley Hughes: I have been asked to reply:

In 2007, DCSF and DH issued guidance to FE colleges and primary care trusts (PCTs) on setting up sexual health advice services in FE settings. Such services serve to improve young people's access to early advice and treatment, by locating services in places that fit with young people's daily lives. A mapping survey in 2008 established that around 80 per cent. of FE colleges now have on-site services. The scope of each service is determined locally by the college's governing body, in negotiation with the PCT which provides the necessary health professional input. In some colleges, provision is limited to condom distribution schemes, whereas in others a wider range of services are available, including pregnancy testing, STI screening, and provision of a broad range of contraception, including emergency contraception.

Unlike schools, colleges are not required to provide sex education, although the majority of colleges do cover sexual health issues within their tutorial programmes.

More broadly, DH announced in July that it would be developing a 'Healthy Colleges' initiative that would put in place a framework—based on the National Healthy Schools programme—to allow FE colleges to better respond to the health needs of their students. Consultation is now underway with colleges, FE students and other stakeholders to determine the detailed design and implementation strategy for the 'Healthy Colleges' initiative.

Termination of Pregnancy Bill

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will place in the Library copies of representations received by his Department from interested parties used in the preparation of the partial regulatory impact assessment for the Termination of Pregnancy Bill of Session 2006-07; and if he will make a statement. [222236]

Dawn Primarolo: Copies of written representations received from interested parties used in the preparation of the partial regulatory impact assessment of the Termination of Pregnancy Bill of Session 2006-07 have been placed in the Library, as requested.

Interviews were also held with a number of organisations, including some of those who made written representations, but the Department does not hold a formal record of these. However, some of the information obtained from those discussions was used to develop the partial regulatory impact assessment

Vaccination: Greater London

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the backlog in vaccinations in London due to the performance of the child health interim application. [222441]

Dawn Primarolo: No single estimate has been made of the number of children who may have missed immunisations as a direct result of the child health interim application (CHIA).

Each primary care trust (PCT) in London using CHIA has carried out an audit of the accuracy of the data held on their systems in 2007-08. These audits have been undertaken at different times and therefore are not directly comparable. The audits have allowed the identification of children who may have missed vaccinations or who have been vaccinated and the information not acknowledged, and PCTs are taking action locally to ensure that these children are offered the appropriate vaccinations.

In addition to information stored on CHIA, immunisations can also be identified in other ways such as the use of general practice data systems and individual children's immunisation records (known as the "Red Book") held by parents. The 'CHIA' PCTs are continuing to work closely with general practices and local health professionals to ensure that children are immunised at the appropriate time. The Department is kept updated on progress by these PCTs.

CHIA is in the process of being replaced this year by a new Electronic Care Record system which will enable full immunisation scheduling and recording.

CHILDREN, SCHOOLS AND FAMILIES

Autism: Intimidation

Mr. Walker: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what assessment he has made of the effect of bullying on children with autism. [222581]

Beverley Hughes: The Department has recently commissioned Goldsmiths College to undertake research on the effectiveness of our anti-bullying strategies. This research will provide the necessary quantitative and qualitative data needed to draw robust conclusions about the efficacy of different anti-bullying strategies, including those affecting children with special educational needs and disabilities. The findings will be reported to the Department in summer 2009 and summer 2010.

Autism: Mental Health Services

Mr. Walker: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many children with autism or Asperger's syndrome accessed child and adolescent mental health services in each of the last 10 years. [222579]

Ann Keen: I have been asked to reply.

This information is not collected centrally.

The annual child and adolescent mental health service (CAMHS) mapping includes a snapshot of the children and young people using CAMHS and what diagnosis is recorded. The latest findings are in figs. 11.73 and 11.74 on page 116 of "A profile of child health, child and adolescent mental health and maternity services in England 2007". A copy has been placed in the Library.

Table 8.11 on page 202 of the Office for National Statistics publication "Mental health of children and young people in Great Britain, 2004" shows the percentages of children seeking help from CAMHS in 2004 and whether the child had an autistic spectrum disorder. A copy has been placed in the Library.

Building Schools for the Future Programme

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the (a) original expected completion date and (b) current expected completion date is of each Building Schools for the Future project; and what the reasons are for delays in completion of projects in each case where there is a delay. [223734]

Jim Knight: Building Schools for the Future is the most ambitious school building programme for a generation. As you would expect of a programme of this scale, there have been challenges and lessons have been learned from the early projects. These have led to improvements in the process supporting the delivery of BSF and in local authority preparations for joining the programme. The key reasons for the delays in some of the early local authority projects are as follows:

many local authorities in the early waves of the programme found identifying and resourcing the necessary project management skill sets to deliver the programme more challenging than expected;

a focus on "getting it right" to ensure that strategies are educationally transformational rather than simply focusing on pace of delivery has led to some authorities taking longer than originally expected to develop their education and procurement strategies; and in the early waves the selected local authorities had the biggest challenges to manage, were pioneering the processes, and were at the forefront of resolving unexpected difficulties with innovative solutions.

The following table provides a comparison between the original expected project completion date and the current expected date for each local authority in the first three waves of BSF. Where specific local issues have impacted on the delivery timetable, these are also described.

Child Minding

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many registered childminders there were in each region in each quarter of the last three years. [223747]

Beverley Hughes: The information requested is shown in the table.

Children in Care

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what proportion of children in (a) foster care, (b) children's homes, (c) residential special schools and (d) juvenile secure establishments in England in the last 12 months (i) saw a family member at least once a week in that period and (ii) had no contact with their family in that period. [221778]

Ed Balls: We do not collect figures on the level of contact that children in foster care, children's homes, residential special schools or juvenile secure establishments in England have had in the last 12 months with their family. However, Paragraph 15 of Schedule 2 to the Children Act 1989 places a duty on the local authority in respect of all looked after children to promote contact between the child and his/her parents, friends, relatives and others unless this is not reasonably practicable or consistent with the child's welfare. Rule 29(2) of the Secure Training Centre Rules and Rule 39(2) of the Young Offender Institution Rules provide that the governor shall ensure that special attention is paid to the maintenance of such relations between a trainee and his family as seem desirable in the best interests of the trainee.

Children in Care: Health Services

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what steps he is taking to maximise the beneficial effects of the NHS operating framework for 2008-09 on the health and well-being of looked-after children. [223944]

Beverley Hughes: The NHS Operating Framework outlines a clear expectation that PCTs will pay particular attention to access for disadvantaged and vulnerable groups. This should include looked after children. The framework is underpinned by guidance including the guidance on Joint Strategic Needs Assessments (JSNAs) which states that looked after children should be taken into consideration when identifying the future health and wellbeing needs of local populations. The framework also states that the Healthcare Commission will specifically consider access to Child and Adolescent Mental Health Service (CAMHS) provision when carrying out performance assessment of NHS bodies. The beneficial effects of this framework will be maximised by ensuring that the forthcoming statutory guidance on the health of looked after children reinforces the framework's commitments and outlines exactly how health bodies should ensure that looked after children lead healthy lives. We will also maximise the beneficial effects by seeking to ensure that the data generated to measure the national indicator on the emotional and behavioural health of looked after children is used by local authorities and health bodies to inform how they ensure timely access to high quality mental health services for these children.

Children: Communication Skills

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what proportion of children who have received a pre-school assessment of speech and language in the last 12 months were referred for speech and language issues. [223980]

Beverley Hughes: The Department does not collect this data. The importance of early identification and assessment featured strongly in the recently published report of the Review of Services for Children and Young People (0-19) with Speech, Language and Communication Needs, undertaken by the hon. Member for Buckingham (John Bercow)—a copy of which can be accessed at www.dcsf.gov.uk/bercowreview

The Government have welcomed the Bercow report and have announced an investment of £12 million to help enable action to be taken forward in the areas it highlighted. Later this year, we will produce a detailed action plan setting out how we will implement the Bercow recommendations, over what time scale, and how we will allocate the funds we are investing.

We have also introduced the Early Years Foundation Stage framework to help practitioners and teachers in early years settings meet the learning and development and needs (including speech and language) of all children. Through additional investment of £40 million, we have also introduced the "Every Child a Talker (ECAT)" programme—which will give practitioners easier access to training and materials so that they are better equipped to support children's early language development, including identifying potential delays and disorders early on.

Children: Databases

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families pursuant to the written ministerial statement of 25 June 2008, Official Report, columns 25-27WS, on data handling procedures, if he will commission a privacy impact assessment for the ContactPoint database. [222189]

Beverley Hughes: We have no plans to commission a privacy impact assessment for the ContactPoint project which is currently in testing phase. Our preferred approach is to continue our ongoing engagement with the Information Commissioner's Office and with children, young people, parents and carers both at a national and a local level, to ensure that any concerns about privacy are addressed and that the benefits that ContactPoint will bring are fully explained.

It is important that children, young people and their families have confidence in the way ContactPoint protects their privacy. That is why the data held on ContactPoint will be minimal to enable it to fulfil its purpose - to provide a quick and easy way for practitioners to find out who else is working with the same child.

ContactPoint will contain no case information—for example, school attainment records or medical case notes—nor will it include subjective opinions, comments or observations about a child or their parents.

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the reasons are for the delay in the implementation of ContactPoint; and what the cost to the public purse of (a) that delay and (b) implementation in full will be. [223744]

Beverley Hughes: The Government have always been clear that they would take a steady, staged approach to developing ContactPoint including subjecting the system to rigorous testing.

Recent testing of the system has highlighted some usability issues that we want to resolve before we embark on testing the ContactPoint system with users. In order to address these issues thoroughly, I decided not to start Early Adopter deployment in October 2008 as planned. It is both prudent and sensible to take a little more time to ensure the system is ready before we deploy it to local authorities and national partners.

We expect to meet the cost of full implementation from the existing budget, which remains unchanged at £224 million, since it was announced by my right hon. Friend the Member for Stretford and Urmston (Beverley Hughes) in December 2005.

Children: Day Care

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families pursuant to the answer of 1 July 2008, Official Report, columns 823-24W, on children: day care, how many senior managers on average a local authority nursery had at the most recent date for which figures are available. [223762]

Beverley Hughes: The Childcare and Early Years Providers survey collects information on staff type in childcare and early years providers. Table 1 shows the total and average number of senior managers working in full day care settings, by type of ownership of the setting in 2007.

Table 1: Number of senior managers in full day care providers, by ownership of provision, 2007

	Private	Voluntary	Local authority	School/college	Other	Total
Total number of senior managers	8,700	2,700	800	900	300	13,400
Average number of senior managers per setting	1	1	1	1	1	1

Note:
Numbers by type of ownership may not sum to the total due to rounding.

Children: Disadvantaged

Mr. Goodwill: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many children assessed as being at risk of exclusion are entered on school registers as educated off-site and B-code; and how many hours per week of education such children receive on average. [222835]

Beverley Hughes: We do not collect data on B-codes (i.e. children at an approved educational activity off-site) from schools because this code does not mean that the pupil is absent from education for that session. The concept of "at risk of exclusion" is rather subjective, and therefore not subject to precise measurement, so we therefore do not collect statistics of children at risk of exclusion and cannot give figures for children at risk of exclusion educated off site.

Children: Nutrition

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what steps the Government has taken to assist schools to encourage parents to provide healthy meals for children. [224288]

Beverley Hughes: The School Food Trust (SFT), on behalf of the Department, is taking a number of steps to assist schools to encourage parents to provide healthy meals for children. The SFT parent's forum is an electronic message board where parents can communicate with each other about school food. Access to the forum is via http://forum.schoolfoodtrust.org.uk/forum/people.php.

The SFT has also produced a booklet and a leaflet especially for parents and carers, which clearly lays out what the standards on school lunches mean and how parents can play a part in transforming school food. In addition the SFT has information and guidance on how to prepare healthy and varied packed lunches including some menu ideas and case studies.

'Let's Get Cooking' is a network of cookery clubs for young people and parents funded by the Big Lottery Fund and led by the School Food Trust in partnership with well-known organisations with experience in food skills and campaigning, including the Prince's Trust, Business in the Community, Magic Outcomes and the Improvement Foundation. The aim of 'Let's Get Cooking' is to give children and non-cooking parents of all ages the skills and confidence to cook nutritious and tasty meals from scratch, outside of school hours. More information can be found at http://www.letsgetcooking.org.uk/Home.

Children: Obesity

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what recent steps the Government has taken to address childhood obesity. [222677]

Beverley Hughes: In the six months since the £372 million 'Healthy Weight, Healthy Lives: a Cross Government Strategy for England' was published there has been substantial progress. The progress newsletter 'Healthy Weight, Healthy Lives: 6 months on', was published on 23 July 2008.

The newsletter highlights the steps forward for the next six months across all five themes of the strategy: children, healthy growth and weight; promoting healthier food choices; building physical activity into our lives; creating incentives for better health; and personalised advice and support for all.

Children's Centres

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what proportion of children's centres were operated by organisations other than the relevant local authority in each year since such centres were introduced. [223981]

Beverley Hughes: Local authorities, working with their partners through children's trust arrangements, are responsible for the delivery of the Sure Start Children's Centres in their local area. However we encourage them to involve voluntary, private and independent organisations both in managing children's centres and as service providers in order to harness the best of all sectors in delivering quality services for children. Information is not collected centrally on how many and what proportion of Sure Start Children's Centres are run by organisations on behalf of local authorities.

Children's Centres: Lincolnshire

Shona McIsaac: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many children's centres there are in (a) Cleethorpes constituency, (b) Great Grimsby constituency, (c) North East Lincolnshire and (d) North Lincolnshire; how many are planned to be opened in each area; how much was spent on such centres in each of the last three years; and how much will be spent in the next 18 months. [222783]

Beverley Hughes: There are currently (a) two Sure Start Children's Centres in Cleethorpes,(b) nine Centres in Great Grimsby, (c) 12 centres in North East Lincolnshire with a further two planned and (d) 11 centres in North Lincolnshire with a further one planned.

The two centres planned in North East Lincolnshire are currently at the initial public consultation stage with the local authority looking at sites in Old Clee, Humberston and New Waltham, which fall within the Cleethorpes constituency.

Details of expenditure and expenditure are given below. It is not possible to provide a break-down of these figures for an 18 month period as information is not collected using this timescale.

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many teaching assistants there were in Yorkshire and the Humber in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [223814]

Jim Knight: The available information on the number of full-time equivalent teaching assistants in Yorkshire and the Humber in each of the last five years is shown in the following table.

	Full-time equivalent teaching assistants[1]
2004	15,420

2007	17,920
2008	19,280

published in April 2008.

Departmental Air Travel

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families pursuant to the answer to the right hon. Member for Horsham of 14 July 2008, Official Report, column 27W, on carbon emissions: Government departments, how much air mileage incurred through departmental travel was used to calculate the departmental payment to the Government Carbon Offsetting Fund in each year that his Department and its predecessor have participated in the fund, broken down by (a) domestic, (b) short haul and (c) long haul flights. [221994]

Beverley Hughes: The Department's predecessor, the Department for Education and Skills, first contributed to the Government Carbon Offsetting fund for its 2006/07 air travel and reported the following mileage:

	Kilometres
(a) Domestic flights	[1]0
(b) Short-haul flights	945,414
(c) Long-haul flights	837,050

[1] Could not be separated from (b)

Figures for 2007/08 for the Department are currently being cleared for submission within the annual return on Sustainable Development in Government.

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families whether those staff of his Department who are entitled to business class or first class air travel are permitted to (a) travel in a cheaper class to the destination and (b) benefit in monetary terms or kind from the saving. [222004]

Beverley Hughes: The class of air travel which staff may book depends upon grade, the length of time the journey will take, as well as airlines' fare structures on various routes. Whether or not a member of staff is entitled to travel first class or business class, all members of DCSF have a responsibility to make appropriate decisions on how to travel and to secure value for money in the use of travel budgets. DCSF members of staff are permitted to travel in a cheaper class to the destination although any saving would not generate a monetary or in kind benefit for the individual.

All travel undertaken by DCSF staff is undertaken in accordance with the requirements of the 'Civil Service Management Code' and Treasury guidance set out in 'Managing Public Money' on the avoidance of personal profit from public business. DCSF has a travel service contract with a travel agent for all flight bookings, the costs being paid centrally. DCSF staff are expected to use the contract, whenever possible, when booking any travel tickets.

Departmental Buildings

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the location is of each office occupied by his Department and its predecessor which has been (a) newly occupied and (b) refurbished in the last 24 months; and what the floor area in square metres is of each. [222001]

Beverley Hughes: The Department for Children, Schools and Families do not have any locations which have been newly occupied and refurbished in the last 24 months.

Departmental Circulars

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families if he will publish a list of circulars issued to (a) local authorities and (b) schools by his Department in the academic year 2007-08. [223838]

Beverley Hughes: The information is as follows:

(a) In 2007-08, the Department sent a weekly e-mail to the 150 local authorities in England. All e-mails can be downloaded from the Department's local authorities website at:

www.dcsf.gov.uk/localauthorities/

(b) A regular fortnightly e-mail was sent to schools to inform them of new publications. In addition, the newsletter "Spectrum" provides schools, head teachers and chairs of governors with a summary of all the latest resources, publications, guidance and regulations. It is available online and can also be requested in paper copy.

Departmental Data Protection

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many notifications (a) his Department and (b) its agencies made to the Information Commissioner following the loss or mishandling of personal information or data in each of the last three years; and what was notified in each case. [222906]

Beverley Hughes: The Department for Children, Schools and Families published details of notifications to the Information Commissioner's Office in its resource accounts published on 16 July 2008. There was, in fact, an error in these accounts: two instances were reported whereas there was only one; the second will be reported next year and the 2007-08 accounts amended. The correctly notified loss was of a laptop, encrypted to Cabinet Office guidelines. Before November 2007 the Information Commissioner's Office did not specifically keep records of instances of security breaches.

I refer the hon. Member to the statement made by my right hon. friend the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster on 25 June 2008, providing the final report on measures for data handling procedures in Government.

Departmental Databases

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what use (a) his Department and (b) its agencies make of (i) MOSAIC data and (ii) ACORN data. [222003]

Beverley Hughes: The Department does not currently hold a licence for either MOSAIC or ACORN data. The Department has previously used ACORN data under licence to supplement our existing data sources by combining the Department's data with the characteristics of the people who live in local areas. Examples of how we have used this information to analyse pupil attainment are published on the Department's website:

www.dcsf.gov.uk/rsgateway

Information about the extent to which the Department's NDPBs make use of either MOSAIC or ACORN data can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Disciplinary Proceedings

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the five most serious disciplinary breaches in his Department were in the last 12 months; and what steps were taken in response to each breach. [223053]

Beverley Hughes: The disciplinary breaches in the Department in the last 12 months have included repeated unauthorised absence, unauthorised absence and failure to keep in touch while absent, serious failure to follow proper business procedures and breaches of civil service standards of behaviour. The Department has taken the appropriate steps in these cases including dismissal, written warnings, a written reprimand and removal from posts.

I am unable to provide specific information on the five most serious cases and steps taken due to the confidential nature of each case.

Departmental Information Officers

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much his Department and its predecessors spent on freelance press officers in each year since 2001; and if he will make a statement. [222710]

Beverley Hughes: The Department has spent the following on freelance press officers since 2001:

	£000
2004-05	8
2005-06	96
2006-07	81
2007-08	43

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many freelance press officers his Department and its predecessors employed in each year since 2001. [222711]

Beverley Hughes: The Department has employed freelance press officers between 2001 and 2008 as follows:

	Number
2004-05	1
2005-06	2
2006-07	2

No Freelance Press Officers have been used since March 2008.

Departmental Marketing

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many marketing officers (a) his Department and its predecessors and (b) the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority employed in each year since 2001; and if he will make a statement. [222708]

Beverley Hughes: The Department for Children, Schools and Families was established in June 2007 and currently employs the full-time equivalent of 16.7 marketing officers. It is not possible except at disproportionate cost to identify the number of marketing officers previously employed by the Department for Education and Skills. The Department does not hold information on non-departmental public bodies.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much his Department and its predecessors spent on employing marketing officers in each year since 2001. [222709]

Beverley Hughes: The Department for Children, Schools and Families was established in June 2007 and currently employs the full-time equivalent of 16.7 Marketing Officers at a cost of £906,085 per annum. It is not possible except at disproportionate cost to identify the costs of Marketing Officers previously employed by the Department for Education and Skills.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what advertising campaigns his Department has run between 2000 and June 2004; and what the (a) date and (b) cost was of each. [223717]

Jim Knight: The DFES's total spend on advertising campaigns was:

2000-01	29,110,000
2001-02	17,665,000
2002-03	13,790,000

It is not possible, except at disproportionate expense, to provide a more detailed breakdown for actual dates for when each campaign ran, other than detailing the financial year within which the expenditure occurred.

The Department ran a number of campaigns in support of its key delivery priorities, in order to inform target audiences of how they were affected by DFES policies. All of DFES campaigns followed the guidelines which govern Government information on issues of propriety and cost.

Departmental Official Hospitality

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much his Department spent on entertainment in each of the last five years. [219256]

Beverley Hughes: Details of expenditure on entertainment incurred by the Department are as follows:

2007-08: £16,467

The figure includes expenditure incurred by Ministers and senior departmental officials. The figure excludes costs incurred as part of official events or formal meetings held to further departmental business.

The basic rules governing hospitality are set by HM Treasury. Hospitality expenditure is limited to occasions when official business can best be transacted in that way. Personal entertainment is usually restricted to where senior managers (deputy director or above) are acting as a host and expenditure must be approved in advance by a director or executive board member.

The Department for Children, Schools and Families was created on 28 June 2007 as a result of a Machinery of Government change and the expenditure recorded above includes that of its predecessor Department, the Department for Education and Skills. The expenditure will also include any costs incurred by the newly created Department for Universities, Innovation and Skills, where these costs relate to areas formerly the responsibility of the Department for Education and Skills.

Departmental Official Residences

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what permanent residential accommodation is provided for use by civil servants in his Department; how many residential dwellings are provided; where they are located; and for what grade of civil servant they are provided. [222008]

Beverley Hughes: The Department for Children, Schools and Families provides no permanent residential accommodation for use by civil servants of any grade.

Departmental Procurement

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families if he will place in the Library a copy of the names and addresses of each organisation that supplied goods and services to his Department in 2007-08, based on the purchase order data held in the Department's financial database. [221997]

Ed Balls: The Department's finance system can only produce a list of all organisations including commercial and non-commercial organisations that have received a payment from the Department. We would, however, have to consider, on an individual basis, whether or not disclosure of that information might prejudice the commercial interests of the Department or the relevant organisation, and that could be done only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Public Relations

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much his Department and its predecessor spent on each of the external public relations and marketing companies included in the Central Office of Information's Public Relations Framework in each of the last 36 months. [222002]

Ed Balls: The Department uses marketing companies for raising public awareness on specific issues. Public relations agencies are employed for specific communications tasks, most commonly working alongside our press office to provide campaign support in local, regional and specialist media.

The expenditure figures in the following table relate to the Central Office of Information's Public Relations Framework and have been provided on a financial year basis, following guidance provided centrally by the Cabinet Office.

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) how many staff in his Department and its predecessors have been seconded to public relations or public affairs firms or consultancies in each of the last five years; [222187]

(2) how many staff from public relations or public affairs firms or consultancies have been seconded to his Department and its predecessor in each of the last five years. [222190]

Kevin Brennan: Since my Department was formed as part of the Machinery of Government changes on 28 June 2007, no staff have been seconded to or from public relations or public affairs firms, or consultancies.

Information for the previous years regarding the predecessor Department (the Department for Education and Skills) is not available.

Departmental Surveillance

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many applications his Department and its predecessor have made under the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 to (a) undertake directed surveillance, (b) use covert human intelligence sources, (c) acquire communications data and (d) undertake intrusive surveillance in the last 24 months. [222000]

Ed Balls: Figures on public authority use of covert techniques controlled by the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 ('RIPA') are published annually by the Interception of Communications Commissioner, the Chief Surveillance Commissioner and the Intelligence Services Commissioner, each of whom has particular inspection and oversight responsibilities under RIPA. The latest reports were laid before Parliament and copies placed in the House Library on 22 July. The figures provided in the reports are not broken down by individual public authority use of specific covert technique as, depending on the particular technique and authority using it, this could either reveal sensitivities or be misleading. The question of further disclosure for any particular public authority is a matter for the relevant Commissioner.

Economic and Monetary Union

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families pursuant to the answer to the right hon. Member for Horsham of 30 June 2008, Official Report, column 638W, on economic and monetary union, if he will place in the Library a copy of the last version of the plan. [222188]

Beverley Hughes: A copy of the last plan has been placed in the Library.

EDF Energy

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what contracts his Department has with EDF; and how much his Department paid to EDF in each of the last 10 years, broken down by the purpose of the payment. [221847]

Beverley Hughes: The Department for Children, Schools and Families was created on 28 June 2007 and has a contract with EDF for the provision of electricity to all of its Headquarter buildings. During 2007-08 the sum paid under this contract was £1,659,305. Contracts prior to this date relate to the former Department for Education and Skills.

Ethnic Minority Achievement Grant

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much has been spent on the Ethnic Minority Achievement Grant in each year since 2004-05; how much is allocated for each of the next three years; what the purpose of the grant is; and if he will make a statement. [223889]

Jim Knight: The Ethnic Minority Achievement Grant (EMAG) is a ring-fenced grant allocated to all local authorities on a needs-based formula. The grant has two purposes:

(i) it allows LA strategic managers and schools to bring about whole-school change in narrowing achievement gaps for Black and minority ethnic pupils which in turn ensures equality of outcomes; and

(ii) it covers some of the costs of additional support to meet the specific needs of bilingual learners and underachieving pupils.

The following has been spent on EMAG since 2004:

	£ million
2004-05	162
2005-06	170
2006-07	174
2007-08	179

The following has been allocated for each of the next three years:

	£ million
2008-09	188
2009-10	198
2010-11	206

EU Law

Mr. Francois: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many officials in his Department are wholly or mainly tasked with the negotiation, implementation or administration of EU legislation and consequent policies. [222271]

Beverley Hughes: The Joint International Unit (JIU) supports both the Department for Children, Schools and Families and the Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills by promoting and defending the interests of the two Departments on EU business; overseeing the delivery of EU education; training and youth programmes; and fulfilling our treaty obligations in respect of European Schools. A total of 15 JIU staff work on this EU business for the two Departments.

Exams: Special Educational Needs

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) how many and what proportion of children classified as having (a) hearing and (b) vision impairment achieved the national standard in key stage (i) 1, (ii) 2 and (iii) 3 tests in each year since the introduction of the tests; [223755]

(2) how many and what proportion of children classified as having (a) hearing and (b) vision impairment achieved five A* to C grades in their GCSE exams in each of the last 10 years; [223756]

(3) how many and what proportion of children classified as having (a) hearing and (b) vision impairment achieved five A* to C grades including mathematics and English in their GCSE exams in each of the last 10 years. [223757]

Jim Knight: The Department only collects data by type of special educational need for children at School Action Plus or with statements. School Action Plus, under the SEN Code of Practice, enables a school to receive some external help to meet a child's SEN. An SEN statement is drawn up by a local authority, following an assessment, when it is necessary to determine the special educational provision which a child's learning difficulties call for.

The available 2007 information is attached to the Statistical First Release (SFR) National Curriculum Assessment, GCSE and Equivalent Attainment and Post-16 Attainment by Pupil Characteristics, in England 2006/07.

KS2 can be found in Table 73 (key stage 2 attainment by SEN stage and primary SEN type) and at KS4 is in Table 74 (key stage 4 attainment for pupils at School Action Plus or with statements by primary SEN type). This information can be found at http://www.dcsf.gov.uk/rsgateway/DB/SFR/s000759/SFR38_2007_Additional_100708.xls.

A similar analysis was also carried out in 2006 and the relevant information is given as follows.

This information is not available for years before 2005 when type of SEN information for pupils was not collected. Information for 2005 can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Having published this data in 2007, the Department will publish it for subsequent years when the data are available.

The analysis only relates to the primary SEN type of pupils. Some of these children may also have a secondary SEN type which has not been taken into consideration in the analysis.

Faith Schools: Health Services

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families which faith-based schools were included in the national mapping of on-site sexual health services in education settings produced by the Sex Education Forum; and if he will make a statement. [222357]

Beverley Hughes: A questionnaire was issued to teenage pregnancy co-ordinators in each top-tier local authority in England, asking them to identify which secondary schools in their area provided on-site health services, which included advice on contraception and sexual health. Responses were received from 70 per cent. of local authorities. Within the local authorities that responded, 627 schools (29 per cent. of the sample) had on-site services. In addition, on-site services were being provided in 84 pupil referral units. Of the 627 schools providing on-site services, 17 were faith-based schools.

The Government support the provision of on-site services where schools have identified a need and where the scope of the service has been agreed by the school's Governing Body, following consultation with parents. On-site services provide young people with swift and easy access to health advice that survey evidence suggests they are reluctant to access through GPs or clinics.

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many pupils sat A levels in (a) media studies, (b) psychology, (c) law, (d) mathematics, (e) physics and (f) history in each year since 1997, broken down by type of school or college. [221759]

Jim Knight: The information required for the last three years has been placed in the House of Commons Library. Figures for earlier years can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Note:
Figures relate to pupils at the end of Key Stage 4.

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families pursuant to the answer of 21 July 2008, Official Report, column 929W, on children: disadvantaged, how many and what proportion of (a) all pupils and (b) pupils eligible to receive free school meals did not attain any GCSE grades higher than a D in each year since 1997-98. [223713]

Jim Knight: Information on free school meals was first collected in 2002. Figures are provided as follows for 2002 and for the latest year 2007. Information for the intermediate years can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Updated figures have been provided for 2007. So, the 2007 figure differs from that previously given in the answer of 21 July 2008, Official Report, column 929W.

The figures cover maintained schools only.

The 2007 figures are for pupils at the end of key stage 4, the 2002 figures are for 15-year-olds.

138,340 pupils did not attain any GCSE grades higher than a D in 2006/07. This was 23.1 per cent. of pupils at the end of key stage 4 in maintained schools.

34,176 pupils eligible to receive free school meals did not attain any GCSE grades higher than a D in 2006/07. This was 44.6 per cent. of eligible pupils at the end of key stage 4 in maintained schools.

132,061 pupils did not attain any GCSE grades higher than a D in 2001/02. This was 24.2 per cent. of 15-year-olds in maintained schools.

34,128 pupils eligible to receive free school meals did not attain any GCSE grades higher than a D in 2001/02. This was 45.9 per cent. of eligible 15-year-olds in maintained schools.

Headteachers: Early Retirement

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many (a) headteachers and (b) deputy headteachers took early retirement in each of the last three years; and if he will make a statement. [223719]

Jim Knight: The information is not available in the format requested.

The following table provides the number and percentage of leadership group teachers, head, deputy and assistant head teachers, employed in local authority maintained schools in England who took early retirement in each of the last three years.

Leadership group teachers[1] early retirements[2] from local authority maintained schools—coverage: England

	Number	Percentage[3]
2005-06[4]	1,650	2.9
2006-07[4]	1,780	3.0
2007-08[4]	1,720	2.9

[1] Includes head teachers, deputy head teachers and assistant head teachers.
[2] Includes teachers retiring under the premature and actuarially reduced pension arrangements.
[3] The percentage rate is calculated from the number of early retirements divided by the headcount number of leadership group teachers, of all ages, recorded in service in January of the year in question.
[4] All years are provisional and subject to slight revision due to the addition of retrospective awards and suspension of pension benefits where teachers return to service.

Numbers are rounded to the nearest 10.

Languages: Primary Education

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what percentage of primary school children are being taught a foreign language; and if he will make a statement. [223718]

Jim Knight: Ongoing research commissioned by the Department shows that in 2007, 84 per cent. of primary schools in England taught languages to pupils in Key Stage 2 (ages 7-11). This represented an increase of 14 percentage points since the same survey was carried out in 2006. We do not know how many pupils this represents as not all primary schools teach languages to all year groups in Key Stage 2.

Similar research carried out in 2002 showed that 44 percentage of primary schools were then teaching languages.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) how many primary school language teachers were recruited in each year since 2005; and if he will make a statement; [223720]

(2) how many (a) primary teachers and (b) primary teaching assistants have been given training to teach foreign languages to their pupils since 2005; and if he will make a statement. [223721]

Jim Knight: The information given in the table shows recruitment to initial teacher training courses in primary modern languages. In total nearly 4,000 trainees have gone through these courses, with more to be trained over the next few years. The Training and Development Agency is also working with teacher training institutions to provide additional routes to boost the primary work force teaching languages. They are also developing a pilot programme of retraining modules for secondary language teachers to support language development in primary schools.

The Government fund the British Council to run the Primary Teacher Project, through which primary teachers undertake a two-week programme of language tuition through a partner institution in Europe, to develop their confidence and linguistic competence. Some 300 teachers went on this programme in 2007-08 and it is planned that around 400 will do so in 2008-09.

Teachers can also be supported through the increased funding we have given through local authorities to support the delivery of primary languages—£32.5 million in 2008-09, up from £27.5 million in 2007-08. Schools can use this for a variety of purposes, including to pay for in-service training for teachers and teaching assistants, or for upskilling primary teachers. CILT, the National Centre for Languages, also runs training courses for local authority staff and schools.

Information on Higher Level Teaching Assistant (HLTA) specialisms has recently started to be collected by the Training and Development Agency. The available data indicate that in 2007/08 there were some 40 HLTAs in primary schools specialising in modern foreign languages.

No other information is centrally collected on the training provided to teachers and teaching assistants to teach foreign languages to pupils.

Languages: Secondary Education

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many secondary schools have set a benchmark to increase the number of key stage 4 pupils taking a modern language; and if he will make a statement. [223722]

Jim Knight: Since my reply of 12 November 2007 to the hon. Member no further research has been carried out concerning this benchmark. However at the end of September we will start a three-year evaluation, reporting in July 2011, looking at what impact the measures recommended in the Languages Review have had on take up at key stage 4, including looking at how many secondary schools have set the 50-90 percentage benchmark.

National Curriculum Tests

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) which organisations submitted a bid for the current contract to mark key stage two and three standard assessment tests; [221903]

(2) how much each organisation that submitted a bid for the current contract to mark key stage 2 and 3 standard assessment tests proposed to charge to deliver the contract. [221904]

Jim Knight: The administration and marking of national curriculum tests is a function of the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority (QCA) which is delivered independently of Government. The National Assessment Agency (NAA) is responsible for the marking process. I have therefore asked David Gee, Managing Director of the NAA, to write to the hon. Member. A copy of his letter has been placed in the Library.

Letter from David Gee, dated 18 September 2008:

The Secretary of State for Education, the Rt Hon Ed Balls MP, has asked me to write to you concerning two recent parliamentary questions pertaining to the organisations that submitted bids for the contract to provide external marking and data collection services for key stage 2 & 3 national curriculum tests.

The organisations who submitted bids for the National Curriculum Tests contract were Capita, Edexcel, ETS, Logica CMG, Research Machines (RM), and Harcourt. These were shortlisted to Edexcel, ETS and LogicaCMG. Bids were received from Edexcel and ETS. LogicaCMG declined to submit a final bid.

The amount each bidder proposed to charge is commercial in confidence and the NAA is therefore not in a position to provide the information you seek. If this situation changes, or if the organisations concerned publicly state their involvement in the procurement process and the nature of their bid, I will write to you again.

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families pursuant to the oral statement of 22 July 2008, Official Report, column 680, on SATS, what factors Ofqual took into account in determining that the quality of marking of this year's key stage 2 and key stage 3 national curriculum tests was at least as good as in previous years. [223073]

Jim Knight: The remit of Ofqual is to regulate the national curriculum assessments to ensure that standards are maintained and assessments are fair and effective. Ofqual operates independently from Government, and I have asked Kathleen Tattersall, chair of Ofqual, to write to the hon. Member. A copy of this letter will be placed in the Library.

Letter from Isabel Nisbet, dated 15 September 2008:

DCSF have forwarded the following Parliamentary Question of Ofqual as it falls within Ofqual's remit.

"To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families, pursuant to the Oral Statement of 22nd July 2008, what factors Ofqual took into account in determining that the quality of marking of this year's key stage 2 and key stage 3 national curriculum tests was at least as good as in previous years."

In response to this question Ofqual has rigorously monitored this year's national curriculum tests. It was assured by the National Assessment Agency that the criteria for marker appointments were in line with previous years. Ofqual attended marker training events, level setting meetings and script scrutiny meetings as well as checking that all procedures in place for the marking of the scripts were in line with our code of practice. The marking quality assurance measures in place for this year's tests have been good practice and included more systematic and frequent comparison with a benchmark against a national standard rather than a check by a team leader. From the monitoring of quality assurance processes Ofqual carried out it concluded that while it was not possible to predict the volume of reviews schools will request this year, the quality of the marking is at least as good as previous years.

I am copying this letter to Sue White at DCSF to ensure that the copy of this letter is kept at the House Library.

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) pursuant to the oral statement of 22 July 2008, Official Report, column 680, on SATS, if he will place in the Library the advice to him which stated that ministerial statements intended to influence the outcome of contractual discussions between the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority and ETS Europe would jeopardise the public interest; [223074]

(2) what the evidential basis is for his assertion that a Minister can move the responsibility for redress from where it presently falls under the contract between the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority and ETS Europe. [223075]

Jim Knight: The Department does not routinely publish advice to Ministers. It would only be in rare circumstances that such publication would be in the public interest. Publication would adversely affect the candour of officials' advice to Ministers and discourage the exploration of radical options. It would undermine the confidential relationship between officials and Ministers and compromise ministerial thinking space. There is also a public interest in protecting the principle of legal professional privilege.

In his oral statement to the House on 22 July 2008 the Secretary of State made clear that the contractual discussions between the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority (QCA) and ETS Europe were commercially, legally and financially highly sensitive. It was in the public interest that the QCA should be allowed to conclude those discussions in a timely, orderly and rigorous fashion.

They were concluded on 15 August when the QCA announced that it had agreed with ETS to dissolve its five-year contract for national curriculum tests operations with immediate effect.

National Curriculum Tests: Statistics

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families whether the (Provisional) SFR National Curriculum Assessments at key stage 3 in England 2008 will be published on the second Tuesday in August as was originally scheduled. [221901]

Office of the Schools Commissioner

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what estimate he has made of the cost of the Office of the Schools Commissioner for each year from 2006-07 to 2010-11; and if he will make a statement. [224280]

Jim Knight: From September 2006, when the Office of the Schools Commissioner was first established, to March 2007 the cost was £970,000. For 2007-08 the cost was £3.1 million, and for 2008-09 the Office of the Schools Commissioner has a total budget of £4.3 million. Budgets for future years have not yet been finalised.

Olympic Games 2012

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many full-time equivalent members of staff in his Department are working on projects relating to the London 2012 Olympics and Paralympics Games; how many of those are working on (a) project management, (b) legacy planning, (c) project oversight and (d) financial oversight; and what plans he has for future staffing levels in each case. [221870]

Jim Knight: The education opportunities presented by the 2012 Games are being used to build on and add value to existing activity being undertaken by the DCSF. There are 1.8 full-time equivalent members of staff allocated to co-ordinating this work. They deal with all aspects of project management, legacy planning and project oversight. Future staffing levels for this work are expected to remain at this level.

Pre-School Education: Admissions

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many children in England took up free nursery places in each quarter in each year since the scheme was introduced. [223760]

Beverley Hughes: Since April 2004 all three and four-year-olds have been entitled to a free part-time early education place for 12.5 hours per week for 38 weeks of the year. From 2010, this offer will be extended from 12.5 to 15 hours per week for 38 weeks of the year.

Information about the part-time equivalent number of free early education places filled by three and four-year-olds is shown in the table.

The latest figures on early education places for three and four-year-olds in England were published in Statistical First Release (SFR) 12/2008 "Provision for children under five years of age in England: January 2008", available on my Department's website

Primary Education: Reading

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what recent steps the Government has taken to promote reading in primary education. [222702]

Jim Knight: Encouraging children to read more is essential to increasing their chances of success, both at school and beyond.

The national strategies continue to provide a wide range of materials to support teachers, school librarians and others to ensure schools provide both high quality teaching and learning in reading, and promote an environment which encourages children's enthusiasm for reading and helps them achieve their potential. In primary schools and in response to the publication of the Rose Review we have ensured that all children learn to read through the use of systematic phonics. We are also now rolling out the Every Child a Reader programme for five and six-year-old children struggling with their reading.

There are a range of other programmes to promote reading which are available to all schools. For instance, the Reading Connects initiative supports schools in developing a whole-school reading culture; the School Reading Champions initiative uses the motivational power of male role models to inspire boys to read more; and the Family Reading Campaign supports schools in reaching out to parents and the wider family and helping them to encourage children to enjoy reading. All initiatives provide schools with tried and tested practical ideas to promote reading and a wide range of free resources.

Most recently, in June this year, I announced the extension of the Boys into Books programme to the primary sector. This project is bringing over half a million new books into public libraries from September for use on long-term loan in every state primary school in England.

Beyond the classroom, the National Year of Reading is helping to increase awareness of the pleasures and benefits of reading in all its forms, for children and families alike.

Pupil Exclusions

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) how many pupils were permanently excluded more than (a) once and (b) twice in (i) England and (ii) Yorkshire and the Humber in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement; [223807]

(2) how many pupils were suspended more than (a) once, (b) five times and (c) 10 times in (i) England and (ii) Yorkshire and the Humber in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [223806]

Beverley Hughes: The available information on the number of permanent exclusions is shown in the table. Information on pupils who have been permanently excluded more than once can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

The number of pupils with more than (a) one, (b) five and (c) 10 fixed-period exclusions is not readily available and can be provided only at disproportionate cost. The available information showing the number of times pupils have been excluded for a fixed period is published annually by the Department. These figures can be found in the Statistical First Release "DCSF: Permanent and Fixed Period Exclusions from Schools and Exclusion Appeals in England", the latest of which refer to the 2006/07 school year and can be accessed at: http://www.dcsf.gov.uk/rsgateway/DB/SFR/s000793/index.shtml (table 14).

Pupil Exclusions: Offensive Weapons

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many children were suspended or excluded from school for possession of an offensive weapon on school grounds in each of the last five years. [222803]

Beverley Hughes: Data are not collected centrally on the number of pupils who have been suspended or excluded from school for possession of an offensive weapon.

The Department does collect information on the reasons why pupils have been excluded, either for a fixed period or permanently. However, this does not include a specific category relating to possession of a weapon. That information was collected for the first time for 2003-04. Information on the number of permanent and fixed period exclusions, by reason, broken down by local authority, and covering the academic years 2003/04, 2004/05 and 2005/06 has been placed in the House of Commons Library.

The latest information on the number of permanent and fixed period exclusions by reason, broken down by local authority has been published at the following link:

http://www.dfes.gov.uk/rsgateway/DB/SFR/s000793/index.shtml

Real Action Butterfly Children's Programme

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) if his Department will allocate funding to the Real Action Butterfly Children's programme; [222807]

(2) if he will make an assessment of the effectiveness of the Real Action Butterfly Children's programme in (a) raising educational attainment and (b) diverting young people away from anti-social behaviour and crime; [222808]

(3) if he will make an assessment of the effectiveness of the Real Action Butterfly Children's programme on promoting integration and community cohesion; and if he will provide funding to the programme. [222827]

Beverley Hughes: Ensuring equal opportunities for all to succeed at the highest level possible and removing barriers to access and participation in learning is an important contribution to promoting community cohesion. Through the National Strategies we are providing a wide range of training and resources to support teachers in providing the high quality teaching and learning which is vital to improving standards of attainment in literacy for all children.

Stopping young people engaging in crime and antisocial behaviour also plays an important role in building strong and cohesive communities. Through the Youth Taskforce Action plan, and more recently through the Youth Crime Action plan we have set out a 'triple track' response to these problems. Where problems occur we must respond with strong enforcement. However, that alone is not enough and we must also offer support to address the causes of bad behaviour and intervene earlier to prevent problems occurring in the first place.

In addition to promoting academic and other achievement, engaging young people in positive activities offers them stimulating things to do and safe places to go, helping to build resilience to future negative outcomes such as crime or antisocial behaviour. Over the next three years, Government have pledged £840 million to enhance facilities and services for young people.

We acknowledge the work that charities such as Real Action Butterfly Children's programme do to promote reading for pupils from disadvantaged backgrounds, however, we are not familiar with this specific programme and therefore we cannot comment on its efficacy on promoting integration or community cohesion.

The Children, Young People and Families Grant is a national grant programme, managed by the Department for Children, Schools and Families, which aims to fund work of national significance to improve outcomes for children, young people, and families. It is possible that the work of Real Action Butterfly Children's programme may meet the criteria for this grant and more information can be found at:

http://www.everychildmatters.gov.uk/strategy/voluntaryandcommunity/cypfgrant/

Religion: Education

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what recent steps the Government has taken to raise awareness of all religions amongst school children. [222704]

Jim Knight: Religious education syllabuses, other than for voluntary aided schools with a religious designation, are drawn up by an agreed syllabus conference which advises each separate local authority. To assist in drawing up these syllabuses the Department, with the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority (QCA), has published a non-statutory framework for religious education which has been supported by all the main faith groups and the British Humanist Association. It says that pupils should learn about Christianity throughout each key stage though, by the end of key stage 3, pupils should have encountered all five principal religions (Buddhism, Hinduism, Islam, Judaism and Sikhism) in sufficient depth. It also recommends that all pupils have opportunities to study other religious traditions such as the Baha'i faith, Jainism, Zoroastrianism and secular philosophies such as humanism. It can be obtained from the QCA website at www.qca.org.uk.

In addition, the Government is investing £1 million in an RE action plan to improve the quality of teaching and learning in the subject. Key areas for the action plan include updating existing guidance on RE, reviewing materials used in schools to teach world religions and their contribution to promoting community cohesion, supporting the work of the RE subject association (the National Association of Teachers of RE), and increasing the involvement of minority faith groups in local Standing Advisory Councils on Religious Education by rolling out a national programme of recruitment and training.

The plan is being implemented with full involvement and in full consultation with faith and belief communities and the RE professional community.

School Meals

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what steps the Government plans to take to improve the nutritional content of school meals. [224286]

Beverley Hughes: The Department is taking a number of steps to improve the nutritional content of school meals.

New food-based standards were introduced in September 2006 for school lunches and from September 2007 for other school food. Nutrient-based standards were introduced for primary school lunches in September 2008 and will be introduced in secondary and special schools in September 2009.

We are investing over £650 million between 2005 and 2011 to help improve school food and keep school lunch prices down. This includes £220 million over the three years 2005-06 to 2007-08 to assist authorities and schools in improving school lunches and other school food; £240 million between 2008 and 2011 to support the costs of school lunches; £150 million capital funding to build and refurbish kitchen and dining facilities; and funding to establish FEAST centres to train catering staff. We are also providing an extra £6 million over the next three years for the School Food Trust to promote healthy food to young people and raise take-up.

School Meals: Lancashire

Rosie Cooper: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many primary school children at schools in West Lancashire constituency have access to healthy school meals. [221887]

Beverley Hughes: All schools have to meet the food-based nutritional standards introduced in September 2006 for school lunches and the standards for other school food introduced in September 2007. Nutrient-based standards were introduced for primary school lunches in September 2008 and will be introduced in secondary and special schools in September 2009.

I refer the hon. Member to the replies given previously for questions 196856 and 221728.

Schools: Athletics

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what recent steps the Government have taken to improve the provision of athletic equipment in schools. [222703]

Beverley Hughes: There is no departmental programme for this provision. A decision to purchase athletic equipment would be made locally by the school and based on its priorities.

Schools: Buildings

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many (a) primary and (b) secondary schools are using temporary mobile classroom accommodation in each region; and if he will make a statement. [223715]

Jim Knight: Data on school temporary buildings were supplied to my Department by local education authorities in 2001, 2003 and 2005. However, checks indicated that the completeness and quality of the data were not good enough to accurately assess the number of schools using temporary mobile classrooms.

Central Government capital support for investment in schools has increased from under £700 million in 1996-97 to £6.7 billion in 2008-09, and will rise further to £8.0 billion by 2010-11. Progress is being made year by year in improving the quality of the school building stock. The bulk of schools capital is now allocated by formula to authorities and schools so that they can address their local priorities, including the replacement of poor-quality temporary accommodation. Given the high levels of funding, authorities have the opportunity to replace temporary buildings where they are considered to be unsuitable.

Modern, high-quality mobile or demountable buildings can provide a good environment for teaching and learning where there is a short-term need. They might be used, for instance, to cope with a temporary increase in pupil numbers at a school, or as an alternative to transporting children elsewhere when there is building work under way.

Schools: Closed Circuit Television

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many (a) primary schools and (b) secondary schools in England have CCTV cameras in children's toilets. [221812]

Jim Knight: The Department does not collect this information. Cameras can be installed in common areas in toilet or washroom facilities where misbehaviour may take place, so long as privacy is not infringed. The Information Commissioner's Office has produced a Code of Practice on the use of CCTV which schools can use.

Schools: Epilepsy

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what specialist epilepsy schools there are in East Lancashire. [221899]

Beverley Hughes: The Department does not hold information on schools that cater specifically for pupils with epilepsy, as it is a condition that falls within the broader descriptions of special educational needs used to categorise and classify special schools. Most pupils with epilepsy can be educated, mainstream schools but depending on the severity of the condition pupils may be educated in a variety of different types of special school. We are aware of one independent school in Lancashire, Oliver House School, which caters for children with epilepsy.

Schools: Finance

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much money for schools from his Department was not devolved to local authorities or schools but allocated directly by his Department in the most recent year for which figures are available; and what the (a) purpose of the funding and (b) amount spent was. [223888]

Ed Balls: The following list provides a breakdown of the schools budget not devolved to schools or local authorities in the DCSF.

	£ million
Purpose
School Performance and Reform	1
School Standards	459
School Resources	865
Schools Commissioner	1
Academies and Capital	66
Total	1,392

Schools: Recruitment

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what estimate he has made of maintained schools' expenditure on advertising for recruitment in each of the last three years. [221756]

Jim Knight: The Department has not made any estimates on maintained schools' expenditure on advertising for recruitment. It is a matter for each local authority and its schools to determine locally.

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many teaching posts in maintained schools were advertised in each of the last three years, broken down by subject; and how many of those posts were filled as a result of the recruitment exercise of which the advertisement was part. [221757]

Jim Knight: The information is not collected centrally.

Information for the number of teacher vacancies, that existed on the survey date in January under the Department's standard definition, have been published in table 6 of the School Workforce Statistical First Release, January 2008 (Provisional) at the following web link:

http://www.dfes.gov.uk/rsgateway/DB/SFR/s000787/index.shtml

Schools: Restraint Techniques

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many times restraint has been used in maintained primary and secondary schools in England for the purpose of preventing a child from (a) committing an offence, (b) causing personal injury to, or damage to the property of, a person, including the child in question and (c) prejudicing the maintenance of good order and discipline at the school or among pupils receiving education at the school in the last 12 months. [222782]

Beverley Hughes: This information is not collected centrally because that would be an unjustifiable bureaucratic burden for schools. The key issue is what happens at school level. The Department's guidance on use of force by school staff therefore advises schools that it is essential for them to record significant incidents and report them to parents.

Schools: Standards

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what percentage of schools in Yorkshire and the Humber were judged by Ofsted to be (a) excellent, (b) good, (c) satisfactory and (d) inadequate at their most recent inspection; and if he will make a statement. [223808]

Jim Knight: This is a matter for Ofsted. HM Chief Inspector, Christine Gilbert, has written to the hon. Member and a copy of her reply has been placed in the Library.

Letter from Christine Gilbert, dated 15 September 2008:

Your recent parliamentary question has been passed to me, as Her Majesty's Chief Inspector, for a response.

Inspectors have made a judgement about schools' overall effectiveness since January 2000. Under the previous school inspection framework (commonly known as Section 10), this judgment was made using a seven point scale: excellent, very good, good, satisfactory, unsatisfactory, poor and very poor. Since September 2005, the judgment has been made under the current school inspection framework (commonly known as Section 5) using a four point scale: outstanding, good, satisfactory and inadequate. This response relates to each school's most recent inspection.

It is not possible to operate a simple read-across approach from a seven- to a four-point scale and so simple comparisons are not possible. Ofsted's criteria for making inspection judgements about schools are clearly set out in our inspection guidance.

As of 11 September 2008, there were 2,305 maintained schools in Yorkshire and the Humber. Of these, 2,275 schools have been inspected under the current or previous inspection frameworks. The remaining 30 schools have recently opened and are yet to have an inspection. Schools that have closed since their last inspection have been excluded from the analysis.

Table 1 shows the latest overall effectiveness grade of those maintained schools in Yorkshire and the Humber that have had an inspection under the current inspection framework, introduced in September 2005.

Table 2 shows the latest overall effectiveness grade of those maintained schools in Yorkshire and the Humber where their most recent inspection was under the previous inspection framework.

Table 1: Overall effectiveness grade for maintained schools in Yorkshire and the Humber at their most recent inspection—Schools last inspected under the current inspection framework (Section 5) introduced in September 2005

	Outstanding	Good	Satisfactory	Inadequate	Total
Number of inspections	295	1,085	776	54	2,210
Percentage of inspections	13	49	35	2	100

Note:
Percentages are rounded and may not add to 100.

Table 2: Overall effectiveness grade for maintained schools in Yorkshire and the Humber at their most recent inspection—Schools last inspected under the previous inspection framework (Section 10)

	Excellent	Very good	Good	Satisfactory	Unsatisfactory	Poor	Very Poor	Total
Number of inspections	2	9	33	21	0	0	0	65
Percentage of inspections	3	14	51	32	0	0	0	100

Note:
Percentages are rounded and may not add to 100

A copy of this reply has been sent to Jim Knight MP, Minister of State for Schools and Learners and will be placed in the library of both Houses.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families if he will place in the Library a copy of the most recent list of national challenge schools; and if he will make a statement. [224296]

Jim Knight: A list of schools where, according to 2007 results, fewer than 30 per cent. of pupils achieve five GCSEs or equivalent at grade A* to C including English and Maths has already been placed in the Library. Validated 2008 GCSE results will be available in January 2009. Officials from my Department are working with local authorities to identify what action is needed to ensure all schools rise above the threshold by 2011.

Sex Education Forum: Finance

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what payments his Department has made to the Sex Education Forum in 2007-08; how much is planned for 2008-09; what restrictions his Department places on the use of such funds; and if he will make a statement. [222356]

Beverley Hughes: In 2007-08 the Department made payments of £115,000 to the Sex Education Forum. Funds of £156,000 have been allocated to the forum for 2008-09. The Sex Education Forum provides support to practitioners involved in delivering sex and relationships education (SRE) or delivering on-site sexual health services in education settings, such as schools and FE colleges. All payments made to the Sex Education Forum are to deliver services or projects that are determined and monitored by the Department in accordance with an agreed work plan.

Social Services: Complaints

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many children in each local authority in England made a complaint about social services provision in each of the last two years; and how many such complaints were rejected because they were (a) not made within a year, (b) deemed unclear, (c) deemed frivolous and (d) deemed vexatious. [221780]

Ed Balls: This information is not collected centrally. However, local authorities are required to keep a record of:

each representation/complaint received the outcome of each, that is, the decisions made in response to the representation/complaint and any action to be taken; and whether there was compliance with the time limits

Each local authority must produce and have available to the public an annual report drawing on this information.

Specialised Diplomas

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families which schools are offering a diploma course in the 2008-09 academic year; and how many pupils are taking each diploma course in each such school. [223836]

Jim Knight: 145 consortia of schools, colleges and training providers are delivering Diploma courses from September 2008. Learner numbers for all qualifications are still subject to change during the first weeks of the autumn term, as young people make their final decisions about the courses they want to pursue. We are gathering data from local authorities on Diploma learner numbers during this term, in order to make adjustments to the funding areas receive for Diplomas. We will publish this information before the end of the year.

Specialised Diplomas: Standards

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families if he will place in the Library a copy of his Department's guidance relating to the (a) structure of and (b) methodology of compiling performance league tables for schools which are offering diploma courses. [223733]

Jim Knight: Up to 1 April 2008, the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority (QCA) was responsible for the methodology for establishing the relative value of qualifications reported in the Achievement and Attainment Tables and the points awarded to those qualifications. In December 2007, the QCA published the information relating to the Diploma, and the DCSF put this guidance on its website. This guidance—Performance Points for the Foundation, Higher and Advanced Diplomas—is as follows:

After 1 April 2008, Ofqual, the qualifications and examinations regulator, has taken over the responsibility for this and other issues of regulation.

Performance Points for the Foundation, Higher and Advanced Diplomas. Diplomas at levels 1 and 2 (Foundation and Higher Diploma)

Foundation and Higher Diploma achievement and attainment table (AAT) points exclude functional skills and personal, learning and thinking skills (PLTS) because these are delivered and recognised in AAT points through the KS4 curriculum.

This means that for the Foundation Diploma, the formula for AAT points is derived from 420 of the total 600 guided learning hours published in the Diploma structures and standards document (available on the QCA website), since the functional skills and PLTS comprise 180 guided learning hours at this level.

AAT points for the Higher Diploma are based on 660 of the total 800 guided learning hours for the course, since the functional skills and PLTS comprise 140 guided learning hours at this level.

Foundation Diploma:

Comparison with AAT points at GCSE:
7 GCSEs A* - C	595-684	280	322	364	406

Diplomas at level 3 (Advanced Diploma)

At Level 3, the curriculum context does not already include provision for the delivery of personal, learning and thinking skills (PLTS), functional skills or work experience. These are all hurdles for the achievement of the Advanced Diploma.

Functional Skills will need to be "taught" in the early years of the Diploma, and work experience will require a significant amount of directed time. Therefore the functional skills, work experience and PLTS hurdles are included within the AAT points calculations.

This means that although the published 1,080 guided learning hours for the Advanced Diploma is still valid, the AAT points for the qualification are based on 1305 guided learning hours, taking into account functional skills and work experience, which together comprise 225 guided learning hours.

Advanced Diploma:

Specialist Schools and Academies Trust: Income

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the income of the Specialist Schools and Academies Trust (a) was in each year from 1999 to 2000 to 2007-08 and (b) is planned to be for each year from 2008-09 to 2010-11, broken down by (i) central Government grants, (ii) subscriptions from schools, (iii) private sector donations and (iv) other income; and if he will make a statement. [223887]

Jim Knight: The Specialist Schools and Academies Trust (SSAT) is an independent registered charity which receives income from a range of sources. As such, DCSF does not have responsibility for monitoring its income. Audited accounts are published and available from the Charity Commission.

The DCSF funds SSAT through a range of grants and contracts to support the Specialist Schools and Academies Programmes and a range of other activities designed to raise pupil achievement. The total financial contribution made by DCSF to SSAT over the last seven years for which we have final information is: £2.395 million in 2001-02; £4.371 million in 2002-03; £11.326 million in 2003-04; £17.796 million in 2004-05; £24.350 million in 2005-06; £35.152 million in 2006-07 and £43.578 million in 2007-08. This includes both grants and contracts. DCSF negotiates funding levels each year for individual grants and contracts. We are not in a position to estimate what the level of funding will be in future years—this will depend on our priorities at the time.

Stress

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what arrangements his Department has in place to assist officials to overcome the effects of stress experienced in the workplace. [222179]

Beverley Hughes: The Department is committed to the well-being of its employees. It has a number of procedures in place to reduce stress at work, and recently updated its Workforce Well-Being policies and practices for tackling sickness absence, including stress experienced in the workplace. In addition, we will be publishing a new stress prevention and management policy in the autumn. This will be based on the Health and Safety Executive's management standards and will advise staff on best practice to further improve their capacity to manage stress.

Supply Teachers: Training

Jon Trickett: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) what financial assistance is available for supply teachers without qualified teacher status (QTS) earning the equivalent of a classroom teacher on the M6 pay scale who wish to obtain QTS; and if he will make a statement; [223779]

(2) what programmes there are to encourage current non-qualified teachers who are acting as supply teachers to seek careers as full-time qualified teachers; and if he will make a statement. [223783]

Jim Knight: Unqualified teachers, including those acting as supply teachers, can gain QTS by completing one of the employment-based programmes. These include the Graduate Teacher Programme, the Registered Teacher Programme (for those without a degree or equivalent qualification) or, for overseas trained teachers, the Overseas Trained Teacher Programme all of which can be tailored to take account of prior experience. Alternatively they could complete an undergraduate teacher training course or postgraduate certificate in education. There are different financial support arrangements for each programme. Further information on the training options and financial assistance available can be obtained from the Teaching Information Line on 0845 6000 991 or by reference to the Training and Development Agency for Schools teacher recruitment website at:

www.tda.gov.uk.

Sure Start Programme

Mr. Henderson: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families whether his Department plans to produce regular reports on the outcomes and effectiveness of early years intervention work following the establishment of Sure Start Children's centres in every community beyond 2010. [222635]

Beverley Hughes: The National Evaluation of Sure Start (NESS), undertaken by the University of Birkbeck, began in 2001 and focuses on the impact made by Sure Start Local Programmes, the precursor to Sure Start Children's Centres. Reports evaluating the impact of Sure Start on children and their families at nine months and three years of age are available at www.ness.bbk.ac.uk.

The report from the current phase of the evaluation, assessing the impact when the children are five years old, is currently under way and we expect to publish the results in spring 2010. No decisions have been taken on whether this research should continue in the future.

The Department is considering arrangements for the evaluation of Sure Start Children's Centres currently.

Sure Start Programme: Finance

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the objectives are of the Sure Start sufficiency and access grant and the projects it has funded; and how much his Department has allocated to the grant in (a) each year since its introduction and (b) each of the next three years. [223749]

Beverley Hughes: The childcare sufficiency and access element of the Sure Start, Early Years and Childcare Grant was introduced in financial year 2008-09 and so allocation figures are not available for earlier periods. Local authorities have discretion over the use to which they put this funding but the Memorandum of Grant assigns three principal objectives to it:

(a) to help local authorities maintain an accurate and up to date assessment of the provision of, and demand for, childcare in their respective areas;

(b) to help local authorities secure a sufficient supply of childcare across their area, through their management of the local childcare market; and

(c) to ensure that the needs of potentially excluded groups are met

The total funding across the country for sufficiency and access within the 2008-11 SSEYCG main revenue block is as follows:

2008-09	122,133,095
2009-01	126,964,804
2010-11	129,122,702

Talent Taskforce

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families when the Talent Taskforce was established; what it has cost to date; and what the performance of the taskforce has been against its objectives. [223890]

Jim Knight: The Talent and Enterprise Taskforce was established in September 2007. To date, the Taskforce's running costs and programme expenditure come to £2,554,708. The objective is to promote the economic and social imperative of developing talent and skill in the UK through engaging influential networks, organisations and individuals across society to mobilise behind this theme. In working towards this objective the Taskforce has established:

an advisory group of 13 people representing organisations across educational, business and community sectors and who are engaging in the talent agenda;

SHINE, a national festival held in over 2,300 schools to celebrate the talent in every child that took place from 30June—4 July;

The Prime Minster's Global Fellowship. A scheme in which 100 school leavers visited China, India and Brazil to gain first-hand understanding of the global economy and how it will impact the lives of young people, returning to share what they have learnt with their peers; regional debates on the 'Talent Challenge'. To be held in every Government region, these debates are bringing together leaders in the business, education and community sectors to consider their priorities on the talent agenda in their region; and, a project underway in 20 local authorities to pilot online sign-posting to positive activities for young people.

Taxis

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much his Department spent on taxis in the last financial year for which figures are available. [223023]

Beverley Hughes: Details of expenditure on taxis incurred by the Department in the last financial year are set out as follows:

2007-08	247,738

The expenditure is based on staff travel claims and approved invoices received from taxi companies paid via the Departments Integrated Financial Information System.

DCSF was established under Machinery of Government changes on 28 June 2007. This response also covers those areas of responsibility held by its predecessor the Department for Education and Skills (DfES).

Teachers: Males

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what percentage of primary school teachers in (a) England and (b) Yorkshire and the Humber were men at the latest date for which figures are available. [223813]

Jim Knight: Provisional March 2006 figures show that 15.5 per cent. of full-time regular teachers employed in local authority maintained primary schools in England are male compared with 16.5 per cent. in Yorkshire and the Humber Government office region.

The source of this information is the Database of Teacher Records.

Teachers: Pay

Jon Trickett: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) what the average annual earnings of a supply teacher in (a) England, (b) Yorkshire and the Humber and (c) Wakefield District were in the latest period for which figures are available. [223780]

(2) what the average income of a first year teacher in (a) England, (b) Yorkshire and the Humber and (c) Wakefield District was in the last year for which figures are available. [223781]

Jim Knight: Information on the average annual earnings of supply teachers is not collected centrally.

The available information on the average income of a first year teacher in (a) England, (b) Yorkshire and the Humber is contained within Table B4:

of the Statistical First Release (SFR) "School Workforce in England (including pupil: teacher ratios and pupil: adult ratios), January 2007 (Revised)". Figures for Wakefield district are not available.

Jon Trickett: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the average income of a teacher on the M6 pay scale in (a) England, (b) Yorkshire and the Humber and (c) Wakefield District was in the last year for which figures are available. [223782]

Jim Knight: The following table provides the average gross salary, including all additional allowances, of full-time regular qualified teachers on scale point six of the main classroom teachers pay scale (M6) in local authority maintained schools in England, Yorkshire and the Humber Government Office Region (GOR) and Wakefield local authority in March 2006, the latest information available.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the average number of times was an individual trainee on the initial teacher training course took the basic skills test in (a) literacy, (b) numeracy and (c) ICT in each year since 2000; and if he will make a statement. Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) how many graduates completed the Teach First programme in each year since its inception; and if he will make a statement; [223793]

(2) how many graduates he expects to complete the Teach First programme in each of the next five years; and if he will make a statement; [223794]

(3) what plans he has to increase the number of graduates completing the Teach First programme; and if he will make a statement; [223795]

(4) what plans he has to increase awareness of the Teach First programme among graduates; and if he will make a statement; [223798]

(5) how many and what percentage of Teach First leavers went on to work in (a) academies and (b) the independent sector in each of the last two years; and if he will make a statement. [223805]

Jim Knight: The following number of graduates have completed the Teach First programme:

	Number
2004	164
2005	177
2006	158
2007	244
2008	253

The Prime Minister announced in June 2008 that the number of Teach First places would double over the next five years to the level where more than 800 top class graduates would be recruited into teaching each year. Accordingly, Teach First is projecting the following number of graduates will begin the programme in each year:

	Number
2009	370
2010	460
2011	560
2012	660
2013	760
2014	850

Teach First is already taking forward plans to drive the expansion by increasing the awareness of the programme among eligible graduates. It does not currently have detailed statistics on the destinations of completers who remain in education, but I already plan to require these to be available for the 2008/09 academic year onwards.

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what percentage of secondary school teacher training applications for each subject were accepted in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [223796]

Jim Knight: The only centrally available data on applications for Initial Teacher Training (ITT) courses is for mainstream postgraduate ITT courses. Data on total ITT, mainstream undergraduate ITT and Employment Based ITT are not available centrally.

The following tables show the number of applications and acceptances to mainstream postgraduate secondary ITT courses in England along with the proportion of those applications which were accepted for each subject since 2003-04. Figures for 2008-09 will be available around May 2009.

The number of people accepting offers to ITT courses is a more important indicator of take up rate than applications. Year on year changes in the number of acceptances between 2003-04 and 2007-08 have broadly reflected changes in ITT recruitment targets. While acceptances for postgraduate courses for 2007-08 are a few percentage points down on last year, there are also fewer places on offer.

Figures presented in this response have been published on the GTTR website. Details of what GTTR information has been published is available at:

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what assessment he has made of the progress of the National College of School Leadership in developing a replacement for the Fast Track scheme; and if he will make a statement. [223799]

Jim Knight: The National College for School Leadership submitted its preliminary advice for a new accelerated leadership programme to the Secretary of State in June 2008.

Departmental officials are working with the College to enable it to provide further advice and full proposals by early November 2008. The Secretary of State will then respond to these.

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) what assessment he has made of the performance of the future leaders programme; and if he will make a statement; [223800]

(2) how many people are expected to complete the future leaders programme in each of the next five years; and if he will make a statement; [223801]

(3) what the budget for the future leaders programme is for 2008-09; and if he will make a statement; [223802]

(4) what plans he has to expand the future leaders programme across England; and if he will make a statement. [223803]

Ed Balls: Early, independent evaluation of the programme has been very favourable. The Future Leaders programme is already helping to address the imminent succession planning needs in London school leadership teams, with the majority of participants to date securing a senior leadership team post.

When we published the Children's Plan at the end of last year, we announced that we would expand the Future Leaders programme so that by September 2011 there will be over 500 Future Leaders in schools across the country's major city regions.

The programme is part-funded by the Government; for the current spending review period we have allowed £8 million, of which approximately £2 million will be spent in 2008-09.

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what assessment his Department has made of the merits of establishing a national college of teachers; and if he will make a statement. [223804]

Jim Knight: No specific assessment has been made of the merits of establishing a national college of teachers. However, the DCSF works with the Training and Development Agency for Schools (TDA) to support and promote effective recruitment and professional development arrangements, not only for teachers, but for the whole school work force.

We also continue to work with the National College for School Leadership (NCSL) supporting the development of leadership teams with broad skill sets, and with the independent General Teaching Council for England (GTCE), to improve standards of teaching and the quality of learning, and to maintain and improve standards of professional conduct among teachers.

The TDA, NCSL and GTCE work effectively together. For example, TDA and NCSL are leading jointly the project to support remodelling in extended schools while TDA and GTCE work closely on the continuing professional development of teachers.

Teaching Methods

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of the direct instruction method of teaching in raising educational attainment. [222809]

Jim Knight: The Department has not funded any research specifically to investigate the direct instruction method of teaching. However, we regularly review research evidence on effective pedagogy to inform the guidance issued by the national strategies. Overall, evidence suggests that while elements of the direct instruction method may be suitable in certain subjects and in certain circumstances, a varied and responsive teaching repertoire is most likely to engage pupils in their learning and support their attainment. The primary and secondary national strategies promote the use of whole class, small group and one to one approaches to teaching, regardless of the areas of learning including, for example, when teaching early reading based on the Simple View of Reading.

We will continue to support teachers and schools to use their professional judgment to select the most appropriate approaches for their pupils, based on evidence of good practice.

Training and Development Agency for Schools: Location

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what his estimate is of the cost of relocating the Training and Development Agency for Schools from London to Manchester. [223766]

Jim Knight: The relocation of the Training and Development Agency to Manchester is estimated to cost £16 million over the three-year period from 2008 to 2011.

This is consistent with the Government's commitment to continuous improvement in delivery of public services and to providing value for money to taxpayers. The initial costs are balanced by longer-term benefits for the Agency in the potential for cost savings, reductions in staff turnover, and improvements in the quality of service delivery; and the wider economic benefits for the Manchester region

Truancy

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many (a) fathers and (b) mothers have been (i) fined and (ii) imprisoned for their children's non-attendance at school in each of the last five years. [221814]

Beverley Hughes: The Ministry of Justice collects data for England and Wales on prosecutions brought against parents under the Education Act 1996 for the offence under s444(1) for failing to secure their child's regular attendance at school; and for prosecutions under s444(1A), the aggravated offence of knowing that their child is failing to attend school regularly. It is possible, because of the way courts record data that some data are collected under the more general heading of various offences under the Education Act 1996.

The information on the number of people by gender sentenced and given fines or immediate custodial sentences is detailed in the following tables.

3. The Department for Children, Schools and Families also collects separate data for England on penalty notices, fines, issued to parents for failing to ensure that their compulsory school aged children attend school regularly. Penalty notices provide an alternative to prosecuting parents under s444 of the Education Act 1996 and have been available since February 2004. Data available covering the last three complete school academic years show that from 1 September 2004 to 31 July 2005, 3,483 penalty notices were issued to parents; from 1 August 2005 to 1 September 2006,12,150; and from 2 September 2006 to 31 August 2007,14,625. The Department does not collect data by gender type.

Truancy: Yorkshire and the Humber

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) how many secondary school pupils in Yorkshire and the Humber played truant in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement; [223816]

(2) how many persistent truants there were in Yorkshire and the Humber in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [223817]

Beverley Hughes: The Department does not maintain records of 'truancy'.

Unauthorised absence is absence without leave from a teacher or other authorised representative of the school. This includes all unexplained or unjustified absences, such as lateness, holidays during term time not authorised by the school, absence where reason is not yet established and truancy. The available information showing the percentage of half days missed owing to unauthorised absence in secondary schools is given in the table. Information which includes CTCs and academies can be provided only at disproportionate cost for the years prior to 2005/06.

Information on persistent absence relates to persistent absentees, these are pupils who are absent for more than 20 per cent. of possible sessions of attendance. This information is available for secondary schools from 2005/06 and for primary schools from 2006/07 and is given in the table.

UN Committee on the Rights of the Child

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families which Ministers from the devolved administrations have expressed an interest in attending the UN Committee on the Rights of the Child's examination of the UK State Party report in September 2008. [221813]

Beverley Hughes: Jane Hutt, Minister for Children, Education and Lifelong Learning and Skills in the Welsh Assembly Government wrote to the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families, in May 2008, expressing an interest in joining a ministerial delegation for the UK Government's oral hearing with the UN Committee on the Rights of the Child on 23/24 September 2008.

The Secretary of State gave careful consideration to the make up of the delegation and decided that it would be more appropriate for the delegation to be comprised of senior officials from across government and the Devolved Administrations.

The UK Government do not routinely send Ministers to treaty monitoring examinations and, like most other western countries, Ministers have not attended previous hearings with the United Nations Committee on the Rights of the Child. Junior Minister Gerry Kelly from the Office of the First Minister and Deputy First Minister, Northern Ireland also expressed an interest in attending.

Work Experience: Industrial Health and Safety

Mr. Rooney: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what level of assurance the Accounting Officer has been given by his Department's internal audit team regarding the health and safety of children undergoing vocational work experience. [221832]

Jim Knight: Work-related learning has been a statutory requirement at key stage 4 since 2004. Responsibility for meeting this requirement lies with schools or colleges, supported by a number of parties involved in the work experienced programme including, Education Business Partnership Organisations (EBPOs), parents and carers, employers and learners. The Department for Children, Schools and Families provides necessary supporting policy guidance to help achieve this requirement including the 'Quality Standard for Work Experience'. This guidance provides a framework of responsibilities for the different elements of work experience including the health and safety of learners. It is the responsibility of local authorities to apply their own audit and oversight of the extent to which work experience programmes in their own areas meet the standard. Ofsted take the standard into account during their inspections. The Department's internal audit unit does not provide any specific assurance to the Accounting Officer on these matters.

Young Offenders

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what proportion of children under the age of 16 who were convicted of a criminal offence in each year since 1997 were from a single-parent household. [223750]

Beverley Hughes: The Department for Children, Schools and Families and Ministry of Justice, who share responsibility for Youth Justice issues do not collect this information centrally.

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what proportion of children under the age of 16 who were convicted of an offence of gun or knife crime in each year since 1997 were from a single-parent household. [223751]

Beverley Hughes: The Department for Children, Schools and Families and the Ministry of Justice, which share responsibility for Youth Justice issues, do not collect this information centrally.

Young People: Unemployment

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what proportion of (a) 16 to 18, (b) 17 and (c) 18-year-olds are not in education, employment or training in each region. [223716]

Jim Knight: The Department's published estimate of the number and proportion of young people not in education, employment or training (NEET) cannot be disaggregated to regional level. However, we can estimate the number and proportion of young people NEET using figures drawn from the client management systems maintained by Connexions services. The following table shows the number and proportion of (a) 16 to 18, (b) 17 and (c) 18-year-olds not in education, employment or training in each region at the end of 2007 based on Connexions data.

	Age 16 -18		Age 17		Age 18
	Number	Proportion (%)	Number	Proportion (%)	Number	Proportion (%)
South East	13,220	5.3	5,140	5.4	5,190	5.6
London	13,430	6.4	5,110	6.5	5,670	7.1
East	10,470	5.8	4,000	5.8	4,300	6.4
South West	8,640	5.4	3,370	5.6	3,480	5.9
West Midlands	13,220	7.1	5,190	7.3	5,260	7.7
East Midlands	8,140	5.6	3,130	5.6	3,230	6.0
Yorkshire and Humber	14,440	8.2	5,760	8.5	5,570	8.7
North West	19,570	7.9	7,600	8.0	7,950	8.8
North East	9,120	10.0	3,390	9.8	4,090	12.2

Note:
1. The figures relate to young people known to Connexions and are not directly comparable with the statistics on 16 to 18-year-olds NEET published annually by the Department of Children, Schools and Families. This is because the Connexions NEET measure excludes those on gap years, or in custody. Young people who attended independent schools or were educated outside England may also be excluded. In addition, the Department's statistics relate to the young person's academic age, rather than calendar age.

INNOVATION, UNIVERSITIES AND SKILLS

Apprentices

Mr. Hepburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills (1) how many people aged 16 to 18 have completed an apprenticeship in (a) Jarrow constituency, (b) South Tyneside, (c) the North East and (d) nationwide in each year since 1997; [223830]

(2) how many people have completed an apprenticeship in (a) Jarrow constituency, (b) South Tyneside, (c) the North East and (d) nationally in each year since 1997. [223831]

Mr. Lammy: Table 1 shows the number of people aged 16 to 18 at the start of their apprenticeship who has completed a full Apprenticeship framework. Table 2 shows the total number of people who have completed a full Apprenticeship framework.

Framework completion data was not published in the pre-LSC era, so figures are not available for the period between 1997/98 to 2001/02.

Apprentices: Bureaucracy

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what steps the Government has taken to reduce bureaucracy in the apprenticeships system. [224318]

Mr. Lammy: On 7 August this year Skills Secretary John Denham announced Government proposals to cut red tape around Apprenticeships in response to employers' concerns. We will remove unnecessary bureaucracy such as demands to store paperwork for up to six years; multiple inspection visits; and minimise reporting requirements at the earliest possible opportunity. In line with the successful actions of some of Britain's leading employers, we will introduce improvements including more efficient use of electronic audit and storage, simpler and faster registration and certification processes, and more streamlined payment and reporting systems. These practical measures will enable more employers to meet their present and future skills needs, unimpeded by time-consuming and costly administration.

Apprentices: Disabled

Mr. Mark Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills (1) what progress has been made in increasing the number of apprenticeship placements available to young disabled people wishing to acquire skills and employment; [221911]

(2) what steps he has taken to promote the representation of young disabled people in the London apprenticeship taskforce. [221912]

Mr. Lammy: The proportion of young people starting apprenticeships in England who have learning difficulties or disabilities has been around 11 per cent. for the last three years. However, we are seeing increases in the number of young people with learning difficulties or disabilities who complete apprenticeships as a proportion of all young people who complete Apprenticeships. The proportion rose from almost 8.5 per cent. in 2004/05 to 10.5 per cent. in 2006/07.

'World-class apprenticeships' plans to expand the number and range of apprenticeships in England include a number of proposals to increase the take-up and completion rates of apprenticeships by learners who are currently under-represented in the programme. We are developing pilots to begin later this year—including a campaign which is London-specific—to increase the 'critical mass' of learners in non-traditional occupations to encourage more such applications; and mentoring trials to support atypical apprentices through their experience. A national vacancy matching service, to be introduced from the end of this year, will, for the first time in England, provide data on who is applying for apprenticeships that we will use to focus activity supporting employers and potential apprentices where there is evidence that any particular groups of applicants are not being successful in their applications.

I chair a London Apprenticeship Task Force whose role includes tackling inequalities. I expect those employers, colleges and partners who are current members of the taskforce to represent the interests of young disabled people as they do for all apprentices and potential apprentices.

Apprentices: Small Businesses

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what steps the Government has taken to encourage small businesses to provide apprentice positions. [224319]

Mr. Lammy: There are a number of proposals in 'World-class Apprenticeships' aimed at supporting and encouraging small business in taking on apprentices. These included the recently launched sector growth pilots. These pilots are designed to trial a range of support including wage and training subsidies and while this is not exclusively for small businesses, they will be encouraged to bid for this funding. We are also developing proposals set out in World Class Apprenticeships to support SMEs to form their own Group Training Associations to support the delivery of Apprenticeships.

We are developing the Apprenticeship Frameworks to be more flexible and responsive. This will involve relaxing the current arrangements to allow employers to submit their own frameworks for funding, by drawing from a Sector Skills Council 'bank' of qualifications.

We are also working with the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform, who recently surveyed SMEs to establish how the new National Apprenticeship Service can better meet the needs of employers. The survey focused on, although not limited to, reducing the administrative burden on them. Together we will consider how best to incorporate the recommendations coming out of the survey.

Departmental Air Travel

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills whether staff of (a) his Department and (b) its agencies who are entitled to business class or first class air travel are permitted to (i) travel in a cheaper class to the destination and (ii) benefit in monetary terms or kind from the saving. [222100]

Mr. Lammy: The class of air travel which staff may book depends upon grade, the length of time the journey will take, as well as airlines fare structures on various routes. Whether or not a member of staff is entitled to travel first class or business class, all members of DIUS have a responsibility to make appropriate decisions on how to travel and to secure value for money in the use of travel budgets. DIUS members of staff are permitted to travel in a cheaper class to the destination although any saving would not generate a monetary or in kind benefit for the individual.

All travel undertaken by DIUS staff is undertaken in accordance with the staff handbook and the requirements of the "Civil Service Management Code" and Treasury guidance set out in "Managing Public Money" on the avoidance of personal profit from public business.

DIUS has a travel service contract with a travel agent for all flight bookings, the costs being paid centrally. DIUS staff are expected to use the contract, whenever possible, when booking any travel tickets.

DIUS agency, NWML: Staff who are entitled to business class or first class air travel are permitted to travel in a cheaper class to the destination and do not benefit in monetary terms or kind from the saving. In fact they are 'expected' to travel in a cheaper class in all but very exceptional circumstances.

DIUS agency, UK-IPO: All official travel is carried out in accordance with the requirements of the "Civil Service Management Code" and staff handbook.

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills pursuant to the answer to the right hon. Member for Horsham of 14 July 2008, Official Report, column 27W, on carbon emissions: Government Departments, how much air mileage incurred through departmental travel was used to calculate the departmental payment to the Government Carbon Offsetting Fund in each year that his Department has participated in the fund, broken down by (a) domestic, (b) short-haul and (c) long-haul flights. [222107]

Mr. Lammy: The Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills was created as a result of machinery of government changes in June 2007. The Departments predecessors DfES (Department for Education and Skills, now DCSF) and DTI (Department for Trade and Industry, now BERR) have been participated in the Carbon Offsetting Fund since the 2006/07 financial year and continue to provide this for DIUS. The number of air miles used to calculate the departmental payment for the 2006/07 financial year is contained in their Departments response.

The figures provided to DIUS by DCSF for 2007/08 are currently being cleared for submission within the annual return on Sustainable Development in Government.

The number of air miles used to calculate the departmental payment for the 2007/08 financial year for DIUS provided by BERR was as follows:

	Miles
(a) Domestic	27,540
(b) Short haul	140,286
(c) Long haul	285,096

Departmental Buildings

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what the location is of each office occupied by (a) his Department and (b) each of its agencies which has been (i) newly occupied and (ii) refurbished in the last 24 months; and what the floor area in square metres is of each. [222096]

Mr. Lammy: The London base of the Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills is at Kingsgate House, 66-74 Victoria Street. 5,671 sq m of office space (on a net internal basis) at these premises were refurbished in order to accommodate the Department after it was created in summer 2007. The space was previously occupied by the former Department of Trade and Industry.

No other buildings occupied by the Department or its agencies have been newly occupied or refurbished in the last 24 months.

Departmental Correspondence

Adam Afriyie: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what his Department's target time period is for answering correspondence from (a) hon. Members and (b) members of the public; what proportion of responses met these targets in the latest period for which figures are available; and what the average time taken was to respond to a piece of correspondence. [221798]

Mr. Lammy: Since the machinery of government changes, and the creation of the Department on 28 June 2007, correspondence has been handled by an interim arrangement which relied on our legacy Departments. The Department for Children Schools and Families (DCSF) has assisted in the handling of correspondence relating to skills, further and higher education and the Department for Business Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (BERR) has dealt with correspondence about science and innovation.

The Department has a target to respond to correspondence from either hon. Members or members of the public within 15 days of receipt. From June 2008 all correspondence has been handled using DCFS' computerised handling system. During the period 1 January 2008 and 31 August 2008, 77 per cent. of correspondence from hon. Members was despatched within target and the average time taken to respond was 14 days. For correspondence from members of the public, 98 per cent. was despatched within target and the average time taken to respond was nine days.

This information has been extracted from the DCSF system and refers to the correspondence DCSF have responded to on DIUS' behalf. Statistics regarding the correspondence handled by BERR on behalf of DIUS are not available.

Adam Afriyie: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many pieces of correspondence his Department received from (a) hon. Members, (b) Peers and (c) members of the public in the last 12 months; and what proportion of these received a response within (i) one week, (ii) two weeks, (iii) one month and (iv) a time period longer than one month. [221799]

Mr. Lammy: The information set out in the following table relates to correspondence about higher education, further education and skills issues, and since June 2008, science and innovation correspondence and covers the period 1 January 2008 to 31 August 2008.

	Members of the public	Hon. Members and peers
Received (number)	8,475	3,431
Percentage
Completed within target	98	77
Completed within 1 week	35	6
Completed within 2 weeks	58	27
Completed within 4 weeks	98	86
Completed greater than 4 weeks	2	14

Adam Afriyie: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what recent representations he has received on the performance of his Department in dealing with correspondence in a timely manner; and if he will make a statement. [221800]

Mr. Lammy: As I said in my earlier statement, the Department has a target to respond to correspondence from either hon. Members or members of the public within 15 days of receipt, something we take very seriously, and to date there have been no representations on the timeliness of response.

Adam Afriyie: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many complaints his Department has received from (a) hon. Members and (b) members of the public relating to the timeliness or substance of his Department's responses to correspondence in the latest period for which figures are available. [221802]

Mr. Lammy: Let me repeat again, the Department has a target to respond to correspondence from either hon. Members or members of the public within 15 days of receipt, something we take very seriously, and to date there are no recorded complaints about either the substance or timeliness of responses to correspondence.

Departmental Data Protection

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many notifications (a) his Department and (b) its agencies made to the Information Commissioner following the loss or mishandling of personal information or data since its creation; and what was notified in each case. [222899]

Mr. Lammy: The Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills, in accordance with Cabinet Office guidance, did not report any personal data-related incidents for the period 2007/08 to the Information Commissioner's Office.

Before November 2007, the Information Commissioner's Office did not specifically keep records of instances of security breaches.

I refer the hon. Member to the statement made by my right hon. Friend the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster on 25 June 2008, providing the final report on measures for data handling procedures in Government.

Departmental Disciplinary Proceedings

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what the five most serious disciplinary breaches in his Department were in the last 12 months; and what steps were taken in response to each breach. [223061]

Mr. Lammy: I am unable to provide the information requested on the grounds of confidentiality.

Departmental Home Working

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills pursuant to the answer of 2 July 2008, Official Report, column 990W, on departmental home working, if he will make it his policy to collate and maintain central records of home working by his Department's staff. [222537]

Mr. Lammy: Information on staff employed contractually as home workers is maintained. However, some staff opt to work from home on an ad-hoc basis and these arrangements are agreed locally between the manager and individual. Information on these ad hoc home working arrangements will not be collated centrally.

Departmental Information

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what types of data have been sold by (a) his Department and (b) its agencies under the Re-use of Public Sector Information Regulations in the last 12 months. [222101]

Mr. Lammy: Core information produced by the Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills can be reused free of charge under the terms of the PSI Click-Use Licence which is administered by the Office of Public Sector Information in accordance with the Re-Use of Public Sector Information Regulations.

Neither the core Department nor the National Weights and Measures Laboratory has charged for re-use of any data in the last 12 months. The UK Intellectual Property Office has charged for re-use of the following types of data:

UK patent bibliographic databases;
Supplementary Protection Certificates;
Bibliographic databases;
UK patent abstract data;
UK patent "A" image data;
UK patent "B" image data;
Reports on Patents Cases;
UK trade mark text database;
UK trade mark image database;
International trade marks with a UK designation.

Departmental Official Residences

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what permanent residential accommodation is provided for use by civil servants in his Department; how many residential dwellings are provided; where they are located; and for what grade of civil servant they are provided. [222099]

Mr. Lammy: The Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills provides no permanent residential accommodation for civil servants.

Departmental Procurement

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills if he will place in the Library the names and addresses of each organisation that supplied goods and services to his Department in 2007-08, based on the purchase order data held in the Department's financial database. [222109]

Mr. Lammy: The Department will not place in the Library the names and addresses of each organisation that supplied goods and services to his Department in 2007-08, based on the purchase order data held in the Department's financial database. The Department's finance system can only produce a list of all organisations including commercial and non-commercial organisations that have received a payment form the Department. We would, however have to consider, on an individual basis, whether or not disclosure of that information might prejudice the commercial interests of the Department or the relevant organisation and that could be done only at disproportionate costs.

Departmental Public Relations

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how much (a) his Department and (b) its agencies spent on each of the external public relations and marketing companies included in the Central Office of Information's Public Relations Framework in each of the last 36 months. [222097]

Mr. Lammy: The Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills was created under the machinery of government changes in June 2007, since that time the Department and its agencies have spent the following on each of the external public relations and marketing companies included in the Central Office of Information's Public Relations Framework:

Company	2007-08	2008-09
Porter Novelli Limited	52,214.15	11,843.06
Consolidated Communications Management Limited	99,113.00	—
Total	151,327.15	11,843.06

Departmental Retirement

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Hornsey and Wood Green of 7 July 2008, Official Report, column 1378W, on departmental retirement, how many requests to work beyond the maximum retirement age have been received by his Department since its creation. [222435]

Mr. Lammy: The Department does not hold central records of requests to work beyond retirement age, but does maintain records of staff working beyond retirement age as referred to in my previous answer to the hon. Member.

Departmental Written Questions

Adam Afriyie: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what proportion of written parliamentary questions he has been asked in the last 12 months was substantively unanswered (a) within one month, (b) within two months, (c) within three months and (d) after more than three months of the date of tabling. [221801]

Mr. Lammy: The information requested can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

EDF Energy

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what contracts (a) his Department and (b) its agencies have with EDF; and how much (i) his Department and (ii) its agencies paid to EDF in each of the last 10 years, broken down by the purpose of the payment. [221840]

Mr. Lammy: The Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills (DIUS) was established under Machinery of Government changes in June 2007 and currently contracts according to the existing agreements put in place by its predecessor Departments being the Department for Education and Schools (now the Department for Children, Schools and Families—DCSF) and Department for Trade and Industry (now the Department for Business Enterprise and Regulatory Reform—BERR).

BERR has not made any payments to EDF during the 2007-08 financial year.

DCSF have made payments to the value of £1,659,305.17 but the portion attributable to DIUS cannot be determined as a cross charge is made to DIUS based upon headcount for electricity charges, and floor space for gas. DIUS agency NWML has not made any payments to EDF.

DIUS agency UK-IPO have made the following payments for the supply of electricity to EDF (and London Electricity when they traded under that name):

Financial year	£000
2002-03	48
2003-04	116
2004-05	135
2005-06	179
2006-07	245
2007-08	230

Olympic Games 2012

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many full-time equivalent members of staff in (a) his Department and (b) its associated public bodies are working on projects relating to the London 2012 Olympics and Paralympics Games; how many of them are working on (i) project management, (ii) legacy planning, (iii) project oversight and (iv) financial oversight; and what plans he has for future staffing levels in each case. [221872]

Mr. Lammy: The Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills is taking advantage of the opportunities which the games afford to enhance skills levels across a wide range of occupations and industrial sectors, in line with the broader objectives of the national Skills Strategy. There are 2.1 full-time equivalent members of staff allocated to co-ordinating this work within the Department, and 9.7 full-time equivalent members of staff dealing with this within the Learning and Skills Council across England. They deal with all aspects of project management, legacy planning and project oversight. Future staffing levels for this work are expected to remain at this level.

South East

Dr. Stoate: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how much his Department spent on services, broken down by type in (a) Dartford Borough, (b) Kent Thameside, (c) the Thames Gateway, (d) Kent County Council area and (e) the South East region in each of the last five years. [222447]

Mr. Lammy: The Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills (DIUS) was established under machinery of government changes in June 2007. DIUS currently operates two financial ledgers. BERR continue to provide accounting services for the ex-DTI parts of DIUS and DCSF provide a similar service to ex-DfES elements. Our accounting systems record costs, including services based on their nature rather than the geographical region to which they pertain. To provide a response to this question would be at disproportionate cost.

Stress

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what arrangements his Department has in place to assist officials to overcome the effects of stress experienced in the workplace. [222170]

Mr. Lammy: The Department is committed to the well-being of its employees. It has a number of procedures in place to reduce stress at work. A stress management framework, based on the Health and Safety Executive's management standards, is available to all employees and gives easy to use advice on the successful prevention, recognition and management of stress at work.

In addition, on 1 July 2008, a new Employee Assistance Programme was made available to all members of staff, providing them with enhanced employee care.

Training: Elderly

Stephen Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what assessment he has made of the contribution of skills improvement to reduce isolation of people over 60 years old. [222722]

Mr. Lammy: The Government are committed to ensuring that learning serves the needs of the whole community, including older people both within and outside the work force. Our strategy for World Class Skills and our reforms of wider adult learning are designed to ensure that everyone, whatever their age or background, has the opportunity to improve their skills, prospects and quality of life.

We recognise how much older people value and enjoy their courses and the many wider benefits that taking part in learning can bring. There is good evidence that older people benefit substantially from participating in learning and acquiring new skills as part of a fulfilling and active retirement. As we set out in 'Opportunity Age', 80 per cent. of learners aged 50 to 71 reported a positive impact from learning in areas such as their enjoyment of life, self-confidence, and their ability to cope with events like divorce and bereavement, while 28 per cent. reported increased involvement in social, community and voluntary activities. For many older people, learning represents an important social activity, not only providing valuable opportunities for social interaction with their peers and members of other generations, but also offering valuable opportunities to share their own knowledge and skills through community volunteering activities.

Our recent consultation on informal adult learning has shown just how passionate people are about learning in later life and many older respondents have told us that the opportunities to engage in social activities and share experiences are as important as the learning itself. We are determined to identify and tackle the real and perceived barriers that face older learners and to ensure that the most marginalised and isolated older people are able to participate. We will continue the consultation dialogue with partners and stakeholders to develop a strategic and durable vision, with policy proposals that work for all older learners and potential learners.

Stephen Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what training in ICT skills his Department provides for people over 60 years old. [222723]

Mr. Lammy: The Government are committed to ensuring equal opportunities for all learners, and that learning serves the needs of the whole community, including older people both within and outside the workforce. Our aim is to ensure that everyone in every community can lead healthy and fulfilling lives by participating fully in work, education and society as a whole.

The exact balance and mix of adult learning provision at local level is for the Learning and Skills Councils to determine in collaboration with colleges, private and third sector providers, learner representatives and other local partners, according to their assessment of the needs and priorities of their communities.

We recognise that ICT skills are an essential tool for everyday life, for work and for leisure, and that adults of all ages are seriously disadvantaged without ICT skills, especially those in marginalised groups and deprived communities. Over the last six years, £22 million has been invested to bring the benefits of technology to adults in personal and community development learning settings, supporting innovation projects and in establishing learning platforms in over 50 per cent. of local authorities. Around half of all learners over 60 are studying ICT. Some 1,700 people have been trained as e-guides, learning champions who work with more than 10,000 other tutors. 6,000 UK online centres—about half in public libraries, one third in the voluntary and community sector and the rest in FE colleges and other organisations—are enabling people to access ICT, the internet and e-learning.

The contribution of new technology and broadcasting is a specific strand of our recent consultation on informal adult learning. We want to know how ICT might support new ways of learning and to work with partners, interest groups and networks to identify barriers and obstacles to making ICT learning resources more widely available. We are also working to bridge the digital divide by making new technologies accessible and helping people develop the skills they need to use them effectively. We are currently assessing the many good ideas and proposals we have received in response to the consultation, as part of a process that will lead to a major policy paper later in the year.

Stephen Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what training is available for people over 60 years old to (a) improve and (b) obtain generic financial skills. [222750]

Mr. Lammy: The Government are committed to ensuring that older people in every community, both within and outside the workforce, have access to suitable high quality learning opportunities. Our strategy for world class skills and our recent wide-ranging consultation on informal adult learning have been designed to ensure that adults everywhere, whatever their age or background, have the opportunity to improve their skills, prospects, quality of life and personal wellbeing.

Increasing financial literacy and helping older people to make informed decisions about working longer and saving for retirement are key aims of "Opportunity Age", but the Government have also set out a wider, long-term strategy for improving the personal financial capability of people from all sections of the UK population. This is our response to the Thoresen Review, published in March 2008, which reports that large numbers of people from all sections of society are not taking basic steps to plan ahead, such as saving sufficiently for their retirement or putting money aside for when unexpected expenses occur. Many are unwittingly taking on significant financial risks because they struggle to choose products that truly meet their needs. Adults without basic literacy and numeracy are highly likely to struggle with their personal finances.

Since its launch in 2001, the "Skills for Life" strategy has provided in excess of £3 million to fund numeracy and financial capability. This has been embedded into the wider national strategy to improve adult literacy, language and numeracy. The programme is run on behalf of my Department by the National Institute of Adult Continuing Education (NIACE). Its aim is to address the needs of basic literacy, language and numeracy learners through financial literacy, and in so doing to develop their capability to make effective decisions about the use and management of money. In developing the programme NIACE have resources and pilots in several areas. These projects are testing effective ways of engaging adults of all ages and delivering financial literacy in community settings.

Pete Wishart: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the cost was of (a) internet and website design and hosting, (b) print media design and (c) broadcast media of each of his Department's public information campaigns since 1997. [214727]

Mr. Woodward: To provide the breakdown of costs incurred by the Northern Ireland Office on public information campaigns from April 1997 to March 2000 would incur disproportionate costs; however, the overall costs for these years are as follows:

1997-98	262,083.75
1998-99	428,390.82
1999-2000	Nil

The breakdown of costs from April 2000 to date is contained in the following table:

	Internet and website design and hosting (£)	Print media design (£)	Broadcast media (£)
2000-01	0.00	11,802.08	0.00

Economic and Monetary Union

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland pursuant to the answer to the right hon. Member for Horsham (Mr. Maude) of 9 July 2008, Official Report, column 1646W, on economic and monetary union, what the type of information in the changeover plan that prohibits publication is; and if he will redact that information and place an edited version in the Library. [222222]

Mr. Woodward: The Northern Ireland Office is unable to provide details of the Euro Changeover Plan as it contains the names and addresses of the Euro Co-ordinators as well as details of registered companies and computer packages which are to be used.

Powers of Entry

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland which (a) primary and (b) secondary legislation sponsored by his Department has (i) amended and (ii) enhanced existing powers of entry since May 1997. [222143]

Mr. Woodward: Since May 1997, my Department has taken forward nine primary enactments and one statutory instrument which have either introduced new, or amended existing, powers of entry in Northern Ireland. The relevant legislation is shown in the following lists.

Primary legislation introduced since May 1997 amending existing entry powers or containing new entry powers

Northern Ireland (Location of Victims' Remains) Act 1999;
Justice (NI) Act 2004;
Criminal Justice (NI) Order 2004;
Firearms (Northern Ireland) Order 2004;
Northern Ireland (Miscellaneous Provisions) Act 2006;
Justice and Security (Northern Ireland) Act 2007;
Police and Criminal Evidence (Amendment) (NI) Order 2007;
Policing (Miscellaneous Provisions) (NI) Order 2007;
Criminal Justice (NI) Order 2008.

Statutory instruments conferring one or more powers of entry coming into force since May 1997

Police Act 1997 (Criminal Records) (Registration) Regulations (NI) 2007

The answer covers Acts, Orders in Council and statutory instruments on reserved and excepted matters. Northern Ireland Statutory Rules and legislation in the transferred field taken forward prior to the establishment and during the suspension of the Assembly have not been covered on the grounds that to do so would involve disproportionate cost.

Land: Measurement

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice whether the Land Registry plans to use hectares as a unit of measurement. [223951]

Mr. Wills: Land Registry requires the use of metric measurements on any documents dated on or after 1 October 1995. Any imperial measurements in such documents must appear as supplementary indications only and will usually be placed in brackets, for example, 22.86 m (75 feet).

Land Registry similarly only uses imperial units of measurement on the register and title plan as supplementary indications (in brackets) or where they are included in a verbatim extract from a deed dated prior to 1 October 1995.

Sir Peter Viggers: I have been asked to reply.

The Electoral Commission informs me that it has published a response to the White Paper, Party finance and expenditure in the United Kingdom, which is available on the Commission's website:

www.electoralcommission.org.uk.

The Commission will now consider carefully all aspects of the Political Parties and Elections Bill relevant to its work before setting out its views in more detail prior to the Bill's second reading in the House of Commons.

LEADER OF THE HOUSE

Stress

Mr. Hands: To ask the Leader of the House what arrangements her Office has in place to assist officials to overcome the effects of stress experienced in the workplace. [222168]

Chris Bryant: The Office of the Leader of the House of Commons is committed to the well-being of its employees. It has an external employee counselling service, it regularly consults staff on reducing stress at work and it provides easy to use advice on the successful prevention, recognition and management of stress at work.

I am delighted that no staff have taken leave for stress over the last four years.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Access to Work Programme

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions from which part of his Department's budget funding to raise the Access to Work budget will be drawn. [223162]

James Purnell [holding answer 10 September 2008]: On 21 July 2008, the Department published its Green Paper 'No one written off: reforming welfare to reward responsibility'. Despite a fourfold increase in funding over the last 10 years, we recognise the need to expand the service to provide more help to more people. We are doubling the budget on Access to Work. This will be a major expansion of the support we can offer to disabled people to help them get and sustain employment. We estimate that this will expand the programme's capacity to around 48,000 people by 2013-14. The extra funding being made available is in addition to what was agreed in the 2007 spending review settlement.

Child Benefit: Telephone Services

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many and what proportion of calls to the Child Benefit Helpline were (a) answered by a representative, (b) received an automated message, (c) logged with the promise of a call-back and (d) responded to in another manner in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [223434]

Mr. Timms [holding answer 10 September 2008]: I have been asked to reply.

The table below provides the details of the information requested where it is available. In answer to part (b) all calls received by the Child Benefit Helpline receive an automated message of some kind. It is not possible to calculate the relative proportions of the different groups with the information available.

EU Law

Mr. Francois: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many officials in his Department are wholly or mainly tasked with the negotiation, implementation or the administration of EU legislation and consequent policies. [222281]

James Purnell: This Government are firmly committed to the importance of the EU in delivering on 21st century challenges. It is relevant to a wide range of policy areas, and to the work of approximately 380 officials in the Department for Work and Pensions.

Social Security Benefits: Interviews

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what qualitative evaluation he has made of the customer experience of work-focussed interviews; and if he will make a statement. [223247]

James Purnell [holding answer 10 September 2008]: The Department for Work and Pensions conducts a wide range of research to inform the strategic development and operational delivery of its policies. This includes formal evaluations of employment programmes and pilots, as well as more strategic research on work-related and service delivery issues. Other research considers, more broadly, customer satisfaction with various aspects of Jobcentre Plus provision.

Work-focused Interviews are one of the main ways through which Jobcentre Plus services are made available to its customers. Large bodies of evaluation evidence exist on work-focused Interviews, including qualitative studies of customers' experiences, large scale quantitative surveys of clients' journeys through Jobcentre Plus services and case studies of the delivery of client based services.

Comprehensive programmes of evaluation have taken place. All research reports are available in the House of Commons Library and are also available on the DWP website.

A list of relevant recently published research has been placed in the Library.

WOMEN AND EQUALITY

Dorneywood

James Duddridge: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality pursuant to the answer to the right hon. Member for Horsham (Mr. Maude) of 19 June 2008, Official Report, column 1187W, on Dorneywood: official hospitality, what use the Government Equalities Office has made of Dorneywood for official engagements since its establishment. [222348]

James Purnell: The Government Equalities Office was established on 12 October 2007. Since then, it has not made use of Dorneywood for official engagements.

ELECTORAL COMMISSION COMMITTEE

Political Parties: Finance

Norman Baker: To ask the honourable Member for Gosport, representing the Speaker's Committee on the Electoral Commission, what procedures there are for regulated (a) donees and (b) donors to appeal against sanctions imposed on them by the Commission. [222970]

Sir Peter Viggers: The Electoral Commission informs me that it has no power to impose unilaterally any sanction on regulated donees or donors. Where the Commission establishes that a regulated donee has accepted a donation from an impermissible source, it may apply for a forfeiture order through a magistrates' court.

Cases of suspected criminal offences committed by donees and donors under the Political Parties, Elections and Referendums Act 2000 (PPERA) are referred by the Commission to the police, or in the case of Scotland, to the Procurator Fiscal, where the Commission believes there is sufficient evidence and it is in the public interest to do so. The appeal procedure in each case is through the judicial system.

Norman Baker: To ask the honourable Member for Gosport, representing the Speaker's Committee on the Electoral Commission, what factors the Electoral Commission takes into account when deciding whether it is in the public interest to refer to the police a case of a regulated donee notifying it late of a political donation; and who in the Commission takes such decisions. [222974]

Sir Peter Viggers: The Electoral Commission informs me that it takes a variety of factors into account when deciding whether it is in the public interest to refer such cases to the police. These include the nature and gravity of the offence, the motive, mitigating circumstances, the effect of a prosecution on the accused, the risk of further offences, the availability of a more appropriate civil or other remedy, the powers of the court, and the public concern. Decisions regarding such referrals are taken by the Electoral Commissioners.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the honourable Member for Gosport, representing the Speaker's Committee on the Electoral Commission, with reference to the Electoral Commission's consultation paper on Standardising Statements of Accounts for Parties and Accounting Units, what the evidential basis is for the need for standardisation; what advice the Commission has obtained on the matter from (a) accountants and (b) auditors in public practice and from their professional bodies; and what research has been undertaken or commissioned by the Commission on the matter. [224321]

Sir Peter Viggers: The Electoral Commission informs me that evidence of the need for greater transparency in the accounts of registered parties and their accounting units has been set out in a number of reports, including the first report of Session 2006-07 of the then Constitutional Affairs Committee of the House of Commons (HC 163-1). Paragraph 39 of that report recommended that:

"Despite the introduction of a duty to produce accounts under PPERA, a lack of common accounting practices makes it difficult to compile a comprehensive account of the income profiles of the political parties. The Government should ensure that the Electoral Commission produce more digestible, thorough and transparent figures of both the private and public sources of party income."

The Commission launched its public consultation on the standardisation of statements of accounts in July 2008 and invited the major accountancy bodies to respond to the consultation. The Commission informs me that in April 2008 it engaged an experienced public sector auditor to assist with developing the consultation and an audit strategy, and that a contract for professional accountancy advice and support on producing a guidance manual and delivering a training package for party and accounting unit treasurers is likely to be finalised shortly. The Commission has not undertaken or commissioned other research on this subject.

Powers

John Bercow: To ask the honourable Member for Gosport, representing the Speaker's Committee on the Electoral Commission, whether the Electoral Commission has made representations to the Government on proposals for extending its investigative and punitive powers. [223875]

Sir Peter Viggers: The Electoral Commission informs me that it made representations supporting more proportionate and flexible penalties and the ability to apply a range of sanctions in 2003, when it published its review, Political Parties, Elections and Referendums Act: Recommendations for change, which it submitted to the Government.

The Commission further informs me that in 2006 it called for wider sanctions during evidence provided to the eleventh enquiry of the Committee on Standards in Public Life.

In July 2008, the Commission reiterated its support for a widened range of sanctions and investigatory powers in its response to the Government's White Paper Party finance and expenditure in the United Kingdom.

In the Commission's most recent briefing paper responding to the Political Parties and Elections Bill, it again welcomed and reiterated its strong support for the provisions in the Bill to widen its sanctioning and investigation powers. Copies of this briefing paper have been placed in the House of Commons Library.

INNOVATION, UNIVERSITIES AND SKILLS

Adult Education: Finance

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills for what reasons his Department's funding for Adult Learning Support at Chelmsford college fell by 6.4 per cent. in 2008-09; and if he will make a statement. [224494]

Mr. Lammy [holding answer 6 October 2008]: Overall investment in the post-16 further education sector has increased significantly—by 53 per cent. in real terms between 1997 and 2008. Chelmsford college's overall LSC funding has increased by 3.7 per cent. compared with the previous year.

Following a consultation in January 2007 and subsequent work through LSC advisory groups, changes were made to the way additional learning support was calculated for 2008/09. These changes were introduced to ensure that the funding was better focused on need rather than purely on an historical basis.

ALS now has a funding formula that has two levels, low cost and high cost. For learners aged 16-18, low cost claims—that is, those under £5,500—will be allocated using the learners' GCSE English and Maths points profile from the college's previous year's cohort.

For learners over the age of 19, low level claims are based on the level of qualification being studied.

To allow for transitional arrangements for ALS, and to minimise the impact on colleges' budgets, 60 per cent. of the low cost ALS has been distributed using the formula approach in 2008/09. The remaining 40 per cent. has been allocated on the basis of the historical proportion of the budget. The intention is to move to 75 per cent. (formula)/ 25 per cent. (allocation) in 2009/10.

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how much the Learning and Skills Council allocated to Adult Learning Support at (a) higher education colleges in Essex and (b) at Chelmsford college in (i) 2007-08 and (ii) 2008-09. [224521]

Mr. Lammy [holding answer 6 October 2008]: Until the academic year 2007-08, Additional Learning Support (ALS) was allocated as a lump sum to Further Education (FE) Colleges based on historical spend. From 2008-09 ALS allocations have, for the first time, been differentiated by age group and have used a formula based approach to more accurately reflect need.

The LSC has responsibility for the funding of post-16 further education and training (other than higher education). As a result, table 1 below shows the ALS allocated for FE colleges in the Essex area with information on Chelmsford college in the table that follows.

ALS Allocations FE colleges in Essex

Essex ALS (FE)	Allocation (£)	Difference (£)	Percentage difference
2007-08 total	9,387,920
2008-09 total	8,932,072	(455,848)	-4.8

FE ALS allocations Chelmsford college

Chelmsford college	Allocation (£)	Difference (£)	Percentage difference
2007-08 total	737,620
2008-09 total	690,948	(46,672)	-6.3

Departmental Databases

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what use (a) his Department and (b) its agencies make of (i) MOSAIC data and (ii) ACORN data. [222098]

Mr. Lammy: DIUS itself has not made any direct recent use of either MOSAIC or ACORN. The following is a summary of known examples of use and general extent of use in agencies and their contractors. There may be some use where MOSAIC or ACORN are used indirectly by external contractors which we have not been able to identify in collating the information for this reply.

Some regional Learning and Skills Councils (LSC) use MOSAIC to a limited extent. Contractors working on behalf of LSC may recommend it for projects where the aim is to analyse the population in certain areas, or understand which particular groups are accessing/not accessing learning. For example the LSC South East project uses MOSAIC neighbourhood types to identify and map NEET (Not in Education Training or Employment) hotspots in the South East.

The Student Loans Company hires a modelling tool from Experian which relies on some MOSAIC data and which predicts the likelihood to repay of student loans mortgage style accounts.

ACORN is to be used for the LSC Free Childcare for Training and Learning for Work project (activity to be undertaken November/December 2008)—profiling the population of England against the target audience (struggling families) to help plan where door drop activity should take place. It is also used to target media activity for the Skills for Life campaign.

Ufi (University for Industry) uses ACORN data in its marketing campaigns to promote learndirect learning.

No other use of MOSAIC or ACORN has been reported by DIUS or any of its agencies.

Environment: Research

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what steps the Government have taken to encourage UK-based research on environment issues. [224184]

Mr. Lammy: The Government provides funding to the Natural Environment Research Council (NERC), which in turn funds independent environmental research in the United Kingdom. NERC's funding from DIUS's science and research budget, has risen from £259 million in 2003-04 to £392 million in 2008-09. The increased sum includes support for the major new £1 billion programme living with environmental change, launched on 18 June, involving a wide range of partners, to which NERC and the other research councils are providing £363 million over the current spending review period.. The Department also funds the Higher Education Funding Council for England which provides quality related funding for research, including environmental research, in English Higher Education Institutes.

EU Law

Mr. Francois: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many officials in his Department are wholly or mainly tasked with the negotiation, implementation or administration of EU legislation and consequent policies. [222272]

Mr. Lammy: The Joint International Unit (JIU) supports both the Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills and the Department for Children, Schools and Families by promoting and defending the interests of the two Departments; and overseeing the delivery of EU education training and youth programmes. A total of 10 JIU staff work on this EU business for the two Departments. In addition, there are 10 staff working wholly on EU business in the Government Office for Science and the Intellectual Property Office.

Higher Education: Finance

Colin Burgon: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills (1) what plans he has for the (a) timetable, (b) remit and (c) methodology for the review of higher education funding planned for 2009; [224461]

(2) what assessment he has made of the equitable outcomes of university schemes to distribute bursaries to students; and what consideration he has given to developing a single national bursary scheme to apply to all universities. [224446]

Mr. Lammy [holding answer 6 October 2008]: Under the current arrangements, institutions are required to pay a minimum bursary to all students receiving the maximum grant. Beyond this, it is for institutions themselves, subject to approval from OFFA, to decide how to support their students. The latest figures show that acceptances to universities for England are at an all time high, with the proportion of applicants from lower socio-economic groups also up. A national bursary scheme would be very complex and costly to administer, and would lead to reduced support for students at a number of universities, damaging our fair access agenda.

As we made clear during the passage of the legislation introducing the new fee and student support arrangements, there will be an independent review in 2009 which will work on the basis of evidence from the first three years' operation of the variable fee arrangements. The review will report to Parliament. The draft terms of reference were announced to Parliament in 2004 by the then Secretary of State. The final details about the arrangements for the review, its remit and methodology will be determined in due course. That will take place after the Government have conducted a wider debate among both higher education providers and users which will set the framework for the future of Higher Education over the next ten to fifteen years. The Secretary of State recently announced the next steps to that process in his speech to Universities UK at Cambridge.

Higher Education: Israel

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills (1) what discussions his Department has had with universities and colleges on their response to the boycott by the University and College Union of Israeli Academics; [222805]

(2) what assessment he has made of the effects on the reputation and attractiveness of British universities to prospective students of a boycott of Israeli academics by the University and College Union. [222806]

Mr. Lammy: The UK Government fully support academic freedom and are firmly against any academic boycotts of Israel or Israeli academics.

Boycotts and any severing of links with Israel would be counterproductive, and completely at odds with the principles of open exchange that should underpin academic life. I profoundly believe ending such links would do nothing to promote the Middle East peace process. Both Israel and the occupied territories contain progressives and reactionaries, and the problem with boycotts or moves to severe links is that they make the job of progressives much more difficult and entrench the position of the reactionaries.

The UK Government have made their support of international academic links clear. Alongside the Israeli Government, we have actively supported the establishment of the Britain Israel Research and Academic Exchange partnership—BIRAX—which aims to strengthen academic links between the UK and Israel through the awarding of grants to support academic exchanges for research purposes. We are exploring options for supporting academics in the Occupied Palestinian Territories.

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how much the Government spent on scientific research in 2007-08. [224183]

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many and what proportion of students classified as having a (a) hearing and (b) vision impairment (i) applied to and (ii) were admitted into university in each of the last 10 years. [223759]

Mr. Lammy: The latest available information from the Universities and Colleges Admissions Service (UCAS) is shown in the tables. Comparable figures for 2008 entry will be available in February 2009.

Students: Finance

Colin Burgon: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how much HEFCE allocated (a) nationally and (b) to (i) Leeds University, (ii) Leeds Metropolitan University and (iii) Trinity and All Saints College for student bursary schemes for the academic year 2007-08; and how much of this funding was unspent at the latest date for which figures are available. [224460]

Mr. Lammy [holding answer 6 October 2008]: HEFCE does not allocate funding for student bursary schemes. Instead, each higher education provider which wishes to charge variable tuition fees for regulated courses has to agree an access agreement with the Office of Fair Access (OFFA) under which it commits to recycle some of the extra income from variable fees to support some of its students. Information on the 2007/08 academic year will become available in the spring. The following table sets out the position for 2006/07—the first year of the new arrangements.

	Amount budgeted for bursary schemes	Amount spent
Leeds University	2,500,000	1,500,000
Leeds Metropolitan University	n/a	42,000
Trinity and All Saints College	115,000	83,000
England	115,000,000	96,000,000

n/a = Not applicable

Notes:
1. Many HEIs overestimated the number of students who were eligible for bursaries in the first year of the new arrangements. Where "underspends" have occurred some HEIs have chosen to redeploy the resources towards additional outreach activities designed to attract students from non-traditional backgrounds.
2. Leeds Metropolitan University does not charge fees at a level which requires bursaries to be recycled within the terms of their approved access agreement.

Mark Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what his most recent estimate is of how much revenue will be raised from selling parts of the student loan book as a result of the Sale of Student Loans Act 2008. [224170]

Mr. Lammy: The Sale of Student Loans Act 2008 enables an indefinite programme of sales of income-contingent repayment student loans. For each sale to proceed, it will have to be assessed as yielding good value for money. No estimate has been made of how much revenue will be raised in the long term. Any update to the original estimates of proceeds over the comprehensive spending review period will be set out in the pre-Budget report.

BUSINESS, ENTERPRISE AND REGULATORY REFORM

Information

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform whether he plans to implement the recommendations of the Power of Information report produced by the Prime Minister's Strategy Unit. [219044]

Mr. Watson: I have been asked to reply.

The Power of Information report was written by Tom Steinberg (MySociety) and Ed Mayo (National Consumer Council). It was published on 7 June 2007.

The Government accepted the recommendations of the Power of Information Review in the Official Response, published on 25 June 2007. The response can be found online at:

Copies of both documents have been placed in the Library.

TRANSPORT

Roads: Repairs and Maintenance

Hywel Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what notional price per barrel of oil is used by her Department when determining whether new road schemes represent value for money. [224532]

Paul Clark [holding answer 6 October 2008]: Oil price assumptions are provided by BERR (Department for Business Enterprise and Regulatory Reform) and the Department for Transport has released guidance that uses the latest (May 2008) BERR central oil price figures to produce fuel price forecasts used in highway scheme appraisal.

Central oil prices are projected to fall back from today's level to $65 in 2010 (2007 prices) before gradually rising again to $75 (2007 prices) in 2030. These correspond to nominal prices of $71 (in 2010) to $140 (in 2030).

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Data Protection: Manpower

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many civil servants in (a) the Cabinet Office and (b) its agency work exclusively on data protection issues, broken down by grade. [215095]

Kevin Brennan: Staff in a number of units within the Cabinet Office, including Civil Contingencies Secretariat, Security Policy Division, Transformational Government, Historical Records and Openness Unit as well as Financial and Estates Management, are involved in work related to data protection issues.

It is estimated that in excess of 20 full-time equivalent civil servants are directly engaged on work to protect information held by the Cabinet Office or on policy for the protection of information for Government.

Departmental Air Travel

James Duddridge: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster whether those staff of (a) his Department and (b) its agencies who are entitled to business class or first class air travel are permitted to (i) travel in a cheaper class to the destination and (ii) benefit in monetary terms or kind from the saving. [221992]

Kevin Brennan: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the right hon. Member for Horsham (Mr. Maude) on 14 July 2008, Official Report, column 153W.

Departmental Appeals

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster on how many occasions the Cabinet Office has instructed the Treasury Solicitor to seek leave to appeal to the House of Lords from (a) the Court of Appeal and (b) the House of Lords itself in each of the last 10 years; and on how many occasions the application was rejected. [220829]

Kevin Brennan: The Cabinet Office seeks advice from the Treasury Solicitor's Department on legal matters throughout the year. However, the information requested is not held centrally and can be obtained only at a disproportionate cost.

Departmental Buildings

James Duddridge: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what the location is of each office occupied by (a) the Cabinet Office and (b) the Central Office of Information which has been (i) newly occupied and (ii) refurbished in the last 24 months; and what the floor area in square metres is of each. [221988]

Kevin Brennan: Neither the Cabinet Office nor the Central Office of Information has newly occupied any offices over the last 24 months.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster with reference to page 106 of the Cabinet Office Annual Report and Accounts 2007-08, if he will provide a breakdown of the fixed asset expenditure incurred in relation to the (a) £4.7 million on 10 to 12 Downing Street, (b) £2.0 million on 70 Whitehall, (c) £1.2 million on Admiralty Arch and (d) £0.5 million on minor spend, furniture and fittings. [222485]

Kevin Brennan: A breakdown of the fixed asset figures provided on page 106 of the Cabinet Office annual report and accounts 2007-08 into specified work packages can only be provided at a disproportionate cost.

Departmental Computers

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what estimate he has made of (a) the number of computer devices left on overnight in his Department when not in use and (b) the cost per year of leaving computer devices on overnight when not in use in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [217859]

Mr. Watson: As part of the Department's continuing sustainable development programme, we use software tools on the corporate IT network to remotely switch off overnight all desk top computers that are logged off but are not switched off. All staff are instructed to switch off their computers and monitors when not in use; this software supports this instruction. Statistics are not collated on those computers left switched-on.

Departmental Health and Safety

Philip Davies: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many incidents have been reported by his Department under the Reporting of Injuries, Diseases and Dangerous Occurrences Regulations 1995 since 27 June 2007. [222637]

Kevin Brennan: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the right hon. Member for Horsham (Mr. Maude) on 13 March 2008, Official Report, column 593W.

Departmental Mobile Telephones

Philip Davies: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many mobile telephones have been (a) purchased, (b) repaired and (c) replaced by the Prime Minister's Office since 27 June 2007. [222602]

Kevin Brennan: In the calendar year since 27 June 2007, the Cabinet Office, which includes the Prime Minister's Office, has purchased 237 mobile phones, had five repaired and replaced 41.

Departmental Official Residences

James Duddridge: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what permanent residential accommodation is provided for use by civil servants in his Department; how many residential dwellings are provided; where they are located; and for what grade of civil servant they are provided. [221991]

Kevin Brennan: No Cabinet Office civil servants are provided with permanent residential accommodation at public expense.

Departmental Public Participation

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster (1) what (a) listening exercises and (b) public forums his Department has held in each of the last two years; what the (i) purpose and (ii) cost was in each case; and who the private contractor was and how much it was paid in each case; [221346]

(2) what (a) reviews and (b) public consultations have been initiated by his Department since 27 June 2007. [221373]

Kevin Brennan: The Cabinet Office held three events in March 2008 to identify the most effective way to deliver improved community safety in partnership with local people as part of the crime and communities review. The events were attended by over 600 people and comprised of open discussions and interactive audience participation. The events cost a total of £256,632, including VAT.

Following a competitive tendering exercise, M Integrated Solutions was awarded the contract and was paid £250,758, including VAT. The Central Office of Information was paid £5,874 to cover the tendering and other administrative costs.

Departmental Sick Leave

David Simpson: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster (1) how many and what percentage of staff in his Department have had more than two periods of sickness absence of less than five days in each of the last three years; [218727]

(2) how many staff in his Department have had five or more periods of sickness absence of less than five days in two or more of the last five years. [218961]

Mr. Watson: The incidence of Cabinet Office reported periods of staff sickness absence and headcount vary during each year. The number of staff with periods of sickness absence of less than five days in each of the last three years are detailed in the following table and are expressed as percentages of the Department's average annual headcounts.

	Five or more of less than five days	Percentage	Four of less than five days	Percentage	Three of less than five days	Percentage	Two of less than five days	Percentage
2007	49	3.5	29	2.1	75	5.4	129	9.3
2006	67	4.1	42	2.6	76	4.6	157	9.5
2005	51	2.8	52	2.9	102	5.6	206	11.3

Departmental Surveillance

James Duddridge: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many applications (a) his Department and (b) its agencies have made under the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 to (i) undertake directed surveillance, (ii) use covert human intelligence sources, (iii) acquire communications data and (iv) undertake intrusive surveillance in the last 24 months. [221987]

Kevin Brennan: The Cabinet Office is not named under Schedule 1 of the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000. Therefore, it has made no applications under the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000.

Departmental Television

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar (Mr. Pickles) of 24 June 2008, Official Report, column 238W, on departmental television, what premium satellite channels or packages are subscribed to by his Department for each of the three subscriptions. [222781]

James Duddridge: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, pursuant to the answer to the right hon. Member for Horsham (Mr. Maude) of 24 June 2008, Official Report, column 238W, on departmental television, what the premium channels subscribed to are. [222216]

Kevin Brennan: The premium packages the Department subscribes to are Sky Mixes and Sky General.

Departmental Training

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how much (a) his Department and (b) its agency spent on training courses for staff in the last (i) 12 months and (ii) five years. [210555]

Mr. Watson: The Department has spent the following amounts on training, language courses, conferences and seminars in the last five years:

	£ Expenditure
2007-08	2,215,979
2006-07	2,156,453
2005-06	2,313,361
2004-05	2,227,753
2003-04	2,194,182

Government Departments: Public Participation

Anne Milton: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what recent guidance the Cabinet Office has issued on the manner in which public consultations should be conducted by Government Departments and their agencies; and whether an insistence on the use of designated response forms is compliant with that guidance. [224244]

Mr. McFadden [holding answer 17 September 2008]: I have been asked to reply.

The Government have recently revised their Code of Practice on Consultation. The new code, which will be supported by practical guidance, takes effect from November 2008. The current code and the new code set out good practice principles that Departments should adhere to when running formal, written consultation exercises and as such, they do not prescribe the approach that Departments should take with regard to submitting their responses.

Intelligence Services: Vetting

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster pursuant to the answer of 25 June 2008, Official Report, column 396W, on intelligence services: vetting, for what reason information on security vetting is not held centrally; what arrangements are in place for the collation and co-ordination of information received through security vetting; and if he will make a statement. [220543]

Kevin Brennan: Government Departments collect information and make decisions in respect of staff and contractors as part of the security vetting process. This information is classed as sensitive personal data and there is currently no requirement for such information to be held centrally. There is provision for Government Departments to share information on individual cases as necessary.

NHS: Finance

Mr. Bone: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what figures were collated by the Office for National Statistics on the net cost of the national health service in (a) the UK, (b) England, (c) Wales, (d) Scotland and (e) Northern Ireland in each of the last 11 years. [224075]

Mr. Watson: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, 7 October 2008:

As National Statistician I have been asked to reply to your question on which figures are collated by the Office for National Statistics on the net cost of the National Health Service in (a) the UK, (b) England, (c) Wales, (d) Scotland and (e) Northern Ireland in each of the last 11 years. (224075)

The Office for National Statistics (ONS) collates and publishes data on the expenditure by Government on health services overall, but does not collate statistics on the NHS alone. Examples of Government expenditure on health services outside the NHS are the expenditure on health by Ministry of Defence, and the education and training of NHS medical staff.

Data on Government expenditure on health are sourced from HM Treasury at a UK level, and are not collated or published by country or region of the UK.

In January 2007 the ONS published an article 'Public Service Productivity: Health Care'. This article contained a table showing general government final consumption expenditure on health from 1995 to 2006. The table is shown below.

Expenditure on general government health care: 1995 to 2006 United Kingdom £ billion

	1995	1996	1997	1998	1999	2000	2001	2002	2003	2004	2005	2006	Average annual change 1995-2006 (%)
Labour	22.7	23.5	24.5	25.4	26.6	28.9	31.5	34.8	38.3	41.1	44.2	47.3	6.9
Goods and services	15.4	17.2	17.1	19.0	22.6	23.2	25.3	26.6	29.7	33.9	36.6	40.5	9.2
Capital consumption	1.3	1.4	1.4	1.4	1.5	1.7	1.6	1.7	1.8	1.8	1.8	1.9	3.5
Total	39.4	42.0	43.0	45.9	50.8	53.7	58.4	63.1	69.8	76.7	82.6	89.7	7.8

Note:
1. These figures differ from those used in Blue Book 2007 (ONS 2007d), as they incorporate data revisions to the historical series. Also, by convention, Blue Book 2007 includes expenditure on capital items in GP surgeries within intermediate consumption. The estimates in this table include such expenditure in capital consumption.

Non-profit Making Associations: Lancashire

Rosie Cooper: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what funding his Department has provided for social enterprises delivering public services in West Lancashire constituency in the last 12 months. [221885]

Kevin Brennan: The Office of the Third Sector has provided £215 million to the Futurebuilders programme to make grants and loans to third sector organisations, including social enterprises, delivering public services in England.

In the last twelve months, Futurebuilders England has invested £10,627.00 in Bickerstaffe Children's Services to help build a childcare and family facility in rural West Lancashire.

Taxis

Philip Davies: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how much (a) the Cabinet Office, (b) its agency and (c) the Prime Minister's Office spent on taxis in the last financial year for which figures are available. [223038]

Kevin Brennan: The Prime Minister's Office forms an integral part of the Cabinet Office.

Due to the way that taxi costs are recorded on the Cabinet Office accounting system, it is not possible to extract the information requested without incurring disproportionate costs.

All official travel in the Department is undertaken strictly in accordance with the rules contained in the Cabinet Office Management Code.

Voluntary Organisations: Finance

Joan Walley: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster to which third sector organisations his Department has awarded Improving Reach funding; and how much was awarded in each case. [223978]

Kevin Brennan: The Improving Reach grants are awarded by Capacitybuilders, a non-departmental public body sponsored by the Office of the Third Sector.

Details of the organisations receiving Improving Reach grants during the current phase of the programme and how much each organisation receives are available through the following website.

http://www.capacitybuilders.org.uk/Resources/a/j/x/Funding%20allocations.pdf

HOME DEPARTMENT

Alcoholic Drinks: Misuse

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment she has made of the effectiveness of alcohol referral pilots; and how many people have (a) been subject to referral and (b) completed such referral in each of the pilot areas. [222648]

Mr. Coaker: The current alcohol arrest referral (AAR) pilots in Manchester, Liverpool, Ealing and Chester are subject to a vigorous evaluation process. This is being conducted by external evaluators from Liverpool John Moores University and Risk Solutions consultancy. Preliminary findings on re-offending data six months post-intervention and the throughput figures for offenders referred/receiving interventions will be received from the external evaluators in December 2008, with the final report due in July 2009.

Alcoholic Drinks: Young People

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many licensees in (a) St Albans, (b) Hertfordshire and (c) England were prosecuted for selling alcohol to under-18 year olds in each of the last three years. [222028]

Mr. Coaker: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 10 June 2008, Official Report, column 190W.

Statistics for St. Albans cannot be provided as data are not collected to this level of detail by the Ministry of Justice.

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many prosecutions of people aged 10 to 17 years there were for being drunk and disorderly in (a) the non-metropolitan county of Hampshire, (b) the Test Valley borough and (c) Southampton in each year since 1997. [222295]

Mr. Coaker: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 10 June 2008, Official Report, column 188W.

Statistics for Test Valley and Southampton cannot be provided as data are not collected to this level of detail by the Ministry of Justice.

Anti-social Behaviour Orders

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent assessment she has made of the effectiveness of anti-social behaviour orders. [224292]

Mr. Coaker: Three independent reports including the Home Affairs Select Committee report (2005), the Audit Commission report (May 2006) and the NAO report (December 2006) have confirmed our approach to tackling antisocial behaviour is working. Indeed the NAO reported that 65 per cent. of people stop committing antisocial behaviour after intervention one rising to 93 per cent. after intervention three. Peoples' fear of antisocial behaviour has fallen since ASBOs were introduced.

Antisocial Behaviour Orders: Enforcement

Mr. Henderson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps her Department has taken in the last 12 months to monitor the work of local authorities in relation to their enforcement of anti-social behaviour orders. [222626]

Mr. Coaker: We collect data on the use of the tools and powers available to practitioners to tackle antisocial behaviour. Data on the number of antisocial behaviour orders (ASBOs) made and breached are provided by the courts to the Home Office. The most recent data were published on 8 May 2008. We also receive data on the use of other tools and powers, such as antisocial behaviour contracts, through the Crime and Disorder Reduction Partnership (CDRP) survey.

We also keep in touch with frontline practitioners through policy development discussion groups, and through regular training events. This helps ensure that practitioners are fully up to speed with the latest practice in using the wide range of ASB tools and powers available to them. This close relationship also means that we can draw upon front line experience and expertise in developing policy.

Anti-social Behaviour Orders: Warley

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many applications for anti-social behaviour orders have been made to Warley magistrates in each of the last three years; how many have been granted; how many of those granted have been breached; and what penalties were imposed for each breach. [222520]

Mr. Coaker: Information on the number of ASBOs issued and breached is not compiled below Criminal Justice System (CJS) area level. Data at CJS level are collected centrally on the number of antisocial behaviour orders (ASBOs) made and breached, but not those unsuccessfully applied for.

Burglary

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will establish a target for police forces to investigate all reported house burglaries. [222467]

Mr. Coaker: We have no plans to set a target for police forces to investigate all reported house burglaries.

The Government are determined to ensure the police have the time and flexibility to respond to the concerns of local communities and have listened to the police service about the best way to achieve this. The Police Green Paper published in July—"From the Neighbourhood to the National, Policing Our Communities Together"—set out the Government's commitment to remove all targets that we set nationally for the police, and replace them with just one numerical top-down target for forces—on whether the public are confident that their force are tackling local problems. It is for local police forces, accountable to their police authorities, to determine their local priorities and the most appropriate way to tackle issues such as house burglary, including through the use of locally-set targets if appropriate.

Closed Circuit Television

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what guidance her Department has issued to local authorities on the use of CCTV to monitor members of the public. [222925]

Mr. Coaker: No guidance has been issued to local authorities on the use of closed circuit television (CCTV).

Use of CCTV by local authorities in public spaces must comply with the Data Protection Act 1998, which provides individuals with rights in respect of their information and sets rules about its collection and use.

The Information Commissioner's Office is the independent authority which administers the Act, and has recently produced a revised edition of its CCTV code of practice. This provides guidance on how to deploy CCTV while respecting the rights of individuals. Because of the wider privacy concerns raised by CCTV, the code advises organisations to consider the impact on individual privacy beforehand, what benefits can be gained, and whether better solutions exist.

The Home Office published the National CCTV Strategy last year, and a National CCTV Strategy Programme Board has been established. The programme board is reviewing the recommendations of the strategy and Ministers will have the opportunity to approve the work of the board later this year.

Credit Cards: Fraud

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many offences of fraud relating to credit cards have been notified by banks and other financial institutions to the police in each police force area since April 2007. [222651]

Mr. Coaker: In 2007-08, there were 23,344 cases of fraud by false representation that involved a cheque, plastic card or online bank account recorded by police (this includes some instances of the similar offence of cheque and credit card fraud committed under old legislation in place before 15 January 2007).

These offences could have either been referred direct by a financial institution, reported by an account holder or merchant who was not refunded monies by their financial institution or dealt with as a direct call for service to the police where a suspect was believed to be committing a crime at the time. These offences will in some instances relate to online fraud, but there is no specific category of recorded crime to separately identify these. In addition, we do not separately identify fraud offences relating to credit cards that have been notified to police by banks or financial institutions.

Statistics giving the number of fraud offences relating to cheque, plastic card and online bank accounts recorded by each police force area since April 2007 are shown in the following table.

[1] New instructions which clarified the rules for detecting crime were introduced on 1 April 1999.

Notes:

1. The data in this table are prior to the introduction of the National Crime Recording Standard. These figures are not directly comparable with those for later years.
2. It should be noted that non-sanction detections that contribute to the overall detection rate have fallen in recent years reflecting a significant shift by many police forces away from recording detections of crime where no further action is taken. For this reason overall detection rates over time are not fully comparable. From 1 April 2007 the rules governing recording of non-sanction detections were revised to reduce the scope within which they can be claimed to a very limited set of circumstances.

Notes:
1. The data in this table take account of the introduction of the National Crime Recording standard In April 2002. These figures are not directly comparable with those for earlier years.
2. It should be noted that non-sanction detections that contribute to the overall detection rate have fallen in recent years reflecting a significant shift by many police forces away from recording detections of crime where no further action is taken. For this reason overall detection rates over time are not fully comparable. From 1 April 2007 the rules governing recording of non-sanction detections were revised to reduce the scope within which they can be claimed to a very limited set of circumstances.

Crime Prevention

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps the Government are taking to prevent crimes involving (a) internet fraud and (b) identity theft; and if she will make a statement. [224293]

Mr. Coaker: The Government maintain internet fraud prevention advice on a number of websites and also supports the GetSafeOnline website which is a joint Government and industry initiative which provides clear, accessible and up-to-date advice on the easy ways in which the public and small businesses can protect themselves and their PCs while using the internet.

The Government have recently allocated £29 million in new money to implement the findings of the cross Whitehall review of fraud. A new National Fraud Reporting Centre which will enable the police to draw together comprehensive fraud intelligence will also work with law enforcement to tackle fraud facilitated through the internet.

The Government are involved in a range of activity to help reduce identity theft and works with organisations in the public and private sector. We have sought to ensure better co-ordination in prosecuting fraudsters through establishing a network of Single Points of Contact in all police forces and a range of Government Departments and agencies dealing with identity fraud investigations and prosecutions.

We have also strengthened legislation. Offences in the Identity Cards Act 2006 target those who possess and use false identity documents and genuine documents belonging to someone else. More powers to share data to combat fraud were enacted in the Serious Crime Act 2007 and the Disclosure of Death Registration Information Scheme, under the Police and Justice Act 2006, was launched on 16 January 2008.

We have introduced systems to confirm the validity of UK passports presented to other organisations and interviews for first time passport applicants over 16 years old now take place to verify the identity of individuals.

A leaflet and the

www.identitytheft.org.uk

website help to increase public awareness of the problem. The material advises on how to reduce the risk of becoming a victim of identity fraud, warning signs to look out for, and what someone should do if they do fall victim. Anyone who has had their personal details used fraudulently can contact one of the three credit reference agencies for help in resolving any credit related problems. They offer a free credit repair service and will liaise with each other, and the banks, to repair compromised personal credit records.

Finally, our plans for a National Identity Scheme will provide people with a highly secure means of protecting their identity and help citizens to prove their identities easily, quickly and with vastly improved security.

Crime: Prisoners

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what proportion of offences recorded by the police in each of the last five years were crimes committed by prisoners whilst in custody. [224229]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 17 September 2008]: The information requested is not collected centrally.

The Home Office collects 'recorded crime' data from the police in England and Wales. These data concentrate solely on the numbers of offences which are recorded and detected by the police.

Within this data-set no details are collected on the offender.

Crime: Young People

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many and what proportion of children under the age of 16 who were victims of crime in each year since 1997 were from single-parent households. [223752]

Mr. Coaker: The information requested is not currently available.

There are two primary sources of statistics on crime held by the Home Office. Police recorded crime is based on aggregate returns from police forces of the number of notifiable offences reported to and recorded by the police. Such returns do not contain information on the characteristics of victims or their families. The British crime survey is a sample survey of households in England and Wales and covers crimes experienced in the 12 months prior to interview. Currently, the survey is restricted to the experiences of adults aged 16 years and over. Following a recommendation of the independent Smith review of Home Office crime statistics, the survey is being extended to include those aged under 16 years from 2009.

Curfews: Young People

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will assess the implications for the safety of young people in curfew areas where they may not be present in public in groups of more than two people. [222460]

Mr. Coaker: There are no plans to assess the safety of individual children in areas that are subject to authorisations made under section 30 of the Anti-Social Behaviour Act 2003 (dispersal orders).

Domestic Violence: Emergency Calls

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many police forces use recordings of 999 calls when interrogating those accused of domestic violence offences. [222406]

Mr. Coaker: The Home Office does not hold information on the use of 999 recordings in police interviews with suspects in domestic violence cases.

However, in April this year revised guidance on investigating domestic abuse was reissued to all police forces by the Association of Chief Police Officers and the National Policing Improvement Agency. The guidance sets out the principles of interviewing suspects in domestic violence cases and also gives direction on the use of relevant questioning to prove offences.

Driving Offences: Insurance

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent assessment she has made of the extent of insurance fraud arising from intentional motor vehicle accidents. [222650]

Mr. Coaker: I have made no assessment of the extent of insurance fraud arising from intentional motor vehicle accidents.

Driving Offences: Mobile Phones

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much was spent on enforcing the rules regarding driving while using a mobile telephone in each year since 1997. [222257]

Mr. Coaker: This information is not collected centrally. Use of resources is an operational matter for individual chief officers of police. It became a specific offence to use a hand-held mobile phone while driving in December 2003.

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people were arrested for driving whilst using a mobile telephone in each year since 1997. [222258]

Mr. Coaker: This information is not collected centrally. Information on court proceedings for the offence of using a hand-held mobile phone while driving and fixed penalties issued for the offence are contained in Motoring Offences and Breath Test Statistics, England and Wales, published annually, and in its supplementary tables. The information covers the period from December 2003, when this conduct became a specific offence.

Mr. Crausby: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people have been prosecuted for using a mobile telephone whilst driving. [223880]

Mr. Coaker: The latest available information from the Court Proceedings Database held by the Ministry of Justice is for 2006 and is provided in the table. As the majority of 'use of hand held mobile phone while driving' offences are dealt with by the issue of a fixed penalty notice these are also included.

2007 data should be available later this year.

Fixed penalty notices issued[1] and total court proceedings for the offence of use of hand held mobile phone while driving[2] by police force area, England and Wales 2006

Number of offences

	Fixed penalty notices issued	Total court proceedings[3]	Total dealt with [3] Includes cases where fixed penalty notices were originally issued but not paid and subsequently referred to court.

Notes:
1. It is known that for some police force areas, the reporting of court proceedings in particular those relating to summary motoring offences, may be less than complete. 2. Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete.
However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts and police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

Homicide: Children

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many children under the age of 10 were victims of homicide in each of the last 10 years. [222647]

Mr. Coaker: Available data relate to homicides recorded by police in England and Wales between 1997-98 and 2006-07, and are shown in the table. Data for 2007-08 are not yet available.

Latest analysis of homicide statistics for England and Wales was published in 'Homicides, Firearm Offences and Intimate Violence 2006-07' (Home Office Statistical Bulletin 03/08) which can be found online at:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/pdfs08/hosb0308.pdf

The next homicide chapter is scheduled for release in January 2009.

Offensive Weapons

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department which programmes and organisations dealing with (a) gun and (b) knife crime her Department has funded in each of the last five years. [222766]

Mr. Coaker: The Home Office has provided funding for a range of organisations working on issues generally relating to violent crime, including CrimeStoppers and Crime Concern.

In addition, through the Connected Fund, we have provided small grants to local community organisations working on tackling gun and knife crime. Lists of the organisations funded in the six rounds of the fund held to date can be found at:

www.connected.gov.uk.

The Home Office has also provided funding for Be Safe, which provides educational workshops on weapons; the Disarm Trust, which worked to support community groups working on gun crime; Urban Concepts' 'Don't Trigger Campaign', focusing on raising awareness of gun crime; Mothers Against Guns, which supports families of gun crime victims; From Boyhood to Manhood, an organisation working with young black men who are at risk of being involved with violent crime; and Street Pastors, which works on the streets on Friday and Saturday nights to listen to young people and provide support.

Offensive Weapons: Dyfed

Mark Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many knife crimes were recorded in Dyfed-Powys in each of the last five years. [221918]

Mr. Coaker: It is not possible to identify those offences that are knife-related from the data centrally collected on overall recorded crime. However, since April 2007, police forces have been providing separate aggregate data on serious violence (attempted murder, GBH and robbery) involving knives and sharp instruments. Dyfed-Powys police recorded 74 such offences during 2007-08.

Available data from the Homicide Index relate to offences currently recorded as homicide where the apparent method of killing was 'sharp instrument', as at 12 November 2007. The number of such offences recorded by Dyfed-Powys police each year between 2002-03 and 2006-07 are given in the following table. Figures for 2007-08 are scheduled to be published in January 2009.

Offences currently[1] recorded as homicide where apparent method of killing is sharp instrument[2]: Dyfed-Powys police, 2002-03 to 2006-07[3,4]

[2] Homicides involving any sharp instrument, including knives.
[3] Offences are shown according to the year in which the police initially recorded the offence as homicide. This is not necessarily the year in which the incident took place or the year in which any court decision was made.
[4] Data for 2007-08 are not yet published.

Offensive Weapons: Southampton

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people aged (a) 16 and under, (b) between 17 and 18, (c) between 18 and 21 and (d) 21 years were arrested for carrying (i) knives and (ii) firearms in the City of Southampton in each of the last five years. [222993]

Mr. Coaker: The information requested is not collected centrally.

Offensive Weapons: Young People

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many and what proportion of children under the age of 16 who were victims of gun or knife crime in each year since 1997 were from single-parent households. [223753]

Mr. Coaker: The information requested is not currently available.

There are two primary sources of statistics on crime held by the Home Office. Police recorded crime is based on aggregate returns from police forces of the number of notifiable offences reported to and recorded by the police. Such returns do not contain information on the characteristics of victims or their families. The British Crime Survey is a sample survey of households in England and Wales and covers crimes experienced in the 12 months prior to interview. Currently the survey is restricted to the experiences of adults aged 16 years and over. Following a recommendation of the independent Smith review of Home Office crime statistics, the survey is being extended to include those aged under 16 years from 2009.

Powers of Entry

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what (a) primary and (b) secondary legislation sponsored by her Department has (i) amended and (ii) enhanced existing powers of entry since May 1997. [222046]

Mr. Coaker: Since May 1997, Parliament has passed 73 primary enactments and 208 statutory instruments containing reference to a power of entry in England and Wales, sponsored by a range of Departments, introducing new or amending existing powers of entry. The relevant legislation is placed in the House Library.

We are currently conducting a review of the powers of entry. The review is focused on establishing the continuing need for existing powers and determining the potential for a single statutory framework for all powers of entry. The review is also examining ways in which public understanding and awareness of entry powers can be raised.

A public consultation paper will be published later this year on the proposed framework approach and raising public accessibility. Details can be found on:

http://police.homeoffice.gov.uk/operational-policing/powers-pacecodes/powers-of-entry-review

Reoffenders

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what proportion of the number of those designated as persistent and prolific offenders are presently serving prison sentences. [224332]

Mr. Coaker: The most recent data available from the performance management arrangements for the Prolific and other Priority Offender programme cover the period from January to March 2008. Based on returns from 93 per cent. of all Prolific and other Priority Offender schemes in England and Wales, the data show that 38 per cent. of Prolific and other Priority Offenders were serving custodial sentences at that time.

Road Traffic Offences: Fixed Penalties

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 17 July 2008, Official Report, column 608W, on road traffic offences: fixed penalties, if she will place in the Library a copy of the proposal from the Association of Chief Police Officers; and if she will make a statement. [222360]

Mr. Coaker: The proposal was contained in a paper submitted to the Fixed Penalty Procedures Working Group, which is chaired by the Home Office and brings together representatives from across Government and the criminal justice system who have an interest in fixed penalties. It is set out below. We are currently considering the launch of a consultation on the proposal, as would be required before any change could be made.

ACPO Proposal

Seatbelts

Security: Licensed Premises

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether requirements are imposed on door staff of licensed premises to undertake continuing training after they have obtained a Security Industry Authority licence. [222652]

Mr. Coaker: The Security Industry Authority (SIA) has not to date specified competency requirements for second and subsequent licence applications after an individual has provided evidence of competency when applying for his or her first licence under the Private Security Industry Act 2001. However, the SIA anticipate proposing the introduction of a requirement for licence holders, including door supervisors, to provide evidence that they have kept their competency up to date when applying for licence renewal. Such a proposal would require an assessment of the costs and benefits involved.

Smuggling: Tobacco

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps her Department is taking to constrain illicit trade in tobacco; and what plans she has to review these measures. [224522]

Mr. Timms: I have been asked to reply.

Since the publication of the tackling tobacco smuggling strategy in 2000, over 15 billion illicit cigarettes and over 1,000 tonnes of hand rolling tobacco (HRT) have been seized. Many organised criminal gangs have been broken up and thousands of individuals have been successfully prosecuted. As a result of the success of the strategy, the size of the illicit market for cigarettes was reduced over the five years to 2005-06 from 21 per cent. to 13 per cent.

At Budget 2008, the Government announced that the new UK Border Agency, which has assumed responsibility for Customs detection work at the border, would be developing a strategy for enhancing detection of tobacco products.

David Tredinnick: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many and what proportion of bi-directional road safety and speed cameras in the Metropolitan Police district are coloured yellow on both sides. [222304]

Mr. Coaker: This information is not collected centrally. Issues relating to the deployment of safety cameras in the Metropolitan Police district are operational matters for the Commissioner.

David Tredinnick: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether the Metropolitan Police plans to colour yellow the front of the bi-directional safety camera on the southbound carriageway of the A3 at Beverley Bridge by Robin Hood Gate, Richmond Park. [222305]

Mr. Coaker: This is an operational matter for the Commissioner of Police of the Metropolis.

Young People: Greater London

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much (a) universal and (b) targeted funding her Department has provided to youth groups in London in each of the last five years. [222765]

Mr. Coaker: The Home Office has invested funds in a wide variety of universal and targeted services to develop positive activities to improve outcomes for young people, as well as targeted youth crime and antisocial behaviour prevention activities for young people most at risk.

The Home Office has provided funding in the last three years to 21 London-based Positive Futures projects. The total Home Office funding provided to this collection of projects was £2.5 million for 2006-07/08 and an additional £1,274,680 in this financial year.

Disaggregated information on funding specifically to London-based Positive Futures projects in 2005-06 and 2004-05 is not available.

In addition, in May 2004, the Home Office launched the Connected Fund, which has to date held six funding rounds of small grants for local community organisations working to tackle gun and knife crime. Details of the projects funded can be found on the website:

www.connected.gov.uk

Total funding under this funding stream to date is £1.75 million and approximately half of which went to London based organisations.

Also across Government the Department for Children Schools and Families fund a wide range of universal and targeted youth groups.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Africa: EU Strategic Partnership

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development pursuant to the answer of 19 June 2008, Official Report, columns 1165-6W, on Africa: EU Strategic Partnership, what criteria his Department is using to monitor progress under the strategy against the Millennium Development Goals. [223690]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The Africa EU Joint Strategic Partnership and action plan were agreed by EU and AU member states at the Lisbon summit in December 2007. The action plan consists of eight Partnerships which contain 22 priority actions with agreed activities under each. On the European side, EU member states have taken a lead on the different partnerships. This role will include monitoring implementation of the agreed priority actions, in consultation with African partners.

The EU Africa MDG Partnership includes four priority actions, with a set of agreed activities listed under each. The UK Government are currently mapping ongoing and planned work on these activities and identifying gaps, in consultation with European and African partners. Once this mapping is completed, the principal criteria for assessing progress will be (a) delivery of planned or ongoing activities; (b) action to address gaps; and (c) whether a wide range of stakeholders, such as civil society organisations, are able to contribute their views and ideas.

Africa: Females

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development pursuant to the answer of 19 June 2008, Official Report, columns 1167-8W, on Africa: females, what programmes his Department is supporting which promote the rights and political participation of women in Africa in 2008-09. [223684]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The Department for International Development (DFID) is supporting a number of innovative and successful programmes in African countries that address women's rights and political participation.

DFID supports Kenya's Political Empowerment Programme which provided support to women candidates contesting parliamentary and civic seats in the December national elections. There are now more women in both parliament and local councils: the number of elected women in Parliament increased from nine in the last Parliament to 15 currently in 2008.

In Nigeria we are working with other donors and Nigerian civil society organisations, and DFID funded programmes have provided detailed analysis on the impact of the African Protocol on the Rights of Women and the adoption of the convention to eliminate discrimination against women (CEDAW). This will facilitate Nigerian civil society organisations to develop advocacy strategies aimed at passing legislation that better protects women's rights. In Sierra Leone DFID has committed long-term funding (2006-10) to support Women's Access to Justice. This programme has supported the introduction of Circuit Courts to reach remote areas, improving women's access to justice.

Further Information is available on the DFID website using the links provided in the answer of 19 June 2008, Official Report, columns 1167-8W.

Developing Countries: Borders

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development pursuant to the answer of 19 June 2008, Official Report, columns 1176-7W, on developing countries: borders, what information his Department has received from USAID on the steps it is taking to strengthen the Trans Kalahari and Maputo development corridors in 2008-09. [223681]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The Department for International Development (DFID) receives monthly updates from the USAID Trade Hub based in Gaborone, Botswana.

USAID recently reported the endorsement given by Botswana's Ministry of Works and Transport for harmonising axle load limits for trucks moving along the Trans Kalahari Corridor. This measure should facilitate trade along the corridor.

USAID is also supporting the work of the Maputo Corridor Logistics Initiative (MCLI) for improving transport logistics along the Maputo Development Corridor. Some of the recent progress reported by USAID on their work with the MCLI include:

Co-funding the MCLI annual general meeting in May 2008.

Co-funding the MCLI open day in October 2008.

Providing technical assistance to the MCLI as well as other Maputo Corridor stakeholders (for example, in relation to Customs issues, one stop border post issues, transport costs, trade facilitation, etc).

Producing a Study on Sustainable Funding of Corridor Management Institutions which has led to funding being pledged to the MCLI.

Studies on Corridor Performance and Truck Stops to be produced in the next few months.

Further information on the USAID Trade Hub can be accessed at:

www.satradehub.org.

Developing Countries: Education

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much and what percentage of its budget his Department spent on education programmes in schools in 2007-08; and what assessment he has made of the performance of such programmes against their objectives. [220455]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: In 2007-08, the Department for International Development (DFID) spent some £351 million bilaterally on education which represented 12 per cent. of DFID's total bilateral programme. These figures include an allocated proportion of General Budget Support and funding to the Education for All fast track initiative. It does not include support to education through multilateral institutions and non-governmental organisations funded through DFID's Partnership Programme Agreements. The UK is committed to increasing its total spending on education globally to £1 billion by 2010.

Global enrolment in primary education increased from 647 million in 1999 to 688 million in 2005 but latest estimates show that some 75 million primary aged children are still not enrolled in school, so a significant challenge remains. That is why, last year the Prime Minister and United Nations' Secretary General called for accelerated action to achieve the millennium development goals, including for education.

Ethiopia: Overseas Aid

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development pursuant to the answer of 19 June 2008, Official Report, column 1178W, on Ethiopa: economic situation, what steps his Department is taking to help the Ethiopian government to promote human development in 2008-09. [223693]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: Despite the present economic and humanitarian situation, this year's national budget for Ethiopia (passed in July) commits the Ethiopian Government to further increases in the levels of social spending to promote the expansion of basic services and improve human development.

Through a number of sector programmes, the Department for International Development supports this government priority through improving the availability and quality of health, education and water and sanitation services, particularly in poorly served rural areas in Ethiopia.

During 2008-09, we will be spending approximately £38.5 million on education services, £20.5 million on health services, and £10.5 million on water services. These resources will make a significant contribution to increasing the numbers of schools and teachers, health clinics and health workers, water points and latrines in rural areas.

Ethiopia: Water

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what bodies received funding from the £75 million allocated to support the Ethiopian government water sanitation and hygiene programme. [224142]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The Department for International Development's (DFID) water and sanitation programme in Ethiopia is administered through a World Bank trust fund. Project funds are channelled through the Government of Ethiopia's federal Ministry of Finance and Economic Development, and spent by local government at regional and district levels. These funds are spent directly to provide water and sanitation services at community level. In 2008, £9 million has so far been provided to build around 1,000 rural water schemes (such as protected springs and hand dug wells) and eight small town schemes (piped water systems), benefiting approximately 500,000 people. Overall, DFID's £75 million will pay for water and sanitation for 3.2 million people.

India: Education

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development pursuant to the answer of 18 June 2008, Official Report, column 1040W, on India: overseas aid, what targets have been set for the universal elementary education programme in India. [223857]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The Indian Government's flagship Sarva Shiksha Abhiyan (SSA) programme, described in the answer of 18 June 2008, sets a number of targets for universal elementary education. These targets, for achievement by 2009-10, include reducing the number of out of school children aged six to 14 years from 13.4 million (2005-06) to 4.9 million; ensuring that girls' share of enrolments and Scheduled Caste and Scheduled Tribe shares of enrolments are maintained or increased relative to their share in the population as a whole; increasing student attendance rates at the primary and upper primary levels from 70 per cent. and 75 per cent. respectively to 85 per cent. and 90 per cent.; increasing the retention rate at the primary level from 71 per cent. to 75 per cent.; increasing the transition rate from primary to upper primary levels from 83 per cent. to 89 per cent.; adequately and regularly monitoring learning levels of elementary education students; and improving learning levels of students in grade 3 in particular.

India: Overseas Aid

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development pursuant to the answer of 18 June 2008, Official Report, columns 1039-40W, on India: overseas aid, what form the technical assistance provided by his Department to the Andhra Pradesh government took; and whether steps are being taken by his Department to support the provision of long-term education as part of the rural livelihoods programme. [223855]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: Pursuant to the response of 18 June 2008, the technical assistance provided by the Department for International Development (DFID) to the Government of Andhra Pradesh has taken the form of advisory inputs by national and international consultants on: livelihood enhancement, human resource management, water audits, gender, evaluation and impact assessment. Technical assistance was also used to recommend improvements in the ways government departments operate and train officials to discharge their duties more effectively.

There was no formal education component in the Andhra Pradesh Rural Livelihoods project, although there was a strong emphasis on capacity building of community members, particularly women to develop new skills, in areas related to livelihoods and income generating activities. The project ended in December 2007.

Nepal: Health Services

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development pursuant to the answer of 18 June 2008, Official Report, column 494W, on International Health Partnership, in what way the International Health Partnership gave momentum to the new policy on free health care in Nepal; and what resources his Department is providing to improve the overall quality of health care in Nepal in 2008-09. [223861]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The International Health Partnership's (IHP) goal is to accelerate progress on the health related Millennium Development Goals (MDGs) through improvements to health systems as well as more effective use of aid. The Government of Nepal (GoN) joined the IHP while the GoN's Ministry of Health and Population (MoHP) were designing how to scale up the free health care policy: a policy designed to improve access by the poor to services. The IHP launch event provided the Minister of Health and Population with valuable global evidence to inform policy-making and expansion of delivery. The Department for International Development (DFID) has provided technical support to the policy both preceding the launch of the IHP and subsequently. DFID provided an additional £3 million for fiscal years 2007-08 and 2008-09 in recognition of the IHP and supporting the free health care policy.

For 2008-09 DFID is providing £20.5 million to the health sector. This funds three programmes: the overall health programme (called the Nepal Health Sector Programme), Support to the Safe Motherhood programme and the HIV/AIDS programme. Most of the fund is provided as budget support to be managed by, and through, the government's system.

Overseas Aid

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what his Department's timetable is for its implementation plan to take forward the OECD Development Assistance Committee Principles; and what estimate he has made of the cost to his Department of fulfiling its commitments under the plan; and how much it will cost to fulfil the plan. [220386]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The UK attaches great importance to the work of the OECD Development Assistance Committee in developing best practice guidance for donors whether in the form of principles, guidelines or policy statements. Where appropriate we will continue to work with others to ensure such guidance is associated with clear commitments and targets for its implementation.

For example, the Paris principles (partner country ownership, alignment, harmonisation, managing for results and mutual accountability) provide an organising framework for the commitments set out in the Paris Declaration on Aid Effectiveness. The international community agreed 12 targets to monitor the implementation of these commitments, and most recently reviewed progress in doing so at the Third High Level Forum on Aid Effectiveness held in Accra on 2-4 September. The Accra Agenda for Action, which resulted from that meeting, represents an important further means to accelerate progress towards the Paris Declaration targets set for 2010.

UK delivery of the Paris Declaration commitments and targets now forms part of the Department for International Development's (DFID) Departmental Strategic Objectives rather than of a separate action plan. There are therefore no costs associated with fulfilling a separate plan. Our progress in meeting our Paris Declaration commitments and targets is subject to DFID's normal management and reporting mechanisms.

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what programmes his Department has initiated to increase opportunities for individuals in the UK to assist developing countries in the last three years. [220454]

Mr. Michael Foster: The Department for International Development (DFID) has initiated two programmes to increase opportunities for individuals in the UK to assist developing countries in the last three years.

In February 2008, DFID launched a youth volunteering programme, called Platform2. This aims both to increase awareness of development issues among young people in the UK (with a focus on less advantaged youth), and to enable young people to contribute meaningfully to community led overseas development projects. The programme aims to involve a minimum of 2,500 young people over three years. Since the launch, 170 UK volunteers have completed (or are currently participating) in the programme in Ghana, South Africa, Peru, India, Malawi and Nepal.

In July 2008 DFID launched the Diaspora Volunteering scheme to fund volunteers from UK Diaspora communities to use their skills and experience to help development in poor countries. It aims to send at least 600 volunteers to developing countries over three years. The first volunteers have started working in India, Nepal and Cameroon.

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development pursuant to the answer of 19 June 2008, Official Report, column 1182W, on overseas aid, to what other programmes funds not disbursed to partner governments were allocated. [223678]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: A final breakdown of Department for International Development (DFID) expenditure for 2007-08 was published on 2 October 2008 in the publication "Statistics on International Development 2007-08". This publication is available on the DFID website www.dfid.gov.uk.

Overseas Aid: Standards

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development pursuant to the answer of 20 June 2008, Official Report, columns 1271-2W, on overseas aid: standards, how the transparency of donors' actions will be measured as part of the harmonisation principle. [223674]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The OECD's Development Assistance Committee measures donors' commitments on harmonisation in the Paris Declaration on Aid Effectiveness through achievement of three targets: 66 per cent. of aid flows through programme based approaches, 40 per cent. of missions to the field conducted jointly with other donors, and 66 per cent. of analytical work conducted jointly.

At the Third High Level Forum (HLF3) on Aid Effectiveness held in Ghana from 2-4 September, the UK played a key role in getting international agreement to speed up implementation of the Paris Declaration. The Accra Agenda for Action commits donors to "publicly disclose regular, detailed and timely information on volume, allocation and, when available, results of development expenditure to enable more accurate budget, accounting and audit by developing countries".

The implementation of this commitment will be monitored by the OECD-DAC and reviewed at the next High Level Forum on Aid Effectiveness in 2011.

Also at the HLF, 14 donors, including UNDP, World Bank, EC, Germany and the Netherlands, signed up to a new UK-led 'International Aid Transparency Initiative (IATI)'. This will enable donors to implement and go beyond the commitment made in the Accra Agenda for Action and ensure that information on aid flows is available to everyone. Donors will work together to agree before the end of 2009 an accessible common format for the publication of information about aid. The initiative will help citizens hold donors and governments to account for their promises and enable partner governments and their citizens—those who ultimately benefit from aid—to plan for and make the best use of aid.

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development pursuant to the answer of 20 June 2008, Official Report, columns 1272-3W, on overseas aid: standards, what steps donors and partners are taking to achieve the priorities for improvement referred to in the answer in order to meet 2010 targets. [223677]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: At the Third High Level Forum on Aid Effectiveness, held in Accra, Ghana from 2-4 September 2008, strong UK leadership helped to secure an ambitious 'Accra Agenda for Action' which will speed up implementation of the Paris Declaration.

Donors and developing countries commitments include:

A step change in donors' use of partner government systems to deliver aid, with a new target to channel 50 per cent. of government-to-government aid through country systems, thus improving alignment;

Strengthening of national, and for the first time international, mutual accountability mechanisms, allowing donors and partner countries to better hold each other accountable for meeting their commitments, with a milestone agreed for 2009;

Donors agreed to respect and support partner country-led efforts to agree a better division of labour between donors at country level—and for the first time at international level too; we agreed to start dialogue on international division of labour by June 2009. This will reduce transaction costs for partner countries and help address the issue of under-aided countries;

For the first time and beginning now, donors will provide partner governments with forward expenditure or implementation plans for the following three to five years, allowing partner countries to integrate the information in their medium-term planning and macroeconomic frameworks. This will help developing countries plan to use aid to implement their own priorities, e.g. recruiting nurses and teachers; and

Partner countries will improve their information systems, with support from donors to develop national statistical capacity. The UK announced £50 million support for a new multi-donor Statistics for Results Facility. Donors will use these systems to manage development results.

These steps will help achieve the targets set for 2010.

Renewable Energy

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what recent discussions he has had with the Carbon Trust; and how much expenditure has been set aside for the introduction and operation of renewable technologies in his Department's UK offices. [224145]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The Department for International Development (DFID) has had various discussions with the Carbon Trust, and through them have commissioned building surveys of both our UK offices, at 1 Palace Street in London, and Abercrombie House in East Kilbride. While these surveys found that the buildings were inherently energy efficient, they also identified technologies which merited further investigation. Further work has been carried out through the Carbon Trust to assess the feasibility of these, such as a wind turbine and a Biomass boiler at Abercrombie House, and a Tri-generation plant at 1 Palace Street.

Earlier this year DFID invested in voltage modulation equipment which has reduced the electricity consumption at 1 Palace Street by around 15 per cent.. The level of capital funding for the next 3½ years is still being considered.

Sierra Leone: Overseas Aid

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what the administrative cost to his Department was for delivery of £30 million to the UN Peacebuilding Fund in Sierra Leone; what programmes have been funded through the fund; and what other steps his Department is taking to support the UN in Sierra Leone. [220385]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: No administrative support is provided by the Department for International Development (DFID) to the UN Peace building Fund (PBF) in Sierra Leone. DFID is a member of the PBF Steering Committee in Sierra Leone; its remit includes assessment and approval of proposals and oversight of implementation.

The Peacebuilding Fund was set up in March 2007 with an envelope of $35 million. UNDP administers the fund from New York and provides the local secretariat.

To date, seven projects have been formally approved for funding—full details of these can be viewed on UNDP's website:

http://www.unpbf.org/sierraleone-projects.shtml

DFID works closely with a number of UN agencies in Sierra Leone. This includes direct funding for project implementation—for example to UNICEF for a national Water, Sanitation and Hygiene (WASH) programme, as well as contribution to basket funds—for example to a fund managed by UNDP to support the delivery of the 2007 national and 2008 local elections.

Southern Africa: Infrastructure

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development pursuant to the answer of 19 June 2008, Official Report, columns 1177-8W, how the US$5 billion of private investment will be distributed. [223689]

Mr. Thomas: The more than US$ 5 billion private sector investment which has been mobilised in relation to the Emerging Africa Infrastructure Fund (EAIF) is helping to improve telecommunications, energy, transport, industrial and other infrastructure in African countries such as Cameroon, Ethiopia, Mozambique, Nigeria and Uganda. A detailed breakdown of the US$ 5.5 billion private sector investments together with EAIF finance is given in the attached table (Annex 1).

Zambia: Education

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development pursuant to the answer of 20 June 2008, Official Report, columns 1274-5W, on Zambia: education, how the £22.1 million that his Department contributed to the multi-donor education fund was distributed. [223675]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The multi-donor education fund to which the UK Government contributed under the 2003-07 Ministry of Education Strategic Plan was distributed across three sub sectors: free basic education, high school education, teacher and tertiary education. As illustrated in the following table, the majority of donor pooled resources were allocated to basic education.

	2005	2006	2007	Percentage 2008
Basic education	58	62	52	59
High school	24	15	40	24
Tertiary	11	13	3	12
Administration and support	7	10	5	5
Total	100	100	100	100

This support has resulted in the net enrolment ratio at primary school level increasing from 78 in 2002 to 97 in 2006; and from 9.4 in 2002 to 22.17 in 2006 for grades 10-12 as well as the number of orphans enrolled increasing three-fold from 12,967 in 2002 to 38,262 in 2005.

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development pursuant to the answer of 20 June 2008, Official Report, columns 1274-5W, on Zambia: education, what programmes are planned to extend the provision of free education in Zambia between 2008 and 2011. [223676]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The Zambian Fifth National Development Plan 2006-10 outlines the priorities to ensure equitable access to education in Zambia. This includes expansion of infrastructure including classrooms and teachers' houses; teacher education; and curriculum development. Specific discussions between government and development partners to extend free primary education from Grades 1-7 to Grades 8-12 are currently underway. In addition a key priority is to respond effectively to the increased demand for education services following the abolition of charges for Grades 1-7 and improve the quality of education delivered, including infrastructure and teaching staff.

The Department for International Development (DFID) provides financing to the Government of Zambia's budget to support attainment of the goals outlined in the national plan.

CHILDREN, SCHOOLS AND FAMILIES

Building Schools for the Future Programme

John Howell: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what progress has been made in issuing guidance to local authorities on producing revised expressions of interest for Building for the Future waves 7 to 15; and which of the factors raised in the consultation which closed on 4 July were taken into account in drafting the guidance. [224488]

Jim Knight [holding answer 6 October 2008]: The guidance was issued on 19 September. It reflected the responses to the consultation. This means that those involved in these later waves of Building Schools for the Future will benefit from the experience of those involved in the earlier waves, such as local authorities, schools, diocesan bodies and private sector bodies engaged in construction finance and design. In line with Government guidelines, we have now issued a summary of the consultation responses.

We received 145 responses, of which 67 were from local authorities (46 per cent.), 21 from schools, 16 from representative organisations, five from diocesan bodies, nine from the private sector in construction finance and design, and 27 other—which include further private sector consultants. 55 (38 per cent.) of the responses were from bodies involved in waves 1 to 6 of Building Schools for the Future, and 90 not.

The guidance issued in the light of the responses asks for responses by 30 November 2008. When the Department has received the responses, we will prioritise projects in the way that the guidance specifies. We aim to announce the new national programme in early 2009, which will provide authorities with an indication on when they can expect to join the programme.

Departmental Homeworking

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families pursuant to the Answer of 25 June 2008, Official Report, column 405W, on departmental homeworking, if he will make it his policy to collate and maintain central records of homeworking by his Department's staff. [222472]

Beverley Hughes: We have no plans to keep a central record of those staff who agree with their line manager to work occasionally from home, for example, to write a report. There is no requirement to keep a central record.

We have, however, recently moved from 'dial-in' access for homeworkers to broadband access only by authorised users with encrypted fobs. We have kept a central record of those authorised users with security fobs—which currently stands at 1,631 staff (or 60.3 per cent. of staff).

GCE A-level

Mr. Brady: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what percentage of A grade A-levels in (a) chemistry, (b) physics, (c) mathematics and (d) modern languages were awarded to pupils at (i) grammar schools, (ii) comprehensive schools, (iii) sixth form colleges and (iv) independent schools in the most recent year for which figures are available. [224527]

Jim Knight [holding answer 6 October 2008]: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Bognor Regis and Littlehampton (Mr. Gibb) on 10 September 2008, Official Report, columns 1854-56W.

General Certificate of Secondary Education

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) pursuant to the answer of 10 September 2008, Official Report, columns 1854-6W, on examination results, what percentage of students who gained a GCSE in (a) French, (b) German and (c) Spanish at each grade were educated in the (i) mainstream maintained sector and (ii) the independent sector in each year since 1997; [224476]

(2) pursuant to the answer of 10 September 2008, Official Report, columns 1854-6W, on examination results, what percentage of students who gained a GCSE in (a) physics, (b) chemistry and (c) biology or human biology were educated in (i) the mainstream maintained sector and (ii) the independent sector in each year since 2005, broken down by grade. [224477]

Jim Knight [holding answer 6 October 2008]: The answer to which the question refers gives figures broken down by A*-C and A*-G grades. Further breakdowns can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

General Certificate of Secondary Education

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families in how many maintained mainstream schools over 75 per cent. of pupils obtained fewer than five GCSEs including English and mathematics at grades A to C in the last year for which figures are available. [224519]

Jim Knight [holding answer 6 October 2008]: I refer the hon. Member to the answer to PQ 180463, 28 January 2008, Official Report, column 162W.

The latest year for which figures are available is 2006/07. Provisional figures for 2007/08 will be available in mid-October.

Languages: General Certificate of Secondary Education

(2) what percentage of pupils in the maintained mainstream sector achieved five GCSEs including a modern language at A* to C grades in each year since 1997. [224500]

Jim Knight [holding answer 6 October 2008]: The information can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

TREASURY

Air Passenger Duty

Mr. Brady: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what steps his Department is taking to refund pre-paid Air Passenger Duty to passengers who had booked tickets with airlines which ceased trading prior to the date of the flight. [224528]

Mr. Timms: Where an airline ceases to trade and there is no carriage of passengers, no liability to APD arises, and consequently no tax is received by HMRC.

It is therefore for the airline to decide whether or not it refunds this charge.

Child Benefit: Telephone Services

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the average waiting time was for telephone callers attempting to contact child benefit services in the last period for which figures are available. [224466]

Mr. Timms: In 2007-08 customers calling the Child Benefit Helpline waited, on average, one minute 21 seconds before their call was answered by an adviser.

Council Tax: Wales

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 21 May 2008, Official Report, column 305W, on council tax: Wales, how many dwellings in Wales are marked with a property details activity code of (a) 30, (b) 60 and (c) 70 according to the Valuation Office Agency's records. [218245]

Mr. Timms: The number of dwellings in Wales marked with property details activity code 30, 60 or 70 is as follows.

Data held at 2 April 2008
Code 30	6,632
Code 60	7,946
Code 70	22,459

Departmental Disciplinary Proceedings

Mr. Baron: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the five most serious disciplinary breaches in his Department were in the last 12 months; and what steps were taken in response to each breach. [223046]

Mr. Timms: There were fewer than five cases of serious disciplinary breaches over the last 12 months. These were dealt with under the Department's disciplinary procedures and appropriate action taken.

Departmental Security

James Duddridge: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many departmental identity cards or departmental passes have been reported lost or stolen by staff in (a) his Department and (b) each of its executive agencies in the last 24 months. [222226]

Mr. Timms: In the last 24 months the following departmental identity cards or passes have been reported lost or stolen by staff in:

	Number
(a) HM Treasury	136
(b) HM Treasury's executive agencies
DMO	3
OGC	[1]49
OGC Buying Solutions	[1]13

[1] OGC and OGC Buying Solutions figures include data for all their offices since January 2007. Earlier figures are not available other than at disproportionate cost.

Excise Duties: Fuels

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the effect of the postponement of the two pence increase in fuel duty on revenue accruing to the Exchequer in each of the next 12 months. [222316]

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the effect on Government revenue of delaying the two pence rise in fuel duty to spring 2009. [222935]

Mr. Timms: The impact of a six-month postponement of fuel duty increases on Government revenue is shown in Budget 2008, page 110, table A1.

Excise Duties: Motor Vehicles

Justine Greening: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate has he made of the effect on Exchequer receipts in each financial year of the entry into force of clause 144 of the Finance Bill, on rebates to vehicle excise duty. [222789]

Mr. Timms: The public finance assumption is that the clause will have a negligible effect on receipts.

Housing: Sales

Robert Neill: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many residential property transactions there have been, according to HM Revenue and Customs records, by number and value, in (a) England and Wales and (b) the United Kingdom in each month in 2008. [224087]

Mr. Timms: Figures for the number of residential property transactions with a value of £40,000 or above by month are published on the HMRC website as National Statistics:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/survey_of_prop/val-40000-or-above.pdf

Housing: Valuation

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Bromley and Chislehurst (Robert Neill) of 18 June 2008, Official Report, column 988W, on housing: valuation, if he will place in the Library (a) a hard copy and (b) electronic copies of the maps and boundaries of each locality. [223087]

Mr. Timms: The information is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if the Valuation Office Agency will adopt a principle of data minimisation in the information it collects and holds on domestic dwellings. [223961]

Mr. Timms: The Valuation Office Agency only collects information on domestic dwellings that is necessary for it to undertake its work in relation to property valuation.

Minimum Wage

Jon Trickett: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many prosecutions have been brought against employers for breach of national minimum wage legislation in the last 12 months; and how many of those cases related to employers in (a) Wakefield district and (b) Hemsworth constituency. [221753]

Mr. Timms: Since 1 August 2007, there have been five successful prosecutions for minimum wage offences. HMRC does not maintain statistics at district or constituency level.

Minimum Wage: Hampshire

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many fines have been issued to employers for paying employees at rates below the national minimum wage in (a) Southampton and (b) the non-metropolitan county of Hampshire. [222292]

Mr. Timms: HMRC does not hold statistics based on town or county locations.

Minimum Wage: West Yorkshire

Colin Burgon: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent steps HM Revenue and Customs has taken to ensure effective enforcement of the minimum wage in (a) West Yorkshire and (b) Leeds. [222758]

Mr. Timms: HM Revenue and Customs does not record activity by reference to the areas specified in the question.

Non-domestic Rates: Ports

Robert Neill: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether an impact assessment has been produced in relation to the Valuation Office Agency's decision to (a) increase business rates on port and shipping companies and (b) backdate the higher rateable values. [224525]

Mr. Timms: The regulatory changes in relation to ports introduced from 1 April 2005 concerned the valuation basis on which the statutory designated port operators' occupations are assessed (moving from a "formula" to a "conventional" basis). They did not change the law regarding what should or should not be separately assessed, under which the present action is being taken.

Valuation officers have no discretion over the effective date from which alterations in assessment take place, which is prescribed by separate regulation of general application. The valuation officers are simply discharging their normal functions, so no impact assessment has been undertaken by or on behalf of HM Treasury.

Northern Rock: Nationalisation

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the cost to the public purse of nationalising Northern Rock has been to date. [221719]

Mr. Timms: Financial information related to Northern Rock is given in the HM Treasury's resource accounts 2007-08, published on 16 July 2008. This is available at the Treasury website:

http://www.hm-treasury.gov.uk/media/4/B/annualreportandaccounts200708050808.pdf

Pensions: Ministerial Policy Advisers

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what his latest estimate is of the cash equivalent transfer value of pensions accrued by (a) special advisers and (b) press officers in Government; and if he will make a statement. [224257]

Mr. Watson: I have been asked to reply.

The information requested is not held centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost. Under the Model Contract for Special Advisers, special advisers appointed from October 2002 are entitled to the same pension choices as civil servants. Civil servants, including departmental press officers, have the choice of joining the Principal Civil Service Pension Scheme (PCSPS) or opting for a stakeholder pension with an employer contribution. Copies of the Model Contract and the rules of the PCSPS are available in the Libraries of the House.

Powers of Entry

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what powers of entry are exercisable by representatives of (a) the Valuation Office Agency and (b) HM Revenue and Customs under (i) primary and (ii) secondary legislation. [222696]

Mr. Timms: Powers exercisable by (a) the Valuation Office Agency are contained in primary legislation. For council tax these are contained in section 26 of the Local Government Finance Act 1992. They do not extend to forcible entry. For other functions of the Valuation Office Agency I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Meriden (Mrs. Spelman) on 6 February 2006, Official Report, column 1037W.

Powers exercisable by (b) HM Revenue and Customs (of which VOA is an agency) are contained in primary and secondary legislation. HMRC has a wide range of responsibilities across a number of functions ranging from administration of tax and duties, enforcement of prohibitions and restrictions through to criminal offences. Within HMRC powers of entry are only used within the limits of a particular function and when it is proportionate and reasonable to do so. The main powers exercisable by HMRC (other than those listed elsewhere as exercisable by the VOA) are shown in the following table.

The Home Office is leading a review of powers of entry across all Government Departments and in which HMRC is engaged. The latest findings can be found at www.police.homeoffice.gov.uk/operational-policing/powers-pace-codes/powers-of-entry-review/.

Private Finance Initiative

Stephen Hammond: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer in respect of which private finance initiative projects the obligations on either party have not been met, leading to (a) contract renegotiation and (b) contract failure followed by project reversion to public control. [224456]

Yvette Cooper: In all cases but one, the National Physical Laboratory, the failure of either party to meet its obligations under the private finance initiative has led to contract re-registration or reversion to public ownership.

Stephen Hammond: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the capital liabilities in respect of private finance initiative contracts were in each year since 1990-91, broken down by Department. [224471]

Yvette Cooper: The full list of all signed PFI projects can be found on HM Treasury's website at:

http://www.hm-treasury.gov.uk/documents/public_private_partnerships/ppp_pfi_stats.cfm

For each PFI project, this list details the project name, the capital value, the constituency and the procuring authority.

Public Sector: Pensions

Mr. Newmark: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the public sector pension deficit is if calculated using a discount rate based on index-linked gilts; and what rate was used for the most recent calculation of the deficit. [224505]

Yvette Cooper: As page 38 of the Long Term Public Finance Report published on 12 March 2008 explains, the key actuarial assumptions used to value the liabilities of individual schemes, such as discount rates, are set out in the relevant reports by the scheme actuary as reported in individual scheme resource accounts. Applying different discount rates would produce different estimates of the total liability but this would not affect the size of future actual cash payments to pensioners. Further information on the liabilities for individual pension schemes is available in the individual scheme resource accounts.

Revenue and Customs

Philip Davies: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the average cost of employing each member of staff in the compliance department of HM Revenue and Customs was in the last financial year. [222615]

Mr. Timms: The latest available cost figures are for 2006-07. In this year the average cost per member of compliance staff[1] was £37,600.

[1] Included are Local Compliance, National Teams and Special Civil Investigations, Stamps Tax, Charity Assets and Residence and Large Business Service.

Philip Davies: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the average yield produced by each member of staff in the compliance department at HM Revenue and Customs was in the last financial year. [222616]

Mr. Timms: The latest available yield figures are for 2006-07. In this year the average yield per member of compliance staff[1] was around £680,000.

[1] Included are Local Compliance, National Teams and Special Civil Investigations, Stamps Tax, Charity Assets and Residence and Large Business Service.

Mr. Donohoe: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) how many tax payers resident in Scotland are attached to Inland Revenue Centre 1, Glasgow; [224308]

(2) how many tax payers resident outside Scotland are attached to Inland Revenue centres outside of Scotland; [224309]

Mr. Timms: Information on taxpayer numbers is available on the HM Revenue and Customs website at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/income tax/menu.htm

The total number of taxpayers is shown in Table 2.1: 'Number of individual income taxpayers'. Estimates of the number of taxpayers resident in Scotland can be found in Table 2:2 'Number of individual income taxpayers by country and region'.

Revenue and Customs: Art Works

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much has been spent on works of art in each HM Revenue and Customs office in the last 12 months. [223974]

Mr. Timms: Nothing, according to HMRC's records.

Revenue and Customs: Buildings

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent discussions he has had on (a) the future of the Mapeley STEPS Ltd estate and (b) the reorganisation of HM Revenue and Customs offices. [221859]

Mr. Timms: The Minister responsible for HM Revenue and Customs has frequent discussions on these issues, and many other departmental issues and keeps the Chancellor of the Exchequer informed on a regular basis.

Revenue and Customs: Correspondence

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what his latest estimate is of the number of letters received by each HM Revenue and Customs office where processing has not yet been concluded. [224258]

Mr. Timms [holding answer 17 September 2008]: HM Revenue and Customs (HMRC) has received over 25 million items of post (letters and forms) from customers in the last 12 months.

As at end of August 2008, HMRC estimates that there were approximately 1.2 million items of post due to be processed, which represents approximately two weeks worth of post received.

This is within HMRC's normal expectation for this time of year and reflects the fact that volumes of work outstanding are affected by seasonal demands.

This information is not held by individual HMRC offices.

Revenue and Customs: Scotland

Mr. Moore: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what financial savings he expects to accrue from the closure of the HM Revenue and Customs offices in (a) Hawick and (b) Galashiels, broken down by (i) financial year and (ii) each category of expense representing five per cent. or more of the total savings in each year. [222818]

Mr. Timms: No final decision has been taken to close the HM Revenue and Customs (HMRC) offices at Hawick and Galashiels. HMRC announced proposals for the possible closure of both offices on 11 June 2008 and, as part of their normal commitment to consultation with stakeholders including staff and customers, have invited feedback. I expect to take decisions on these and other proposals based on HMRC's recommendations following feedback from the consultation exercise and after detailed feasibility work has been carried out by them. Estates financial savings are neither the sole nor the primary factor in making those decisions.

Overall, estates savings in Scotland in the period 2007-08 to 2011-12 are currently estimated at around £23.8 million. HMRC is unable to disclose the financial savings from closure of individual buildings because the release of this information would be likely to prejudice the commercial interests of HMRC's Private Finance Initiative (PFI) accommodation partners and to impact upon wider aspects of the way in which PFIs operate in the Department and in the wider Government.

Revenue and Customs: Southend-on-Sea

Mr. Amess: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what representations he has received since January 2008 from Southend-on-Sea Borough Council on staffing levels in HM Revenue and Customs offices in Southend; what plans he has to meet representatives from the council to discuss this issue; and if he will make a statement; [222288]

(2) if he will place in the Library a copy of the representations received from (a) Southend-on-Sea Borough Council and (b) the Public and Commercial

Services Union on the closure of HM Revenue and Customs offices in Southend; what responses he gave in each case; and if he will make a statement. [222289]

Mr. Timms: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answers the former Financial Secretary my right hon. Friend the Member for Liverpool, Wavertree (Jane Kennedy) gave on 16 June 2008, Official Report, columns 692-93. I have no current plans to meet representatives from Southend council.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the (a) costs and (b) projected savings are expected to be of the Estates Consolidation Programme of HM Revenue and Customs in the Southend urban area; what recent representations he has received about this programme; what response was given; and if he will make a statement. [222365]

Mr. Timms: The Estates Consolidation Programme (ECP) is a five-year undertaking designed to deliver £250 million cumulative accommodation running cost savings by releasing surplus accommodation across the HMRC estate. Accommodation is chosen for retention or vacation in conjunction with HMRC's Workforce Change Programme, which aims to ensure that the offices retained are those best suited to the Department's long-term business needs.

The overall projected estates savings for the Eastern England region in the period 2007-08 to 2011-12 are estimated at around £25.9 million. The overall costs associated with delivering those changes over the same period are estimated at around £10.7 million. For reasons of commercial confidentiality, more specific figures cannot be made available.

Treasury Ministers and officials receive representations from a wide range of organisations in the public and private sectors as part of the process of policy development and delivery. As was the case with previous Administrations, it is not the Government's practice to provide details of all such representations.

Revenue and Customs: Visits Abroad

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 7 July 2008, Official Report, column 1263W, on Revenue and Customs: visits abroad, why it is no longer possible to disclose the destinations visited by HM Revenue and Customs staff. [223972]

Mr. Timms: Pursuant to the answer of 7 July 2008, Official Report, column 1263W, for policy and operational reasons we are unable to disclose which overseas destinations HMRC employees travel to.

HMRC has previously disclosed countries to which HMRC staff have travelled. However in observance of the FOI exemptions we believe the publication of information on the operational focus of our activities could compromise and prejudice future enforcement objectives.

Current systems do not allow for the separation of data between policy and operational visits abroad. Information on policy visits potentially could be disclosed but are not currently held and would incur disproportionate cost to provide.

Stamp Duties: Tax Avoidance

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the loss of revenue to the Exchequer from stamp duty tax avoidance through the use of offshore trusts in the last period for which figures are available. [222941]

Mr. Timms: I refer the hon. Gentlemen to the answer the former Economic Secretary to the Treasury my right hon. Friend the Member for Normanton (Ed Balls) gave him on 16 April 2007, Official Report, column 415W.

Stocks and Shares: Oil

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will take steps to restrict those engaged in the operation of the oil industry from trading in oil futures. [222752]

Mr. Timms: Commodity derivatives, such as the futures market, enable producers and consumers of energy to manage (or hedge) their exposure to adverse price movements in the future, thereby enabling them to plan for the future with certainty regarding the price they will receive or pay for the commodity in question.

Any measure to restrict those engaged in the operation of the oil industry, i.e. producers and consumers, from trading in oil futures would limit the ability of producers and consumers to hedge effectively against adverse price movements in the future, hindering efficient business planning and risk management.

Tax Avoidance

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the loss of revenue to the Exchequer from legitimate tax avoidance in the last period for which figures are available. [222940]

Mr. Timms: The information requested is not available.

Tax Evasion: Lancashire

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) how many arrests have been made as part of investigations into (a) VAT fraud, (b) smuggling, (c) duty avoidance and (d) large-scale tax avoidance in Lancashire in each year since 2000; [223700]

(2) how many arrests were made by customs officers in Lancashire in each year since 2000. [223698]

Mr. Timms: High-level data on arrest statistics are published in HM Revenue and Customs' Annual Reports. Copies of the Annual Reports are available in the Library of the House and online www.hmrc.gov.uk. The specific information requested could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Taxation: Aviation

Mr. Brady: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer from which overseas governments he has received representations on the proposed aviation duty; and if he will make a statement. [220093]

Mr. Timms: The consultation on the proposed aviation duty closed on 24 April 2008, and considered all aspects of the operation of the duty.

A summary of consultation responses will be published in due course.

Taxis

Philip Davies: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much (a) his Department and (b) its agencies spent on taxis in the last financial year for which figures are available. [223025]

Mr. Timms: Spending on taxis in 2007-08 was as follows:

HM Treasury	217,000
Debt Management Office	1,000

Valuation Office: Databases

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar (Mr. Pickles) of 24 June 2008, Official Report, columns 258-9W, on the Valuation Office: databases, whether the databases being aligned include the Valuation Office Agency's (a) geographic information system, (b) automated valuation model and (c) council tax banding tool. [223076]

Mr. Timms: None of the three applications mentioned in the question are databases; however, they will all benefit from the database alignment exercise.

Valuation Office: Eurostar

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 14 July 2008, Official Report, column 151W, on the Valuation Office: Eurostar, what source of funding or financial aid system was being investigated. [222488]

Mr. Timms: The European Commission investigation, under article 88(2) of the treaty, was into an alleged state aid in respect of British Telecom's and Kingston Communications' non domestic rating assessments.

Valuation Office: Video Recordings

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) pursuant to the answer of 14 July 2008, Official Report, column 152W, on the Valuation Office: video recordings, what the titles are of the internal training videos available on the Valuation Office Agency intranet; [222478]

(2) pursuant to the answer of 14 July 2008, Official Report, column 151W, on the Valuation Office: video recordings, what the name is of each internal training video used by the Valuation Office Agency for valuation purposes. [222489]

Mr. Timms: The VOA has used video recordings for a variety of training and information purposes. These recordings are usually accessed through the intranet and they are sometimes embedded in documents or accessed via links. The VOA does not maintain a single comprehensive record of all such filmed sequences and to collate this material, examine it, and isolate 'training videos' could be achieved only at a disproportionate cost.

VAT: Parking

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the timetable is for the decision on whether local authorities will be compensated by HM Revenue and Customs for the VAT payments they have made on off-street car park charges; what the Government's policy is on the issue; and if he will make a statement. [222840]

Mr. Timms: The European Court of Justice gave its judgment on this issue on 16 September 2008 and the precedent case will now revert to the High Court for judgment. It would not be appropriate for the Government to comment further on the matter until the legal process has been concluded.

Welfare Tax Credits: ICT

Chris Grayling: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what IT updates to tax credits systems are planned; on what dates such updates are scheduled for implementation; and what the earliest date is upon which an additional update could be added to the schedule. [224029]

Mr. Timms [holding answer 17 September 2008]: HM Revenue and Customs are currently working towards delivering three major upgrades to the tax credits system in October 2008, April 2009 and October 2009.

HMRC also makes regular changes throughout the year to secure the ongoing health of the IT system and its ability to deliver tax credits business events.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Madrid Declaration

9. Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions he has had with his EU counterparts on the 1989 Madrid declaration. [224421]

Bill Rammell: British Ministers have not recently discussed the 1989 Madrid Declaration specifically with EU counterparts. However, we continue to discuss issues relevant to the Declaration, such as encouraging respect for human rights, within the EU and between the EU and China. The arms embargo was last discussed at the 2007 EU-China summit.

Georgia

10. Ms Angela C. Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent assessment he has made of relations with Georgia; and if he will make a statement. [224422]

Caroline Flint: Relations with Georgia are excellent. My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary visited Tbilisi on 14-15 August and met President Saakashvili in New York on 27 September. My right hon. Friend the Prime Minister welcomed the Georgian Prime Minister to London on 19 September.

Throughout events in Georgia this summer, we have worked closely with partners in the EU, the Organisation for Security and Cooperation in Europe, NATO, G7 and UN to reverse Russia's encroachments into Georgian territory outside the conflict zones, address immediate humanitarian needs, assist Georgia's economic recovery, foster long-term peace and stability, and encourage Georgia's domestic reform programme.

Rwanda

11. Mr. Joyce: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations the Government have made to the Government of Rwanda on the continued detention of Charles Ntakirutinka. [224423]

Gillian Merron: British officials made representations after the arrest in 2002 of the former Rwandan minister to whom my hon. Friend refers.

Since his trial in 2004, we have continued to take a close interest in this case.

HM ambassador in Rwanda raised this case with the Rwandan Minister for Justice in August.

Health Care: Spain

12. Mr. Dunne: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he has had with his Spanish counterpart on the decision of the Valencia Autonomous Region on access to local health care facilities for British expatriates below pensionable age. [224424]

Gillian Merron: The new scheme is in line with European law and is intended to bring Valencia into line with the rest of Spain. Officials at the British Embassy in Madrid have been active in negotiating an extension until the end of the year so that British Citizens who might be affected have time to make necessary provisions. The Embassy will remain in close contact with the Valencia Authorities on this issue.

Zimbabwe

13. Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on the political situation in Zimbabwe. [224425]

Gillian Merron: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary's statement to the House yesterday made our position clear. Zimbabwe's people want the agreement signed on paper to work in practice. A Cabinet needs to be appointed without further delay to reform Zimbabwe's economic management and the behaviour of its security forces. The UK continues to provide humanitarian relief to the Zimbabwean people and we remain ready to support recovery when a new government shows commitment to reform.

17. Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on the political situation in Zimbabwe. [224429]

Gillian Merron: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary's statement to the House on 6 October 2008 made our position clear. Zimbabwe's people want the agreement signed on paper to work in practice. A Cabinet needs to be appointed without further delay to reform Zimbabwe's economic management and the behaviour of its security forces. The UK continues to provide humanitarian relief to the Zimbabwean people and we remain ready to support recovery when a new government shows commitment to reform.

Horn of Africa

14. Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent assessment he has made of the security situation in the Horn of Africa; and if he will make a statement. [224426]

Gillian Merron: The Government remain concerned about ongoing tensions and violence in several areas of the Horn of Africa, particularly in Somalia.

We continue to work with regional governments and international partners to encourage peaceful resolution of political differences as well as offering humanitarian and development assistance.

Nepal

15. John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent assessment he has made of the political situation in Nepal. [224427]

Bill Rammell: We welcomed the significant political changes in Nepal following the Comprehensive Peace Agreement signed in November 2006. Elections to a Constituent Assembly in April 2008 led to the declaration of Nepal as a Federal Republic. Nepal has now appointed its first President and established a multi-party Government.

The new Government recently announced an ambitious programme of work to advance Nepal's peace process. We are helping the Government meet their objectives.

Iran

16. Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on Iran's nuclear programme. [224428]

Bill Rammell: Dr. Mohammad El Baradei, Director General of the International Atomic Energy Authority (IAEA), reported on the state of Iran's nuclear programme on 15 September 2008. Once again his report confirmed that Iran had failed to suspend enrichment-related activities, had made no progress on the transparency measures the UN Security Council and IAEA have long called for, and that, as a result of Iran's failure to engage, the IAEA had been unable to make any substantive progress on resolving the questions about studies with a possible military dimension, studies which it judges are of serious concern.

Iraq

18. Mr. Allen: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps he is taking to facilitate the relocation to places of safety of Iraqi citizens who have assisted British forces. [224430]

Bill Rammell: We continue to work with our Whitehall partners in Ministry of Defence, Department for International Development, and UK Borders Agency and our missions in Iraq, Jordan and Syria to ensure that these brave Iraqis who meet the qualifying criteria for the Iraqi LE Staff Assistance Scheme as set out in my written statement to the House on 30 October 2007 are moved to safety as quickly as possible.

Afghanistan

19. Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what objectives he has set for his Department's policies on Afghanistan. [224432]

Bill Rammell: On 12 December 2007 my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister, in this House, set out the UK's long-term and comprehensive framework for security, political, social and economic development for Afghanistan.

The key points are:

encouraging and supporting more Afghan ownership, including of the security effort supporting the Government of Afghanistan as they seek to build democracy and governance at local levels;

backing the Government of Afghanistan's attempts to dismantle the insurgency through a politically led approach; helping the Afghan Government meet the demands of the Afghan people by backing initiatives that encourage economic regeneration and social/economic development.

This strategy sets the strategic objectives for the Government as a whole, including my Department and remains viable today. It can be found on the Hansard website.

22. Linda Gilroy: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent progress the Afghanistan inter-departmental drugs unit has made; and if he will make a statement. [224436]

Bill Rammell: The Afghan Drugs Inter-departmental Unit (ADIDU) continues to take forward the UK's role as the designated G8 Partner Nation with Afghanistan on counter-narcotics. This includes work to support the Government of Afghanistan in implementing its National Drug Control Strategy. The approach of risk and reward is starting to deliver, with more targeted Afghan-led operations and record seizures of narcotics.

European Union

20. Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent assessment he has made of the role of national parliaments in the European Union; and if he will make a statement. [224433]

Caroline Flint: National Parliaments play an increasingly important influence over EU decision-making, through, for example, national scrutiny of EU business and the regular appearance of EU officials before national Parliaments.

Bangladesh

21. Ms Keeble: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the prospects for elections in Bangladesh. [224435]

Bill Rammell: We welcome the announcement by the Chief Adviser, Fakhruddin Ahmed, that parliamentary elections will take place on 18 December 2008. It is vital for Bangladesh's future that all parties participate positively in the democratic process so that successful elections can be followed by a smooth transition of power to the elected government.

Pakistan

23. John Howell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports he has received on the election of the new President of Pakistan; and if he will make a statement. [224437]

Bill Rammell: The Prime Minister and the Foreign Secretary spoke to President Zardari on 7 September to congratulate him on his election and reiterate Britain's commitment to working closely with the Government of Pakistan to support measures that promote stability, democracy and the rule of law. The Prime Minister and the Foreign Secretary met President Zardari in London on 16 September and told him that the UK stands ready to assist the Government of Pakistan in combating the shared threat of violent extremism and meeting the economic challenges Pakistan faces.

The Foreign Secretary also saw President Zardari in New York on 25 September and joined him at the lunch of the Friends of Pakistan Group on 26 September.

The accession of President Zardari to the leadership of Pakistan with a 68 per cent. majority completes the transition to full democratic civilian rule for the first time in nine years.

Olympic Games 2012

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many full-time equivalent members of staff in his Department are employed on projects relating to the London 2012 Olympics and Paralympics Games; how many of those work on (a) project management, (b) legacy planning, (c) project oversight and (d) financial oversight; and what plans he has for future staffing levels in each case. [221865]

Caroline Flint: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) created a new full-time D6 (First Secretary) Olympics position on 1 September 2008 to work on the London 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games. The FCO envisages that by London 2012 a full team of staff will be working on London 2012 projects (including on security, public diplomacy and protocol). However, it is difficult to predict at this stage how many staff might be involved in this work.

The British Council has eight full-time equivalent members of staff working on projects related to the London 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games. Of these, project management accounts for four full-time posts. Legacy planning, project oversight and financial oversight jointly account for four full-time posts. From 2009 to 2013, the British Council intends to recruit an additional 15 project management posts (three year period per post).

Russia: Missiles

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he has had with his (a) European and (b) NATO counterparts on the test-firing by Russia of the RS-12M Topol missile on 27th August 2008; and if he will make a statement. [223654]

Caroline Flint [holding answer 15 September 2008]: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has had no discussions with the Russian authorities on this test-firing. We discuss missile-related issues with Russia in the context of the Hague Code of Conduct and the missile technology control regime.

Jeremy Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he had with the Russian authorities on the test firing of the RS-12M Topol missile; and if he will make a statement. [224213]

Caroline Flint [holding answer 17 September 2008]: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has had no discussions with the Russian authorities on this test-firing. We discuss missile-related issues with Russia in the Context of the Hague Code of Conduct and the missile technology control regime.

HEALTH

Departmental Databases

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what use (a) his Department and (b) its agencies make of (i) MOSAIC data and (ii) ACORN data. [222088]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department uses the geo-demographic systems MOSAIC and ACORN to assist with targeting of marketing and communications messaging. The Department uses the Central Office of Information (COI) to help with this process. The two targeting systems have been used to:

improve targeting on campaigns e.g. when planning a door to door distribution drop to profile, segment then pick off the ACORN audiences that most correspond to communications target audiences to improve efficiency of activity; give the Department a view of specific geographic areas for targeting in terms of demographic profile;

allow the Department to examine segments of the population on Government surveys and map them to direct mail lists and examine media consumption to enhance how the Department can reach pertinent audience groups when required; create a bridge between research-based segmentation and more actionable data based segmentation; and evaluate whether respondents to a campaign fall into an expected audience profile e.g. did the campaign work against the people the Department wanted to respond/convert and which media predominantly drove which type of respondent?

It is possible that other tools or applications may have been used (for example, through external agencies or contractors) which themselves make some use of MOSAIC or ACORN data. The Department may not necessarily be able to identify such indirect use.

Drugs: Young People

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many finished admissions to hospital there were where a drugs overdose was a primary or secondary diagnosis at the outset in each NHS trust where the patient was (a) under 10, (b) between 11 and 15 and (c) between 16 and 18 years old in each of the last five years. [222801]

Dawn Primarolo: Information by age group and year on the number of hospital admissions where the primary or secondary diagnosis was poisoning by drugs is in tables which have been placed in the Library.

DEFENCE

Afghanistan: Casualties

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many armed service personnel have become (a) single, (b) double, (c) triple and (d) quadruple amputees as a result of injuries sustained in Operation Telic and Operation Herrick. [223922]

Mr. Kevan Jones: From April 2006 to August 2008 inclusive, 34 military patients from Afghanistan and 16 from Iraq have been identified as having either a traumatic or surgical amputation; this could range from the loss of part of a finger or toe up to the loss of one or more entire limb(s).

Because of the small numbers of personnel who have suffered an amputation we do not provide further details of amputations as this would increase the risk of an individual being identified and compromising their right to medical confidentiality.

Service personnel who require prosthetic limbs will be provided with these by the Amputee Unit at the Defence Medical Rehabilitation Centre (DMRC) at Headley Court in Surrey, which is the principal medical rehabilitation centre run by the Armed Forces. The Amputee Unit provides high quality prosthetics and adaptations, manufactured on site and individually tailored as necessary for the specific patient. The aim is to provide prosthetics to enable Service personnel to resume Service duties where possible.

Departmental Leave

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many employees of his Department are on gardening leave. [222811] permanent staff without fixed posts or (b) staff classified as priority movers. [222192]

Mr. Kevan Jones: Civilian staff who are in posts that are due to be cut, or are awaiting a posting (e.g. on return from overseas or a career break), are placed in the Redeployment Pool six months before the post ends, and remain the responsibility of their existing line management until they find a new job. They are permanent staff who are deployed locally to temporary work within their current business areas until they secure a more permanent position. About 830 civilian staff are currently classified by the Department's HR Management System as members of the Redeployment pool, in which they receive priority consideration for posting.

Departmental Retirement

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Hornsey and Wood Green of 7 July 2008, Official Report, column 1174W, on departmental retirement, how many requests to work beyond the standard retirement age were received by his Department in each of the last four years. [222434]

Mr. Kevan Jones: Requests to work beyond normal retirement age have been recorded centrally since 1 October 2006. 123 requests were received in the period October 2006 to March 2007; 473 in the period April 2007 to March 2008. WORK AND PENSIONS

Industrial Diseases

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what (a) representations have been received and (b) discussions have been held by (i) Ministers and (ii) officials from his Department on insurance and liability arrangements with regard to asbestos-related deaths and ill health due to industrial activity in the last five years; what requests to change those arrangements have been made of the Government; and what the outcome of these representations and discussions has been. [223711]

James Purnell: Ministers and officials in the Department for Work and Pensions have met and received representations on numerous occasions in the last five years from a wide range of stakeholders on insurance and liability arrangements with regard to asbestos-related deaths and ill health due to industrial activity.

Among the changes made as a result of these representations the Government provided more information and guidance to claimants and practitioners. More precisely, we published improved guidance on mesothelioma explaining the help available and where to find it, we provided best practice advice to industrial injuries disablement benefits claims handlers and we undertook public awareness activity to encourage claimants to use qualified, experienced legal practitioners when making a claim.

We also introduced standardised approaches to claiming civil damages by introducing a Standard Claim Letter. To facilitate the speeding up of payment of claims to people with mesothelioma, changes were introduced in the Compensation Act 2006 to enable defendant employers/insurers to claim money back from the Financial Services Compensation Scheme.

We have worked extensively with partners. We have conducted annual reviews of the Code of Practice for tracing Employers' Liability Insurance policies to ensure the Code is comprehensive and has user confidence. HM Revenue and Customs now trace employer records for people with mesothelioma within 10 working days (previously 25-30 days). The Association of British Insurers (ABI) has issued a claims handling best practice guide within the industry, and has introduced a Code of Practice phone enquiries helpline and issued guidance on getting the best out of the Code. Working with the Department for Business, we have now removed the need to resurrect insolvent companies in order to access ELCI policies, and working with the Financial Services Compensation Scheme, we have helped make it easier for them to compensate people with mesothelioma more quickly.

We have introduced a new scheme for making payments to people with diffuse mesothelioma. The Child Maintenance and Other Payments Act 2008 introduced a lump-sum payment scheme for people with diffuse mesothelioma who can receive a payment of an average of £10,000 within 6 weeks of claiming (the payment is recovered if any subsequent civil damages are awarded). The scheme started on 1 October 2008.

We have reduced the compliance costs of regulations relating to the display of Employers' Liability Compulsory Insurance certificates. The Employers' Liability (Compulsory Insurance) (Amendment) Regulations 2008 (which came into force on 1 October 2008) allowed companies to display certificates electronically when employees have reasonable access to the certificate in that form, and removed the requirement for employers to retain certificates for 40 years.

We have asked questions about the possible reform of the current Industrial Injuries Disablement Benefit (IIDB) scheme in the consultation document, "No one written off: reforming welfare to reward responsibility". The consultation asks questions on IIDB: How might we reform Bereavement Benefit and IIDB to provide better support to help people adjust to their new circumstances while maintaining the work focus of the modern welfare state? Are lump sum payments a good way of meeting people's needs? Do they give people more choice and control? Could we make more use of them? The consultation ends on 22 October 2008.

We continue to have discussions with insurers, employers, trades unions, lawyers and other interested parties.

Jobseeker's Allowance

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what percentage of those on jobseeker's allowance (JSA) have previously been recipients of JSA without an intervening period of employment; and if he will make a statement. [223790]

James Purnell: The information requested is not available.

Maternity Benefits

Jo Swinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the average processing time for maternity allowance claims was in each quarter in each of the last five years. [223490]

James Purnell [holding answer 15 September 2008]: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus, Lesley Strathie. I have asked her to provide the hon. Member with the information requested. The letter will be placed in the Library.

Letter from Lesley Strathie:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question about the average processing time for Maternity Allowance claims in each quarter in each of the last five years. This is something which falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

The time it takes to process Maternity Allowance applications is measured by counting the average length of time taken to clear all claims processed within a set time period. The measure is referred to as the Average Actual Clearance Time.

The average processing time for Maternity Allowance claims in each quarter in each of the last five years is contained in the table below.

Maternity allowance average actual clearance time (AACT)

Period	AACT (days)
2003-04
Quarter 1	13.2
Quarter 2	13.8
Quarter 3	13.8
Quarter 4	13.3
2004-05
Quarter 1	13.4
Quarter 2	14.2
Quarter 3	14.1
Quarter 4	12.2
2005-06
Quarter 1	11.1
Quarter 2	11.6
Quarter 3	11.9
Quarter 4	12.7
2006-07
Quarter 1	14.5
Quarter 2	14.1
Quarter 3	12.9
Quarter 4	13.9
2007-08
Quarter 1	16.5
Quarter 2	18.8
Quarter 3	20.5
Quarter 4	18.2
2008-09
Quarter 1	21.0

Over the last few months increases in the number of births in the general population have led through to an increase in Maternity Allowance applications by a fifth. This increase coincided with centralisation into the four units and a temporary dip in productivity associated with retraining existing members of staff. This has led to a backlog of around 7000 claims.

We are responding to these difficulties by increasing the staffing in the centralised sites by a fifth, so they can cope with the increase in new applications. The 7000 backlog cases are being dealt with separately by sharing the cases across our wider network of Benefit Delivery Centres. We are making progress now on clearing these cases. This action has seen immediate improvements in clearance numbers and we expect to have fully cleared the backlog by this autumn.

The Prime Minister: My Office is fully engaged with work towards the Olympics led by the DCMS.

Political Office: Furniture

Philip Davies: To ask the Prime Minister how many (a) desks, (b) computers and (c) telephones are provided for the use of the Political Office. [222636]

The Prime Minister: The staffing and associated costs for my Political Office are met by the Labour party. As has been the case under successive Administrations, marginal costs associated with the Political Office are met from within the overall budget for 10 Downing street.

Schools

Philip Davies: To ask the Prime Minister if he will place in the Library a copy of any materials his Office has distributed to schools in the last three years. [222553]

The Prime Minister: My Office receives many letters from schools and children, all of which receive a reply. In addition, and when appropriate, my Office sends out a booklet about the history of Downing street to schools and children who write in. Copies of this booklet are available in the Library of the House.

Written Questions: Government Responses

Mr. Amess: To ask the Prime Minister when he plans to answer question 192528, on visits to 10 Downing Street, tabled on 4 March 2008 by the hon. Member for Southend, West; what the reason is for the time taken to reply; what steps he has (a) taken and (b) plans to take to answer written parliamentary questions within a working week of them being tabled; and if he will make a statement. [222392]

The Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Member to the answer published on 12 March 2008, Official Report, column 449W.

JUSTICE

Departmental Buildings

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice which organisations have received (a) free and (b) discounted room hire from (i) his Department and (ii) its agencies in each of the last five years; and what the commercial value of the discount was in each case. [221576]

Mr. Wills: The full information requested is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

However, Her Majesty's Court Service (HMCS) provide free of charge room hire to organisations that directly support the work of the courts. These include the Crown Prosecution Service, Probation Service, Victim and Witness Service, Police, Shorthand Writers, Press and WRVS. HMCS also hire out to organisations that support the Court Service for training purposes and a system has recently been put in place to record the information requested. Therefore, income for this financial year is currently £3,190.

NOMS/HMPS and the Tribunal Service have confirmed they do not hire out rooms.

Departmental Data Protection

Nick Herbert: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many officials in his Department have been disciplined in each of the last three years for misconduct involving misuse of personal data. [223635]

Mr. Straw: Records in the former DCA show that three members of staff have been disciplined for inappropriate use of personal or sensitive data in the last three years, all in 2006.

Prison Service records show that members of staff have been disciplined and dismissed for inappropriate use of personal or sensitive data in the last three years. In some of these cases, the inappropriate use of data has been part of a wide range of charges against the members of staff:

April 2005-March 2006: Nil

April 2006-March 2007: Six members of staff were subject to formal disciplinary action and, of these, three were subsequently dismissed from service.

April 2007-March 2008: One member of staff was subject to formal disciplinary action and was subsequently dismissed from service.

Centrally held records in NOMS and OCJR there have been no recorded cases of discipline or dismissal for breaches of data protection and inappropriate use of personal or sensitive data.

Departmental Surveillance

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many applications (a) his Department and (b) its agencies have made under the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 to (i) undertake directed surveillance, (ii) use covert human intelligence sources, (iii) acquire communications data and (iv) undertake intrusive surveillance in the last 24 months. [221970]

Mr. Straw: I refer the hon. Member to my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister's written ministerial statement on 22 July 2008, Official Report, columns 110-11WS. The Government's approach is to neither confirm nor deny the extent to which use is made of these powers. The Chief Surveillance Commissioner and Interception of Communications Commissioner does however provide statistics of all covert activity authorised under Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act (RIPA) in their annual reports, which were laid before both Houses of Parliament on 22 July 2008.

National Probation Service for England and Wales: ICT

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice which probation areas within England and Wales use (a) Delius, (b) CRAMS and (c) other IT case management systems. [225144]

Mr. Hanson: As of 7 October 2008, the following probation areas within England and Wales use:

(a) Delius—Greater Manchester, London and West Mercia.

(b) CRAMS—Cheshire, Cumbria, Derbyshire, Dorset, Durham, Dyfed-Powys, Essex, Gloucestershire, Gwent, Hampshire, Hertfordshire, Humberside, Lancashire, Leicestershire, Lincolnshire, North Wales, North Yorkshire, Northamptonshire, Northumbria, Nottinghamshire, South Wales, South Yorkshire, Staffordshire, Surrey, Sussex, Teesside, Warwickshire, West Yorkshire and Wiltshire.

(c) Other IT case management systems—Avon and Somerset, Bedfordshire, Cambridge, Devon and Cornwall, Kent, Merseyside, Norfolk, Suffolk, Sussex (in addition to CRAMS), Thames Valley, and West Midlands.

Reparation by Offenders

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice if he will publish his response to the Shapland report on restorative justice. [222077]

Mr. Hanson: The evaluation of the Crime Reduction Programme Restorative Justice Pilots, undertaken by Joanna Shapland of the University of Sheffield, was commissioned to develop the evidence base of what works for adults in terms of restorative justice and to inform future policy developments. Although the most recently published research report showed that, overall, the evidence of the effectiveness of restorative justice in reducing adult re-offending is no stronger than for other interventions, earlier research showed that it delivers high levels of victim satisfaction. The Government are, therefore, considering what further encouragement they can provide to support the continued growth of adult and youth restorative justice, taking account of the complete findings from the evaluation of these pilots.

Young Offenders: Sentencing

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what proportion of custodial sentences imposed on people aged 18 years or under was as proposed in the pre-sentence report prepared by the local youth offending team (YOT) in each YOT area in each month between March 2006 and March 2007. [223022]

Mr. Hanson: The Government have developed a range of sentences that are designed to offer courts a robust alternative to custody. The decision on the most appropriate type of disposal given to a young person is ultimately for the court to make.

The data requested, which are collected by the Youth Justice Board on a quarterly basis, are shown in the following tables.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Burma: Ethnic Groups

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he has had with the Royal Thai Government on the recent deportations of Karen refugees from camps in Thailand back to Burma. [223298]

Bill Rammell [holding answer 10 September 2008]: We are aware of recent reports of forced returns of Karen refugees from Thailand. Our embassy in Bangkok frequently raises refugee welfare issues with the Royal Thai government. Recent discussions have covered the need for measures to mitigate the impact of the increase in the price of rice, refugees' access to jobs and education and the impact of Cyclone Nargis on the camps.

The Government have increased support for Burmese refugees in Thailand. It has recently allocated a further £1 million to the Thailand Burma Border Consortium for its work supporting Burmese refugees in Thailand and internally displaced persons inside Burma. In 2007-08, the Department for International Development provided £400,000 for assistance to internally displaced persons through community-based organisations inside Burma. This reached more than 100,000 displaced persons, mostly in Karen communities, living near Burma's border with Thailand.

The UK condemns the continuing human rights abuses and the political, social and economic restrictions from which the ethnic groups of Burma—including the Karen group—have suffered under the current regime. Acceptable agreement for the ethnic nationalities is key to a durable solution to Burma's problems. We continue to bring reports of human rights abuses to the attention of the international community, the UN and the UN Human Rights Council.

China: Pandas

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions have taken place with the Chinese Government on the proposal to loan two giant pandas from China to Edinburgh Zoo; what the Government's policy is on the matter; and if he will make a statement. [224052]

Bill Rammell [holding answer 17 September 2008]: We are aware that The Royal Zoological Society of Scotland (RZSS) is in discussion with its counterparts in China about conservation collaboration, of which the proposed loan of pandas is only one element. At the request of the Scottish Executive, my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary raised this with Chinese Foreign Minister Yang Jiechi when he visited China in February. The Government regard this primarily as an arrangement between the RZSS and the Chinese authorities, but are supportive of the underlying objective of promoting collaboration in the area of animal conservation.

China: Taiwan

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the effects of developments in relations between Taiwan and mainland China on the stability of the region. [221702]

Bill Rammell [holding answer 6 October 2008]: As my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary said on 22 March, the change of administration in Taiwan is a real opportunity to renew efforts to improve cross-Strait relations. We hope that the Chinese government and Taiwanese administration will continue to engage in direct dialogue to resolve differences and strengthen cross-Strait stability, with a view to finding a peaceful solution to the Taiwan question acceptable to the people of both sides of the Strait.

We welcome the efforts undertaken by both sides to improve China-Taiwan relations. We support the EU declaration of 19 September which similarly sought to encourage dialogue and commended the willingness of both sides to continue and widen discussions in the coming months, contributing to reinforced stability and security in East Asia.

Georgia: South Ossetia

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether (a) the Government and (b) the presidency of the Council of Ministers of the EU was informed by (i) the US administration and (ii) the Georgian government of Georgia's plans to take military action in South Ossetia before the action took place. [223180]

Caroline Flint [holding answer 10 September 2008]: Neither the Government nor, do we believe, the EU presidency were given advance warning of Georgian plans to take military actions in South Ossetia.

Indeed, prior to the outbreak of hostilities on 7 August—and while tensions were rising—UK and other EU partners and allies actively sought to encourage all parties to exercise restraint, avoid actions likely to increase tensions and work towards a sustainable resolution of the conflict.

Israel: EU External Relations

Dr. Starkey: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps his Department plans to take to ensure that information shared between the EU and Israel under the Co-operation in

Justice and Home Affairs Initiative of the EU-Israel Association Council has not been obtained in circumstances which would be defined as torture in UK law. [220244]

Bill Rammell: The UK abides by its commitments under international law, including the UN Convention Against Torture, and expects all other countries to comply with their international obligations.

We have made it clear that all intelligence received from foreign sources, in whatever forum, is carefully evaluated, particularly where it is clear it has been obtained from individuals in detention.

James Duddridge: To ask the Minister for the Olympics what the location is of each office occupied by her Office which has been (i) newly occupied and (ii) refurbished in the last 24 months; and what the floor area in square metres is of each. [221921]

Tessa Jowell: The following locations have been occupied by the office of the Minister for the Olympics: 70 Whitehall; 26 Whitehall; and 2-4 Cockspur Street. 26 Whitehall and 2-4 Cockspur Street have been refurbished in the last 24 months. Departmental Procurement

James Duddridge: To ask the Minister for the Olympics if she will place in the Library the names and addresses of each organisation that supplied goods and services to her Office in 2007-08, based on the purchase order data held in the financial database of her Office's parent department. [221926]

Tessa Jowell: This information is not recorded in the format requested and can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Public Relations

James Duddridge: To ask the Minister for the Olympics how much her Office has spent on each of the external public relations and marketing companies included in the Central Office of Information's Public Relations Framework since its establishment. [221927]

James Duddridge: To ask the Minister for the Olympics how many staff from public relations or public affairs firms or consultancies have been seconded to her Office since its establishment. [222221]

Tessa Jowell: There have been no secondments of staff to my Office from public relations or public affairs firms or consultancies since its establishment.

James Duddridge: To ask the Minister for the Olympics how many staff from her Office have been seconded to public relations or public affairs firms or consultancies since its establishment. [222223]

Tessa Jowell: No members of my staff have been seconded to public relations, public affairs or consultancies since its establishment.

Dorneywood

James Duddridge: To ask the Minister for the Olympics pursuant to the answer to the right hon. Member for Horsham of 19 June 2008, Official Report, column 1187W, on Dorneywood: official hospitality, what use her Office has made of Dorneywood for official engagements in the last 12 months. [221925]

Tessa Jowell: My Office has made no use of Dorneywood for official engagements during the last 12 months.

Olympic Games 2012: Schools

Philip Davies: To ask the Minister for the Olympics if she will place in the Library a copy of materials her Department has distributed to schools in the last three years. [222555]

Tessa Jowell: The London Organising Committee of the Olympic Games and Paralympic Games (LOCOG) is responsible for planning and implementing the core technology and information systems that will be needed to host the Games in 2012. LOCOG's current expectation is to implement a lock-down on core Games technology by the end of 2010 to allow for rigorous testing and integration across all mission critical designs, equipment and operational processes.

Taxis

Philip Davies: To ask the Minister for the Olympics how much her Office spent on taxis in the last financial year for which figures are available. [223024]

Tessa Jowell: The Minister for the Olympics' office spent £620.26 on taxis for the last financial year.

Mr. Baron: To ask the Leader of the House how many pages of (a) primary and (b) delegated legislation were passed by the House in each Session commencing in (i) 1980, (ii) 1990 and (iii) each year between 1996 and 2006. [225212]

Chris Bryant: The information requested is as follows:

	Pages of primary legislation	Pages of delegated legislation
1980	2,110	5,440
1990	2,390	6,550
1996	3,150	10,230

2005	2,712	11,868
2006	4,609	12,083

Note:
The figures for statutory instruments relate to the number of pages in the Stationery Office bound set—this excludes some local and unpublished instruments and, more recently, those of the National Assembly for Wales. The figures do not include Northern Ireland (Stormont) Acts or Statutory Rules. Pre-1987 figures are adjusted to current page sizes.

For more detailed information please see the House of Commons Library note: "Acts and Statutory Instruments: Volume of UK legislation 1950 to 2007" at:

WALES

Departmental NDPBs

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many press and communications officers are employed by (a) his Department, (b) its NDPBs and (c) its agencies. [224547]

Mr. Paul Murphy: The Wales Office has a complement of three press and communications officers. The Wales Office has no NDPBs or agencies.

HEALTH

Cancer: Drugs

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when he expects it to be the default position for all new cancer drugs and significant new licensed indications to be referred to the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence. [224575]

Dawn Primarolo: The Cancer Reform Strategy (CRS), published on 3 December 2007 and already placed in the Library, included a commitment that all new cancer drugs and significant new licensed indications will be referred to the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE), where there is a sufficient patient population and evidence base on which to carry out an appraisal. The CRS also makes a commitment that cancer drugs will be considered through NICE'S Single Technology Appraisal (STA) process where appropriate. I have agreed revisions to the topic selection process to implement the Cancer Reform Strategy commitments and NICE'S 19th work programme will be the first to be referred to NICE under the revised arrangements.

Diabetes

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what recent steps the Government has taken to prevent diabetes; [225136]

(2) what recent steps the Government has taken to improve treatments for diabetes patients in the NHS. [225137]

Ann Keen: This Government continue to support the implementation of the Diabetes national service framework (NSF) and work with key partners to support the NHS in driving forward improvements in diabetes care. The Department, in partnership with Diabetes UK and the National Diabetes Support Team, has published reports, documents and toolkits in a number of areas that are intended to provide quality information and standards for commissioners and health care providers to help them plan and deliver services envisaged in the NSF.

"Putting Prevention First", published on 1 April 2008 and already placed into the Library, outlined plans for a national programme of vascular checks, which PCTs will begin to roll out in 2009-10. Full roll out is anticipated in 2012-13 when we hope the checks will be available to all people between the ages of 40 and 74, on a five year rolling basis. The checks aim to help people be healthier for longer by assessing and managing their risk of developing vascular conditions, such as chronic heart disease and diabetes. The checks will ensure that people are given information about their health, supported to make lifestyle changes and, in some cases, offered earlier interventions.

DEFENCE

Aircraft Carriers

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what planning his Department has undertaken in respect of the manning of the Future Aircraft Carriers; and if he will make a statement. [224452]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth [holding answer 6 October 2008]: A specific manning team was established during the early stages of the Future Aircraft Carriers Project charged with producing a detailed manpower plan. This plan has evolved as the design of the carriers has matured and will continue to evolve. It is intended to produce an endorsed manpower plan by the end of 2009. However, further refinement will continue until the ships enter service. Our current planning assumption is that the Future Carriers will be manned with a core compliment of 680. This figure excludes flight crew for embarked aircraft.

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) how many Royal Navy personnel man existing aircraft carriers; and how many will be required to man each of the Future Aircraft Carriers; [224453]

(2) what effect he anticipates on the manning of other units of the Fleet when (a) the first and (b) both of the Future Aircraft Carriers receive their full crews. [224455]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth [holding answer 6 October 2008]: The two existing operational carriers are each manned with a core complement of 698. Our current planning assumption is that the Future Carriers will each be manned with a core complement of 680. Both these figures exclude flight crew for the embarked aircraft.

Armed Forces: Food

Mr. Dunne: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what proportion of (a) lamb, (b) beef, (c) pork and (d) chicken supplied to the armed forces came from livestock reared in the UK in the latest period for which figures are available. [224740]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Under the MOD single food supply contract, 100 per cent. of pork and gammon, and 55 per cent. of beef is sourced from the UK. Of the poultry requirement, up to 15 per cent. is sourced from the UK, although 100 per cent. of turkeys are British, and an initiative has been launched to increase the number of British chickens procured. Recently the amount of British lamb procured has increased from 9 per cent. to 19 per cent., and the MOD continues to look for opportunities to increase this further while still achieving best value for money. Figures for food procured under the Pay as You Dine project, which now accounts for more than 50 per cent. of troops fed, are not held centrally, although these contractors are also required, wherever competitive, to give full consideration to procuring British products.

Armoured Fighting Vehicles

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what percentage of the armed forces' (a) Mastiff, (b) Jackal, (c) Panther and (d) Snatch Land Rover vehicles were (i) in service, (ii) fit for purpose and (iii) out of service at the latest date for which figures are available; [223673]

(2) what percentage of the armed forces' (a) Vectors, (b) Viking and (c) Bulldog vehicles were (i) in service, (ii) fit for purpose and (iii) out of service at the latest date for which figures are available. [223846]

Mr. Quentin Davies: The information requested is as follows:

Vehicle	In Service (percentage of fleet number)	Fit for Purpose (percentage of in service number)	Out of service (percentage of fleet number)
Mastiff	100	93	—
Jackal	100	81	—
Panther	100	99	—
Snatch Land Rover	72	90	28
Vectors	100	93	—
Viking	100	79	—
Bulldog	100	100	—

The Snatch figures highlight the fact that two of the early variants are now obsolete and cannot be used. They are currently awaiting disposal.

The percentage of Viking Fit for Purpose reflects 18 vehicles which are part of the Total Fleet but which are awaiting replacement. They are therefore In Service but not Fit for Purpose.

Army: Buildings

Robert Key: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) whether the proposed new Army Headquarters land at Andover will be in new, purpose-built accommodation; and if he will make a statement; [225203]

(2) when the Army will vacate Erskine Barracks at Wilton. [225205]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The new Land Forces Headquarters at Andover will use existing buildings which will be refurbished as necessary to provide updated accommodation for all staff.

The Army will vacate Erskine Barracks at Wilton progressively between mid-2010 and 2012.

Departmental Data Protection

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many notifications (a) his Department and (b) its agencies made to the Information Commissioner following the loss or mishandling of personal information or data in each of the last three years; and what was notified in each case. [222901]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The Ministry of Defence including its agencies has published details of the personal data related incidents notified to the Information Commissioner's Office in 2007-08 in its Annual Report and Accounts published on 21 July 2008. Two such incidents were notified.

During 2005-06 the Department formally reported one incident of accidental disclosure of protected personal data to the Information Commissioner's Office.

As a result of a limited failure by an automatic mailing machine, three members of the Army Regular or Long Term Reserve received copies of letters containing personal details of other reservists': name and address; next of kin name and address; marital status and date of marriage; the name and nationality of spouse; and bank account number, account title and sort code.

Letters of apology were sent to the reservists whose personal data were disclosed without consent.

I refer the hon. Member to the statement made by my right hon. Friend the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster on 25 June 2008, providing the final report on measures for data handling procedures in Government.

Helicopters: Sales

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many (a) Royal Navy, (b) Royal Air Force and (c) army helicopters have been sold by his Department to foreign governments since April 2002. [224726]

Mr. Quentin Davies: Since April 2002 the Disposal Services Authority has sold three Sea King helicopters to Australia in the financial year 2005-06. They were not in an airworthy condition and were sold for spares recovery through Agusta Westland under a Commercial Marketing Agreement.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Council Housing: Empty Property

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar of 1 July 2008, Official Report, column 791W, on housing: empty property, what proportion of the dwellings in each Government Office region were empty public sector dwellings in both years. [222885]

Mr. Iain Wright: The term public sector has been interpreted to mean "social rented" dwellings, i.e. local authority and registered social landlord owned dwellings.

The following tables show the level of social rented vacancies against the level of total vacancies in both 2006 and 2007. These tables show all vacancies, both long and short term.

Eco-towns

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will place in the Library a copy of the full background dataset of the YouGov survey of attitudes to eco-towns as referred to in her Department's press release of 30 June 2008. [222620]

Mr. Iain Wright: With regard to the recent YouGov survey on eco-towns, I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 7 July 2008, Official Report, column 1355W, to the hon. Member for Harborough (Mr. Garnier). A copy of the background dataset will be placed in the Library.

Fire Services

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many firefighters there were per 100,000 residents in (a) England, (b) Derbyshire and (c) Chesterfield in each year since 1997. [225329]

Mr. Khan: Information on the number of firefighters per 100,000 population in Derbyshire and England is set out in the following table. Information for Chesterfield is not centrally held and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Annual returns to Communities and Local Government

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many retained firefighters entered full-time service in each of the last three years, broken down by brigade. [225440]

Mr. Khan: The information requested is not centrally held and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Floods: Compensation

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much has been paid from receipts from the EU Solidarity Fund in respect of flood damage in Nottinghamshire in 2007, broken down by category of expenditure. [224921]

John Healey: Because of the UK's success in bidding for the European Union Solidarity Fund the Government were able to set up a Restoration Fund of almost £31 million for English local authorities affected by last summer's flood to support their continued efforts to rebuild their communities. Nottinghamshire has in total received £786,621 from the Restoration Fund. Bassetlaw district council received £40,438, Newark and Sherwood district council received £20,659 and Nottingham county council received £725,524.

Restoration Fund allocations were unringfenced; this allowed local authorities the discretion to make spending decisions based on their own local knowledge and priorities. Due to the unringfenced nature of the allocations local authorities are not required to inform Government as to how this money was spent.

Housing: Insulation

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate she has made of the number of homes which have solid walls in (a) Castle Point, (b) Essex and (c) England. [224893]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Department's English House Condition Survey collects information on the number of homes which have solid walls. This is a sample survey designed to provide national and regional level estimates only. The most recent available results from the survey are for 2005 and this estimated that there were 6.7 million homes with solid walls in England, of which 764,000 were in the South East region.

These figures for 'solid walls' include all homes without cavity walls. In the main these are solid masonry walls but will also include some homes (totalling less than 4 per cent. of the whole housing stock) of prefabricated concrete or steel/timber frame construction. The numbers of homes in these latter categories are too small to estimate reliably through the sample survey.

The Department does not collect this information at a local level and is therefore not able to provide the number of homes which have solid walls in Castle Point or for Essex.

Housing: Solar Energy

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many new houses built or to be built in (a) 2007, (b) 2008 and (c) 2009 have solar panels. [224922]

Mr. Iain Wright: Information on the number of new build dwellings with solar panels is not held centrally.

Local Authorities: Public Participation

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what recent steps the Government has taken to give the general public greater access to information on how their local authority is being run. [225156]

John Healey: Information about the national indicators and other local area data are currently publicly available on the Floor Targets Interactive website http://www.fti.communities.gov.uk/fti/.

This enables citizens to compare performance between local authority areas and measure progress over time.

We are also working with local government to develop more effective provision by councils of timely performance and service information to their citizens. As part of this work we will be supporting, from late 2008, a range of pilot projects in local authorities to evaluate innovative techniques to empower citizens through information provision.

In addition to this, the Audit Commission and public service inspectorates are currently consulting and trialling their proposed methodology for the new comprehensive area assessment (CAA), which will replace the current comprehensive performance assessment from April 2009.

The CAA will assess and publicly report performance against all local area agreement targets, other local priorities and all 196 indicators in the national indicator set, taking into account the experiences of local people and their satisfaction with local services. The reports, which are being designed to give the public access to information on the effectiveness of local delivery, are due to be published for the first time in November 2009.

Lastly, we are reviewing actions to give local people clearer information on councils' performance on efficiency. Under proposals out to consultation, we would require councils to include standard, simple measures of efficiency performance alongside council tax demand notices.

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what recent steps the Government has taken to encourage local authorities to be more open to public scrutiny. [225157]

John Healey: The recent Local Government White Paper—'Communities in Control'—sets out the Governments plans to enable greater public scrutiny of local authorities. We are currently consulting on improving local accountability arrangements including strengthened powers for overview and scrutiny committees, regular public meetings for key local decision makers and petitioning schemes. This consultation closes on 30 October and we will carefully consider all the responses we receive before deciding how to implement our plans for greater scrutiny of councils.

Local Government: Surveillance

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what guidance has been issued to local authorities by (a) her Department and its predecessors and (b) the Audit Commission on the use of surveillance powers under the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 since the Act came into force. [222655]

Mr. Coaker: I have been asked to reply.

No guidance has been issued specifically to local authorities by either Home Office or Audit Commission. The statutory codes of practice and regulations made under the Act provide guidance for public authorities.

INNOVATION, UNIVERSITIES AND SKILLS

Students: Finance

Rosie Cooper: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what recent steps his Department has taken to improve access to bursaries and other assistance for students from low income backgrounds to enable them to complete undergraduate degree studies. [221886]

Mr. Lammy: Universities are required to pay a minimum bursary to all students receiving the maximum maintenance grant. Most institutions are offering more than the minimum. The typical bursary in 2008-09 is around £1,000 per year.

The great majority of those entitled to bursaries are either applying to their university for funding, or are the subject of an automatic notification of eligibility from the Student Loans Company to their university because they had given consent to the sharing of financial data.

To further improve take-up, Department officials have worked closely with the Student Loans Company and other stakeholders to improve the bursary consent arrangements on the 2008-09 student finance application form.

The introduction of an 'opt out' clause, giving both the student and their sponsor an opportunity to opt out of consenting to their personal information being shared with universities for bursary purposes, is expected to increase the numbers of students assessed for and receiving bursaries. Clear guidance states that a decision to opt out of sharing data with universities does not affect entitlement to other forms of support.

Promotional materials have been issued to raise awareness of the availability of bursaries and encourage students to seek further information from institutions. The Government-sponsored directgov website also provides students with a bursary map, permitting them to carry out an online search of institutional bursaries.

In addition, students in financial difficulty during their course can apply for additional help through the Government-funded Access to Learning Fund (ALF). ALF is a discretionary fund administered directly by individual higher education institutions which are best placed to assess their students' circumstances.

The latest figures show that acceptances to universities for England are at an all-time high, with the proportion of applicants from lower socio-economic groups also up. The current package of student support means that anyone who can benefit from higher education has the opportunity to do so. This Government have brought back non-repayable grants and greatly expanded the numbers who get them. This autumn, around two-thirds of full-time eligible students will qualify for non-repayable grants of up to £2,835 a year. Full-time students can also apply for loans to meet their tuition fees and to help with living costs.

TRANSPORT

Aviation: Safety

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) what steps she is taking to ensure that (a) very light jets and (b) private helicopters do not present a danger to civil aviation; [222978]

(2) what measures are in place to (a) regulate and (b) identify the operators of (i) very light jets and (ii) privately-owned operated helicopters. [222979]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Appropriate measures exist to ensure the safety of very light jets (VLJs) and private helicopters.

Since 28 September 2003, the regulation and airworthiness approval of the type design of the majority of aircraft on the UK register has been the responsibility of the European Aviation Safety Agency (EASA). This includes the approval of both VLJs and helicopters.

The specific airworthiness requirements regulating the structure, engines, systems and equipment, and performance for very light jet aeroplanes are being drawn from a combination of the EASA airworthiness certification specification codes CS-23 ("Normal, utility, aerobatic and commuter category aeroplanes") and CS-25 ("Large aeroplanes"), as appropriate to the design under consideration. The regulatory and industrial processes of taking design concepts through to final production is well established and it is not envisaged that there will be any difference on how VLJs would be expected to comply with the appropriate requirements. Where the use of new technologies is involved, the existing requirements are supplemented by additional conditions to define the regulatory basis for their acceptance.

Helicopter design and airworthiness requirements are contained in the EASA certification specifications codes CS-27 ("Small rotorcraft") and CS-29 ("Large rotorcraft"). In recent years, there have been a considerable number of new helicopter designs introduced to the market place, many employing of new technologies and product improvements over their predecessors.

The operational requirements in place to regulate privately owned and operated helicopters and VLJs being flown for purposes other than commercial air transport are those of the United Kingdom Air Navigation Order 2005 and its regulations. The operational requirements for VLJ being flown for commercial air transport are those of Annex III to Regulation (EEC) No. 3922/9, commonly known as EU-OPS.

Regulation (EC) No. 216/2008 requires the European Aviation Safety Agency to develop implementing rules, which will, by not later than 8 April 2012, apply to all aircraft whether operated commercially or non-commercially. These implementing rules will replace existing operational requirements. In addition, operators engaged in the non-commercial operation of VLJs and helicopters with a maximum take-off mass exceeding 3,175 kg or with a maximum seating configuration of more than nine, will have to declare to the Civil Aviation Authority their capability and means of discharging the responsibilities associated with the operation of their aircraft. The detailed draft implementing rules have not yet been published for consultation but it can be expected that they will enable member states to clearly identify the operators of such aircraft.

The Air Navigation Order 2005 requires that the name and address of the registered owner or charterer by demise of any aircraft, including VLJs and privately owned helicopters, shall be included on the details held in the UK Register of Civil Aircraft. The CAA Regulations stipulate that the UK Register of Civil Aircraft is available for inspection by any person and the CAA makes the register available via the CAA website at www.caa.co.uk/ginfo.

If a VLJ is to be operated commercially it will be identifiable from the Air Operator's Certificate, otherwise there are no specific operational measures in place to identify the operators of VLJs or privately owned helicopters.

Departmental Public Relations

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much (a) her Department and (b) its agencies spent on each of the external public relations and marketing companies included in the Central Office of Information's Public Relations Framework in each of the last 36 months. [222116]

Mr. Hoon: The total expenditure figures for external public relations support for the Department for Transport and Executive Agencies, not all of which is commissioned through COI's PR framework, are set out in the following table. The figures, which are rounded, cover the last three fiscal years and include the cost of public relations agency fees and the cost of public relations promotions in various media. Monthly expenditure figures could be supplied only at disproportionate cost.

The prime use of external public relations is in support of our marketing activities on the THINK! road safety, Act on C02, European Whole Vehicle Type Approval, and Concessionary Bus Fares campaigns, and the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency's continuous registration campaign.

Department for Transport	2005-06	2006-07	2007-08
DfT Central	255	362	625
Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency	872	371	500
Highways Agency	0	0	0
Vehicle and Operator Services Agency	0	26	27
Maritime and Coastguard Agency	73	79	53

The Department and Executive Agencies do not appoint any marketing agencies under the Central Office of Information's Public Relations Framework. We have however incurred marketing spend. Figures for the Department and Executive Agencies for the 2007-08 fiscal year are as follows:

Department for Transport	2007-08 (£)
DfT Central	26.7 million
Driving Standards Agency	299,700
Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency	10.4 million
Highways Agency	1.6 million
Vehicle and Operator Services Agency	57,000
Maritime and Coastguard Agency	1.075 million
Vehicle Certification Agency	80,500
Government Car and Despatch Agency	171,800

Again the Department's major areas of marketing spend were in support of our marketing activities on the THINK! road safety campaign, Act on C02 campaign, Concessionary Bus Fares campaign, aviation security and the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency's continuous registration campaign.

Potters Bar Investigation Board

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will make a statement on the operation of the Potters Bar Investigation Board. [225146]

Paul Clark: The Potters Bar Investigation Board (PBIB) was appointed by the Health and Safety Commission following the fatal derailment at Potters Bar on 10 May 2002. Following the closure of all the PBIB's recommendations, the Office of Rail Regulation's Board reviewed the work of the PBIB this summer and agreed to its disbandment.

Public Transport: Official Visits

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many official visits he plans to take using public transport in the next 12 months; and which official visits were taken using public transport by his immediate predecessor. [225626]

Mr. Hoon: All official travel undertaken by me will be made in the most efficient and cost-effective way, in accordance with the provisions of the Ministerial Code. The same rules applied to my immediate predecessor.

Railway Stations: Greater London

Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what representations she has received on the proposed closure of the South London Line between London Bridge and London Victoria stations. [223730]

Paul Clark: There is no plan to close the South London Line. However, during the period of construction works at London Bridge to deliver the Thameslink Project, it is unlikely to be possible to operate direct trains between Denmark Hill and London Bridge.

Railways: Construction

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate she has made of the average cost per mile of new high-speed rail track construction. [209070]

Paul Clark: According to the 2003 Strategic Rail Authority report on high-speed rail, the average cost for the channel tunnel rail link (CTRL) section one was £19 million per route-kilometre, although this excludes some major cost items associated with station works and sunk costs. The report considered that section of the CTRL characteristic of a high-speed line extending north from London. If costs for CTRL sections one and two are included, the average cost of the CTRL was £48 million per route-kilometre including tunnelling.

Precise costs vary depending on a number of factors including the route, whether construction is on a disused railway alignment or built on green fields and the need for major works such as tunnelling. Costs of operation and maintenance must also be considered. Average costs do not therefore tell the whole story, but recent work for the Department for Transport suggested a new double track high-speed rail line might cost £12-16 million per route-kilometre.

Network Rail recently announced a strategic review of the case for new rail lines. The study is expected to be complete next summer.

Schools: Publications

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if she will place in the Library a copy of any materials her Department has distributed to schools in the last three years. [222550]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Children are a key target audience for many of our road safety and environmental messages and will benefit for example from our recent £140 million investment into encouraging children to cycle to school via construction of new safer links to schools and investment in cycle training.

We are conscious of the significant volumes of material that head teachers receive, so the Department for Transport and our Executive Agencies do not distribute materials directly to schools. We and the Highways Agency have however produced road safety materials such as THINK! road safety campaign materials, which have been distributed to various partners—road safety officers in local authorities in particular. These partners will have given out our material in schools. We also receive frequent requests from teachers for our road safety materials which they will have used/distributed in schools.

South West Trains: Tickets

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will make it her policy to oppose the plans by South West Trains to reduce ticket office opening hours at 114 stations, following the August 2008 report from Passenger Focus; and if he will make a statement. [223763]

Paul Clark: The procedures for making changes to ticket office opening hours are set down in the Ticketing and Settlement Agreement (TSA). The TSA permits operators to make changes to the opening hours of their ticket offices as long as the appropriate specified criteria are met.

If objections are raised and not resolved, the TSA provides for an arbitration process to be followed. This can include referral by the train operating company to the Secretary of State for Transport for a decision. It would therefore be inappropriate for the Secretary of State to comment on the proposed changes at this stage.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Voluntary Work

7. Mr. Amess: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of the Cabinet Office's programmes to encourage voluntary action in the last 12 months. [224361]

8. Angela Watkinson: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of his Department's programmes to encourage voluntary work. [224362]

Kevin Brennan: I refer the hon. Members to the answer I gave earlier today to the hon. Member for Clwyd, West (Mr. Jones) and the right hon. Member for Bracknell (Mr. Mackay).

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of Government programmes to encourage voluntary work. [224365]

Kevin Brennan: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave earlier today to the hon. Member for Clwyd, West (Mr. Jones) and the right hon. Member for Bracknell (Mr. Mackay).

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what recent assessment he has made of the effectiveness of Government programmes to encourage voluntary work. [224363]

Kevin Brennan: There have been a range of Government programmes that have encouraged and supported volunteering. The statistics from the 2007-08 Citizenship Survey show that the proportion of people who volunteered at least once in the last 12 months remains high at 73 per cent. of all adults.

Government Communications: Security

9. Michael Fabricant: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what recent steps his Department has taken to improve the security of data within the Government communications network; and if he will make a statement. [224364]

Mr. Watson: On 25 June 2008 the Cabinet Office set out mandatory measures to improve data security across Government. I can state that central Government Departments have reported that the majority of these measures are in place and they are working to complete their delivery.

Power of Information Task Force

11. Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what progress has been made by the power of information task force; and if he will make a statement. [224367]

Mr. Watson: The Power of Information Taskforce is making rapid progress and is on course to deliver the recommendations by the end of the year. Early success is demonstrated by the Show Us A Better Way competition—something The Guardian called the 'X-Factor of public services'—to find new and innovative uses of public sector information. Progress can be followed on their blog at:

www.showusabetterway.co.uk

Information Assurance

12. Mr. Harper: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what measurable improvements the Cabinet Office has recorded in regard to its responsibilities for information assurance. [224368]

Mr. Watson: On 25 June 2008 the Cabinet Office set out mandatory measures to improve data security across Government. I can state that central Government Departments have reported that the majority of these measures are in place and they are working to complete their delivery.

Voluntary Sector

13. John Robertson: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what plans he has to improve the operation and delivery of public services provided by the voluntary sector; and if he will make a statement. [224369]

Kevin Brennan: Public funding to the third sector to deliver services has more than doubled from £5 billion to £11 billion since 1997. The Government set out their plan to improve public service delivery, in 2006, and we are making good progress on these commitments. This includes, providing training for public sector commissioners; supporting innovation through the Innovation Exchange; investing in capital development through Futurebuilders; and improving the sustainability of the sector by making three year funding the norm rather than the exception.

Departmental Responsibilities

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster which projects his Department has commissioned from (a) think tanks and (b) charities in each of the last two years for which figures are available; what the aim of each project was; which think tank or charity was commissioned; and how much was paid. [221602]

Kevin Brennan: The Cabinet Office commissions work from a range of organisations to help support its work across government including supporting the environment for a thriving third sector.

The Cabinet Office does not hold a central list of contractors for all projects commissioned and to compile one could be done only at disproportionate cost.

Disabled

Mr. Harper: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many and what proportion of staff in (a) his Department and (b) the executive agencies for which he is responsible are disabled; and what the average salary in his (i) Department and (ii) executive agencies is of (A) full-time disabled staff, (B) full-time non-disabled staff, (C) part-time disabled staff and (D) part-time non-disabled staff. [220181]

Mr. Watson: The civil service is committed to reflecting the society we serve at all levels—clearly, this includes disabled people. The recently published "Promoting Equality, Valuing Diversity—A Strategy for the Civil Service" builds on what has already been achieved and sets out what the civil service wants to achieve in equality and diversity in employment over the next three to five years. The document is available on the civil service website at:

http://www.civilservice.gov.uk/news/2008/july/17_07_08_diversity.asp.

The following table shows the median earnings of disabled staff, broken down by full-time and part-time working patterns for all Departments and agencies. Further data on the disabled status of civil service staff are available on the Office for National Statistics (ONS) website:

http://www.statistics.gov.uk/StatBase/Product.asp?vlnk=2899&Pos=&ColRank=1&Rank=422.

Higher Civil Servants: Manpower

Simon Hughes: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what change there has been in the number of (a) women, (b) black and minority ethnic people and (c) people with disabilities holding senior Civil Service posts since 1997. [223727]

Mr. Watson: The following table sets out the changes in numbers of senior civil servants between 1997 and 2007 (the date for which latest figures are available).

HOME DEPARTMENT

Departmental Data Protection

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what meetings Ministers and officials in her Department have had with telecommunications and internet service providers on the establishment of a national database to store telecommunications and internet traffic data and connected information. [222645]

Mr. Coaker: Home Office officials have had a number of meetings with telecommunications and Internet Service Providers to inform the Government's consideration of work to modernise our national interception capabilities in the light of changes to communications technology.

Our ability to lawfully intercept communications and obtain communications data is critical to combating the threat posed by terrorism and in tackling serious and organised crime such as child sex abuse, kidnap, murder and drug related crime.

Proposals are still under development, and when finalised will be presented to Parliament.

Departmental Surveillance

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many applications (a) her Department and (b) its agencies have made under the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 to (i) undertake directed surveillance, (ii) use covert human intelligence sources, (iii) acquire communications data and (iv) undertake intrusive surveillance in the last 24 months. [222037]

Mr. Coaker: The Home Office is not a listed public authority for the purposes of intrusive surveillance and therefore does not use it. However, the Home Office (UK Border Agency) may acquire communications data, use directed surveillance and deploy covert human intelligence sources in connection with its work. Figures on public authority use of covert techniques controlled by the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 ('RIPA') are published annually by the Interception of Communications Commissioner, the Chief Surveillance Commissioner and the Intelligence Services Commissioner who each have particular inspection and oversight responsibilities under RIPA. The latest reports were laid before Parliament and copies placed in the House Library on 22 July. The figures provided in the reports are not broken down by individual public authority use of specific covert technique as, depending on the particular technique and authority using it, this could either reveal sensitivities or be misleading. The question of further disclosure for any particular public authority is a matter for the relevant Commissioner.

Dyfed-Powys Police Authority: Manpower

Mark Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) police officers and (b) civilian staff were employed by Dyfed-Powys police authority in each year since 2001. [221916]

Mr. Coaker: The available data are given in the following table.

Dyfed-Powys police officer strength[1] (FTE)[2] as at 31 March 2001 to 31 March 2008

	Number
2001	1,055
2002	1,132
2003[3]	1,149
2004[3]	1,160

2006[3]	1,182
2007[3]	1,177
2008[3]	1,181

[1] This table contains full-time equivalent figures that have been rounded to the nearest whole number. Because of rounding, there may be an apparent discrepancy between totals and the sums of the constituent items.
[2] Full-time equivalent excludes those on career breaks or maternity/paternity leave.
[3] Comparable strength (excludes those on career breaks, or maternity/paternity leave). The Police Numbers Task Force (2001) recommended that a clear presentation was made of the numbers of staff employed by police forces including those seconded into the force and those on any type of long or short term absence. These new calculations were first used in 2003, and are not comparable with data prior to March 2003. The data from 2003 onwards used here are termed comparable because they have been calculated on the old basis to allow comparison.

Dyfed-Powys police staff strength[1] (FTE)[2] as at 31 March 2001 to 31 March 2008

	Number
2001	401
2002	459
2003[3]	502

2005[3]	531
2006[3]	566
2007[3]	606
2008[3]	625

[1] Civilian staff have been referred to as police staff since March 2003. Figures exclude traffic wardens, police community support officers and designated officers (s.38).
[2] Total strength is based on full-time equivalent figures that have been rounded to the nearest whole number, because of rounding there may be an apparent discrepancy between these totals and the totals in other tables. Figures exclude those staff on career breaks or maternity/paternity unless otherwise stated.
[3] Strength figures as at 31 March 2003 onwards include those staff on career breaks or maternity/paternity leave. Therefore these figures are not comparable with those provided for other years in the table.

Emergency Calls: Hoaxes and False Alarms

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many hoax 999 calls were answered by the Metropolitan Police in the last period for which figures are available. [222762]

Mr. Coaker: This information is a matter for the Commissioner of the Metropolitan Police.

Office of the Surveillance Commissioners

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether the Office of the Surveillance Commissioners is a public authority for the purposes of the (a) Freedom of Information Act 2000 and (b) Environmental Information Regulations 2004. [222927]

Mr. Coaker: The Office of Surveillance Commissioners is not a public authority for the purposes of the Freedom of Information Act 2000 or the Environmental Information Regulations 2004. Information about their independent oversight role can be found in their published annual reports or on their website.

Olympic Games 2012

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many full-time equivalent members of staff in (a) her Department and (b) its associated public bodies are working on projects relating to the London 2012 Olympics and Paralympics games; how many of those work on (i) project management, (ii) legacy planning, (iii) project oversight and (iv) financial oversight; and what plans she has for future staffing levels in each case. [221866]

Mr. Coaker: There are currently 12 members of the Home Office engaged full-time on aspects of development of and planning for the London 2012 games. Roles are not specifically project based. Other staff in the Home Office and its agencies, such as the Serious Organised Crime Agency, are involved in Olympic-related projects as part of their wider duties as required.

There are currently 111 staff working in the multi-agency Olympic Security Directorate. 97 of these staff are engaged in predominantly project and programme roles which involve both financial oversight and legacy planning.

Staffing numbers in both the Home Office and the Olympic Security Directorate will fluctuate according to the demands of the programme and are kept under constant review.

Police: Bureaucracy

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the cost of administration was in each police force in England and Wales in each of the last 10 years; and how many people were employed to carry out this work in each police force in each year. [224074]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 17 September 2008]: The information requested on police administration costs is not held centrally. Details of total revenue and capital grants are held but not details of expenditure.

The information requested on the number of people employed to carry out administration are not held centrally. The numbers of police staff are given in the following table.

Police staff are individuals who are employed by the police service to support the service and ensure it runs efficiently and effectively, working in partnership with those in uniform.

[1] Civilian staff have been referred to as police staff since March 2003. Figures exclude traffic wardens, police community support officers and designated officers (s.38).

[2] Total strength is based on full-time equivalent figures that have been rounded to the nearest whole number, because of rounding there may be an apparent discrepancy between these totals and the totals in other tables. Figures exclude those staff on career breaks or maternity/paternity unless otherwise stated.

[3] The National Crime Intelligence Service (NCIS) and the National Crime Squad (NCS) were established and set up as independent bodies by the Police Act 1997 effective as of 1 April 1998. Following the launch of the Serious Organised Crime Squad (SOCA) on 1 April 2006, strength totals will no longer include details of NCS or NCIS staff.

[4] Boundary changes on 1 April 2000 transferred some resources from the Metropolitan police to Essex, Hertfordshire and Surrey police forces.

[5] Strength figures as at 31 March 2003 onwards include those staff on career breaks or maternity/paternity leave. Therefore these figures are not comparable with those provided for other years in the table.

[6] NCIS were unable to provide figures as at 31 March 2003 and 31 March 2004.

Police: Per Capita Costs

Mark Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much funding was allocated per head of population to each police authority in Wales in 2007-08; and how much is planned for 2008-09. [221917]

Mr. Coaker: The information requested is set out in the following table.

The Government do not distribute grant to police authorities purely on the basis of population. The police funding formula uses a range of data relating to demographic and social characteristics to reflect the relative needs of each authority. Grant allocations also take into account the relative tax base of each authority. Grant allocations are stabilised by damping to limit year-on-year variations.

Welsh Police Authority Government Revenue Grant Allocations 2007-08 and 2008-09

Police: Procurement

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what studies her Department has undertaken into police procurement policies and practices since 2005. [223710]

Mr. Coaker: The Home Office has undertaken no such studies since 2005. Earlier this year the Association of Chief Police Officers agreed a procurement strategy for the years to 2011. The strategy recognises that effective procurement enables the realisation of efficiency benefits and achievement of best value.

Police: Rural Areas

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what guidelines her Department has issued on back-up response times for police in rural areas in the last three years. [223821]

Mr. Coaker: No guidelines have been issued on back-up response times for police in rural areas in the last three years, as this is an operational deployment issue for Chief Officers.

Powers of Entry: Local Authorities

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what powers of entry are exercisable by representatives of a local authority under (a) primary and (b) secondary legislation; [222693]

(2) what reasons the PDF files of the documents relating to the survey of powers of entry published on the Home Office operational policing website in July 2008 did not allow printing or copying. [222695]

Mr. Coaker: The table placed in the House Library sets out the available information in relation to primary legislation. The information provided is subject to verification in the light of the work being carried out on the review of powers of entry referred to in an earlier response given to the hon. Member by my right hon. Friend (Mr. McNulty) on 21 July 2008, Official Report, column 971W. Work to develop a complete list of powers of entry under secondary legislation is currently under way. This will be published in due course as part of the review of powers of entry.

The PDF files were placed in error on the website with the printing and copying restrictions. The restrictions were removed as soon as it was brought to our attention.

Rape

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many and what proportion of rapes reported to the police which (a) involved and (b) did not involve excess alcohol use on the part of the victim or perpetrator resulted in (i) conviction for rape or sexual assault and (ii) pleas of guilty to rape or sexual assault in England and Wales in each of the last 10 years for which figures are available; [223513]

(2) how many and what proportion of rapes reported to the police which (a) involved and (b) did not involve excess alcohol use on the part of the victim or perpetrator resulted in a prosecution progressing to trial in England and Wales in each of the last 10 years for which figures are available; [223514]

Mr. Alan Campbell [holding answer 11 September 2008]: The data requested are not recorded.

Information on recorded crime and court proceedings held by the Ministry of Justice and the Home Office does not identify whether alcohol was involved in an offence.

Rape: Convictions

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment he has made of the reasons for the variations in rape conviction rates across areas of England and Wales; and what progress has been made by the Rape Performance Group in analysing this issue. [225143]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The Home Office published research in July 2007 (Feist et al, Investigating and Detecting Recorded Offences of Rape) which considered the influence of different factors on levels of attrition in rape cases. The Cross CJS Rape Performance Group has been established specifically to analyse the performance of police and CPS areas in relation to the investigation and prosecution of rape against a range of indicators, and reports to Ministers through the National Criminal Justice Board.

Safer Neighbourhood Teams: Greater London

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what estimate she has made of the number of (a) sergeants, (b) constables and (c) police community support officers in Safer Neighbourhood Teams in London who have remained in their post for less than 12 months since the teams were established; and if she will make a statement; [221761]

(2) how many vacancies there were for (a) sergeants, (b) constables and (c) police community support officers in Safer Neighbourhood teams in each London borough in the latest period for which figures are available; [221763]

(3) what estimate she has made of the typical length of service of (a) sergeants, (b) constables and (c) police community support officers in Safer Neighbourhood Teams in London. [221762]

Mr. Coaker: Data on length of service and vacancies in Safer Neighbourhood Teams are not collected centrally. The composition of Safer Neighbourhood Teams across London is a matter for the Metropolitan Police Commissioner.

Street Trading: Licensing

Dr. Iddon: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what the cost of a pedlar's certificate in each local police authority is; and what the cost to each police authority of issuing a pedlar's certificate is; [222908]

(2) when the cost of a pedlar's certificate was last reviewed; and by whom; [222909]

(3) how many successful prosecutions of persons illegally trading as pedlars there were in each police authority area in each of the last five years. [222910]

Mr. Coaker: The statutory fee of £12.25 for a pedlar's certificate under section 5(3) of the Pedlars Act 1871 was last changed with effect from 3 February 1986 (by the Pedlars' Certificates (Variation of Fee) Order 1985/2027).

Information on the cost to police authorities of issuing pedlars' certificates is not held centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Data showing the number of defendants found guilty at all courts of offences under the Pedlars Act 1871, broken down by police force area, in England and Wales, 2002 to 2006 are in the following table.

The statistics relate to persons for whom these offences were the principal offences for which they were dealt with. When a defendant has been found guilty of two or more offences the principal offence is the offence for which the heaviest penalty is imposed. Where the same disposal is imposed for two or more offences, the offence selected is the offence for which the statutory maximum penalty is the most severe.

Surveillance: Local Authorities

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what guidance (a) her Department and (b) the Office of the Surveillance Commissioners has given to local authorities on the level of authorisation of requests to conduct surveillance under the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000; [222926]

(2) what guidance (a) her Department and (b) the Office of the Surveillance Commissioner has given to local authorities on the proportionate and necessary use of surveillance powers under the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000; [222948]

(3) what assessment she has made of the effect on local authorities of the transposition and implementation of the Data Retention Directive; [222980]

(4) what guidance her Office has issued on each aspect of surveillance and interception under the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000. [222981]

Mr. Coaker: The level of authorisation for directed surveillance by local authorities is set out in statutory instrument 2003 No.3171: the Regulation of Investigatory Powers (Directed Surveillance and Covert Human Intelligence Sources) Order 2003.

No specific guidance has been given to local authorities on the proportionate and necessary use of surveillance powers, but guidance is contained in the statutory Code of Practice for Covert Surveillance.

No assessment has been made of the effect on local authorities of the transposition and implementation of the Data Retention Directive 2006/24/EC. However, the Directive requires communications service providers to retain communications data to ensure that public authorities, including local authorities, can continue to have access under the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000.

The Home Office has published statutory codes of practice under the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 on Covert Surveillance; the Interception of Communications; Acquisition and Disclosure of Communications Data; and Covert Human Intelligence Sources. Separately, the National Policing Improvement Agency has issued "Guidance on the Lawful and Effective use of Covert Techniques" and the Local Authorities Coordinators of Regulatory Sources (LACORS) has also provided advice to local authorities.

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what requirements there are on local authorities to compile a central register of surveillance activity. [223960]

Mr. Coaker: Where local authorities conduct directed surveillance within the meaning of the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 they are required to maintain a record of the authorisation. This will be made available for inspection as appropriate by the Office of Surveillance Commissioners, but there is no central register of local authorities' surveillance activity.

Telecommunications: Databases

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much her Department has (a) spent and (b) allocated to spend on consultancy and related work in connection with the establishment of a national database to store telecommunications and internet traffic data and connected information. [222646]

Mr. Coaker: The Government have been considering options for modernising our national interception capabilities in the light of changes to communications technology.

Our ability to lawfully intercept communications and obtain communications data is critical to combating the threat posed by terrorism and in tackling serious and organised crime such as child sex abuse, kidnap, murder and drug related crime.

The Government have not yet decided on a definitive proposal on how to modernise these capabilities. Consideration of options is under way.

When the Government do bring forward policy proposals, they will be notified to Parliament in the proper way, with associated information on financial implications.

Terrorism: Pakistan

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what recent discussions she has had with the (a) Hindu Forum of Britain and (b) Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, on the funding of terrorist groups in Pakistan by bodies in Britain; and if she will make a statement; [224152]

(2) what representations she has received on the diversion of British charities' funding to Pakistan to terrorist groups; and if she will make a statement; [224153]

Mr. Coaker: My right hon. Friend the Home Secretary has had no recent discussions with my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary on this subject. However, the Hindu Forum of Britain did write to my right hon. Friend the Home Secretary on 27 July outlining their concerns that money was being diverted from British charities to terrorist groups. My predecessor, my right hon. Friend the Member for Harrow, East (Mr. McNulty), wrote back to the organisation on behalf of my right hon. Friend the Home Secretary on 8 September advising them that it is an operational matter for the police to investigate allegations that money is being raised or used for terrorist purposes. The Charity Commission for England and Wales is able to co-operate fully with the police and other agencies, and to investigate any concerns that arise in such cases as an immediate priority.

Any evidence the Hindu Forum of Britain might have to support their concerns should be forwarded to the police and the Charity Commission.

Vetting

Mr. David Anderson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether employees of local authorities will be responsible for paying the fee for Independent Safeguarding Authority clearance. [224758]

Meg Hillier: The Safeguarding Vulnerable Groups Act 2006 makes a fee payable on application for registration with the new Vetting and Barring Scheme. The fee will normally be payable by the applicant but it will be open to employers to pay the fee on behalf of their employees, should they choose to do so. Checks for unpaid volunteers will be free of charge.

Mr. David Anderson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether local authority workers who have been cleared by the Criminal Records Bureau must apply for clearance under the Independent Safeguarding Authority. [224760]

Meg Hillier: The Criminal Records Bureau provides a check on criminal records information for eligible employees and volunteers. The new Independent Safeguarding Authority (ISA) will consider whether individuals are suitable for work with children or vulnerable adults, and will have the power to bar those considered unsuitable. Where local authority or other workers are providing regulated or controlled activities as defined under the Safeguarding Vulnerable Groups Act 2006, they will need to apply to be registered with the ISA, in addition to any CRB check. It will normally be possible to obtain a CRB check at the same time as the initial application to the ISA.

CHILDREN, SCHOOLS AND FAMILIES

Academies

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families which academies plan to open in (a) 2009, (b) 2010, (c) 2011 and (d) 2012; and if he will make a statement. [224837]

Jim Knight: There are currently 51 projects in feasibility or implementation for opening in September 2009, 18 for 2010, four for 2011 and one for 2012. A list of these projects is set out. As part of the National Challenge there is now funding for 80 Academies to open in 2009 and 100 in 2010.

Academies: Disadvantaged

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what his estimate is of the proportion of children known to be eligible for free school meals in each academy and its predecessor school in each year since 2000-01; and if he will make a statement. [225059]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The information can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Children: Advertising

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what recent steps the Government have taken to regulate advertising aimed at children. [222678]

Jim Knight: All commercial broadcasters are subject to statutory standards codes governing broadcast advertising which they must comply with as a condition of their licence. Non-broadcast advertising in the UK is strictly controlled through industry self-regulation, administered by the Advertising Standards Authority (ASA).

Both the broadcast and non-broadcast advertising codes contain strict rules relating specifically to general children's advertising as well as specific rules preventing the promotion of products such as alcohol and cigarettes, as well as restricting food promotion to children.

Changes introduced by Ofcom in February 2007 strengthened the rules for broadcast advertising of foods high in fat, salt and sugar—which may not be advertised in or adjacent to programmes commissioned for, principally directed at or likely to appeal particularly to audiences below the age of 16. Ofcom also set out new rules on the content of advertisements targeted at primary school children. These rules ban the use of celebrities and characters licensed from third-parties (such as cartoons), promotional claims (such as free gifts) and health or nutrition claims.

Non-broadcast advertising rules, including on the internet, were also strengthened in 2007.

The new rules protect all children, defined as persons under 16. In addition, ASA/Committee of Advertising Practice have placed tougher restrictions on food or drink product adverts that are directly targeted at primary school or pre-school children through their content.

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what recent steps the Government have taken to assess the effect of advertising on children. [222679]

Jim Knight: This Government launched an independent assessment of the impact of the commercial world, with open calls for evidence, on 7 April 2008. The assessment is examining children's commercial world in the broadest sense, including: products; commercial messages; shopping; the market for children's good and services; and any further involvement that children may have. The assessment is not restricted to advertising.

The assessment is being led by Professor David Buckingham—Professor of Education at the Institute of Education, London university. He is the founder and director of the Centre for the Study of Children, Youth and Media. The assessment panel is made up of leading experts from a range of disciplines.

We think it is important that we reach a consensus as to what is changing for children with regard to the commercial world; how those changes impact on children, both positive and negative, and what children and parents really think.

This assessment will report back to DCSF and DCMS in spring 2009.

Departmental Manpower

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much was spent on salaries for press and communications officers in (a) his Department, (b) its NDPBs and (c) its agencies in each of the last three years. [224548]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The information is as follows.

(a) The Department for Children, Schools and Families was established in June 2007 and as a result we are only able to provide information from June 2007 to March 2008. The salary cost for employing press officers in the Department was £906,462 and the cost of employing communications officers was £2,582,579.

(b) The Department does not have any agencies.

(c) We do not hold costs for our non-departmental public bodies.

Departmental Standards

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what targets were not achieved by his Department in each of the last 10 years. [224811]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The Department published its autumn performance report on 7 December 2007 and copies are available in the House Library (Cm 7279). The autumn performance report shows assessments of progress against my Department's Spending Review public service agreement (PSA) targets. Annex B contains summary tables showing final assessments for PSA targets from 1998. The 2008 departmental report (Cm7391) published on 19 May 2008 included latest assessments of progress against Spending Review 2004 PSA targets and the 2008 autumn performance report due to be published later this year will include final assessments for those Spending Review 2004 PSA targets which have now come to an end.

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families if he will place in the Library a list of the (a) targets and (b) quantifiable aims which his Department is committed to meeting. [224925]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The Department published its Children's Plan on 11 December 2007 which set out the vision for children and children's services, our delivery plans for the next three years and put those in the context of our longer term ambitions for improving children and young people's lives. The Department leads on five cross-governmental PSAs for children and young people which were announced in CSR07. They are:

PSA 10: Raise the educational achievement of all children and young people;

PSA 11: Narrow the gap in educational achievement between children from low income and disadvantaged backgrounds and their peers;

PSA 12: Improve the health and well-being of children and young people;

PSA 13: Improve children and young people's safety; and PSA 14: Increase the number of children and young people on the path to success.

A series of indicators underpin each PSA, a number of which make up part of the local government National Indicator Set. All the indicators are brought together through the Every Child Matters (ECM) outcomes framework. The 2008 autumn performance report due to be published later in the year, will for the first time, include reporting against the 2007 comprehensive spending review PSAs which the Department leads on. PSA Delivery Agreements are available on the HM Treasury website at:

Grammar Schools

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what (a) legislative changes and (b) department approval would be needed to open a new grammar school; and if he will make a statement. [224666]

Jim Knight: The law prohibits the introduction of any new selection by ability. We intend no change to this. Local parents can decide whether each existing grammar school continues, and ballot accordingly.

Grammar Schools: Disadvantaged

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) what proportion of pupils attending grammar schools was known to be eligible for free school meals in (a) 1978, (b) 2007 and (c) 2008; and if he will make a statement; [224672]

(2) what proportion of pupils was entitled to free school meals in (a) grammar schools, (b) academies and (c) all other maintained schools in each year from 1997 to 2008; and if he will make a statement. [224674]

Jim Knight: The requested information could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Head Teachers: Temporary Employment

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many schools in Yorkshire and the Humber have temporary headteachers; and if he will make a statement. [223819]

Jim Knight: The information is not available in the format requested.

In January 2008, there were 40 head teacher posts in Yorkshire and the Humber Government office region that were either vacant or temporarily filled. In England, there were 550.

Posts were counted where there is no incumbent who is expected to return to the post, whether or not it is filled or on a temporary basis, whether or not advertised or an appointment has been made and not yet taken up.

The source of this information is the Annual Survey of Teachers in Service and Teacher Vacancies, 618 g.

Head Teachers

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many headteachers between the ages of 55 and 60 years there are in maintained schools in each local authority. [224798]

Jim Knight: The information is not available in the format requested.

Information for the proportion of full-time heads employed in local authority maintained schools in England by age group is available from the Departments website (table D4) at the following web link:

http://www.dcsf.gov.uk/rsgateway/DB/SFR/s000743/Addition_D_DOU.xls

Joint Advisory Council for Qualifications

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) what the remit of the Joint Advisory Council for Qualifications will be; and if he will make a statement; [225118]

(2) whom he expects to appoint as the (a) chair and (b) chief executive of the Joint Advisory Council for Qualifications; and if he will make a statement; [225119]

(3) when he expects the Joint Advisory Council for Qualifications to be in operation; and if he will make a statement; [225120]

(4) where the Joint Advisory Council for Qualifications will be based; and if he will make a statement. [225121]

Jim Knight: The remit of the Joint Advisory Committee for Qualifications Approval (JACQA) is to give advice to the Secretary of State on which 14-19 qualifications should be publicly funded, in line with the policy set out in the 14-19 qualifications strategy, which we published in March this year. We will publish a formal remit for the Committee in advance of its first meeting, which we expect to take place in December this year.

The Committee will be co-chaired by and jointly responsible to the Qualifications and Curriculum Development Agency (QCDA) and the Learning and Skills Council (LSC). These organisations will also provide a joint secretariat to the Committee. The secretariat is currently considering the logistical arrangements for the Committee's inaugural meeting. The Committee will not exist on a statutory basis, and will not have any executive or decision-making powers. It will therefore not have a chief executive officer.

National Curriculum Tests

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what representations were received by (a) his Department, (b) the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority and (c) the National Assessment Agency on the arrangements for administration and marking of the key stage tests for 2008 in (i) 2006 and (ii) 2007; and if he will make a statement. [221790]

Jim Knight: The Department received correspondence in 2006 and 2007 about aspects of the national curriculum tests but nothing specific to the administration and marking of Key Stage tests for 2008. Ministers meet with Teachers' Unions on a regular basis, where national curriculum tests will feature on the agenda.

The Qualifications and Curriculum Authority (QCA) is responsible for the development and administration of National Curriculum tests. The National Assessment Agency (NAA) administers the tests and manages the delivery contract, on QCA's behalf. In 2006, NAA undertook a procurement exercise and received representations from prospective contractors. In both 2006 and 2007 the NAA received representations from schools, local authorities, parents and our social partners on a variety of matters about national curriculum tests.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) how many prospective markers for (a) key stage two and (b) key stage three failed the tests for marking quality at the (i) standardisation stage and (ii) monitoring stage in (A) science, (B) mathematics and (C) English in each year from 2005 to 2008; and if he will make a statement; [221791]

(2) how many markers were employed to mark the key stage (a) two and (b) three tests in (i) English, (ii) mathematics and (iii) science in (A) 2006, (B) 2007 and (C) 2008; and if he will make a statement. [221792]

Jim Knight: The Qualifications and Curriculum Authority (QCA) is responsible for the development and administration of national curriculum tests. The National Assessment Agency (NAA) administers the tests and manages the delivery contract, on QCA's behalf. David Gee, Managing Director of the NAA has written to the hon. Member and a copy of his letter has been placed in the Library.

Jim Knight: The Qualifications and Curriculum Authority (QCA) is responsible for the development and administration of national curriculum tests. The National Assessment Agency (NAA) administers the tests and manages the delivery contract, on QCA's behalf. David Gee the managing director of the NAA has written to the hon. Member and a copy of his letter has been placed in the Library.

Letter from David Gee, dated 2 October 2008:

The Secretary of State for Education, the Rt Hon. Ed Balls MP, has asked me to write to you about the estimate he has made of the cost of the key stage two and key stage three tests in each year from 2004 to 2008 (221793)

2003-04	40,231

These figures include Test Development, Print and Distribution, Exam Marking and Data Collection, Test Administration and Maintaining Standards for Key Stage 1, 2 and 3 tests.

The figure for 2007-8 excludes the £19.5m refund and cancellation of £4.6m in additional invoices in QCA's favour, which was agreed as part of the settlement between QCA and ETS.

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) who in the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority was responsible for the negotiations with ETS for the contract to administer and mark the Key Stage 2 and 3 SATs; [222023]

(2) pursuant to the Oral Statement of 22 July 2008, Official Report, column 680, on SATS, when the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority entered into contractual discussions with ETS Europe; and for how long these discussions are expected to continue. [223072]

Jim Knight: The administration and marking of national curriculum tests is a function of the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority (QCA) that is delivered independently of Government. The National Assessment Agency (NAA) is responsible for the marking process. David Gee the Managing Director of the NAA has written to the hon. Member and a copy of his letters have been placed in the Library.

Letter from David Gee, dated 18 September 2008:

Parliamentary Question 222023

The Secretary of State for Education, the Rt Hon Ed Balls MP, has asked me to write to you concerning your parliamentary question relating to who in the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority headed negotiations with ETS Europe for the contract to provide external marking and data collection services for key stage 2 & 3 national curriculum tests.

During 2006, the Senior Responsible Officer for the procurement was the NAA Operations Director. Various types of discussion were held with, and presentations given by, ETS and other suppliers during the competitive dialogue procurement process at which either the NAA Managing Director and/or the NAA Operations Director and the wider NAA team were present.

Letter from David Gee, dated 25 September 2008:

The Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families, Rt Hon Ed Balls, has asked me to write to you to answer parliamentary question 223072 about when the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority entered into contractual discussions with ETS Europe; and for how long these discussions are expected to continue.

These discussions commenced on the 8th July 2008 and were successfully concluded on 15th August 2008.

National Curriculum Tests: Coventry

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what steps the Government has taken to address recent delays in the provision of SAT results to schools in Coventry. [222680]

Jim Knight: The Secretary of State and Ofqual have ordered an independent inquiry into test result delivery problems. Lord Sutherland, who has agreed to lead the inquiry, will publish his reports in the autumn. The terms of this comprehensive inquiry will investigate what went wrong, the reasons for the problems experienced and what should be done to avoid a recurrence in future years.

The Qualifications and Curriculum Authority (QCA) is responsible for the development and administration of national curriculum tests. The National Assessment Agency (NAA) administers the tests and manages the delivery contract, on QCA's behalf. David Gee, Managing Director of the NAA has written to the hon. Member and a copy of his letter has been placed in the Library.

Letter from David Gee, dated 2 October 2008:

The Secretary of State for Education, the Rt Hon Ed Balls MP, has asked me to write to you about what steps the Government has taken to address recent delays in the provision of SAT results to schools in Coventry(222680).

The National Assessment Agency is responsible for the delivery of Key Stage tests (SATs) on behalf of the DCSF. The external marking and data collection contract was let by NAA to ETS Europe for the 2008 tests. Following ETS' failure to deliver all test results by the contractual milestone of 8th July, the NAA has taken a number of steps to deliver outstanding results to schools as speedily as possible. These measures have been applied equally across all schools in England with missing results, including those in Coventry.

The NAA took over direct responsibility for all outstanding marking, and for the reviews process from mid-August following termination of the contract with ETS. Markers were required to input marks into ETS' systems to allow pupils' results to be viewed via a secure website. Ongoing technical issues with ETS' systems prevented marks for some schools from being posted on the website. NAA is working with the remaining schools which are missing pupils' results to resolve the issues. In addition the NAA has increased its helpdesk capacity to respond to and make telephone calls to schools with any residual results issues.

Pupil Exclusions: Yorkshire and the Humber

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many pupils in Yorkshire and the Humber were excluded for assaulting or threatening a teacher in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [223815]

Beverley Hughes: My Department collects information on the reasons why pupils have been excluded, either for a fixed period or permanently. This includes categories for "physical assault against an adult" and "verbal abuse/threatening behaviour against an adult". It is not possible to determine if this relates to teachers or another adult within the school.

Data on the reason for exclusion are available for 2003-04 onwards. However for 2005-06 this information is only available for secondary schools due to underlying changes in the data collection. The available information is shown in the table.

[4] Totals have been rounded to the nearest 10.
[5] For 2005-06 available figures relate to secondary schools only, these show 70 permanent exclusions for physical assault against an adult and 80 permanent exclusions for verbal abuse/threatening behaviour against an adult.

Jim Knight: The proportion of pupils at Key Stage 2 (a) not entitled to free school meals and (b) entitled to free school meals who achieved level four and above in English and mathematics for 2007 is shown in the following table.

School Leaving: Qualifications

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many letters he has received from members of the public on the 14 to 19 diplomas in the last three months; and what percentage of those letters have supported the programme. [224564]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: Over last three months we have received a total of 113 pieces of correspondence in regard to diplomas, of which four (4.52 per cent.) were specifically in support of the introduction of diplomas. The remaining 109 pieces of correspondence were general inquiries.

Schools

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) how many schools were built between (a) 1997 and 2007 and (b) 1987 and 1997; and if he will make a statement; [225032]

(2) what the average expenditure on school buildings was in each year from (a) 1979 to 1997 and (b) 1997 to 2007; and if he will make a statement. [225090]

Jim Knight: School Building Investment Data was published by the Department in May 2007 based on information supplied by local authorities. This showed that between 1997-8 and 2006-7, 231 new additional schools were built, and 853 were rebuilt. The information also showed that between 1992 and 1997, 85 new additional schools were built, and 216 were rebuilt. The department does not hold information on the number of schools built between 1987 and 1992. A copy of the publication is held in the parliamentary Library.

The Department does not hold data on average expenditure on school buildings. Levels of investment are decided locally and authorities may add funding from other sources to the schools capital allocations they receive from Government.

Central Government capital support for investment in schools has increased from under £700 million in 1996-97 to £6.7 billion in 2008-9 and will rise further to £8.2 billion by 2010-11.

Schools: Assessments

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the cost of the key stage (a) 1, (b) 2 and (c) 3 tests was in each year since 1997-98; and if he will make a statement. [225174]

Jim Knight: The Qualifications and Curriculum Authority's estimate of the combined costs of delivering the national curriculum tests for Key Stage 1, Key Stage 2 and Key Stage 3 is as follows:

	Total cost of NCT (£000)
2007/08	50,570
2006/07	51,559
2005/06	51,743

	Total cost of NCT (£000)
2004/05	43,828
2003/04	40,231
2002/03	38,944
2001/02	28,074
2000/01	28,014
1999/2000	25,693
1998/99	19,672

The QCA was formed in October 1997, so no full year figures are available for 1997/98. In addition, QCA's records from 1998 onwards do not support the split of information between the various key stages.

Schools: Greater London

Tom Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many children due to enter their first year of primary school did not have a school place by 1 September in the relevant year in each London borough in each year since 1997. [224967]

Jim Knight: The Department does not collect data on primary school offers or on the number of unplaced children. Local authorities are under a duty to make sure that every child of compulsory school age has a suitable school place.

Schools: Nottinghamshire

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what public funding is being made available for new school buildings at Eaton Hall, Nottinghamshire. [224585]

Jim Knight: Eaton Hall is occupied by an independent school. There is currently no Government funding available for new school buildings as the school operates in the independent sector.

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what assessment he has made of the level of public access to new sports facilities funded by the sale of playing fields at Portland School, Worksop. [224586]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: In its application to dispose of the surplus playing field land at the school, Nottinghamshire county council indicated that the new sports facilities were to be designed to facilitate out-of-school and extended school activities and would greatly enhance community participation in sport. The community use of the new facilities was to be managed by the private finance initiative provider in conjunction with the local district council.

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) which schools in Nottinghamshire have been proposed for either new building or significant rebuilding through the Building Schools for the Future programme in (a) 2010, (b) 2011, (c) 2012, (d) 2013 and (e) 2014; [224904]

(2) when he expects Serlby Park school to be rebuilt under the Building Schools for the Future programme. [224587]

Jim Knight: Nottinghamshire local authority entered the Building Schools for the Future programme in Wave 6 and is currently developing a strategy for educational transformation for the first phase of schools in Newark, parts of Mansfield and Market Warsop. Expected completion dates for individual schools are not agreed until the Outline Business Case is submitted by the authority to the Department for Children, Schools and Families. Serlby Park School is expected to be included in a later phase of the authority's project.

Schools: Sports

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) what percentage of (a) secondary and (b) primary schools are offering at least four hours of sport a week, broken down by local authority; [224794]

(2) what percentage of (a) secondary and (b) primary schools offer two hours of sport within the school day, broken down by local authority; [224806]

(3) what percentage of (a) secondary and (b) primary schools offer two hours or more a week of sport outside the school day, broken down by local authority. [224807]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The annual School Sport Survey was introduced in 2003/04 and collects data from schools in school sport partnerships relating to the percentage of pupils participating in at least two hours high quality PE and school sport in a typical week. The survey does not collect data relating to the proportion of pupils participating in four or more hours of sport a week. All maintained schools in England have been in School Sport Partnerships since September 2006.

The following table sets out the 2006/07 School Sport Survey results of the percentage of pupils in each local authority area taking part in at least two hours of high quality PE and school sport in a typical week. Further analysis between primary and secondary schools could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Overall, 86 per cent. of pupils participated in at least two hours of high quality PE and school sport a week in 2006/07.

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much funding his Department provided for the Physical Education, School Sport and Club Link Strategy in each of the last five years. [225686]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: A breakdown of the Department's investment in England into the strategy from 2003-04 to 2007-08 is set out in the following table:

Financial year	Funding (£ million)
2003-04	78

Schools: Standards

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families in which local authorities over 50 per cent. of children did not achieve five or more A* to C grade GCSEs, including English and mathematics, in the last year for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement. [224903]

Jim Knight: The available information on GCSE and equivalent results by local authority area is contained within Table 18 of Statistical First Release (SFR) GCSE and Equivalent Examination Results in England 2006-07 (Revised) which was published in January 2008. This SFR can be found at:

http://www.dcsf.gov.uk/rsgateway/DB/SFR/s000768/index.shtml.

Figures cover all maintained mainstream schools (including CTCs and Academies) and maintained special schools, but exclude hospital schools and pupil referral units.

Secondary Education: Standards

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what his estimate is of spending on the National Challenge for Schools in each year between 2008 and 2012, broken down by smallest geographical area available; and if he will make a statement. [224668]

Jim Knight: In June 2008, the Secretary of State announced our intention to invest £400 million to ensure that in every secondary school at least 30 per cent. of students achieve five or more good GCSEs including English and mathematics by 2011. Distribution of the available funding will depend upon the assessment by schools, national challenge advisers and local authorities, with the DCSF, of how we can best support the achievement of young people. No decisions about allocations to particular geographical areas or in individual years have yet been made.

Teachers: Manpower

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many full-time primary school teachers there were in Yorkshire and the Humber in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [223811]

Jim Knight: The following table provides the full-time equivalent and full-time headcount of regular teachers employed in local authority maintained nursery and primary schools in Yorkshire and the Humber Government office region and England, January 2004 to 2008.

Full-time equivalent and full-time headcount of regular teachers in local authority maintained nursery and primary schools, January 2004 to 2008

Teachers: Pay

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families whether an academic review day counts as one of the 190 days per year on which a teacher is required to teach pupils and perform other duties, as referred to in paragraph 77.3 of the School Teachers' Pay and Conditions Document 2008. [225056]

Jim Knight: The term 'academic review day' is not a legal term, but is commonly used to describe a day on which a school closes to pupils so that staff may hold progress-review meetings with parents and pupils. Though the Department does not collect data on this practice, we understand that schools using such review days have adopted for this purpose one or more of the 190 days upon which they are required to meet each academic year.

Teachers: Pensions

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what his estimate is of the annual cost of the teachers' pension scheme; and if he will make a statement. [225057]

Jim Knight: The Teachers' Pension Scheme (TPS) has estimated expenditure of £6,498 million and estimated income of £4,704 million in 2008-09.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families if he will make a statement on the terms and conditions of the teachers' pension scheme. [225058]

Jim Knight: The Teachers' Pension Scheme (TPS) is a defined benefit occupational pension scheme for teachers and lecturers in England and Wales which provides a range of benefits for members and their families.

The terms and conditions of the TPS were reformed from 1 January 2007 following a review involving the teacher and lecturer unions, employer representatives and the Government. The review considered all aspects of pension provision and introduced changes that: increased the contribution rate paid by all members and the normal pension age for new entrants to 65; deliver a modernised TPS more relevant to the needs of employers and members; makes sure the TPS will continue to be an important and valuable element of the total remuneration package for teachers and lecturers that supports recruitment and retention; and ensures the long term financial sustainability of the scheme.

The detailed provisions of the TPS can be found at www.teacherspensions.co.uk

Teachers: Qualifications

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many (a) primary and (b) secondary school teachers in Yorkshire and the Humber did not have qualified teacher status in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [223810]

Jim Knight: The following table provides the full-time equivalent number of teachers without qualified teacher status employed in local authority maintained nursery/primary and secondary schools in Yorkshire and the Humber Government office region and England, January 2004 to 2008.

Teachers: Sick Leave

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many teaching days were lost to sickness absence in Yorkshire and the Humber in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [223809]

Jim Knight: The number of teaching days taken as sickness absence in Yorkshire and the Humber in each of the last five calendar years is shown in the following table.

Number of teaching days taken as sickness absence

Teachers: Training

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what percentage of Bachelor of Education course entrants did not have an A-level in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [223797]

Jim Knight: The available information is given in the table and shows the percentage of entrants to undergraduate Initial Teacher Training (ITT) courses by their highest qualification on entry. Qualifications included in the "Other" category might be higher than A/AS level so could include trainees who have A/AS levels. A percentage relating specifically to entrants with no qualifications at advanced level is therefore not available.

Undergraduate trainees only represent 24 per cent. of trainees on ITT courses (excluding employment based routes).

Teachers: Vacancies

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many vacancies for full-time secondary school teachers there were in Yorkshire and the Humber in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [223818]

Jim Knight: The number of vacancies for full-time secondary school teachers in Yorkshire and the Humber in each of the last five years are shown in the following table.

	Vacancies
2008	150
2007	100
2006	110
2005	160
2004	140

Further details can be found in the School Workforce Statistical First Releases (SFR), the most recent of which was published on 25 September and can be found at:

http://www.dcsf.gov.uk/rsgateway/DB/SFR/s000813/index.shtml

Information on teacher vacancies can be found in table 7.

Young Offenders: General Certificate for Secondary Education

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what proportion of people who had been in young offender institutions for (a) less than and (b) more than two years were entered for GCSEs in each of the last five years. [224928]

Beverley Hughes: The Department does not collect data on GCSE enrolments by young people in young offender institutions (YOIs) broken down by length of stay in custody. However, the roll-out of the Offender Learning and Skills Service (OLASS) through the Learning and Skills Council (LSC) from 31 July 2006, means that some data on young offender enrolment within YOIs is now collected. Data are only available for 2006/07, during which 95 young people were enrolled on one or more GCSE course.

However, many young people in custody are still enrolled at learning providers in the community and therefore their enrolments are not included in the figure provided. Also, many young people stay in custody only for a very short time, and therefore it is not always realistic for them to enrol on and achieve long-term qualifications (e.g. GCSEs), in custody. Therefore, the LSC figure quoted in this answer does not provide records of all of the enrolments of all young people in YOIs. Data are not available for GCSE achievements for young people in Secure Children's Homes, Secure Training Centres, or privately run YOIs.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Arts Council England: Manpower

Mr. Vaizey: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many people are employed (a) directly and (b) as consultants by Arts Council England to administer funds from the National Lottery. [223883]

Barbara Follett: 783 people were employed directly by Arts Council England in 2007-08. Information on consultants employed to administer funds from the National Lottery is not available.

Cultural Heritage

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what recent estimate he has made of the annual contribution of the heritage sector to the national economy. [224497]

Barbara Follett [holding answer 6 October 2008]: English Heritage is aware of several studies which have attempted to estimate the contribution of a particular element of the heritage sector to the national economy, but these have not enabled an aggregated figure to be prepared.

Significant figures are, however, available. For example, privately owned historic houses generate an economic contribution of over £1.6 billion; England's cathedrals generate around £150 million per annum of benefits for the local and national economies; and a report into traditional building skills estimated that £3.5 billion was invested in historic buildings in 2005, a significant proportion of which paid for skilled craftsmen in the building trades.

Tourism, one of the largest industries in the UK, was estimated to be worth approximately £85.6 billion in 2006. England's historic buildings are a key motivator for those considering a visit to the country and top the table of activities undertaken by those who actually do visit. It is therefore clear that a considerable proportion of the £85.6 billion is generated indirectly by the historic environment.

Cultural Heritage: Pay

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much his Department spent on salaries for staff working on heritage in each year since 1997. [224495]

Barbara Follett [holding answer 6 October 2008]: The table lists the departmental expenditure on salaries of staff responsible for heritage issues such as quality of architectural design and identification and conservation of the historic environment.

Financial year	Staff salaries (£)
2007-08	1,124,157
2006-07	1,325,700
2005-06	1,280,254
2004-05	1,144,534
2003-04	1,196,317
2002-03	1,119,179

2000-01	1,130,964

Departmental Sick Leave

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many and what percentage of staff in his Department have had more than two periods of sickness of less than five days in each of the last three years. [218690]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Based on average staff numbers for each of the last three years, the results are as follows:

	Number of staff	Percentage of staff
2007-08	41	8.4
2006-07	50	9.3
2005-06	57	11.0

As part of the Department's Diversity and Health and well-being policies, we have a range of initiatives and programmes in place to support staff and to manage stress, mental health and behavioural issues.

Furthermore, in order to raise awareness of stress and mental health issues we have implemented a range of initiatives and guidance for managers and staff to manage mental health problems in the workplace including an initiative to tackle the stigma and discrimination associated with mental illness.

We regularly monitor sickness absence and reasons for absences as a means to tackle attendance issues and provide support to our staff. This support ranges from a 24-hour employee assistance programme, occupational health referral, rehabilitation programme for staff and reasonable adjustments to work or the working environment.

Our work-life balance and lifestyle programme supports our "stress at work" policy allowing staff to manage stress through achievement of effective work-life balance.

We have robust procedures in place to manage sickness absence within the Department and the policy includes guidance for staff on how to preserve and maintain their own and others mental well-being, this includes information on preventing and identifying stress.

The Department has completed a stress audit recently and the overall departmental analysis shows that there are no areas of high risk stress across the Department, and only three areas of medium risk. We are now in the process of drawing up an action plan to address the issues highlighted in the report. We will also be running a health event in November which will aim to raise awareness of health and well-being issues.

The Department's sick pay policy pays for sickness absence on full pay for up to six months in any period of 12 months absence—followed by half pay for sickness of up to a maximum of 12 months in any period of four years or less.

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many staff in his Department have had five or more periods of sickness absence of less than five days in two or more of the last five years. [218964]

Mr. Sutcliffe: There were 11 staff in the Department who had five or more periods of sickness absence of less than five days in two or more of the last five year.

As part of the Department's diversity and health and well-being policies, we have a range of initiatives and programmes in place to support staff and to manage stress, mental health and behavioural issues.

The Department's signature sick pay policy pays for sickness absence on full pay for up to six months in any period of 12 months absence—followed by half pay for sickness of up to a maximum of 12 months in any period of four years or less.

English Heritage: Educational Visits

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many educational visits to English Heritage managed properties took place in each of the last five years; and how many of these were provided without charge by English Heritage. [224496]

Barbara Follett [holding answer 6 October 2008]: The information requested has been provided by English Heritage and is set out in the table.

English Heritage has offered schoolchildren free entry to its sites since it was created in 1984. More recently, in response to feedback from teachers asking for more support at sites, English Heritage introduced interactive, curriculum-linked sessions in September 2006 called Discovery Visits. While entry to the sites remains free, schools are charged £60 for these sessions for a group of up to 30 pupils. In 2006-07, 10,400 children took part in Discovery Visits and 27,000 in 2007-08.

	Number of educational visits
2003-04	497,000
2004-05	475,850
2005-06	485,000
2006-07	481,000
2007-08	450,000

Listed Buildings

Sir Michael Spicer: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport whether English Heritage plans to list the Edinburgh Dome at Malvern St. James School, Worcestershire; and if he will make a statement. [222407]

Barbara Follett: [holding answer 6 October 2008]: While English Heritage receives applications, assesses buildings and makes recommendations, responsibility for decisions on whether or not to list a building remain, under the Planning (Listed Buildings and Conservation Areas) Act 1990, with the Secretary of State. The Secretary of State has received advice from English Heritage on the Edinburgh Dome at Malvern St. James School, and he will aim to make a decision by 30 November. He will inform the hon. Member of the outcome.

Pay Television

Janet Anderson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what progress Ofcom has made in its investigation into the pay television market; and when he expects the conclusion of the investigation to be published. [222830]

Andy Burnham: On 30 September Ofcom published a further consultation as part of its Pay TV market investigation. This consultation seeks views on whether BSkyB has market power in the wholesale supply of certain content—particularly Premier League football and first run movies—and whether BSkyB has the incentive to limit the distribution of this content to competitors, in a manner which favours its own platform. It also seeks views on a proposal to require BSkyB to make its content more widely available to its competitors. I have asked officials at Ofcom to update my hon. Friend on the likely future progress of this investigation.

Public Houses

Mr. Hepburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (1) how many public houses have been opened in (a) Jarrow constituency, (b) South Tyneside, (c) the North East and (d) England in each of the last five years; [223878]

(2) how many public houses owned by a pub company there were in (a) Jarrow constituency, (b) South Tyneside, (c) the North East and (d) England in each of the last five years; [223879]

(3) how many public houses have closed in (a) Jarrow constituency, (b) South Tyneside, (c) the North East and (d) England in each of the last five years. [223881]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The requested data are not centrally held.

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what estimate he has made of the number of closures of establishments in the public house sector in (a) 2000, (b) 2003 and (c) 2007. [223926]

Mr. Sutcliffe: There are no centrally held data for the total number of public house closures in the years 2000, 2003 and 2007. The Department's annual data collection on licences issued under the Licensing Act 2003 includes the number of premises licences which have been surrendered, revoked or have lapsed. However, those figures are not broken down by the type of licensed premises or licensable activity and do not include licences where the establishment has closed, but where the licence has not been surrendered. Prior to the 2003 Act coming into effect, liquor licensing data were collected triennially with the last collection covering the year to 30 June 2004.

Regional Cultural Consortiums

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport pursuant to the Written Ministerial Statement of 2 July 2008, Official Report, columns 51-52WS, on DCMS engagement, what estimate he has made of the costs arising from abolition of the Regional Cultural Consortia. [223017]

Barbara Follett: The Regional Cultural Consortiums currently receive annual grant-in-aid from my Department of approximately £1.7 million. Thus, in overall terms, there will be a saving of £1.7 million per annum to the taxpayer arising from their abolition.

Each consortium has been asked to submit its detailed plan for wind up, including a full analysis of costs. Once we have had an opportunity to review and analyse these plans we will have a clearer estimate of the likely short-term costs. In addition, we are providing an extra £50,000 per annum per region to the four key public bodies to assist them in developing and implementing their plans for the new arrangements in the regions.

South East

Dr. Stoate: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much his Department spent on services, broken down by type in (a) Dartford Borough,

(b) Kent Thameside, (c) the Thames Gateway, (d) Kent County Council area and (e) the South East region in each of the last five years. [222451]

Mr. Sutcliffe: This information is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Sport England: Public Appointments

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what costs his Department has incurred in advertising the position of Chairman of Sport England in each month since November 2007. [224840]

Andy Burnham: The costs incurred in advertising the Chair of Sport England since November 2007 were £7,669 in January 2008 and £8,297 in June 2008 (exclusive of VAT).

Sports: Enfield

Joan Ryan: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what representations his Department has received from the London Borough of Enfield on maintaining the Queen Elizabeth II Sports Stadium in Enfield as a sports centre; and what steps his Department is taking to discourage local authorities from allowing their sports facilities to become unsafe for use. [222662]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Neither my Department nor Sport England has received representations from the London Borough of Enfield in relation to the Queen Elizabeth II Sports Centre.

The provision and maintenance of local facilities is primarily a matter for local authorities. Sport England would only intervene in such cases if it had invested money in the facility, if it was involved in a planning issue or if it was in the public interest for Sport England to intervene.

Sports: Finance

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much (a) lottery funding and (b) public funding has been provided to (i) athletics and (ii) swimming, broken down by (A) local authority area and (B) region, in each year since 2005. [223842]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Sport England has provided the following information on lottery and Exchequer funding for athletics and swimming in each local authority area and region since 2005.

Sports: Greater London

Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much public money is projected to be spent on grassroots sports in the London boroughs of (a) Southwark, (b) Lambeth, (c) Lewisham, (d) Newham, (e) Hackney, (f) Waltham Forest, (g) Tower Hamlets and (h) Greenwich in each year of the current spending round. [224185]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Funding for grassroots sport in London is available from a number of sources including local authority expenditure, Exchequer funding from DCMS via Sport England, and lottery funding via Sport England. We do not hold information on local authority expenditure, and it is not possible to provide final Exchequer or lottery projections at this stage of the financial year. Sport England has provided the following projections based on confirmed awards to date. Final spend will only be known after the end of the financial year.

Southwark	114,629
Waltham Forest	23,300
Tower Hamlets	61,722
Greenwich	153,146
Lambeth	296,604
Lewisham	130,258
Newham	122,474
Hackney	1,037,177
Total	1,939,310

Spending for the period from April 2009 will be through the new Sport England funding framework outlined in their new strategy published in June of this year. Funding will be directed primarily through national governing bodies in light of the Whole Sport Plans which are currently being considered by Sport England.

Sports: Hearing Impaired

Mr. Love: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what steps his Department is taking to support deaf people who participate in sport, with particular reference to enabling deaf athletes to attend the Deaflympic Summer Games in Taiwan in 2009; and if he will make a statement. [224375]

Mr. Sutcliffe [holding answer 6 October 2008]: We are absolutely committed to equality in sport, and the new Sport England strategy aims to develop a world-leading community sport system, which will increase participation from all groups in society.

UK Deaf Sport, like other disability sport organisations, does not receive core funding from Sport England or UK Sport. However, I know that UK Deaf Sport have already made good progress in raising funds to send a team to Taiwan next year, and I hope they will be able to replicate, or better, their successful performance in Melbourne in 2005.

Sports: Milton Keynes

Dr. Starkey: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much lottery funding has been awarded to sports groups in Milton Keynes in the last 12 months. [224326]

Mr. Sutcliffe [holding answer 6 October 2008]: Sports groups in the Milton Keynes local authority area have received £34,109 of lottery funding during the period 1 October 2007 to 1 October 2008. A further four local organisations and groups have received lottery funding totalling £47,507 for sports activities in the same period.

These statistics come from the Department's Lottery Grants Database. The database is searchable at www.lottery.culture.gov.uk and uses information on lottery grants supplied by the lottery distributors.

Sports: North East

Mr. Henderson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assistance his Department is giving to third sector organisations in the North East region to support the development and work of local voluntary sports clubs. [222627]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Sport England has advised that within the North East over the last two years there has been significant work with third sector organisations to support the development and work of local voluntary sports clubs.

Sport England in the North East, working with County Sports Partnerships, provided over £520,000 to deliver subsidised education, training and development opportunities for grass roots volunteering and voluntary community sports organisations. Work has also continued with the LSC and Skills Active to provide appropriate training opportunities for volunteers.

The region's 2012 legacy ambitions also highlight volunteering as a key area of work over the next four years. The Regional Volunteering Strategy was driven by the 2012 Volunteering Theme Group and will provide the framework for future work in the region, specifically around the 2012 Olympic and Paralympic games.

Sports: Per Capita Costs

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport pursuant to the answer of 19 March 2008, Official Report, columns 1157-58W, on sports: per capita costs, what the per capita spend on sport from (a) public and (b) national lottery sources was in each (i) Government region and (ii) local authority area in each of the last three years. [223834]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Pursuant to the answer I gave on 19 March 2008, Official Report, columns 1157-58W, Sport England has advised that the following per capita expenditure was made to each Government region in each of the last three years, from public and national lottery sources. Similar information by local authority area could be provided only at disproportionate cost:

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport pursuant to the answer of 27 June 2008, Official Report, columns 860-61W, what contribution he expects Sport England to make to the £140 million fund announced on 6 June 2008 to encourage local authorities to offer free swimming; and what percentage of the fund will come from (a) Lottery income and (b) grant-in-aid income. [224513]

Mr. Sutcliffe [holding answer 6 October 2008]: We are discussing with Sport England its potential contribution to the Free Swimming Programme.

None of the £140 million fund will come from lottery income.

Tourism: Finance

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much his Department spent on work related to tourism in each year since 2002 in 2007-08 prices. [224961]

[1] Adjusted using GDP deflator at market prices index. In each year since 2003-04 to 2007-08, the Department for Culture, Media and Sport has contributed £3.6 million to the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform's (DBERR's) Single Programme budget (the "Single Pot") in respect of the tourism responsibilities of the eight Regional Development Agencies (RDAs) outside London. The Greater London Authority (GLA) is responsible for tourism in London. DCMS has provided £1.9 million each year, since 2001-02 to 2007-08, to the GLA to support the Mayor in the delivery of the GLA's statutory tourism duties. This does not include an additional £19 million in Treasury funding for the Million visitor overseas marketing campaign in 2001-02. This was matched by the private sector.

[2] For the period 2007-08, DCMS also gave £750,000 to VisitBritain to support a campaign to promote rural England following the floods and outbreak of foot and mouth of 2007.

BUSINESS, ENTERPRISE AND REGULATORY REFORM

Departmental Databases

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what use (a) his Department and (b) its agencies make of (i) MOSAIC and (ii) ACORN data. [222053]

Mr. Thomas: The Department does not make any direct use of (i) MOSAIC data or (ii) ACORN data. The Department has used data that has been extracted by an independent company from M0SAIC for the purpose of segmenting audiences during the National Minimum Wage campaign.

I have asked the chief executives of the Department's agencies to respond direct to the hon. Member.

Letter from Stephen Speed, dated 9 October 2008:

The Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform has asked me to reply to you directly on behalf of The Insolvency Service in respect of your question (2008/3618) asking what use (a) his Department and (b) its agencies make of (i) MOSAIC data and (ii) ACORN data.

The Agency does not make any direct use of (i) Mosaic data or (ii) Acorn data.

Letter from Gareth Jones, dated 6 October 2008:

I am responding on behalf of Companies House to your recently tabled Parliamentary Question to the Secretary of State for Business Enterprise and Regulatory Reform.

Companies House do not use MOSAIC or ACORN data.

Excel Airways

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform when he was informed that KPMG had resigned as auditors to Excel Airways Group PLC in October 2006; what steps he and the regulator took to investigate the reasons for this resignation; and if he will set up an investigation into the financial affairs of Excel and the successor XL Leisure Group. [224686]

Mr. McFadden: Companies House received KPMG's letter and statutory statement on 31 October 2006, and registered it on 7 November 2006. Companies House performed its statutory function of registering the document and placing it on the public record, but it had no duty, or power, to act on the contents of the document.

The administrators of XL Leisure Group plc, formerly called Excel Airways Group plc appointed on 12 September, have a duty to make a report within six months to the Secretary of State under the Company Directors Disqualification Act 1986 on the conduct of its directors. In any event, the Insolvency Service, to which the administrators' report will be referred, is considering whether a Companies Act investigation is merited.

Post Offices: Fees and Charges

Justine Greening: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (1) what the range in rates of the Annual Service Provision Cost (Franchise Fee) paid by branches of the Post Office is; [224852]

(2) how many franchised branches of the Post Office pay an annual service provision cost (franchise fee) in the range of (a) £0 to 10,000, (b) £10,001 to £20,000, (c) £20,001 to £30,000, (d) £30,001 to £40,000, (e) £40,001 to £50,000, (f) £50,001 to £60,000 and (g) £60,001 and above; [224853]

(3) on what basis the annual service provision cost franchise fee paid by branches of the Post Office is calculated; [225152]

(4) what criteria are used to set the annual service provision cost franchise fee paid by branches of the Post Office; [225153]

(5) what the annual percentage increase in the annual service provision cost franchise fee paid by branches of the Post Office was in each year since 2002. [225154]

Mr. McFadden: These are operational matters for Post Office Ltd (POL). I have therefore asked Alan Cook, managing director of POL, to reply direct to the hon. Member.

Copies of the letter will be placed in the Libraries of the House.

Royal Mail: North West

Mrs. Ellman: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what assessment he has made of the economic impact on the City of Liverpool of Royal Mail's proposal to close the Coppers Hill mail sorting office; and if he will make a statement. [225742]

Mr. McFadden: The decision to close the Coppers Hill mail centre was an operational decision by Royal Mail management. While Royal Mail intends to close this centre, it will be opening three new delivery offices in Liverpool. The Government fully appreciates that the closure of mail centres or other Royal Mail facilities creates uncertainty for Royal Mail employees and their families. I understand that Royal Mail is discussing the impact of their proposals and decisions with employees and will work with them individually to understand their preferences for future employment within the business.

Mrs. Ellman: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform whether he was consulted on Royal Mail's review of mail sorting offices in the North West; and whether similar reviews are being carried out in other regions. [225743]

Mr. McFadden: The Review of the mail centres in the North West is an operational matter for Royal Mail. Ministers were not consulted about the specific decisions taken as it is for the Royal Mail management to decide how to run its operations efficiently. It is also for Royal Mail to decide how and when it should review its operations in other regions.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Council Housing: Construction

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether local housing companies will be allowed to build directly managed council houses with secure tenancies and council set rents. [221048]

Mr. Iain Wright [holding answer 22 July 2008]: The corporate aims and activities of individual local housing companies (LHC) will be decided by local authorities in agreement with their private sector partners. However, in general terms, LHCs are likely to be housing development, and possibly management, companies that build homes having a mix of tenures and types. It will be possible for LHCs to transfer homes into local authority ownership for them to manage and let on secure tenancies at rents set by the authority, if that is what they wish to do.

Domestic Waste: Waste Disposal

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment she has made of the effects of targeting national indicator 191 on residual household waste on local authorities' propensity to adopt fortnightly rubbish collections. [222717]

Hilary Benn: I have been asked to reply.

No assessment has been made of the effect of targeting national indicator 191 on residual household waste on local authorities' propensity to adopt alternate weekly collections of residual waste. Such decisions are entirely a matter for local authorities themselves.

Dorneywood

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer to the right hon. Member for Horsham of 19 June 2008, Official Report, column 1187W, on Dorneywood: official hospitality, what use her Department has made of Dorneywood for official engagements in the last 12 months. [221977]

Mr. Khan: None.

Local Government Services: Public Participation

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what steps the Government has taken to encourage local authorities to open their facilities to the public. [225339]

John Healey: The Government are keen for local authorities to make available their facilities to local people. How this is achieved is a matter for local discretion.

Mortgages: Repossession Orders

Adam Price: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate she has made of how many repossessions were avoided by the Government's mortgage rescue service in 2007-08. [225745]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Government's £200 million mortgage rescue scheme was announced by the Prime Minister on 2 September. It is anticipated that the scheme will be open for business by January 2009.

The scheme builds on existing Government initiatives aimed at supporting homeowners in financial difficulty and at risk of repossession. It is expected to assist up to 6,000 of the most vulnerable households, in England, likely to need state assistance were they to be repossessed.

Rodents: Pest Control

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what information her Department holds on the number of complaints to local authorities about rodent problems in each of the last 10 years. [222465]

Hilary Benn: I have been asked to reply.

Neither DEFRA nor Communities and Local Government hold any records on the number of complaints to local authorities about rodent problems.

Waste Management: Contracts

Mr. Sharma: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment she has made of the account taken of competition issues and open tendering in the processes adopted by local authorities in selecting partnership agreements with private sector companies on waste management; and if she will make a statement. [222865]

Hilary Benn: I have been asked to reply.

The procurement of local authority contracts is the responsibility of the individual authority and must follow EU procurement rules which promote competitive tendering. DEFRA's Waste Infrastructure Delivery Programme (WIDP) offers PFI credits and transactor support as well as best practice guidance to authorities procuring residual waste infrastructure. WIDP always encourages authorities to structure their procurements to encourage competition in order to achieve value for money.

Waste Management: Liverpool

Mr. Sharma: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what discussions she has had with Liverpool City Council on the selection of their private sector waste management partner. [222866]

Hilary Benn: I have been asked to reply.

DEFRA has not had any discussions with Liverpool city council on the selection of their private sector waste management partner.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Sports: Greater London

Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much public money was spent on grassroots sports in the London boroughs of

(a) Southwark, (b) Lambeth, (c) Lewisham, (d) Newham, (e) Hackney, (f) Waltham Forest, (g) Tower Hamlets and (h) Greenwich in each of the last five years. [224186]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Funding for grassroots sport in London is available from a number of sources including local authority expenditure, Exchequer funding from DCMS via Sport England, and lottery funding via Sport England. The following figures do not include funding for national schemes that may have been spent within these boroughs. This information could only be provided at disproportionate cost. We do not hold information on local authority expenditure in the boroughs listed, but Sport England has advised that the amounts of Exchequer and lottery funding spent on grassroots sports in each borough, in each year of the last five years are as follows:

DEFENCE

Armed Forces: Manpower

Mr. Llwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many personnel left (a) the Army, (b) the Royal Navy and (c) the Royal Air Force in each of the last five years. [225669]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Data on the number of Personnel leaving each of the UK regular armed forces can be found in tables 6, 7,9,10 and 11 of Tri-Service Publication (TSP) 4 - UK Armed Forces Quarterly Manning Report. TSP 4 is publishedquarterly and the most recent publication shows figures for the 12 months to 1 July 2008 and can be found at:

http://bravo.dasa.r.mil.uk/applications/newWeb/www/index.php?page=67&pubTvpe=1&thiscontent=20&date=2008-08-28

Copies of TSP 4 are available in the Library of the House and also at

www.dasa.mod.uk

Armed Forces: Uniforms

Mr. Mullin: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what recent steps have been taken to assess alternatives to bear fur for use in guardsmen's busbies; and if he will make a statement. [225305]

Mr. Quentin Davies: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by Baroness Taylor on 29 September 2008, Official Report, column WA385, in the other place to the noble Lord Corbett.

Armoured Fighting Vehicles

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what percentage of the armed forces (a) Apache, (b) Lynx and (c) Gazelle vehicles were (i) fit for purpose and (ii) out of service at the latest date for which figures are available. [223847]

Mr. Quentin Davies: The percentages of the (a) Apache, (b) Lynx and (c) Gazelle aircraft considered (i) fit for purpose are detailed in the following table. For (ii), the term 'out of service' is not used in describing the management of helicopter fleets, however, for the purpose of this answer, 'out of service' is defined as those aircraft which are in the Depth fleet and those which are classified as non-effective aircraft.

July 2008	Fit for purpose as percentage of Forward fleet total	Forward fleet as percentage of Departmental fleet total	Depth as percentage of Departmental fleet total	Effective fleet (Forward fleet + Depth fleet) as percentage of Departmental fleet total	Non-Effective as percentage of Departmental fleet total
Apache AH1[1]	39	73	27	100	0
Lynx Mk3	60	56	28	83	17
Lynx Mk7	64	52	35	87	13
Lynx Mk8	70	57	37	94	6
Lynx Mk9	60	63	29	92	8
Gazelle	87	46	8	54	46

[1] The Apache Operational fit for purpose for July 2008 was 72 per cent. of the Forward fleet. The Apache fleet is exceeding fit for purpose targets in theatre and is fully delivering the required capability. Priority is always given to operational commitments.

Note:
The figures shown in the table are the average for the month of July 2008. The number of helicopters 'fit for purpose' will vary from day to day due, primarily, to routine maintenance requirements. Operational capability is measured in terms of flying hours rather than the number of airframes available.
